Our Approaching Municipal Election.

To the Editor of THE DAILY EXAMINER:

It is not too soon to begin to prepare for our municipal elections. It is always unwise to put off the consideration of this matter until the time for action gets near. There is a great deal to be done before the polling day, and the most important duty for the electors is the choice of suitable men to represent them at the council board. As a general rule, hitherto the people have left this duty to take care of itself, or, which is the same thing, they have been content to do nothing themselves, and have left to a few interested parties to name the candidates, they, the people then having no alternative but to vote for them or not vote at all. This is not as it should be.

THE PEOPLE ARE THE PARTIES INTERESTED in municipal government, they want a good municipal government, they have the means of obtaining it and they can obtain it if they do their duty as good citizens. They must vote for no candidate who is, or would make a careless or ignorant councillor. They must vote for no candidate who has private interests of his own to serve at the council board, and they must vote for no candidate who has hitherto, or who will hereafter subserve the interests of others. In making their choice of councillors the people must put aside all personal or private feeling and they must vote only for such men as will in the council act honestly, fairly and with an eye solely to

THE GOOD OF THE WHOLE COMMUNITY.

But before all, and above all, the people must think and act for themselves; they must make themselves acquainted with the conduct of former councillors, and when any of these councillors have neglected their duty, or when they have studied their own, before the interests of the whole people, or when they have not exercised economy when it might and ought to have been exercised, they must be elected to stay at home and better men must be elected in their place. There is plenty of room for such inquiries and it is time now that they were beginning to be made. And if made efficiently, the people will find plenty of room for dissatisfaction and plenty of cause, notably in the First and Fourth Wards, for weeding out delinquent councillors and for electing better men to take their places. It is not my wish or my place to mention names or to attack personally any of the councillors. I have a right to assume that the people properly

KNOW THEIR OWN BUSINESS.

If they do not know it, it is time they did so, and the responsibility for their shortcomings rests upon themselves. They should take care to elect the best men to the council and they should take care to pledge them as to their votes upon the leading questions of the day. A great saving can be made in our civic expenditure, and the people will soon have it in their power to see that it is made. There is a tendency with certain parties to extravagance in our town affairs, and if it is not checked now, it will go on increasing and the people's money will continue to be wasted. The great trouble in a community like ours is to get the people to understand what is required of others, and to sufficiently realize and then to see that they do their duty. But the chances are that indifference will continue to prevail and that councillors will be chosen, as heretofore, from carelessness and by means of personal solicitation, and by means of great promises for the future. It is beside the question for councillors to say that we are lightly taxed, for there is no reason why our taxes should not be reduced at least one-third from their present amount. If we can avoid incurring further debt there is no reason why our outstanding debentures should not be paid off within a period of a few years.

THE NECESSITY OF CHOOSING GOOD COUNCILLORS,

"Don't you want to go to the better world, Tommy?" asked a Sunday School teacher of a new scholar.

"No, mum," promptly replied the frank little fellow.

"And why not Tommy?"

"Oh, when I die I want to go where a fellow can rest."

"Well, my boy, you can rest there."

"Well, in that song we sung it said we'll shine there?

"No, mum; I don't want to shine there. I get enough of that here. I'm a bootblack, mum."

The British Elections.

The Liberals Jubilant—Over the Latest Returns of the Elections—They Hold Their Own in Manufacturing Districts.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—So far as yesterday's counties have been heard from they show Liberal gains. A surprising feature of the return is that in manufacturing districts the Liberals seem not only to have held their own, but to have made gains. This is considered remarkable in view of the catching arguments drummed in the people of these districts in favor of "Fair Trade" as they choose to call a Protective Policy. The success of the Government's Burmese expedition also failed to have the effect which the Conservatives expected on the voting. Over all these things the Liberals have plucked up courage and are feeling very jubilant.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The counties are polling so strongly for the Liberals that they promise a Liberal majority over the Tories and Parnellites combined. The Conservatives require to win 122 more seats out of the 144 still unpolled, of which it is calculated that 30 will fall to the Parnellites. The Conservatives cannot possibly maintain power independently of the Parnellites. The opinion of the Conservative clubs is opposed to placing any reliance on the Parnellites, but favors an early resignation of the Salisbury ministry in order to gain an absolute majority. The Liberals need to win half the seats still unpolled.

The Standard gives up all hope of a Tory majority.

The list of successful candidates now stands: Liberals 262, Tories 211, Nationalists 52.

In Tottenham, Middlesex, Mr. Caine, who was a junior lord of the admiralty in Mr. Gladstone's government, has been defeated, making the tenth member of that government defeated at this election.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 3.—Djevdet Pasha has been formally appointed special convoy and governor-general of Eastern Roumelia. A concert in aid of the English Church, Warsaw, was given last night, in which Peterborough talent was conspicuous. A number of capital choruses, quartettes and glees were presented. Mr. A. P. Choate sang Ambrose's "Abide With Me." Mr. Thos. Dunn sang "Through the Darkness" in elegant style, receiving prolonged applause. Rev. Mr. McKnight, Presbyterian minister, gave an excellent reading. Misses Annie and Addie Choate contributed two pretty songs. Mr. Lech played the accompaniments in good form and gave an excellent organ solo. The concert was a grand success. After the concert was over the company were entertained at an oyster supper, at which they indulged in speechafying, etc. They intend making a tour of the neighboring villages, and will no doubt be liberally patronized.

Stuart Rogers.

No better test of his powers of mimicry could be given than that afforded in his representation of Oscar Wild, while all who have heard the veritable Oscar agreed it was about as perfect as could well be, as well in attire and attitude as in mannerism and voice. In every piece Mr. Rogers proved himself an accomplished artist; the humerous sketches suiting him better, perhaps, than the pathetic. His remarkable powers of facial expression were severely and satisfactorily tested in the "Three Quarrelsome Italians," and in "Darius Green and his Flying Machine," both of which were heartily enjoyed. Tennyson's "Lady Clara Vere de Vere" was rendered as we seldom hear it. This reading alone stamping Mr. Rogers as a first-class declaimer. A second entertainment will be given to-night, when another large house may be expected.—The Evening Mail, Halifax N. S., Oct. 14th.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 21.]

Isidore G. Ascher.

"When the Divine Artist would produce a poem, He diants a germ of it in a human soul, and out of that soul the poem springs and grows as from the rose-tree the rose.—Jas. A. Garfield, Oration on the Anniversary of Burn's death.

Ascher's music is essentially of the household. He is a part of the affections, whose pathos and tenderness of feeling show wonderful insight into the workings of the human mind. His little volume contains many very excellent pieces worthy of reproduction. One which we might term a seasonable poem is called

THE FALLING SNOW.

Fall like peace, O gossamer snow!
While the searching winds are roaming abroad;
Fall, in your wealth, on the world below,
Like a blessed balm from God!

Fall like kisses upon the earth,
That is old and cheerless and full of woe,
And fill its heart with a sense of mirth,
Silent and loving snow!

Fall in your wonderful purity,
Fair as a bride's unsullied dress;
Fall from the heaven's immensity,
On our autumn dreariness.

Fall like the light of an infant's smile
That sweetly beams for a mother alone
Fall like hope, when it dawns awhile
On a doubting heart of stone.

Fall like tears that leave us resigned
When the soul submits to a hapless doom;
Fall like light that falls on the blind,
On a life o'er-steeped in gloom.

Fall like the bounties God has given,
While the mournful winds are piping abroad;
Fall like the hints we have of heaven,
Like a blessed balm from God!

Ascher in his poetry revels in moral life. Whatever he touches he beautifies. His mind is pure and noble and he draws healthful moral lessons from every topic his pen describes. His mind is in fact, suffused with the divine afflatus, a quality so difficult to analyze or describe, yet readily understood by the initiated. We have advised our readers to purchase several works already and we add here, if you want to read some genuine lyrics, order "Voices from the Hearth." We have mentioned his powers of description and as an example offer his poem on SHORT DAYS.

Over the pale crust of the ermine snow
The wind is roaming, chilled with winter breath,
And the dim waning days seem touched with woe
For Autumn's lingering death.

They gather varied hours in their train,
And lay them in the stillness of the past,
And o'er the fitful visions of the brain
Their broken shadows cast.

The evenings lengthen as the days subside,
Deepening and broadening to the peaceful night,
Like tender shadows, tempering as they hide
The noonday's garish light.

And dull with scowling clouds and fretful skies,
The little days pass onward to their bourne-
Life's shadowy landmarks, to our saddened eyes,
But vanished haze of morn!

The hours shrivel as we vainly try
To grasp their fruits within our feeble hold;
Their glow and bloom and beauty seem to die
In winter's piercing cold.

O lessening days that silently depart!
Leave us the broader faith and larger hope,
So that the scarred and patient, human heart
May love with fuller scope:

Yield us the deeper trust in human truth,
Show us the purer sky above the haze,
So that the nobler visions of our youth
May light our devious ways:

Banish the frost of doubt that numbs the heart
Broaden the narrowing limits of life's road;
So may your fleeting presence still impart
A lasting love for God.

Not only is there sentiment in the above idyl, there is sterling teaching also. The moral is beautifully drawn out and the whole poem is indicative of remarkable strength for a young man of 25. The same may be said of one of his miscellaneous pieces, entitled, "Weaving" which is too long for our columns, and also of one descriptive of autumn, and which is named "Fall." The following verses are in themselves an excellent temperance sermon, although the name of the poem is DRINK.

"There's a sound of woe in the cheerless street
And a shriek in the midnight air,
For the drunken sot is reeling along,
In the gathering darkness there;
And I hear the meaningless words that come
From the depth of his heart's despair;
'Tis a moan for drink—
For he'll drink and drink
Till the earth seems to reel and swim—
Till his hope in God and his trust in man
Are lost in his pitiless cries—
Till he loathes his life, and so loathing, dies,
And all for the sake of drink!

He cries not for aid from a merciful God,
He craves not a pittance of bread,
But shrieks for drink to the hollow winds,
That echo his teetering tread;
And his fleshless bones clasp the cold, dumb stones,
That serve for his pillow and bed.—
For he'll drink and drink
Till his eyes are dim—
Till his senses ache with pain.—
For his trust in God and his faith in man
He'll never on earth regain.
While he hates the sight of both day and night
For the sake of the demon drink!

Has he sipped the sups of a direful doom?
Has care made him grovel low?
Has penury cankered his youthful hopes,
Or darkened their rainbow glow?
Has Heaven deserted this homeless man Whose words seem the gasping of woe
'Tis the poison drink
That maddens the brain—
That hardends his heart,
While a dark veil of gloom like a fearful doom
In his heart and home does dwell.
Where fell disease and famine have sped,—
And all for the sake of drink!

Raise him from where he crouches and creeps
On the slime and mud at his feet,—
Bear him where blessings shall scatter in sight,
The curses his lips would repeat;
Raise him,—but banish the maddening cup—
The curse of the home and street,—
And wage a war with the demon drink,
The tempter to crime below,
That makes a hell of the purest dell,
Where flowers might bloom and grow—
That surely gives birth on this beautiful earth
To the direst sin and woe.

Our space is exhausted, but much that is golden in Ascher's poetry remains untouched. We know well the world is too busy, too impatient, too much given to the stern realities of life and the abounding movement and bustle of the present day to give much heed to poetry. Still to the faithful few, we very heartily commend this almost unknown lyrist, and shall be satisfied if what we have said concerning him and quoted from his works, shall help in extending his name and fame.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The editor of the Windsor Wonder is a genius. He coolly and gravely announces his discovery—perhaps invention is the better word—that Sir John went to England at the request of Lord Salisbury, to give the latter a few pointers on how to give Home Rule to Ireland "on the basis of our provincial constitution." The Warder is right. Sir John after eighteen years of effort to deprive the provinces of the confederation, especially Ontario, of Home Rule, is the very man to tell Lord Sailsbury and the Tories how to give Ireland the only kind of Home Rule that will accord with Tory principles. It's a pity that Sir F. Bond Head, who gave Canada such brilliant assistance, about fifty years ago, in securing Home Rule, were not alive to join the conference.

The bolt of the Bleus in Quebec will either swamp the Government or it will cost the country millions to bring about a pacification. In the latter direction the work has already well begun. Senator O'Donoghue has shown signs of discontent at the conduct of the government and straightway his former partner and relative, Mr. Fitzgerald, a Toronto lawyer, is appointed to a first-class clerkship in the Finance Department, with a salary of $2,400 a year, and without the formality of passing the civil service examination. There is said to be much indignation among the officials of the Finance Department at having an outsider pitchforked into one of the best paying positions in the public service over the heads of more capable, experienced, and more deserving men.

Norwood.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

THE MODEL SCHOOL.

The examination of the Model School pupils for professional certificates will take place in the school buildings here, commencing on Monday, Dec. 7th.

RESIGNATION.

Mr. Jackson, assistant master in the Norwood High School, has resigned his position, and Mr. Bewell, of Carleton Place, who comes highly recommended, has been appointed to fill the vacancy. Mr. Jackson purposes to devote his attention to artistic work, for which he is admirably well adapted. He has proved himself a success as a teacher and we extend to him our best wishes in his new venture.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

A gaol bird named Charles Andrews, who has just returned from spending a short term in the Peterborough jail, thought that an overcoat would be more useful on his shoulders than hanging on a post at Gough's store, so quietly made the transfer and cooly walked off towards the station; but fortunately Mr. Ott Brennan was serenely taking the scene in from a window of his hotel, and at once informed Mr. Gough of the theft. The robber was quickly followed, and befere the garment was warm upon his back he was secure in the lock-up. He was sent to Peterborough for trial.

OUR HIGH SCHOOL.

This institution is in a flourishing condition, although we learn the attendance at present is not as large as it might be; but the prospects for next year are very encouraging. Special attention will be paid to all pupils who wish to prepare for teachers' certificates, matriculation in medicine or commercial work. The results of the departmental examination, together with the High School Inspector's report to the Board, particularly that of Dr. McLellan's for 1884, shows that the school has attained a good position.

A GO-AHEAD.

Norwood possesses one of the most methodical and business-like individuals in the commercial line in Ontario, in the person of Miss M. Williams, our well-known milliner. Attention to the wants of her customers, careful in the management of her business, and always keeping up full lines in all departments of her store, Miss Williams commands a very large share of the confidence and patronage of the people of a wide community in East Peterborough. Not even content with the well-patronized store managed by herself in Norwood, this enterprising business lady has opened out branch stores in Tweed and other villages on the O. & Q. Railway. These, too, are giving paying dividends and establishing for her a good name abroad. Her store in Norwood is a marvel of artistic millinery display all the year round and would do credit, in all its departments, to a city millinery establishment.

NOTES.

The grain is coming into the Norwood elevator as briskly as ever. Steady prices are commanding a large patronage to this enterprise.

Norwood is said to be one of the best stations on the O. & Q. Railway.

An unique oyster supper was partaken of here on Monday evening last. It was "mum" feast, there being no speeches or toasts, or anything in fact but oysters, which were supplied most lavishly. However, the feasters were good for them.

We regret to state that Mr. Harry Buck was brought home from the shanties on Tuesday, suffering from a severe attack of illness. We are glad to learn that he is improving.

We advise those who wish to get some of Sailsbury Bros.' beautiful Xmas Cards, to go at once, for the best cards are going fast.

FOR 'XMAS, we are showing the finest stock of SILK HANDKERCHIEFS ever shown in this part of Canada, having bought 20 dozen late in the season, and 25 per cent cheaper than those bought early in the Fall. These Goods will be sold at 40c, 50c, 75c and $1.00, and will be found well worthy of your attention.

Our stock of SUITINGS, PANTINGS and OVERCOATINGS, are all in good shape, and will be made up 10 per cent cheaper than one month ago. Those celebrated $4.50 Pants which we had such a run on, will be made now for $4.00. How does that catch you?

Now Mark, we will do just what we Say

And make you believe there is no place in Peterborough, or for 50 miles around, that will give you the bargains the PETERBOROUGH CLOTHING HOUSE will. NOW IS YOUR TIME; COME AT ONCE.

Melville Millar

MY BRIDEGROOM.

My suitor had come for an answer. He was old, withered, and grey; but a carriage stood outside the door of our cottage, and from its windows I could see the turrets of his mansions. So I said "Yes!" with my lips, while my whole nature rebelled, and cried out "No, a thousand times No!"

How glad I was when the interview was over, and I could be alone to think over my future and all the delights that would be mine as Lady Standiland.

I had jirted no lover in becoming his promised wife, for I had been fancy free when he came to woo; so it was strange that every now and then I should feel as if I must resign my brilliant prospect and take back the "yes" that had been won from me by Lord Standiland's gold.

I was to pay a visit to the Hall, and make the further acquaintance of Lady Grace—my future step-daughter; but Lord Standiland had given me a week for my preparations.

Poor mother looked a little blue when I told her this item of news, although she was pleased enough to hear of my engagement, which I announced with befitting solemnity as we sat over tea that evening.

"Grace has so many fine clothes," she said ruefully. "How can you ever compete with her?"

"I don't mean to try," I said, calmly; "at least, not until I am married. There, don't look so woebegone; beauty unadorned is adorned the most, you know."

"Let no woman think, however fair, she is not fairer in new clothes than old," quoted my mother, with a vague idea of having read the verse of poetry at some period of existence.

"Well," I said with a laugh, "and am I not going to have new dresses; two or three, at least? Have you forgotten uncle Allen's ten-pound note?"

"You are never going to spend that?" remonstrated my mother.

"Yes, I am!" I returned. "What is the use of its lying upstairs between the leaves of my 'Longfellow.' I am going to buy some pretty things with it, for there is no occasion for me to save money now, since I shall soon have as much as I want. Oh, mother, how jolly that will be!"

"Ah! Reika," sighed my mother, "I hope you will be happy with that old man."

Her tone seemed to imply that she doubted it; but I only smiled. Of course I was going to be happy. Why not?

My visit to the Hall was a very pleasant one, for Grace was a lady; and, if she secretly disliked the match, she never allowed me or anyone to see it. Sweet, calm, and serene, her face told me tales. But, in her place, I should not have been pleased, and so I fancied she was not. However, she was always kind to me, always considerate, and I really loved her.

One day I sat alone in the drawing-room, turning over the leaves of a book, when a young man with blue eyes entered the room, and advanced towards me with a smile.

"Is this my new mama?" he asked, in slightly satirical tones.

His words brought a scarlet flush to my face. I knew who he was now—the Earl of Standiland's son and heir—Lord Arline.

"I am Reika Marchant," I said, frigidly.

"Yes, my new mamma," he said, composedly; "I knew I could not be mistaken."

There was a portrait of his father over the mantel, and he glanced from it to me in a provoking smile.

It was a striking contrast no doubt to that picture, with my sunny hair and glowing cheeks; but I hated Lord Arline for drawing my attention to the fact.

Yes, he was decidedly a hateful personage.

We never could agree from the first moment we set eyes on each other, for, unlike his sister, he showed his dislike to the match pretty openly. I should not have minded that had he not persisted in calling me "Mamma."

"Please call me anything but that," I said to him one day, when we happened to be alone in the conservatory.

"What else can I call you?" he returned, quite gravely. "You are to be my mother, are you not, Reika?"

My face flushed unaccountably as he uttered my name, and, instead of answering his question, I bent over the flowers.

"I would give anything in the world to think you never would be," he went on, and his voice trembled."

"Do you hate me so much?" I asked, turning to look at him; but I saw something in his face that made me very quickly lower my eyes.

From that moment Lord Arline avoided me.

There was no more jesting about his new mamma, and if we were alone together he would instantly walk away.

I did not question him as to the meaning of the change. I knew it too well. His eyes had betrayed his secret. He loved me!

And I was to be his step-mother.

It did seem ridiculous. I could not help thinking so as I glanced at my own young figure, reflected in a mirror, by the side of Lord Standiland's—old, bent, and grey.

Belleville.

On Wednesday Mr. Wm. Webster, Collector of Customs, Belleville, was thrown from a train and seriously injured. It appears that Mr. Webster had been attending the wedding of his brother at Campbellford, and boarded the Midland Railway that morning for home. When within a mile of the Junction, Mr. Webster was standing on the platform of the rear car, when a sudden jolt of the train sent him headlong, alighting upon his head and shoulders. When first picked up, covered with blood and wounds, it was feared that the accident would prove fatal, but as it is believed that no bones are broken, it is to be hoped that his recovery will be as speedy as his many friends would wish. He is being cared for at a farm house about a mile from the Junction.

Lindsay.

A Farmers' Institute will be held in Lindsay on the 6th and 7th of January next. Professors Mills and Panton, of Guelph Agricultural College, will be present to deliver addresses. What are the farmers of Peterborough about? Are they willing to allow themselves to be outdone by farmers in the neighboring county?

The citizens of Lindsay are finding out that wickedness cannot go unpunished. An amateur dramatic company has been let loose on the citizens.

Since the Warder came under the new management of Mr. Hughes its mechanical appearance has improved, and that is not all the improvements made. The editorial department has been reinforced—gas fixtures have been, during the past week, placed in the establishment. It has been remarked that the patrons of the Warder would appreciate it when they got Hughes-ed to it.

The Lindsay baseball club is giving a series of entertainments. The first was given on Wednesday night. Very appropriately the first number on the programme was a "hidden" chorus by the club. It may be inferred that the club were practicing this chorus when they were hidden so that they could not be found when they had arranged to play a ball match in Peterborough.

"Go To."

"Go to," is an expression frequently found in the writings of great literary men. The school boy's interpretation of it is that the writer, through delicacy, leaves the rest to be inferred. This time it means go to the Parlor Roller Rink if you want to enjoy yourself. The floor is perfection and the rollers are the best.

It May be Remarked

That A. Clegg does not make cheap trashy basswood furniture, nor buy common stuff that would not sell even by auction, nor make believe that he has bought a whole stock in trade when he has only bought a small remnant of the nucleus of a stock that would not sell even by auction.

That A. Clegg will sell you a good article at the lowest living price.

That a poor article is dear at any price.

Butter Market Improvements.

In connection with the improvements to the butter market there has been erected outside the building another flight of stairs leading to the upper room of the market. It is immediately opposite the old stairs and is joined to them by the landing above. It was thought by the committee who have the matter in hand that an inside stairway would occupy too much space, and so they abandoned the idea. The new stairway will greatly facilitate access to, and ingress from, the market.

Y. M. C. A. Literary Class.

The attendance at the Y.M.C.A. Literary Class was not as large as usual, owing to an alteration in the date of the meeting. The lesson taken up was the latter half of Goldsmith's "Traveller," and was thoroughly enjoyed. Mr. Barton Earle gave a running commentary on the poem, dealing with its style, language, the truth and falsity of statements, etc. The class is conducted in conversational style, and questions are freely asked and safreely answered by the teacher. Mr. Earle's knowledge of the English authors is very extensive, he having them all, as it were, at the tip of his tongue. He also possesses to a remarkable degree, the happy nack of imparting information. Those who wish to become more familiar with English literature should attend the class. Books are furnished at the rooms. At the next meeting Goldsmith's "Deserted Village" will be taken up.

Breaking the Record.

The Canada Pacific Railway are breaking the record every day. Now the North Shore Railway has been transferred to them, their time bill has been arranged that through connections in Quebec and points in the Lower Provinces can be made from Ottawa, Toronto, Detroit, and all points West, via Martin Junction, 12 miles North of Montreal, thus avoiding tedious waiting at connecting points and enabling passengers to reach their destination in as short a time as possible.

We have no hesitation in saying that for comfort, excellence of road, and the politeness and attention of their servants, the Canada Pacific Railway stands pre-eminent as the Model Road of Canada, and although one may feel inclined to smile at their streamers advertising the road, a trip will convince any unprejudiced mind that the road, equippment, scenery and punctuality are superlative in every sense of the world.

Police Court.

John Newall was brought before Magistrate Dumble this morning charged with being drunk and disorderly. He admitted the charge and was fined $2. Paid forthwith.

Subsequent to the trial Mr. Newall represented to an EXAMINER reporter that he had during the evening been relieved of $120. He this morning he had given it to Constable Adams and was surprised when he found he had not. He took it as a very severe lesson.

The complainant in an assault case made his appearance in court. He was interrogated by the Magistrate that owing to some inadvertance, the papers had not been served to the defendant, and the case was held over till to-morrow.

What We Would Like to Know.

If it would not have paid better to erect a good permanent iron bridge at Smith street, than patch up the old bridge that can only last a few years at the best.

If this weather is really the beginning of winter.

If good sleighing wouldn't cure our merchants and business men of the blues.

The Rathbun Company's Business.

Mr. W. B. Ferguson has been appointed town agent for the Rathbun Company and will enter upon his duties at once. In securing Mr. Ferguson the Company has been exceedingly fortunate, as all who know him feel certain that he will bestow upon it that intelligent attention, which a long business experience fully fits him for giving it. The premises under the new proprietorship will be opened for business on Monday. At their yard will be sold coal and other fuel, waterlime, their celebrated Crown Jewel flour and lumber goods of their own manufacture. Their sash factory at Deseronto is the largest in Ontario, and from it the Peterborough agency will be supplied with sash, doors, mouldings, etc., in fact the complete inside finishing material for a house, including sash doors, shutters, mouldings, door frames, stairs, newels, balustrades, hand-rails, etc. As soon as the weather permits their new premises will be improved in a manner in keeping with neatness and completeness that characterize all the agencies of this enterprising Company. Mr. Ferguson's office will be upon the premises, but orders left at Mr. Adam Hall's "Giant T" will be telephoned to the office and receive prompt attention.

A Dramatic Treat Ahead.

That favorite comedy company, Holt & Knowles' "Jolly Argonauts" is billed to hold the boards at Bradburn's Opera House on Tuesday evening December the 8th. This company is composed of talented New York artists, who have played leading parts in the best comedies of the day. The musical features of their presentations are bright and sparkling. The press notices the "Jolly Argonauts" very favorably. The Cleveland Leader says : "Holt & Knowles' Argonauts last night developed a world of fun at the People's Theatre in the three-act musical comedy, "The Boarding School," and an audience nearly filling the theatre showed its appreciation by an almost continuous round of applause. Miss Josie Devoy as "Tod" made a very capital spoiled child, while R. G. Knowles as "Jeremiah Gimcrack" acquitted himself in a highly pleasing manner. The rest of the company are very good in the various characters assumed and are worthy of special mention."

Lecture on the Holy Land.

The illustrated lecture on the Holy Land, presented by the African missionaries, in Bradburn's Opera House last night, was highly interesting and instructive and was appreciated by the audience. There was a full house. The lecturer explained that his language would not be eloquent and grammatical mistakes would have to be overlooked. They had been taken for escaped convicts at some places, and at Montreal persons thought they had come to attend a carnival, The dogs on the streets of Peterborough ran from them. Father Vignon operated the opticon while Father Nowlaerts lectured and gave the history of the scene presented. A large number of the principal places mentioned in Bible history were shewn on canvas, and the manners and customs of the people given. Among the principal places and objects shewn were: Jerusalem, Nazareth, Bethlehem, Galilee, tomb of Abraham, the Dead Sea, near which the missionary had seen the pillar of salt, the remains of Lot's wife ; the River Jordan, one of the beautiful gates of Jerusalem, which has stood over 2000 years; Mohammedan Mosques, one of which stands where the Temple of Solomon formerly stood. An especially interesting view was that of their church and seminary in Jerusalem, a large, fine-looking building. The Sphynx, the guardian of the pyramids was also shewn. The fashions in the Holy Land had not changed materially for over 2000 years. One very bad feature of the country, and of all unchristian countries, was that the women were not respected. They were treated worse than dogs. A Mohammedan priest's wives were unlimited. The women were believed to have no souls, but should they be faithful to their husbands, those worthies promised to lend them a part of their souls and to take them to heaven when they died. But they generally sold them when they were about 40 years of age. Smoking was a general habit in the eastern countries. They used no tables or chairs there and all had to sit like Turks. At meals they dispensed with knives, forks, spoons, etc. The Mohammedans believed if they went on a pilgrimage to Mecca they would go to heaven. The killing of a Jew or Christian was considered a virtuous act. The Jews of Jerusalem were poor. The lecturer sang a Mohammedan song or hymn, but was not encored. The missionaries were now on a tour to get money to educate these Mohammedans and Jews to Christianity. A special lecture and exhibition will be given this afternoon, in which Africa and slavery will be presented. Their views are considerede very fine and the subjects are interesting.

A Prize Horse's Leg Broken.

One of the team of valuable horses of Mr. Caldwell, of Garden Hill, which carried off first prize at the Peterborough Central, in the carriage class, had its leg broken some days ago. Mr. Caldwell was visiting in Emily when the accident occurred. An effort will be made to save the animal's life.

Temperance Calculation Company.

This company is suing a number of its stockholders for calls and they are resisting on various grounds which they are advised form a good defence. Messrs. Dumble & Henry have been retained to defend and they have retained E. B. Osler. Q.C., of Toronto, who is now having a big fight with the company, which will probably determine the question of liability.

The parties in this neighborhood who are the victims of this company's operations are uniting for defence on the principle that together they can do it more effectually and cheaply than by fighting single handed.

Personal.

Mr. James Hudson, from the Lakes country at Peace Hills, N.W.T., is registered at the Grand Central to-day. He was present at the execution of Riel, and secured a piece of the rope which hung him. He shows it with ghastly satisfaction.

Gas Works Improvements.

The Addition of a New Cupola—Gas Made From Oil—Saturday Night Supply Secured—No Reduction in Price.

For some time past Mr. Wm. Drury, Superintendent of the Peterborough Gas Works, has been engaged in making additions to the generating apparatus at the gas house. Of late it has been found very difficult to keep up the pressure to supply the demand on Saturday nights and the Company decided to make additions to the works, thereby removing the difficulty. Mr. Drury has been working enthusiastically and energetically for some time and has now completed and put in what he calls a "cupola." It consists of a large upright cylindrical furnace about twelve feet high, faced inside with brick. To this is joined, near the top, a horizontal cylinder of about the same dimensions, brick lined, and filled with broken brick thrown in promiscuously, connected by a large pipe with a purifier. The gas manufactured by this cupola is made from crude oil. The process is as follows:—A coal fire is started in the furnace and when sufficiently ignited, oil and steam are injected into it by means of pipes controlled by taps, where it is converted into gas, and passes up into the horizontal cylinder, where it is partially cooled off by passing through the interstices between the loose bricks. From this cylinder it is conducted through a large pipe into a purifier, where it passes through water, and is "scrubbed," "scoured" and cooled off. From this purifier it is allowed to pass into a large retort, where it is mixed with the coal gas, and in which it is finally purified. The addition of this apparatus has entailed a large expenditure and it is not thought necessary to reduce the price of gas immediately. The cupola will be tested today and a full pressure of gas may be expected throughout the night. If all works well the usual failure of the gas supply on Saturday night may be considered a thing of the past. It will hardly pay you to go down and investigate the workings of this gas machine, as a Mohammedan missionary could not go through the investigation and return undefiled any more than a man could blacken a stove without also blacking his face.

British Elections.

Intense Excitement—Terrible Riots.

A London special says: The excitement, now that polling is running so close, is tremendous. Four deaths from the excitement caused by politics are reported. Riots are the order of the day. Mr. Charsley, the defeated Tory candidate against Baron Rothschild in the Aylesbury division of Bucks, lies dying at the local hotel from injuries received at the hands of the mob. Twenty residences of Tories, and the two chief hotels at Radstock and Somerset, have been destroyed. Scores of people and policemen have been injured at Worthing, where the police were stoned. Fifty casualties are reported at Wilton. The successful Liberal candidate there was beaten black and blue, and only by the aid of an escort of sixty policemen battling their way to the station did he escape being thrown into the river. Mr. Parnell has driven the Whigs from Ireland. The defeat of Mr. Thomas. A. Dickson, who was once "boss" of most of the districts of Ulster, rendersit certain that not a Liberal will be returned from Ireland.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The counties continue to play up for the Liberals, who now have a majority of 49 over the Conservatives, and only lack five of a majority over the Tories and Parnellites. The astounding fact has just transpired that the Tories furnished £340 to two prominent members of the Social Democratic Federation, avowed revolutionary Socialists to induce them to contest two seats. This split the Liberal vote. This, doubtless, is not an isolated instance of the Tory tactics. At two p.m., the poll stand:—Liberals, 267; Conservatives, 218; Parnellites, 54.

Returns from the election for members of Parliament, received up to 2 o'clock this afternoon show that 273 Liberals, 215 Conservatives, and 53 Nationalists have been elected.

THE LATEST RETURNS.

The latest returns show the election of 285 Liberals, 225 Tories, and 58 Parnellites, or a Liberal majority of 2 over Tories and Parnellites combined.

THE DECIDING DAY.

The heaviest county polling of the whole election will take place to-morrow, and will finally decide the relative position of the parties. The Liberals are opposed to Gladstone resuming office unless they have a clear majority over Conservatives and Nationalists combined.

The Horrible Experience of a Huntingdon County Farmer.

MONTREAL, Dec. 4.—A few days ago John Napier, a farmer residing at Covey Hill, Huntingdon County, went on the spree with some friends and got drunk. His friends saw him home and deposited him in his farm yard, supposing he would go inside his house. Unfortunately, however, he went to sleep in the yard and his pigs being loose proceeded to make a supper off his nose and fingers, completely eating them off. When he awoke in the morning he presented a horrible appearance. Medical assistance was procured and he is now progressing favorably.

Cobourg.

Mayor Gravely, after having occupied the mayor's chair for six years, announces his retirement.

Mr. Crossen has just shipped to the Canada Pacific Railway, the two finest sleeping cars ever built in Canada, the "Vancouver" and the "Chaudiere." They are finished in mahogany both inside and out, and all their fittings are in keeping with this. We think it a matter of no little pride that we have a factory capable of turning out such a job. The fact that the Canada Pacific sends such a piece of work to Cobourg to be done, is the best possible recommendation that could be given to Mr. Crossen's reliability of executing it.—Cobourg Sentinel-Star.

Toronto Topics.

TORONTO, Dec. 4.—The Orange body here have sent a congratulatory telegram to Mr. Wm. Johnston, recently elected member of the Imperial Parliament for South Belfast.

Albert E. Haines, a student at McMaster Hall, died this morning of peritonitis, accelerated by a kick received in a football match recently.

The Medical and Military Boards on volunteers' claims for compensation had eight cases, including those of Capt. Mason and Lieut. Michie, before them yesterday. The officers resumed their session to-day, but with closed doors.

Geo. Pearce, of Power street, was taken to the hospital to day, suffering from lockjaw, caused by a cut on his finger when whittling. His case is serious.

Ottawa Intelligence.

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—There is a gathering of Tories here for some purpose. Mr. Thos. Cowan, of Galt, is here; also Messrs. Haggart, Peter White, Roddy Pringle and others. It is rumored that Mr. Cowan will be appointed Dominion Arbitrator in place of his father, Mr. James Cowan, who intends to retire.

A new Tory paper is to be started here on Monday, the party being disgusted with the silly way which their present Ottawa organ is conducted.

The Medical and Military Boards appointed by the Department of Militia to investigate claims of volunteers injured during the Northwest rebellion have already made considerable progress in Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal, Kingston and Ottawa.

Martini-Henry rifles have been served out to the first 40 of those volunteers eligible to serve in the Wimbledon team of 1886. They will have the use of them until after the return of the team from England.

It is reported that members of the Government have realised that they made a terrible blunder in urging their organ to excite a war of races, and that fresh instructions will shortly be issued to the subsidized organs, directing them to take a sharp curve and make a bid for the French and Catholic support. Already the Tories here are pointing to the appointment of Fitzgerald as Superintendent of Insurance, and McCormack as a first-class clerk in the library as proof that the Orangemen are without influence.

Turkey's Unwise Haste.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Turkey's action in appointing a Governor-General of Eastern Roumelia, is regarded here as hasty and unwise at this juncture of affairs and cannot fail to make the final settlement of the Eastern question still more difficult. Already it is reliably reported from Philippopolis that the Bulgarians are making ready to resist the authority of Djevdet Pasha upon his arrival and to prevent him from exercising his functions as Governor-General. The attempt of the Porte to ignore the Conference of ambassadors and to restore the status quo ante in the face of the decision of the Conference to waive such restoration is an affront which will hardly be overlooked by England and Russia. The announcement that Austria has instructed her representative at Philippopolis to support Djevdet, is in harmony with Austria's attitude throughout, but indicates that the Vienna Government has decided upon even a than it has yet ventured upon. Russia can hardly avoid recognizing Austria now as an active participant in the Bulgarian-Servian quarrel. It is more likely than ever that some circumstances will arise in an increasingly complicated situation to bring Austria and Russia into direct antagonism. Strenuous efforts to prevent this result are being made by the diplomatic representatives of the powers in Bulgaria and Roumelia, by preventing any undue ebullition of public feeling over Turkey's arbitrary action. Djevdet's arrival at Philippopolis is anxiously awaited by all interested.

BOLDER DECLARATION OF ITS POLICY

THE BURMESE REVOLUTION.

The termination of the Burmese affair, which can hardly be dignified by the name of war, is a triumph for civilization. Mandalay which, a few weeks ago was merely the chief town and depot of a barbarous and cruel despotism, is now the centre of a civilization, from which will radiate commercial, civil, moral and Christian principles that will transform a down-trodden and decrepid state into a thrifty, prosperous, and progressive province. It is another 200,000 square miles of free soil for the never-setting sun of Britain to shine upon. The peppery theories of Jingoism—to fight for the sake of an idea—to slaughter men and waste money for the mere barren glory of the thing—is not to be sympathised with. Every friend, however, to British civilization and all that that implies, not but coincide with the policy which, though aggressive and absorptive in its tendency, has for underlying motive the spread of constitutional government, the amelioration of human condition, the making of the Gospel free of barbarous lands, the opening of new avenues of trade and commerce, and the expansion of those great principles that make England the bulwark of Christianity and Christian progress in the world.

First we shall see commercial progress act the pioneer; railways will be built; the people, through these, will fell the touch of civilization; and the general uplifting of a people, capable of higher things than being slaves, will follow. The resources of a country, rich in a thousand products, instead of being wasted, in the maintenance of a gorgeous, yet barbaric despotism, will flow into the peaceful channels of a trade, that will reach the ends of the earth.

The annexation of Burmah will tend materially to strengthen the Greater Britan, in the east. British territory contiguous to uncertain China, will keep the latter in order and create a common interest in checking Russian aggression, besides opening a new route of trade between the Celestial Empire and British India. In every way the annexation of Burmah will benefit both British and Burmese. The time was ripe. Lord Dufferin opened his mouth when the Burmese pear was ready to fall into it.

A PRETTY STIFF INDICTMENT.

Because the Quebec supporters of the Dominion Government choose to withdraw their support on account of the latter's course on the Riel question, the party organs insinuate, that failing to have other reasons for desiring the overthrow of the present government, the Liberals of Ontario have united or will unite with the new National party in Quebec. Reformers have always opposed the government of Sir John Macdonald; they have the strongest possible grounds for continuing that opposition, till the reign of political honesty shall succeed that of political rascality. If the Quebec Blues see fit to withdraw their support, it is their own concern. Before long according to present indications, the verdict of the people will be called for. It is not improbable that the present Parliament will not last out the coming session, and the people should study carefully the following vigorous indictment drawn up by the Globe.

Reformers are opposed to the Macdonald Government because they obtained power under false pretences, and by means of promises which they knew they could not fulfil.

Because the whole policy of this Government is unprincipled, unpatriotic and thoroughly selfish.

Because they are reckless, extravagant, wasteful and corrupt to a degree unprecedented and unparalleled.

Because they have increased the public debt and public obligations enormously.

Because they have increased taxation enormously.

Because they have increased expenditure so greatly that notwithstanding the enormous taxation they have enormous deficits.

Because they have so misgoverned the North-West as to cause a second rebellion, retard the settlement of the country, and bring ruin on tens of thousands in the older Provinces as well as in the North-West.

Because they have so burdened the business of the country by excessive taxation, and so hampered it by the withdrawal of capital, that depression prevails in all the Provinces.

Because they are opposed to Reciprocity, and prevent the expansion of our foreign commerce.

Because they have shown themselves the determined enemies of Provincial rights.

Because they have endeavored to deprive Ontario of her territory and of many of the powers assigned to her by the B.N.A Act.

Because, assailing the very foundation of Confederation, in order to strengthen their party and to purchase immunity for their crimes, they have created dissatisfaction and discontent in all the Provinces and put the very existence of the Dominion in peril.

Because, by their Gerrymander Act, their act respecting the appointment of returning officers, and their Franchise Act, they have endeavored to deprive the people of their rights and make them the mere subjects of a faction; to destroy Responsible Government and make themselves absolute masters of the country.

Because they have destroyed the independence of the Senate, and whatever usefulness a nominated body, if respectable, might have.

Because in the letting of contracts, in the settlement of contractors' claims, in the giving of railway subsidies, in determining what public works shall be carried on, they have invariably acted from corrupt motives and for corrupt purposes.

Because they systematically endeavor to debauch the constituencies, using money contributed by those whom they allow to rob the Treasury or plunder the people.

Because they have proved themselves as incapable as they are unprincipled and corrupt.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If Queen Victoria lives till the 20th of June next, she will begin the fiftieth year of her reign. Preparation is in progress for a grand commemoration of the event. Of the long line of English monarchs, only three—Henry III, Edward III, and George III—[illegible]

The local jew-nior Conservatives, having congulated into a club, have secured powwow apartments over Mr. George Stethem's hardware store. This will be very convenient if the Tory party come to the second plank of their new policy—"place or blood." With one hardware store under them and another near at hand, containing large stocks of guns, gunpowder, dynamite and other revolutionary requisites, the mobolization of their local forces will be rendered very easy.

Mr. W. H. Howland is to contest the Toronto mayoralty as a temperance candidate. He has entered the field in response to a requisition containing 2000 signatures. From the start, Mr. Howland will have a hard row to hoe, and the chances seem against his election. Whether he is returned or not, the vote he may poll, will be a pretty accurate test of the prospect of success a Scott Act petition would have if submitted to the Toronto people; and probably his candidature may have some idea like this at the bottom of it.

The Mail and the Tory party would serve as specimen monuments of ingratitude. The Mail, on behalf of the party, repudiates the Bleus of Quebec and asserts that neither it nor the party appreciates their support. This is rather "cheeky," considering that it is largely by the solid support of the party now so sneeringly spoken of, that the Conservatives have been retained in power. It now devolves on the Mail to explain, in face of its declaration, why in the past the party, if it was indifferent to Bleu support, has thought it proper to make concessions, involving millions of the people's money, to conciliate the Quebec wing of its supporters.

was delayed until the British had surrounded the city palace. Gen. Prendergast received the King's submission and escorted him and two of his queens through the British lines to a carriage. They were afterward placed on board a steamer and brought to this city. Two hundred soldiers accompanied them as an escort. Five regiments and a battery of artillery were left to garrison Mandalay. It is expected that Lord Dufferin will visit Burmah in the spring.

Barnum's Wire Works Destroyed.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 3.—Barnum's wire works in this city took fire this morning and were burned to the ground. As the building, machinery and stock are totally consumed the loss is estimated what these items originally cost. Mr. Barnum estimated the loss at $300,000. The insurance amounts to $120,000.

Seymour.

A maiden lady named Potts was found dead in bed at her home on a farm in Seymour east, about four miles from Campbellford, on Wednesday morning of last week. The deceased worked about the house the day previous, and retired at night in apparently good health. In the morning her brother arose and went to the barn, and on returning was surprised to find that his sister had not made her appearance. He went to her room and found her cold and stiff in death. Miss Potts was about fifty years of age.—Campbellford Herald.

Bobcaygeon.

Dr. Bonnell paid a visit to Gilmour's shanties, this week, and vaccinated all the men, numbering over a hundred.

A notification has been received from the President of the Agricultural College, stating that two of the Collegiate staff will be pleased to attend an Institute in Bobcaygeon, on the 8th and 9th of January. The idea is to meet at 1.30 p. m. on the first day, and continue till the afternoon of the second day. The evening of the first day will be given to short addresses, and enlivened with a little music. The day sessions are usually spent in reading and discussing papers on agriculture, live stock, cattle feeding, etc. These papers are prepared by the farmers of the neighborhood, and need not be more than the practical experience of the writer, or something to form grounds for a discussion. These meetings are made as informal as possible, so that everyone will feel at home, and not hesitate to give his ideas on any subject with which he is familiar. The two gentlemen who are to attend, are the President Mr. Jas. Mills, and Mr. J. Hayes Panton, Professor of Chemistry and Natural History. Those who have attended these meetings, speak in the highest terms of the benefits derived, and it is confidently expected that in a neighborhood that can boast of such farmers as Mr. Fairbairn, and Mr. J. L. Read, a meeting will be obtained that will surprise the professional gentlemen from Guelph.—Independent.

Mistletoe for Kissing Purposes.

No English lady considers her home decorations for Christmas complete, until a little sprig of Mistletoe, no matter how small, is hung over one of the doors on the inside of the house. Upon this day, "if a gentleman discovers a lady standing under the Mistletoe, he has a right to kiss her."

If this ancient and honored custom becomes as popular in America as it has been for centuries in Europe, it will be largely due to the Emporia (Fla.,) Gazette, which, by the way, is published in Volusia County, Florida, which is famous for its Summery Winters and Orange Groves; for this journal has prepared packages of Mistletoe (a parasite and a native of Florida) which it will send to any address upon receipt of five 2 cent stamps to cover postage, &c. The Gazette has published a "Florida Catechism," that gives full and accurate information upon all subjects of interest to tourists to settlers, which it will mail, to any applicant, with a sample copy of its paper, upon receipt of two 2 cent stamps.

Hon. Mr. Blake's Edinburgh Speech.

The Bobcaygeon Independent prints that portion of Hon. Mr. Blake's Edinburgh speech which appeared in a recent impression of THE EXAMINER and adds the following complimentary comment:—

"The one great beauty of the foregoing is its truth. There is no exaggeration. Nothing but what every one in Ontario will recognize as being simple matter of fact. No boob about the Atlantic and Pacific; no flaunting of the flag which waves on every sea; no beating of the drum which follows the morning sun; but a plain statement in unadorned eloquence of the manifold blessings which are enjoyed by every dweller in our happy Province. One other fact might have been mentioned but it was in perfectly good taste that it was not alluded to, viz., that he could point to a country where there was no debt, and which could stand upright before the world and say it owed no man anything. Strange that what Ontario possesses and is enjoying, England is now fighting to obtain. The country to which Mr. Blake pointed with such just pride and noble feeling has set Great Britain a striking example in statesmanship and domestic legislation. May the example be followed, may people of Great Britain be ready to copy the people of Ontario, and may they then enjoy the same domestic happiness and national content with which the people of this prosperous Province are now blessed. Edward, we thank you for that speech,—shall record it in your favor,—and shall hand it down to immortality."

Changes are reported to be impending in G.T.R. management which will largely reduce the mechanical and engineering staff.

Catherine Lyon, aged 66 years, wife of an old pensioner serving in "A" Battery, and who was killed at Fish Creek, died suddenly at Quebec on Tuesday, of syncope.

The actions brought by contractors against the C.P.R. company are making little headway. The delay, it is said, is caused by the defence.

John Riordan, aged 90, of St. Thomas, slipped and fell on a bridge at Belmont, near London, Ont., Wednesday, and fell a distance of 20 feet. He escaped with severe bruises.

The Lawrence American, a paper published at Lawrence, Mass., says: "Two thousand horned toads have been shipped from Hamilton, Canada, to Chicago, to be used as medicine."

Three brothers, Felix, Arthur and Henry Graham, tramps from Wyandotth, Mich., were sentenced in St. Thomas, Ont., to two months each for placing obstructions on a railway track.

A Hemmingford, Ont., young lady, Miss Ann Jane Henry, has laid claim to an estate of $14,000 in Montreal, the property of an uncle supposed to have been killed during the American war.

Mr. Cadman and a party of twenty surveyors and assistants have left Lake Edwards, Que., to locate the line of the Lake St. John railway from that point to Lake St. John. They are expected to be absent till June next.

We not only use Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia in our stables, but sell and recommend it to our trade. We have obtained wonderful results from its use, particularly in hard and obstinate enlargements around the joints. Unlike other Liniments it does not require rubbing, simply applying with a brush and allowing absorption to take place. P. A. DEYO & SON, dealers in feed and coal, Yonkers, N. Y. Sold by John McKee.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Specialists.

The doctors of the English staff of surgeons are registered at the Grand Central. They will remain for a few days only. Advice and treatment free.

Oysters by the Bar-rel.

The proprietor of the Oriental has fitted up an oyster counter in a neat little room south of the bar. Oysters will be served in all styles at all hours.

The Social Ball Postponed.

The social ball which was to have been given in Bradburn's Opera House last night was postponed. The date of postponement will be announced later on.

Panoramic Entertainment.

The Mohammedan missionaries did not give an entertainment in the Opera House yesterday afternoon, owing to the absence of an audience. In the evening Jerusalem and the Holy Land was again presented and views of incidents in the life of Christ were given. There was a fair attendance.

It May be Remarked

That A. Clegg does not make cheap trashy basswood furniture, nor buy common stuff that would not sell even by auction, nor make believe that he has bought a whole stock in trade when he has only bought a small remnant of the nucleus of a stock that would not sell even by auction.

That A. Clegg will sell you a good article at the lowest living price.

That a poor article is dear at any price.

Quick Work.

The flag is flying on Mr. Jas. Campbell's new residence, the brick-work having been all completed. When it is considered that seventy thousand brick have been laid in the last ten days, work must have been pushed in a lively manner. Mr. J. J. Hartley had the contract for the brick work, and Mr. A. Rutherford for the wood work. Mr. Campbell was so pleased with the job that he entertained the architect, contractors and workmen at his residence last night, where two or three pleasant hours were spent.

Anniversary Services.

The services in connection with the anniversary of the opening of the new Sunday School rooms of St. Paul's Church will be held in that church on Sunday, Dec. 13th. The Rev. Mr. Wells, of the American Presbyterian Church, Montreal, will preach both morning and evening, and in the afternoon will deliver an address to the Sunday School. On Monday evening tea will be served in the school room from 6 to 8 o'clock, after which addresses will be delivered in the church by Rev. Mr. Wells and resident ministers. Mr. Wells is an eloquent and enthusiastic preacher and able discourses may be expected from him. The tea is sure to be a success.

Ladies' Aid Society Bazaar.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, will hold a bazaar for the sale of fancy articles, in the rooms being prepared for Mr. Cox's new offices, opposite the EXAMINER office, on Friday, the 18th of December. The articles which will be offered for sale will be useful as well as ornamental, and purchasers may rely on getting a good article. Many willing hands are now engaged at the work of production, and a large assortment will be offered. Parties wishing to secure suitable Christmas presents would do well to attend the bazaar. Refreshments will be served in the evening, at 5:30.

Good for A. M.

From Prof. Sawyer we understand that Mr. A. H. Stratton has completed the Finance course at the Peterborough Business College with honors. Mr. Stratton has averaged 93½ per cent on 16 sessional plus 10 final examinations. On quite a number of the sessional examinations he obtained the coveted "two zeros" with the one before it. The work has been completed in fifteen weeks, being one week less than the average time. On all the examinations during the term it is absolutely necessary to obtain at least 80 per cent. and on some of them 85 per cent., so that a student who obtains his "dip." may be considered an "all round man." His diploma will be awarded in a few weeks at the regular closing exercises.

He Admitted the Fact.

An American who visited town a short time ago, in a style peculiar to the children of "Uncle Sam," spoke derisively of everything around the town. After seeing the sights which are to be seen, and enjoying a sail down the Otonabee in a Peterborough built canoe, his opinion began to change, and when he was persuaded to visit Mr. D. Bellegham's furniture rooms, he admitted that the stock shown there was as fine as he had ever seen or could be found anywhere and at prices that knocked the bottom out of his ideas of cheapness. His last desire was that when he should die he should be buried in Little Lake Cemetery in one of Mr. Bellegham's coffins. If you want anything in the furniture line go to Bellegham's, Hunter St., Peterborough.

Wherever You May Wander

There is no place like home in an undiscovered land, and the next best place to home is the Parkers Roller Rink is another fact.

Entrance Examination.

The examination is fixed for Dec. 21, 22, and 23, at 9 o'clock each day. Literature may be prepared from any of the fourth readers.—Notice should be sent at once to the Head Master by teachers who have candidates in training.

Market Notes.

There was an average market this morning. Poultry and other meats were the principal offerings. Quotations were: Butter, 15c.; eggs, 20c.; chickens, 25c. to 35c.; turkeys, 70c. to $1.00; geese, 60c.; pork, per cwt., $4.50 to $5.00; beef, per cwt., $4 00 to $5.00; mutton, per lb., 6c. to 8c.; potatoes, 60c.; apples, per bushel, 50c. to 60c.

A Fresh Supply.

More new Wool Dress Goods at the "Golden Lion." The Military Cloths, Cheviot Cloths, Amure Cloths, and Canvas Cloths make elegant seasonable dresses. Fair, VanEvery & Co. are giving decided bargains in every department. The activity in their Dress Making Department is an evidence of the superiority of their choice dress fabrics.

The Fall of Snow.

Snow fell last night to the depth of about a foot, and still it snows. Pleasure sleighs were taken out yesterday evening and the rust rubbed off their runners, and the tinkling of bells might be heard to a late hour. Wheeled vehicles took out of date this morning. Merchants smile and are pleased—especially the dealer in rubbers, moccasins, etc. Blockades on the railways are to be expected.

The Sawdust Prosecutions.

The following report in reference to the recently instituted proceedings against J. M. Irwin presumably by the Ante-Sawdust Association, appears in the Toronto papers of to-day:

Re IRWIN.—W. H. L. Gordon obtained an order nisi for a writ of prohibition to the Police Magistrate of Peterborough to restrain him from hearing an information under 36 Vic. cap. 65.

Weather Changes.

The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
9 o'clock	18	28.36
1 "	21	28 40
3 "	00	00.00

It will have been noticed that the reading of the barometer has been very low since last Friday, indicating the storm which we are having now, and the same blizzard which is raging in Minnesota at present.

Tremendous Bargains.

By reference to advertisement in another place in this issue, it will be seen that the Giant T is offering immense bargains. In view of a contemplated change in the business, the proprietor has decided to offer the whole of his superb stock of stoves, coal and wood, cooking and heating, at cost prices to secure their being disposed of. It is imperatively necessary that the stock of stoves, as well as of other goods, should be cleared out by the first of January coming. This is the chance to secure extraordinary bargains. Mr. Hall's stock is always of the very highest order, so that persons purchasing between now and January first, will not get cheap, second-rate stoves, but first-rate articles that have been reduced in price, simply and solely to dispose of them at a given date.

The Christmas Examiner.

The regular annual Christmas edition of THE PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER will be published about the end of next week. This edition will consist of 6,000 copies, printed on fine pink-toned paper. It will be well supplied with interesting reading matter suitable to the season and handsomely illustrated with excellent wood cuts, also beautiful illustrations of the festive season, which together will make it appreciated, read and preserved in the household. The edition is intended for free distribution in town and surrounding country, and it is so large that not a home or hamlet in either, will be without a copy. Business men and merchants, seeking a first-rate medium for making their announcements to the public, cannot do better than secure a space in the Christmas edition of the Peterborough EXAMINER. They should apply at once, as the space at the disposal of advertisers is being rapidly covered by orders. In addition to this special edition, the Daily EXAMINER having a large circulation in town, and being widely read, and the Weekly EXAMINER enjoying a very large circle of readers in the country districts, afford especially excellent opportunities for profitable advertising. Advertise in the paper that is not only widely circulated, but well read.

Police Court.

There was a full docket at the Police Court this morning before Magistrate Dumble. Michael Dunn, charged with assaulting Edward Crow, admitted that he had made the assault, but not as described by Crow. Crow also admitted that Dunn had not kicked him in the face, as he had stated out of court. He said Dunn struck him without warning while he was in a stooping position checking baggage. Dunn stated on oath that he had tapped Crow on the shoulder and told him he was going to strike before hitting him, and that Crow turned and ran, when he caught him and struck him again. He did this because Crow had on several occasions spoken insultingly of him in public places.

The Magistrate said there were times when provocation was so great that a man could hardly restrain himself, and that extenuating circumstances were sometimes taken into consideration, though a man was not permitted to take the law in his own hands. By doing so often led to terrible results. The law frowned down all such liberties and consequently we live in comparative peace, of which we are proud. The position Mr. Dunn held and his respectability made the case all the worse and if he was allowed to go unpunished others would follow his example. The Magistrate, therefore, imposed a fine of $10 and costs on the defendant. He remarked that it would be a lesson to the complainant to keep a civil tongue in his head.

M. Dunn and E. Crow were also charged with committing a breach of the peace, and on admitting the charge were each fined $2 and costs.

E. Crow was also up on a charge of using insulting language towards Lafayette Carpenter on Tuesday last. Mr. Carpenter explained that Crow had a "brick in his hat" at the time, meaning that Crow was intoxicated. Crow pleaded not guilty, but could not prove it. He was fined $2 and costs.

Robert White and George Donnelly were charged with committing a breach of the peace. They admitted that they had and were each fined $2 and costs.

White, who is often on the war-path, was informed by the magistrate that some day he would find a man who would satisfy him.

An Artistic Portrait.

There is to seen in the window of Morgan's drug store, a capitally executed portrait in crayon, enlarged from a photograph, of the late Col. A. T. H. Williams. The portrait is one which reflects credit on the artist that executed it, Mr. H. B. Collier.

The Snow Plow Out.

The town snow ploughs was brought into requisition this morning, to clear the snow from off the walks around the market buildings and other public places. Mr. Arthur Hall, chairman of Fire, Water and Light Committee, says he will keep the ploughs at work until every street in town is cleared.

Mr. W. Argue and Mrs. Argue left town to-day for Winnipeg.

MIKADO TEA.

MIKADO is the name of the Plantation owned by the MIKADO TRADING COMPANY.

The Plantation formerly belonged to the Mikado, or King of Japan, and was cultivated for the exclusive use of the Royal household.

The Plantation was bought from the King on condition that sufficient Tea should be supplied to the Royal Family, as the King would use no other.

It is an acknowledged fact, that the Teas grown on this Plantation are, for Purity, Strength and Flavor, the finest in the world.

It is put up in Half and One Pound packages, and is sold at the exceeding low price of 45 cents per pound.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[The publisher of THE EXAMINER does not hold himself responsible for the facts asserted, nor the opinions expressed by correspondents.]

A "Mistake" Corrected.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Will you give me space in your journal to contradict the statement appearing in Saturday's Times, respecting my treatment of a newsboy. It is entirely false that I used the language attributed to me therein. My subscription to the Times having expired on Dec. 1st, I expected that when I did not care to renew it, the copy delivered to me would be stopped, and on Monday morning when the paper was handed in, I told the boy to tell his employer that my time was up and I did not wish to continue the paper. It came to me several days following, and I repeated the statement made to the boy on Monday morning. I suppose I have the right to decide what paper I shall take without being insulted. I hardly thought it worth while, considering the character of the Times for veracity, to make the above denial, but as the falsehood was stated very circumstantially and fearing that some of my friends might, by some chance, see the item in the paper used for enclosing a parcel, I concluded to make the above statement of fact, the space for which I beg to thank you for, and remain

Yours truly,
M. C. O'NEILL.

TREWERNE CHEESE FACTORY.—The meeting for the settlement of the business of the above factory for the present year was held in the factory on the second day of December, although the last shipment of cheese only took place on the first. So well had the books been kept posted up that the settlement was highly satisfactory, and the proprietor and manager, Mr. B. Davies, as well as the cheese maker, Mr. John Chittick, received the hearty thanks of the patrons. There has not been rejected a single cheese in the factory this season. The following is a statement of the business that the factory has done for the season:—

The total amount of milk received was 781,788 pounds, and the total amount of cheese made was 76,554 pounds, of milk to make a pound of cheese, 10 21-100; amount of money received, $6,012.52.

The auditors, Messrs. Richard Waram and Thomas R. Mann, certified to the correctness of the accounts. Messrs. G. W. Fitzgerald and Thomas Robinson are president and treasurer of the factory, respectively.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Admitting November had its snow and rain, still it has been above the average for open weather. The ploughing was stopped on the last morning of October and the 1st of November, but is again opened and continued till the 21st, which we may take as a final stoppage. Although there was 14 days on which snow fell, still it must be borne in mind that however small a quantity of snow or rain has fallen it is counted a day in which either of them has fallen, or if both in one day then one for each. The heaviest fall being on the 14th, when in 23 hours it only fell 2 inches and for the whole month 4 inches. Rain fell on 12 days, a number only slightly, to the depth of 2 inches and 56-100 of an inch. Our severest storm was on the 18th, and then only falling half an inch. Both in snow and rain our downfall was below the average. We had fog on 4 different mornings. The highest temperature at sunset was on the evening of the 7th, reaching 64° and the lowest at sunrise on the morning of the 28th, falling to 14° with an average for the month of 36° 11-30. The following is the respective points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise, namely: South-east 7 days, west 4 days, south-west 10 days, north-west 1 day, south 1 day, north-east 3 days, north 1 day, east 3 days. Our northern visitors, the snow birds, made their first and only visit so far this year, on the 16th.

The Balkan Embroglio.

LONDON, DEC. 5.—The movements of the Greek troops on the northern frontier seem to give color to the report widely circulated that a tripartite alliance has been formed between Austria, Servia and Greece and that the crossing the frontier by the Greek troops is to be the first open declaration of this union. The Austrian forces now mobilized in Bosnia, will, according to rumor, support the Greeks in case they should meet with any reverse. Although the people of Roumelia seem to be almost unanimous in their support of the union of Bulgaria and in opposition to Turkish rule, Prince Alexander has thought it best as a measure of precaution to send a number of trusted military officers to Philippopolis to take any necessary steps towards influencing public sentiment and checking an incipient revolt.

AN UNEASY FEELING IS APPARENT.

at Philippopolis in consequences of the measures and the critical diplomatic situation growing out of the reassertion of Turkey of her suzerian rights. The Porte, however, has issued a delaration that Turkey is merely sending agents to Roumelia to protect her interests in whatever complications may arise and that as she does not as yet put in any final claims for the restoration of the status quo ante. The ambassadors of the different powers at Constantinople have, however, notified their governments of the general understanding prevailing at the Turkish Capital that the Sultan's troops have been ordered into Roumelia and that when they are satisfactorily placed the formal demand of Turkey will be made for the enforcements of suzerian rights over the provinces as guaranteed by the Berlin treaty.

The British Elections.

Liberal Prospects Brightening.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—"It all depends on Hodge," said Mr. Labouchere. "We were in the midst of a Tory reaction a week ago. Now Hodge has saved the day, for in numbers the Liberal votes in the counties greatly surpass the Conservatives."

The Position of Parties.

The returns from the Parliamentary elections received up to three o'clock this afternoon show that the Liberals still have a slight majority over the Tories and Nationalists thus far elected. The figures up to that hour showed a return of 307 Liberals, 242 Conservatives, and 62 Nationalists.

An Estimate of Results.

The latest returns show that 313 Liberals, 243 Tories and 70 Parnellites have been elected. Seventy constituencies are yet unpolled. Of these twenty-two are English, one is Welsh, four are Scotch and seventeen are Irish. A careful estimate of probable results in the unpolled districts shows that the House of Commons will almost certainly be composed of 331 Liberals, 255 Conservatives and 84 Parnellites.

The Marquis of Hartington's Views.

The Marquis of Hartington, speaking at Matlock to-night, said that the attitude of the Conservatives in regard to the Irish question was virtually tantamount to accepting Parnell's help on Parnell's terms. The Tories he said, by their complicity or silence, had allied themselves with the enemies of England. It would be impossible for the Tories to obtain more than 260 seats in Parliament. The Liberals might not have a majority over the Tories and Parnellites combined, but British patriotism would finally assert itself.

Parnell Falsely Reported Shot.

DUBLIN, Dec. 6.—It was rumored here on Saturday night that Mr. Parnell had been shot, and great excitement prevailed until it was found that the rumour was without foundation.

A Defeated Candidate Drops Dead.

Col. W. R. Trefusis, of the Scots Guards, who recently returned from Egypt covered with distinction, and last week inherited an enormous fortune from his aunt, the famous Lady Rodle, was the Tory candidate in Devon division. He died while the votes were being counted. The result shows he was beaten badly.

Parnell's Perilous Position.

His Power Put to the Utmost Test—The Possibilities.

A Dublin despatch from a Tory source says:—Mr. Parnell's position at the present moment is more critical than it has been any time within the past ten years. A few days will see him either a parliamentary dictator or see him without prestige and his party virtually annihilated. It is fair to suppose that Lord Salisbury put his best foot foremost in the counties, and that the succession of defeats the Conservatives have sustained within the last few days will receive constant accessions, and that even if a single Liberal is not returned from this country still the combined forces of Conservatives and Nationalists will be in a minority. Mr. Parnell will then find himself in this position. He has allied himself with the Conservatives and they are powerless to help him, and the Liberals, whom he has worked against, are independent of him, and will neither need nor accept his assistance. With the largest following he has yet commanded he will find himself absolutely helpless. His followers have been instructed that in Ireland were unanimous in returning Nationalists and Conservatives great things would ensue. The Irish voters have done their duty, and when they find that Home Rule, instead of being near at hand, is hopelessly distant, there will be a revolution of feeling that will dethrone Mr. Parnell, if it does not lead to worse results. The hot heads of the party may talk, bluster and advocate the arbitrament of the sword, but Mr. Parnell is too sensible a man to premit such an unequal and hopeless struggle, and his downfall will be swift and sure. From the moment that the English Government forbade one of O'Connell's monster meetings, and he counselled obedience to the English order, he fell, like Wolsey, "never to rise again," and a like fate under similar circumstances appears to be in store for Mr. Parnell. The position is critical. The Nationalists feel it, and are feverishly counting the returns. A clear Liberal majority, however small, means ruin to the Irish party.

The Tweed Extension.

Mr. M. J. Butler and staff have set out to commence the survey of the line for the proposed extension of the N. T. & Q. Railway to Tweed. This extension promises to revolutionize the trade of the back country and open up a large section of rich country.—Deseronto Tribune

But, says the Ontario, the people of Hungerford are not quite so enthusiastic over the scheme. A false report has been circulated through the press that the Township Council had decided to submit a by-law to the people granting a bonus of $15,000 to the railway company. The by-law was read a first time in the Council, but upon the second reading the members were unanimous in giving it the three months' hoist.

THE BALKAN POSITION.

Austria, which set the Servians on to invade Bulgaria, would not let the Bulgarians invade Servia. The victorious Prince Alexander agreed to a truce, which he observed, but which the Servians did not observe. Now he pluckily tells the Austrians that he means to do his share of the fighting whether they like it or not. Austria is itching to have her army in Servia, and will send it there if she dares. The Turks, under pressure from Russia, have sent commissioners to administer the Province of Eastern Roumelia, which now calls itself Southern Bulgaria, but the people tell them they are now Bulgarians. The Turks would, doubtless, not be sorry to see Bulgaria very strong, so long as it remains tributary to them, because it is their only safeguard against Russia. Russia wants to have her army in Bulgaria, and if it was once in would be slow to go out again. Roumania, which lies between Russia and Bulgaria, would be very unwilling to see Russian troops in Bulgaria, for she would then have Russia all round her. She would probably help Bulgaria to fight for independence. Turkey has a particular reason for not wanting a fight with her vassal Bulgaria. She would then have Greece upon her at once, for Greece wants Macedonia and Epirus, both, when spoken of under these names, parts of Ancient Greece.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Cannon Farrar sailed for England on Saturday. He carried with him over $20,000 made from his lecturers on this side the Atlantic.

It is now stated that Hon. Mr. Joly's resignation was formally made, and that it has been accepted; also that write for a new election in Lotbiniere will be shortly issued.

A Tory organ asserts that the Globe has denied that its manager was an Orangeman. The Globe did nothing of the kind; it merely contradicted the falsehood, circulated by Tory journals to that effect.

Rumors are in constant circulation in Ottawa that Parliament will not be summoned till early in March. The Liberals naturally declare that such a proceeding would be an admission of weakness on the Government's part.

The many admirers of Hon. Edward Blake in Quebec are making preparations to give him a suitable reception should he visit that city on his way home from Europe. London Liberals have already requested the hon. gentleman to accept a complimentary banquet at an early date.

President Cleveland may be heavy on civil service reform, but his personal courage is not exceedingly conspicuous. He recently received numberless telegraphic messages and advice from prominent politicians and citizens, strongly urging him not to run any unnecessary risk of endangering his life and causing a Presidential problem, by leaving Washington to attend the late Vice-President's funeral. He decided not to go to Indianapolis.

Grip has a pointed cartoon illustrating the uselessness of Sir John's fleeing to England on Reciprocity business. One of its leading cartoons depicts Blake, Sir John and Tupper meeting in the old country. Blake—Hello John, what brings you here? Sir John—O-er-ef-I forget—O yes, Reciprocity,—important business—yes. Sir Charles—And pray what am I here for? Very well put in, Sir Charles. It appears that [we easily duped Canucks, have bought you a $50,000 house, and pay you some paltry $10,000 a year, and when anything important turns up some member of the government paddles across the "herring pond" to look after it. You may well inquire what am I here for? It's the way taken to shelve you.

Every honest Liberal should eschew tobacco and spirits. The local jew-nior Conservatives intend, so information of a reliable character furnishes ground for belief, to fit up their meeting place in a most gorgeous and expensive manner—velvet cushions, Wilton carpets, etc. Now, Liberals are resigned to paying taxes to the extent of some hundred millions to build the Pacific Railway, but the line must be drawn at club room furnishings—they will kick against paying for that. A big share of the Dominion revenue, is derived from the duties on spirits and tobbaco, and every Liberal who cannot reconcile his conscience to paying for carpets of velvet pile, etc., for Conservative club rooms, should cease contributing to the excise duties.

TELL JESUS.

It is a Remedy for Every Sorrow.

A Sermon Delivered in Brooklyn Tabernacle by the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D., Sunday, November 29, 1885.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Nov. 29.—There was a reception at the Brooklyn Tabernacle this morning, and the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, its pastor, gave the right hand of fellowship to about fifty new members. The opening hymn was that beginning:—

"Must Jesus bear the cross alone,
And all the world go free?"

Dr. Talmage's sermon on "Medicine for all Ills," was founded on the text, "And his disciples came, and took up the body and buried it, and went and told Jesus," (Matthew xiv., 12). Following is the sermon in full:—

An outrageous assassination had just taken place. To appease a revengeful woman, Herod had ordered the death of that noble, self-sacrificing, Christian man, John the Baptist. The disciples were in great trouble. There was no court to which they could make appeal. But grief must have utterance, and if there be no sympathetic ear to hear it, then it must be cried aloud to the winds and the woods and the waters. But there was an ear ready to listen. What beauty of pathos and what wonderful picture in the words of my text: They "went and told Jesus!" He was ready to listen, and he was ready to assuage their grief. We see Christ standing, His own face shadowed with his own sorrow, surrounded by a group of disciples in violent gesticulation, with many tears and with great outcry of woe. Raphael, with skilled hand putting upon the wall of a palace a picture of Bible story, was not so skillful as the plain hand of the evangelist as he puts upon canvas the sketch of the text: "They "went and told Jesus."

The Goths and the Vandals came down from the north of Europe and upset the gardens, and broke down the altars, and swept away everything that was good and beautiful; and ever and anon in the lives of men there are rough-handed despoilers, crusaders, who come down to despoil and plunder and to ransack the soul. No cavern is so deeply cleft in the mountain as to allow you shelter from trouble. The foot of the swiftest courser is not swift enough to bear you beyond pursuit. The arrows brought to the string fly with unerring dart, and often you have fallen pierced and stunned.

Now, I am this morning to bring a catholicon for all your troubles. I am going to gather all your griefs—I do not care what they are—I am going to gather all your griefs into a bundle, and set them on fire with a spark from God's altar. The prescription of the text which healed the disciples, is just as successful a prescription to-day and will heal all your sorrows.

A PRESCRIPTION FOR THE SIN-CONVICTED.

Now, in the first place, I commend the behavior of the disciples in the text to all those who feel themselves sinful and unpardoned. There comes a time in every man's life when he wakes up to an appreciation of a sinful nature. The thought may not have enough weight to fell him—it may only be like the flash of a cloud at the close of a hot summer day; but the man must somehow get rid of that feeling. One man flies to prayer, another man stimulates himself with ardent spirits, another man dives deeper into secularities. It is not wonderful that when a man sees his eternity poised on an uncertainty that he is determined to do something violent and immediate. Now, can it be that there is in all this hours this morning one man who is unwilling to have the cancer of sin taken from his soul, when the divine surgeon is ready to do the work, and do it successfully? I can not believe it.

I think the first thing for you to do if you are oppressed, my brother, if you are oppressed with a sense of your sinfulness, is to go and tell Jesus. Why, my friends, that is the great business of Christ. He does other things, but I think the great business of Christ is to pardon, to relax the grip of death from your soul and to plant your unshackled foot on a golden throne. Christ allowed the tortures of the bloody mount to transfix Him. With the beam of His own cross He will this morning crush in the door of your dungeon. Out of His own thorny crown He will pick enough gems to make your brow blaze with eternal victory. In every tear of His wet cheek, in every gash of His wounded side, in every long and blackened mark of laceration from shoulder to shoulder, in the grave-shattering, heaven-storming death-cry, I hear the words, "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out." Oh, what a glorious gospel! What a gospel to preach! What a gospel to hear! "Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound."

"Oh, says some man, "why then you propose to cure the wound of sin by making another wound, the wound of conviction." Why, my brother, that is what all physicians do, of all schools. The physicians, when they find an old, rankling wound, they come with caustic and they burn it out, and then health and restoration come. Here is the old sore of sin and God comes by His convicting grace and burns it out, and the flesh comes again as the flesh of a little child. Well, there is not a man in the audience but is ready to have that process go on in his soul. He says: "That's reasonable, that's right, that's just what I would suppose, and I mean to have that process in my soul." When, my brother, when? "Oh," you say, "some time." Well, I can not afford to have you put it off in that way. I want to know just when.

I have heard that Alfred, the King, before the invention of time-pieces, used to measure the day by three wax candles. Each wax candle would burn eight hours, so that when one wax candle was consumed eight hours were gone; two wax candles, sixteen hours were gone; and when the third wax candle was consumed then the twenty-four hours, the whole day, were gone. O, my friends, I wish, instead of measuring our days and nights and years on earth by a time-piece, we would measure time by mercies and opportunities, which are burning down and burning out, never to be relighted, lest we wake up with the discomfiture of the foolish virgins and cry: "Our lamps are gone out."

AN EXAMPLE FOR THE TEMPTED.

But in the second place, I commend that behavior of these disciples in the text to all the tempted. I have heard people say they were never tempted—people who have come to mid-life that never have been tempted! Oh, my friends, it is because they have never tried to do right. If a man be hand-cuffed and hobbled and he lie quiet, he does not test the power of the chain or the manacles; but let him try to rise up and break off the hand-cuffs and the shackles, then he finds out the power of the chain. If, my dear brother, you do not know the power of temptation, it is because you are bound hand and foot of sin and have never made the attempt to be emancipated.

Why, it is easy enough to go down stream in a boat. Your oars lie upon your oars. You go just as the tide goes. But suppose you turn around and head up stream; then it is not so easy making progress. As long as you go down with the tide of sin and iniquity, it is easy enough to go that way; but when you turn around and head toward God and Heaven, then it is a struggle, an awful struggle.

TELL JESUS.

Can it be that you have never tested the power of temptation? You have one kind of temptation: you, another; you, another. There is not a person in the house but what has been tempted, whether you realize it or not. I never like to hear a man say: "O, I couldn't be tempted the way that man is." He could not be tempted the way you are. A lion cannot understand why a fish should be caught with a hook, and the fish cannot understand why the lion should be caught with a trap. You may be free from certain kinds of temptation, but there are other kinds after you.

You see some men with a phlegmatic temperament. "Why," you say, "that man hasn't any temptation at all." You mistake him. He has temptations to indolence, to censoriousness, to sink down into mere latitude and longitude of fatliness, to lie down on the road of life, to stop great enterprises. He has just as many temptations in one direction as you, being of a nervous and excitable temperament, have temptation in another direction.

You will see some aged men arise in a prayer-meeting, and at eighty years of age he talks so sweetly of Christ and Heaven, you say: "That man has lived without temptation." Ask him. He has as many temptations at eighty years of age as he had at twenty. They are only different styles of temptation. Ask that aged man whether he has lived beyond the reach of the powers of darkness in this world, and he will say it has been conflict all the way through.

Sixtus was a cardinal, and he wanted the pontifical chair, and history says he pretended to be sick and crippled. He said: "Now, if you elect me to that chair I shall occupy it, and I shall not live long anyhow, and then you will put someone else in the chair." He was elected to that position. He moved to it on crutches. Getting to the chair he threw aside the crutches. He said: "While hunting for the keys of St. Peter it was appropriate I stooped; but, having found the keys of St. Peter, there is no reason why I should stoop any longer." So his crutches were gone and he was well. Oh, how suggestive of temptation! It seems at one time to be wan and weak and crippled, but give it a throne and it becomes a tyrant to grind your soul into ruin.

"Well, now," you say: "All persons being tempted, what are we to do when we are assailed of temptation? When the wave dashes against us is there nothing to hold on to? Is a man to go into this war with the world, the flesh and the devil with no help?" I will tell you, my friends: The wisest thing for you to do in the way of temptation is, like these disciples of my text, to go and tell Jesus. In the eyes that wept with the Bethany sisters I see shining hope. In that voice that broke the silence of the tomb until the widow of Nain got back her son and stupendous sorrow made up in the arms of rapture—aye, in the voice—I hear the command and the promise: "Cast thy burden on the Lord and He will sustain thee." He knows all about temptation. Tempted in all points like as we are. Go and tell Jesus.

TO THE SLANDERED AND PERSECUTED.

Again, I commend this behavior of the disciples, in my text to all those who are slandered and abused and persecuted. When these disciples saw that Herod had taken the head of John the Baptist, they knew their own heads were not safe. Every John has his Herod. There are people who do not think overmuch of you. Your misfortunes would be honey-comb to them. They hiss at you through their teeth, and misinterpret your actions, and would be glad to see you upset. They would be the most submissive mourners at your funeral.

Every one comes, during the course of life, to be pummelled. Some slander comes at you, horned and tusked and hoofed, to trample and to gore you, and you think you are peculiar in that respect. No, "All who live godly in Christ Jesus must suffer persecution." If you are able this morning to say "I haven't an enemy in all the world," it is proof positive you have not done your duty; for when a man does his duty he challenges all earth and hell, and that challenge will bring against him opposition and scorn and persecution. It is so in all circles of life.

One would have thought that if any man ought to have been free from persecution it was George Whitfield, bringing great masses of the people into the Kingdom of God, wearing himself out for Christ's sake; and yet the learned Dr. Johnson called him a mountebank. Robert Hall preached about the glories of heaven as no uninspired man ever preached about them, and it was said when he preached about heaven his face shone like an angel's; and yet good Christian John Foster wrote of Robert Hall, saying: "Robert Hall is a mere actor, and when he talks about heaven the smile on his face is the reflection of his own vanity." John Wesley stirred all England with reform, and yet he was caricatured by all the small wits of his day. He was pictorialized, history says, on the board fences of London, and everywhere he was the target for the punsters; yet John Wesley stands to-day before all Christendom, his name mightier than any other name except "the name that is above every other name," the name of Christ. And can you expect to escape hardship and assault and abuse and slander? You will not.

But what are you to do when you are lied about and assaulted? Are you going to hunt up the slander! While you are explaining one falsehood, there will be fifty people who have just that moment heard of that particular falsehood. While you are not to omit every opportunity of setting yourself right, I want to tell you of One who had the hardest things said about him, whose sobriety was disputed, whose mission was scoffed, whose companionship was denounced, who was pursued as a babe, spat on as a man, and howled at after He was dead. Go to him with all the wounds of your soul.

Do not go around trying to crush this falsehood and to crush that slander; you will only come out of the contest irritated and exasperated; but take the counsel of the text. Do as these disciples of the text did—go and tell Jesus. Go into His presence and say: "Lord I see Thy wounds, the wounds of Thy hand, the wounds of Thy feet, the wounds of Thy side, and by Thine own wounds I ask Thee to pity mine." Try no longer to carry that burden. Oh, abused soul, go and tell Jesus!

TO THE BEREAVED.

Again, I commend the behavior of these disciples to the bereaved. As I stand here Sabbath by Sabbath and I look off upon this audience, how many signals of mourning do I behold. God has his own way of breaking up the family. The emigration from this world to the next is so fast an enterprise that God only can conduct it. That emigration from earth to eternity keeps three-fourths of the families of the world in desolation. The child that lay near the mother's heart is taken to lie in the cold and in the darkness. The laughter freezes to the girl's lip and the rose scatters. The boy comes in from the harvest-fields of Shunam, saying, "My head, my head!" and dies on the lap of his mother. Widowhood stands with tragedy of woe struck into the pallor of the cheek, and orphanage cries in vain for father and mother.

Sometimes when we have sorrow our friends come in, and they try to sympathize with us to a certain extent; but they cannot understand all the grief. They do as well as they can, but they cannot understand it altogether. [illegible] has been, all through the trouble and all around about it. He has counted the tears and counted the groans, and before the tears started and before the groans began. He saw the hiding place of our sorrow. Bone of our bone. Flesh of our flesh. Heart of our heart. Sorrow of our sorrow. As long as he remembers Lazarus' tomb He will stand beside us in the cemetery. As long as He remembers His own heartbreaks He will stand with you in the laceration of your affections. When He forgets His footsore way, and His lonely nights, and His weary mind, and His exhausted body, and His awful cross, and His solemn grave, then will He forget you, but not until then.

Sometimes when we have trouble our friends are far away from us. We write a letter, saying: "Come right away;" or we telegraph to them, saying: "Take the next train; come immediately;" but it may take hours, it may take days, before they reach us in our trouble. But I have to tell you this morning of One who is near to help, ever near, near before you, behind you, within you, nearer than the staff on which you lean, nearer than the cup you press to your lip, nearer than the handkerchief with which you wipe away the tears. I preach Him, an ever present Jesus. Sometimes when we have trouble our friends come and they do all they can for us, but they cannot relieve all the trouble, they cannot disentangle our finances, they cannot cure our sick, they cannot raise our dead.

Blessed be God! the One to whom these disciples went has all power in heaven and on earth, and He will, at just the right time, balk our calamities; and at just the right time, in the presence of an applauding earth and a resounding heaven, will raise our dead. Oh, I preach Him, an almighty Christ. The last sword will leap from the scabbard of omnipotence, and the last resource of infinite God be exhausted, before God will allow one of His children to cry for comfort and not get it. I heard of a child who went to sea with her father, a sea captain, and when the first storm came in the midnight, the little child awakened and rushed out in great fright, and cried: "Where's father? Where's father?" Then they told her the father was on deck, and that he was guiding the ship, and that he was watching the storm, and she said: "Well, if father's on deck, then I'll go to sleep." So she went to sleep.

GO AND TELL JESUS.

Oh! ye who are tossed in the storms of this life, I want to tell you the Lord is guiding the ship; your father is on deck, and He will bring you through into the harbor. Oh! ye whose cheeks are wet with the night dew of the grave—ye whose hearts are tried with a sirocco, in the name of a religion which can wipe every tear, and lift every burden, and deliver every captive, and illumine every darkness, I implore you, go and tell Jesus. If you will not, if you try to carry your sins and your burden yourself, I tell you my brother, plainly, your life will be a failure—your death will be disaster, and eternity a calamity; but if you will go to Christ with all your sins and all your sorrows to-day, your foot will strike the upward path, and the shining messengers who tell above what is done here will make the arches resound with the tidings that you have gone to tell Jesus.

Well, I look over this audience and I wonder whether you will carry your own burdens; whether you are going to be so foolhardy as to take the consequences of your own sin, when there is a balm, a balsam, for all wounds, and pardon for all transgressions. Soon you will be gone, and gone forever. You remember how Xerxes felt when he looked at his army—two million men—perhaps the greatest army ever marshaled. Xerxes rode long and reviewed it. Two million men! And after he had reviewed the troops he came to a hill, and he looked off at the great host, and he burst into tears. One of his staff officers expressed surprise that at a time when he ought to be full of exultation and triumph he should weep; and asked him why he wept. "Oh," he, "I weep because so soon all this host will be gone." And this morning I look off upon this audience and I realize that soon you will all be gone—gone from the church, gone from the home circle, gone from business circles, and gone forever. Whither? Whither?

"'Tis not for man to trifle;
Life is brief and sin is here;
Our age is but a falling leaf—
A drooping tear
Not many lives, but only one have we—
One, only one.
How sacred should that one life be—
That narrow span!"

Good Advertising Rates.

The Thomas Cat is the name of a live paper published at Butler, Rich Hill, Nevada, copies of which we have received. The following are its advertising rates: Referring to an old citizen as a "relic of antiquity," 75 cents. Calling a new-made lawyer "a legal light of which the profession should feel proud," $1.25. To call a man "a progressive citizen," when it is known he is lazier than a government mule, $1.75. Calling a lady "a talented and refined lady, a valuable acquisition to society," with variations, $1.85. Referring to a deceased citizen as "a man whose place will long remain unfilled," when we know he was the best poker player in town, $2.25. Extra rates are charged when the party is well-known.

Sunday Sermons.

The Rev. D. L. McCrae, of Cobourg, preached in St. Paul's Church morning and evening yesterday, delivering eloquent and instructive discourses. In the morning his text was taken from the 7th verse of the 5th chapter of 1st Corinthians; "For even Christ, our passover, is sacrificed for us." He showed the relationship between the passover lamb, the type; and Jesus Christ, the Anti-type. The blood of both had been shed to avert the awful calamity of death. There was a full salvation offered for all in Christ's death, and if not accepted there was the wrath of the lamb to be met, which would be so great as to cause sinners to call upon the mountains to fall upon them to hide them from it. In the evening his remarks were based upon Matthew, 4th chapter, from 18th to 21st verse, in which Jesus called four of His disciples to follow Him. He spoke of the power of the word when used in the right way. The word was the weapon and Jesus, through the Holy Spirit, was the all powerful wielder of it. He exhorted those of his audience who had not accepted the call of Jesus to do so. There would be trials and difficulties, but what great or good work was ever ventured upon without these.

The Christmas Examiner.

The regular annual Christmas edition of THE PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER will be published about the end of next week. This edition will consist of 6,000 copies, printed on fine pink-toned paper. It will be well supplied with interesting reading matter suitable to the season and handsomely illustrated with excellent wood cuts, also beautiful illustrations of the festive season, which together will make it appreciated, read and preserved in the household. The edition is intended for free distribution in town and surrounding country, and it is so large that not a home or hamlet in either, will be without a copy. Business men and merchants, seeking a first-rate medium for making their announcements to the public, cannot do better than secure a space in the Christmas edition of the Peterborough EXAMINER. They should apply at once, as the space at the disposal of advertisers is being rapidly covered by orders. In addition to this special edition, the Daily EXAMINER having a large circulation in town, and being widely read, and the Weekly EXAMINER enjoying a very large circle of readers in the country districts, afford especially excellent opportunities for profitable advertising. Advertise in the paper that is not only widely circulated, but well read.

Twenty-Four Tramps.

This number of gentlemen of this class were accommodated with lodgings in the lock-up Saturday and Sunday nights. Tramps are, as a rule, in favor of the eight-hour labor movement; in fact, some are radical enough to advocate the no-hour system. A tearful member of the above squad, who had failed in business as a spring poet, and was thus reduced to his present low ebb, handed our reporter the following couplet, accompanied with a request for a loan of five cents to buy a little hair oil:—

Sing a song of five-cents
A bottle full of rye,
Four and twenty trampers
Penned in the stye,
When the pen was opened the tramps began to thirst
And of all the words they uttered,
Where to get a drink was first.

The Commodore Banquets the Boys.

On Saturday evening about thirty guests, including the employes in Calcutt's Brewery and on his line of steamers, enjoyed the jovial commodore's hospitality at a banquet given in an upper room of Kennealy's Ashburnham hotel. The supper was an oyster one, buttressed with a tempting supply of cold fowl, and meat of several descriptions. The tables were laid with great taste and the appreciation they met with from the assembled guests was a strong tribute to the taste and excellence of cooking that were employed in their preparation. After the excellent meal had been disposed of, a very pleasant hour or two was passed in chat and song. Stirring songs were supplied by Messrs. Harry Niel, Joseph Giroux, Samuel Way, Sidney Blade, John Mowry, M. Higgins, and (in French) B. Laurin. A delightful evening was spent, the whole-souled good nature of the Commodore, whose jolly countenance beamed at the head of the board, seeming to infuse itself through the assembled company. At twenty minutes to 12 o'clock the party separated, with three cheers for their genial host, whom all his employes hold in the highest respect, and justly, too, for no kinder nor more generous employer can be found in five counties.

Room to Swing in.

Since Mr. John Garvey began a business career in Peterborough, the business aptitude he applied to his affairs pointed him out a gentleman sure to rise, and it will not be with any surprise that our readers learn that the "pent-up Utica" of a retail business, however flourishing, does not afford scope for his business abilities. He has purchased the wholesale grocery business of Hon. Frank Smith, London, Ont., a business worth about $50,000. The premises necessary to conduct this business extend from one street to another in the western Metropolis, and has a frontage of 28 feet by a depth of 198 feet. He will leave town in a few days to take charge of the new business, and the Londoners, will find that their new citizen will there apply the same honesty, straightforwardness and rectitude of dealing that has during the last sixteen years led to his building up a successful trade and becoming one of our foremost citizens in a social and civic sense. Mr. Garvey's new departure does not, it is to be remarked, withdraw him from his interest in Peterborough. He still retains his business both here and in Ashburnham. He has, it is generally considered, made a judicious choice in selecting Mr. P. Quinn as his local manager. The London establishment will be opened by Mr. Garvey on Jan. 2nd, 1886, and THE EXAMINER takes pleasure in wishing him, not only a happy New Year, but many years of solid business success, and hopes he may win as large a personal regard as he has achieved during his residence in Peterborough.

Police Court.

The cases against Geo. Mitchell and T. Cavanagh for selling liquor to Jacob Roberts came up before Magistrate Dumble this morning. The case against Cavanagh was enlarged till Wednesday next, and that against Mitchell was disposed of.

Mitchell on oath stated that on the Tuesday night mentioned, the complainant came came into his shop and asked for whiskey, throwing down a quarter at the same time. He took one out of the case and offered it to Roberts, who objected to the bottle. Mitchell then informed Roberts that he owed him 25c. and that he would not give him any more till he paid it. The complainant coaxed Mitchell for some time, but Mitchell declined to supply him with any. The complainant then stepped back from the counter and said he was Jacob Roberts and that he would prosecute Mitchell if he did not supply him with whiskey. Mitchell thanked him for the information and told him if he did not get out he would throw him out. Roberts then left saying as he went he would make him feel for it, or something to that effect. Thos. Benton, a boy employed by Mitchell, was present when Roberts was in the shop. Mitchell sold him no liquor, and he had consumed none on the premises. Thos Benton was sworn and gave evidence confirming that of Mitchell. T. Cavanagh, sworn, said that the day after he was served with his summons, while looking around for one of the papers prohibiting the sale of liquor to Roberts, he met Roberts, who told him that he had brought the suit against Mitchell through spite. He owed Mitchell a dollar. He was the worse of liquor at the time he laid the information.

Mr. Roberts asked Mr. Cavanagh if he had not said he was tight, not that he did it through spite. Mr. Cavanagh said he adhered to his former statement. Roberts then said that the liquor for which he owed Mitchell 25c. he had got after hours, and he had witnesses to prove it.

The Magistrate informed him he would have to lay a new information, if he wished to prosecute him for selling after hours. There was no clash in the material evidence, although the boy's evidence was different to that of Mitchell's in some particulars. The case was not proven and was discharged.

Business Meeting of W. F. M. S.

The annual business meeting of the Woman's Foreign Mission Society in connection with St. Paul's Church, will be held in the ladies' parlor in that church, on Friday next, at 3:30 o'clock. Officers for the ensuing year will be elected and the annual reports read.

An Eminent Elocutionist.

The next of the Y. M. C. A. first-class series of elocutionary entertainments will be given in the Opera House on Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 16 and 17. The elocutionist is Mr. Geo. Belford, of England, and from all we hear he will sustain the reputation of the Y. M. C. A. series.

Biblical Study.

The interpretation of the Bible is a subject of much importance to all Bible students. It was discussed last Tuesday night at the class for Bible study in the Y. M. C. A. rooms and will also be the subject to be considered by the class to-morrow night. The Associa-men.

Police Magistrates' Appointment.

"An important constitutional question was argued at Osgoode Hall on Thursday, as to whether the Ontario Legislature had the power to appoint police magistrates, and whether a practising solicitor can act in that capacity. Judgment was reserved." While excellent appointments like the last made in Peterborough, obtain, the people of this town won't worry about the appointing power.

The Weather.

Last night was extremely cold, and there is not much abatement in the severity of the weather. The thermometer registered as low as 15° below zero. The probs. say that the temperature will take another tumble to-night. Reports will be coming in of the thermometers getting down off their nails to register, if it keeps on this way. Blue noses are the order of the day.

The Nicholls Hospital.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

SIR,—My attention has been directed to a statement in the Evening Review that there are at present no patients in the hospital. This is an error, as there are at present two and have never been fewer since it was opened. I may say that the hospital is in a thoroughly efficient condition, under the superintendence of a lady whose experience in hospital nursing has been sufficiently large to ensure proper attendance in any case, whether medical or surgical, and the trustees will be pleased to see the benefits of the hospital taken advantage of.

Our Approaching Municipal Elections.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

There is little probability that anything I, or anyone else, may say will have the effect of stirring up the people to a sense of the advantages to be derived from timely interest and exertion in our approaching municipal elections. Everybody thinks he has enough to do to look after his own affairs, and the result is that he leaves the business of the town in the hands of those who have a personal interest to serve or who are put forward to look after the interest of some one else. The effect therefore, is that

A FEW INDIVIDUALS RULE THE TOWN,

and, if they rule it for their own advantage, who can wonder at their doing so. When anything of a particularly objectionable character occurs, the people complain, but what right have they to complain. They never take any interest in town affairs. They never even so much as try to bring forward and elect Councillors in whom they may have confidence, and who will really and faithfully discharge their duty. They never hold ward meetings in order to discuss municipal business, and so propose for selection the best men to represent them, but they go on just as if they were not electors at all, content to let things take their own course, waiting for candidates to nominate themselves, and then promising to vote for the first man who comes along soliciting their support and influence, and then, when it is too late, they

COMPLAIN THAT THE COUNCILLORS ARE RECKLESS

and extravagant, and do not properly perform their duties. If the business of the town is not managed to their satisfaction, the people then have themselves to blame for it. They don't consider that a saving might be made in the public expenditure, and that this saving would reduce their taxes. They see men filling offices at salaries far beyond what they ever received before, and far beyond what they themselves can possibly earn by working from morning till night, and sometimes far into the night. And yet they will do nothing to remove this injustice, but they are content to go on in this way year after year, putting up with the pride and insolence of officials who enjoy high salaries and who leisurely walk to their offices at all hours, and are free to enjoy themselves, and who will pass the poor hard working ratepayer as if he were unworthy of the least consideration or respect. But for all this

THE PEOPLE HAVE THEMSELVES TO BLAME.

They don't sufficiently respect themselves. They are the electors. All power is in their hands. And if they but willed it, on the first Monday in January next, a change could be made in their municipal representation which would see to it that their municipal affairs were managed as they desired. The amount raised by taxes in this town is growing fast. But what will it be a few years hence if the people ignore all interest in town matters, which they have done in the past. Already there is a talk of having a system of sewerage, which will cost the town perhaps a hundred thousand dollars.

EVERY YEAR ADDS TO OUR EXPENDITURE.

Whereas, if as much economy were used by our councillors in our town affairs as they use in their own business, the expenditure of the town might be materially diminished and its outstanding indebtedness, in a few years, largely reduced, and as a consequence, the municipal taxation correspondingly diminished. And with the decrease of taxation would come an increase in the value of property. I believe the taxes of this town might be reduced to nine mills in the dollar, but it is safe to say that the old system will be pursued, and things will go on as they have done and the people will have to foot the bills.

Avenging Their Sister.

The Way Adopted by Three Brothers of Port Hope—They Pummel Her Truant Husband Nearly to Death and Relieve Him of Forty Thousand Dollars.

COBOURG, Ont., Dec. 7.—Three brothers, named Thomas, William and John Goheen, the first named keeping a livery stable in Port Hope and the two latter being farmers living in the western part of Hamilton township, were arrested in Port Hope and brought here to-day, charged with brutally assaulting with intent to kill John Knox, and robbing him of the sum of $40,000.

Knox is brother-in-law of the Goheens. Nine years ago Knox left his wife and children to go to the Western States. His wife died shortly after he deserted her. Yesterday Knox appeared in the neighborhood where the Goheen family live in Hamilton township. He was visiting at the house of Goheen's hired man. Thos. Goheen appeared at the door about 9 o'clock in the evening and called the hired man outside. The latter returned and told Knox he could not stay there any longer and that the Goheens wanted to see him outside. Knox went outside and was pounced on by the three prisoners, who pounded him to insensibility with a club and dragged him to the roadside.

When he regained consciousness he found that the money he had, which he claims was $40,000, made in his speculations in the west, and with which he intended to buy a farm in Canada, was gone. He managed to find shelter in the house of a neighbor near by. The case was reported to the crown attorney this morning and the prisoners arrested this afternoon. It seems that the Goheens had vowed to kill Knox if he ever appeared in the country again for his treatment of their sister.

Justice Thwarted!

(Ottawa Free Press.)

The friends of the murdered mounted policeman David L. Cowan, are complaining bitterly against the action of Sir John Macdonald, in ordering, before he fled to England, the reprieve of Loison Mongrain, young Cowan's assassin. From the outset we opposed the extension of clemency to any one of the convicted murderers at Battleford, and therefore can consistently condemn the government's action in this respect. The murderers were all of that brutal and cold blooded character, that no extenuating circumstances were adduced favoring a commutation of the death penalty. The prisoner in this special instance was tried before a duly constitued court on the charge of murder, which was fully sustained by the evidence adduced. The facts proven were these:—

Cowan was a member of a reconnoitering party from Port Pitt in the direction of Big Bear's camp, and while returning although no shots had been fired by the police, he was fired upon and fell wounded from his horse. Cowan lay upon the ground for half an hour. The poor fellow was so severly wounded he could not rise. The prisoner came up to the unfortunate man who was laying upon his back, and pointed a gun at him. Young Cowan put up his hands as if to ward the gun away; and said:

"Don't Brother!"

The wretch then not heeding the plaintive request of the helpless policeman, fired two shots into his head and killed him.

It was not warfare—it was a cruel, brutal, deliberate murder, and this is the man, the only man, whom Sir John Macdonald reprieved out of the eight convicted rebels.

Here is the summary of Judge Rouleau's remarks in sentencing the prisoner:—

After the verdict of the jury, I can do no more than pronounce judgment. By the evidence given you have been found guilty of murder under the most shocking circumstances. When the wounded man was lying helpless on the ground and lifting up his hands pleading for his life, you cruelly shot him. I never heard of anything more cruel than that a man who saw another lying wounded and defenceless, should kill him. The law provides that sentence of death be passed upon you, and the sentence of the court is, that you be hanged on the 27th of November.

Here is the judge who heard the evidence, and he pronounces the murder to be one of a peculiarly atrocious character; and yet it is to such a man as this prisoner that the Premier extends the executive clemency and withholds it in a case where there was no charge of direct murder.

Throughout Carleton county, among the relatives and friends of the murdered mounted policeman, the most intense indignation prevails at the Premier's action in the matter. These people felt they had a right to demand that in this case the law be allowed to take its course; but in this they were disappointed. They expected a justice which has been denied them; and they place the responsibility of that denial upon the Premier's head. Members of the murdered man's family who have been life long supporters of the Premier authorize the statement that they will not only never vote for him again, but will throw their whole influence against him. They have always revered the Premier under the impression that he was a just man, but they have in the bitterness of their experience learned how sadly mistaken they were. Failing to obtain justice from the Premier, they openly condemn his course as the County of Carleton's representative.

The crime which the convicted murderer committed was brutal, but the Premier's exercise of clemency in the case is infamous. It is so infamous as to demand the reprobation of every law-abiding citizen and every lover of justice.

The blood of young Cowan cries out for vengeance—his relatives demand that justice be meted out to them—and the justice which the law declares is their due—is a life for life.

But between them and that justice—between the law and its enforcement—the Premier has interposed the executive's prerogative of a reprieve to be possibly followed before long by a pardon.

With the law administered in this manner—a premium is placed upon murder—and the lawless ruffian who kills in cold blood, the wounded man who pleads for his life saying "Dont Brother," as the gun is pointed at his head—is allowed to escape under the impression that taking man's life is mere sport. In the murderer's reprieve a deep wrong has been done to Cowan's family, and we join in their protest against the manner in which the Premier has thwarted the ends of justice.

County Court.

December Sittings of the County Court and General Sessions Before His Honor Judge Deanistoun.

The December sittings of the County Court and General Sessions were commenced to-day at noon, His Honor Judge Deanistoun, presiding. There were only three cases to come up for hearing.

The bar was represented by Messrs. G. H. Hopkins, Lindsay; A. P. Poussette, G. M. Roger, C. A. Weller, C. W. Sawers, W. H. Moore, E. D. Hall and J. Henry, town.

ADDRESS TO THE GRAND JURY.

His Honor in addressing the jurors said there was only one case to come before the grand jury, which was a complaint of stopping up a highway. They were to satisfy themselves whether the stoppage had occurred, and if it was a misdemeanor; and if satisfied that it had been obstructed and was a misdemeanor to consider whether there was evidence sufficient to put the persons on trial. Grand Juries were not to try but to see that the evidence was sufficient. It was a wise and merciful provision. A case might be instituted by parties prompted by malice. They would consider whether the road had been obstructed, and if it was a nuisance, and if they found it had not been a nuisance the case would not be proceeded with. They would have to inspect the gaol and other county buildings and report. He was sorry there were so many in the goal. The Grand Jurors would be discharged at 10 o'clock to-morrow.

The following gentlemen composed

THE GRAND JURY:

James Brealy,	Foreman,
Richard Cosgrave,	Wm. Clarkson,
Jacob Hicks,	Ed. Hawthorne,
Israel Hampshire,	Jas. E. W. Kidd,
Jas. Leahy,	Wm. J. Howson,
Francis Mason,	Thos. McDonald,
Thos. Powers,	Thos. Stothart,
Walter Thomson,	John M. Walsh,

Andrew Young.

A true bill was brought in this afternoon by the Grand Jury in the case of Frice vs. Broad for road obstructions, and the case will come before the court to-morrow morning. The following are the cases which will require the attention of the court: Quintal vs. Corniel, Frice vs. Broad, and Queen vs. Cresswell, held over from last sittings. The case of Quintal vs. Corniel is in progress as our report closes.

British Election.

The Liberals 1 Ahead.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Returns received up to 10 o'clock to-night show that 319 Liberals, 245 Conservatives and 73 Nationalists have been elected.

Still Hopeful.

The Daily News (Liberal) still hopes for a Liberal majority over both Parnellites and Conservatives combined, but it believes that Lord Salisbury refusing to admit a defeat, will retain office. It says that Lord Salisbury will remain in office simply as the nominee of Parnell. England, Wales and Scotland have declared emphatically against him.

PARNELL'S POLITICAL VALET.

Lord Salisbury, in plain words, is a Minister for Ireland, and for a Home Rule Ireland, imposed upon the United Kingdom by the sole will and pleasure of Mr. Parnell, in spite of his rejection by the constituencies of Great Britain.

THE ONLY CERTAIN RESULT.

The Times declares that the only one certain result of the elections is a commanding position secured by Parnell. The Standard (Con.) insists that Lord Salisbury shall not resign. In an interview at Dublin yesterday Parnell said that had it not been for the Irish vote in England and Ireland, Liberals would have had a majority over the Nationalist-Conservative combination of at least one hundred and twenty.

GLADSTONE HEARD FROM.

Gladstone wrote a letter on Satuaday in which he said:—"I am certain that the Tories will be much weaker than the Liberals in the next as in the past Parlaiment. It will be impossible for the Tories to conduct the Government on their strength or to hold a position of dignity and independence. The Liberal party will outnumber Tories and Parnellites combined, and will be the only party independent of unworthy motives."

PARNELL HEDGING.

It is stated that Parnell, seeing that the Tories and Parnellites combined will not be able to deal with the affairs of Ireland in view of the certain secession of Irish Tories from the main party on Irish questions, has made overtures to the Liberals. Parnell, it is said, declares that the Liberals and Parnellites combined can carry everything before them.

There were held to-day eleven English, one Scotch and six Irish elections. These will leave ten seats to be filled.

Judge Morrison Dead.

Peaceful Close of an Active Career.

Sunday morning Joseph Curren Morrison, judge of the court of appeal, died at his residence, Woodlawn, in his 70th year. The deceased gentleman was perhaps one of the best known and most highly esteemed of those whose names are connected with the early history of Canada who have survived to recent years. The deceased gentleman was born at Belfast on August 20th, 1819, and came to this country with his parents when about seventeen years of age. He studied law with Edward Hume Blake, father of Hon. Edward Blake, and after passing their examinations the two fellow-students went into partnership under the title of Blake & Morrison. A few years afterwards John O'Connor, now judge of the Superior Court, entered the firm, the title of which was then changed to that of Blake, Morrison & O'Connor. In 1862 he was appointed puisne judge of the Common Pleas, in the following year went to the Court of Queen's Bench and in 1877 became judge of the Court of Appeal, which position he retained to the time of his death. For some time past, however, he has been unable to discharge the duties of his office.

STILL ON THE WRONG SIDE.

The balance in the Dominion accounts still persists in ranging itself on the wrong side. One would have thought that the deficit of last year of over two and a quarter millions, would have been enough, but the signs are, that the present fiscal year will show a still more alarming balance on the adverse side of the ledger page. Below is presented a comparative statement of the Dominion receipts and expenditure for the month of November and the first five months of the current fiscal year as compared with the corresponding periods of 1884 :—

Revenue.	1884.	1885.
Customs	$1,471,434	$1,294,879
Excise	503,234	471,123
Postoffice	142,348	129,854
Public Works, railways, etc.	330,374	395,974
Miscellaneous	153,127	195,790
Total revenue for Nov.	$ 2,600,629	$ 2,307,621
Total to 31st Oct.	11,488,089	10,055,453
Total rev. for 5 months	$14,088,718	$12,453,974
Expenditure for Nov.	$ 3,412,509	$ 3,768,445
Expenditure to 31st Oct.	9,327,482	10,966,316
Total expenditure for 5 months	$12,739,992	$14,734,762

The present outlook is even worse than last year. At the end of the first five months of the last fiscal year -1884-5—the Dominion Government had a surplus of $1,348,726. At the end of the first five months of the present fiscal year it will be seen by the above tabular statement that the deficit is $2,271,689 with a fair prospect of being doubled during the remaining seven months the year has to run—till June 30th, 1886. Last year's outlook was bad enough, with a deficit of over two and a quarter millions. Yet, the actual deficit was even greater, for to it should be added the surplus the Government had at the end of November, 1884, which would make the actual deficit over three and a half millions. It will be noticed that there is a steadily declining revenue and that the expenditure is steadily growing. Our income, in spite of the fact that every session increased taxation has been piled upon the unhappy people, is growing less. How long would a business man stand whose expenses were greater than his income year after year? It would be a simple calculation if one knew the amount of his capital, to tell when the end would come. And if we could know the extent of the resources of the Dominion, we could pretty accurately calculate how long it would take the present Dominion Government to bring about the crash. But it seems they are acting under some malign influence. The deeper we become plunged in debt the more reckless the extravagant expenditure becomes. The less the income the more lavish the outgo. And there is no hope of betterment of our condition till the people relieve their incapable and reckless stewards of their responsibility and delegate the control of their affairs to honest men.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sir John's supporters claim that in hanging Riel he simply did what was right. If this be true, it's rather hard lines for the old gentleman that the first honest act he had tried to do for years, should provoke the loss of his most faithful supporters.

It is currently rumoured that Sir Charles Tupper is about to enter active political life. It is doubtful if even he could make the income of the country "stretch" so that it would cover the deficit. Sir Charles Tupper has a considerable amount of ability, but, unfortunately, it is not balanced by any considerable amount of political honesty.

The Mail is now trying to hark back. Ever since the execution of Riel's death sentence, and the decided position taken by the Quebec supporters of the Government, that journal has been treating the French Canadians with abusive diatribes one after another, the last more virulent than the preceding, if possible. In Monday's issue it wastes nearly two heavy columns in trying to undo the mischief it has done its party, and metaphorically plumps down on its knees to its late political allies. The tone of entreaty is most abject. But, litera scripta manent.

The ways of fate are often devious and it is possible that that the defection of the Government's French supporters is but the beginning of that righteous retribution which is sure, sooner or later, to overtake them. If they think to escape simply by the execution of the figure head of the rebellion they are greatly deceived. When the cooler moment comes to the people the latter will insist on those responsible for the misgovernment that led to the outbreak meeting their full share of punishment. Would it be just to let the man who would turn a mad dog loose on a crowded street escape, because the rabid animal was shot?

The humbugging fiscal policy of protection is beginning to yield, even in its peculiar forcing house, the United States. Mr. Carlisle, a free trader, who was speaker of the United States House of Representatives last session, is sure to be elected again, in spite of the opposition of the disgusted protectionists, and Mr. Morton, a pronounced free trader, will be chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

The "Chicago" has been launched, the first heavy cruiser of the proposed American fleet, and the Witness pertinently asks, "why the 'Chicago' has no mercantile marine to protect?" The simple reason is that a protective policy has swept the merchant marine of the United States from the seas as effectually as an invincible fleet of steel-clad pirate ships could do, and more so, for under a sensible, fiscal policy, a ship could be built for every one sunk, but under the present protective policy of the Yankees, this would be impossible.

This is the way the money goes, and this is one of the reasons why there is a deficit of over two and a quarter millions this year. When Sir David Macpherson was Minister of the Interior he used to take an annual trip to Europe, taking a Senate messenger with him as personal attendant, the messenger's salary being paid as usual out of the public treasury. Sir Leonard Tilley has undertaken to go one better. When he went to England last summer he took with him from the Finance Department a gentlemen who draws a salary of $800 a year. The man also went to St. Andrews and nursed Sir Leonard through his illness, and now that the latter has been made Lieut.-Governor, the messenger remains at Fredericton as a servant. There is not a pore but some government vampire is busy at it sucking the financial life-blood of the country.

The "Real Hell."

From the Unitarian Point of View—Lecture by Rev. Hilary Bygrave.

The course of popular Sunday evening lectures by the Rev. Hilary Bygrave in the Unitarian church, on Jarvis street, Toronto, says the World, are attracting large audiences. Last Sunday night the auditorium was again crowded when the reverend gentleman spoke on "The Hell of the Future, or the Real Hell," in continuation of his lecture of the previous Sunday evening on "The Hell of the Past." The old doctrine, he said, was equivalent to asserting that God would keep alive the souls He had created that he might torment them forever—in other words that he would perpetuate the evil he was said to hate. Christ told us to love our enemies because God loved his enemies. He loved unloveable and unloving men. If God hated and tormented his enemies, there was no reason why he should love ours. To treat with contempt the old horrible idea of everlasting punishment was not to deny the inevitable and natural law of retribution—that all men suffered the natural consequences of wrongdoing. Just because he did not believe in an unreal and unnatural hell, he did believe in a real and natural one. God was a consuming fire, but only to the combustible material—the wood and hay and stubble of evil, but not the gold and silver of goodness and truth. And this process was far from pleasant to those exercised thereby. Wrongdoing and punishment were just as inevitably and invariably related to each other as seed was to fruit. This consuming, purifying love of God was no weak, vacillating love, but a love both wise and strong. Its purpose was not to make us suffer, but to make us pure and noble and true. The hearts and consciences of men did not revolt against punishment, but only against that which was unnecessary, unjust, unimproving. The right heart and conscience demanded punishment, was not satisfied to be let off. By the operation of simple law we were in pain or pleasure, light or darkness, heaven or hell. Hell was simply bad sowing, bad reaping; heaven good sowing good reaping. Hell was everywhere, heaven everywhere. Many could exclaim like Milton's satan, "Miserable me! whichever way I fly is hell; myself am hell." Let us never stifle the cries of our injured better selves. Let us strive more and more for that sensitiveness which shall make us quiver and bleed at wrong-doing. Thank God, it was never too late to mend, and he would not limit that glorious possibility to this life. As God lived we might be sure that evil and suffering will not last forever. There was no such thing as fixedness in this life or in any other. God would punish His erring children as a true and loving father, not to harden or stupefy their souls, but to quicken their latent powers, and make them pure and true and noble, until not one soul would remain hostile or alien to Him.

Melville Millar

My Bridegroom.

But I had said I would be his wife, and my promise must be kept at any cost.

"Cuthbert is going to leave us," announced Lady Grace one afternoon; and I glanced quickly at Lord Arline, my heart beating painfully.

"I am tired of the country," he said, carelessly, as he handed me a cup of tea, which I could scarcely hold, for I was trembling from head to foot. He was going away! Well, what did it matter to me?

Alas! I felt that it did matter a great deal; for Lady Grace's announcement had opened my eyes to the truth, and I knew that I loved my future step-son.

As soon as I could I stole out of the room to hide in the conservatory.

"Reika?"

I looked up quickly, and saw Lord Arline standing before me. He had followed me out of the drawing-room.

"What is it?" I said, and my voice quivered in spite of myself.

"Reika," he repeated, putting his arm round my waist, "you shall not marry my father, for you love me."

"Let me go," I cried, struggling to free myself from his embrace.

"You know that what I say is true," he said, still holding me tightly.

"True or false, I have given my word, and cannot break it," I returned. "Oh, Cuthbert, let me go!"

He withdrew his arm and looked at me moodily, gnawing his long moustache.

"Reika," he said, "why are you going to marry that old man? You don't love him and you do love me. Why ruin your own life and mine?"

"He has trusted me," I replied; "how can I tell him I am unworthy of his esteem?"

"You would make any sacrifice for my sake if you loved me," said Cuthbert. "My father is not a hot-headed boy"—sneeringly; "he would soon get over his disappointment."

"Probably," I returned; "but I cannot break my word."

"You would rather break my heart," resentfully.

"I would rather do what I think is right," I said, looking away from his pained, handsome face.

Just then we heard a rustling in the ferns, and Lord Arline grew pale.

"Someone has overheard our conversation," he said.

"Oh, no, it is only Rover," I said, stooping to stroke the great mastiff. "Don't you know that you have no business here, old fellow?"

"But my father must be somewhere about," cried Cuthbert. "Rover is always at his heels."

At this moment we saw Lord Standiland advancing towards us with a smile on his face.

Would he have looked like that if he had overheard our conversation? Of course not, I told myself with a sigh of relief as I slipped my hand through his arm.

If Cuthbert had been a poor man I might have yielded to the dictations of my heart; but he was rich, and would some day inherit Lord Standiland's title and estate, and it seemed to me a mean trick to give up the earl because he was old and grey and marry his son, even though I did love Cuthbert with all my heart.

"You look pale, little girl," said Lord Standiland, glancing at my face, which instantly became suffused with scarlet; and without glancing at his son he led me out of the conservatory.

"My dear," he said that evening, "I should like if you had no objection, to hasten our marriage, and as I am not very well I should like it to take place in my own drawing-room."

As I had no objection to offer, everything was arranged as he wished, and mother came over to be present at the ceremony.

Lord Arline had left the house, and I was glad of it.

I did not want to meet him again before our marriage.

It was to be quite a private wedding, with Grace as my only bridesmaid; and mother grumbled at the absence of display; but I was all the better pleased, for I felt sick at my heart, and did not want to be stared at by a gaping crowd.

Grace was very kind and affectionate; two or three times I caught her in the act of looking at me, and she hastily averted her eyes.

Mother, too, seemed to have something on her mind; but I was too miserable to be curious on this or any other subject.

My heart was very heavy on the night before my wedding. I meant to do what was right, but it was cruelly hard to fight against my love for Cuthbert.

As I sat alone in my dressing-room, my thoughts went back to my first meeting with Lord Standiland.

Mother and I had been for a walk, and mother had sprained her ankle. The pain was so intense that she fainted, and I was bending over her anxiously, when a carriage came along the road with a gentleman in it.

It was Lord Standiland, who ordered the coachman to bring the horses to a standstill, and handed me a flask of wine. This speedily restored mother to consciousness, and then he offered her a seat in the carriage with the greatest kindness imaginable, and drove us right up to the door of our cottage, to the intense wonderment of the neighbors.

From that day he was always calling to inquire after mother's health, and I soon began to see that I was the attraction.

This pleased my vanity of course, and raised ambitious hopes. Ah, was I not suffering for my ambition now. I should be Lady Standiland indeed, but what pleasure could my title and high position give to me?

I looked at myself in the mirror on my dressing-table, and beheld a fair, girlish face, framed in masses of chestnut hair. How pretty I was, even when grave and sad. This thought gave me no pleasure, however. I was too wretched to feel grateful at my beauty as reflected in the mirror, with its two wax candles, that also reflected the luxurious room in which I sat.

On the morrow I should be mistress of the Hall, the most envied, the most unhappy, woman in the country.

"What, not in bed yet?" cried mother, peering in upon me. "Do you forget what tomorrow is?"

Her words made me smile bitterly. As if I could forget!

I scarcely slept that night, but the want of rest did not spoil my beauty. I had never looked better than when I went down to the drawing-room where the clergyman was waiting to perform the ceremony which would make me Lord Standiland's wife.

There was a little bustle as I entered the room with mother and Grace, and, looking neither to the right or left, walked up to where the clergyman stood, my heart beating painfully, and my throat so dry that I wondered how I should ever be able to say "I will."

I did not lift my eyes to look at my bridegroom, but listened as one in a dream, until the time came for the clergyman to ask who gave me away.

"I do," said the voice of Lord Standiland, and looking up in bewilderment I saw, to my boundless surprise, it was not the earl who stood facing me, but his son.

My heart gave a sudden leap, for I was only human, and I loved Cuthbert with all my heart.

I did not ask myself how it came about that I was to be married to Lord Arline; but I knew afterwards that Lord Standiland had overheard our conversation in the conservatory, and had planned this generous revenge, and all present but myself had been prepared for the change of bridegrooms.

Cuthbert had been recalled from London by his father, who had made up his mind not to marry me seeing I had no love to give him.

He did not wish to make me miserable, he told me kindly, as he placed his wedding gift—a beautiful diamond necklace—round my neck.

"I hope you will be very happy, Reika," he said as he kissed my rosy cheeks; and I never liked and esteemed him so much as at that moment.

Grace kissed me warmly, and I could see that she was better pleased to welcome me as a sister-in-law than a stepmother, for I was a year younger than herself.

I always felt grateful to her for the unchanging kindness she had manifested to me during my engagement to her father, for I knew it had not been agreeable to give up her position of mistress of the Hall during her father's life-time.

It was a long time, however, before Lord Standiland forgave Cuthbert those sneering words he had uttered in his despair; but when my little son was born a year later the little stranger made peace between father and son, and my husband is now on the best of terms with baby's grand-pa.

Y. M. A. A., Literature Class.

The literature class in connection with the Y. M. C. A., taught by Mr. Barton Earle, assembled in the lecture room last evening, and discussed Goldsmith's "Deserted Village." The class was small, but appreciative, and enjoyed the lesson very much, their lost time only one hour, while their profit by instruction and study is unlimited. It is certainly deserving of a more liberal patronage. Coleridge's Odes will be taken up at the next lesson. Books are supplied at the rooms.

Improvements.

Mr. Martin McFadden, Hunter street, is arranging for the placing of plate glass in his windows. The glass is now at the station. He also intends making improvements in his shops in town and Ashburnham, so as to facilitate the manufacture of even a higher class of furniture than heretofore. Mr. McFadden has a first class stock on hand, and parties wanting a first rate Christmas present, will do well to call on him and inspect his stock, from which they will no doubt be able to select something suitable. Prices are right and anything purchased from Mr. McFadden may be relied on as the best.

The Initial Showshoe Tramp.

Last night a party of several snowshoers made rendezvous at Rubidge's tobacco store to set out on the first tramp of the season. They are not members of any organized club, but are individuals in a sort of guerilla band who join in the sport for the love of it. The crowd was led by "Tim," while "Macduff" brought up the rear. The route covered a considerable distance, and the new beginners enjoyed the usual number of tumbles. "Tim's" band will be glad to have the company of any snowshoer who may choose to join their outings, due notice of which will be posted at Rubidge's tobacco store. Last night the party returned well pleased with the trip and solaced themselves with oysters, etc.

The Christmas Examiner.

The regular annual Christmas edition of THE PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER will be published about the end of next week. This edition will consist of 6,000 copies, printed on fine pink-toned paper. It will be well supplied with interesting reading matter suitable to the season and handsomely illustrated with excellent wood cuts, also beautiful illustrations of the festive season, which together will make it appreciated, read and preserved in the household. The edition is intended for free distribution in town and surrounding country, and it is so large that not a home or hamlet in either, will be without a copy. Business men and merchants, seeking a first-rate medium for making their announcements to the public, cannot do better than secure a space in the Christmas edition of the Peterborough EXAMINER. They should apply at once, as the space at the disposal of advertisers is being rapidly covered by orders. In addition to this special edition, the Daily EXAMINER having a large circulation in town, and being widely read, and the Weekly EXAMINER enjoying a very large circle of readers in the country districts, afford especially excellent opportunities for profitable advertising. Advertise in the paper that is not only widely circulated, but well read.

Mr. Wm. Redmond, of Cavan Township, showed on Saturday last three turnips weighing 60 lbs., one bushel. They were solid, as their weight would indicate, and fine in texture. They were of the purple top Swede variety and were grown from seed purchased from Mr. John McKee, druggist.

Proposed Change.

Mr. Rufus Stevenson and Wm. Drury, superintendent of the Peterborough gas works, left for Lindsay this morning, where they will visit and inspect the gas works of that place, with a view of introducing the same method of manufacturing gas in the works here. Crude oil is what they use in Lindsay. It is said to be cheaper than coal and the gas gives a brighter light.

Skating and Curling.

The skating and curling rink was flooded to-day and will be opened for the season as soon as the ice is in readiness, which will not be long should the temperature continue as low as at present. The rink will be well managed and made as comfortable and attractive as possible. The healthful and vigorous pastimes of skating and curling will be the order of the day before long.

A Fine Group.

There is displayed at Messrs. Ormond & Walsh's a splendid frame of photographs by Stewart, of Buffalo, representing the different characters of Miss Josie Devoy and Mr. R. G. Knowles, who who will star next season in a new musical comedy, "Guess the title." Miss Devoy is the bright Particular star of the Jolly Argonauts Comedy Company, which presents the "best play I ever saw," at Bradburn's Opera House to-night.

Dancing Academy.

Prof. R. J. McDonald announces that he will open a dancing academy in Peterborough in a few days. He holds first-rate testimonials, and he met with excellent success in Belleville last season. He is the fortunate possessor of 31 gold and silver medals, given for several competitions. Among these is the Lord Dufferin Gold Medal for Highland Dancing. The public can have every confidence in Prof. McDonald carrying out his engagements honorably, and giving the best of satisfaction to any availing themselves of his instructions in the art of dancing.

Accident.

This morning an accident occurred at Mr. Geo. Matthews' packing house, which was the cause of wrecking the knives of that useful article, the sausage machine. The machine was being run at a rapid rate when one of the knives became detached and fell into the box, where it was chopped into sausage meat size by the other knives, and, in turn, smashed them. The machine was stopped as soon as possible, the mixture of steel and meat removed, and the knives replaced by new ones. Dealers will not be supplied with this steel seasoned sausage unless personal application is made at the packing house. It would make a desirable and sharp dressing for tough turkey, or might be converted into a cure-all patent medicine called steel, pork and water. Smart Alicks would no doubt prefer it to razor soup.

Baptist Anniversary.

The Murray Street Baptist Church intends holding its first anniversary of the opening of its present place of worship on Tuesday, the 20th inst. The Rev. Dr. Castle, of McMaster Hall, is expected to occupy the pulpit both morning and evening of that day. The Rev. Dr. Thomas, of Jarvis Street Church, whose eloquence delighted all who heard him on his former visit to this town, will deliver his great lecture on "Men for the Age" on Monday the 21st. On that evening also the annual tea meeting of the church will be held. On Tuesday, the 22nd, the Sunday School will have its annual festival. And on Wednesday evening a Christmas cantata will be given under the direction of the Rev. E. Duff. Further particulars will be published at a later date.

Peace Prospects

Becoming Brighter in the Balkans.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—A report coming by way of Belgrade that Bulgaria had renewed hostilities, proves to have been like so many statements emanating from Servian sources, a complete misrepresentation of Prince Alexander's attitude. The armistice has been observed with good faith. The late despatches show that the negotiations for a settlment by Servia and Bulgaria without the intervention of larger states are proceeding satisfactorily, and that the of the difficulty is more favorable than at any time since the outbreak of the war. The Servian proposals handed to Prince Alexander by a special envoy are that upon the withdrawal of the Bulgarian army from Servian territory, the Servian troops operating in the direction of Widdin shall retire. The decision as to indemnity or acquisition of territory on either side is to be left unreservedly with the Conference of the Powers. The Porte has forwarded two more important messages to Prince Alexander. One warns him that the armistice must be continued till the Powers decide otherwise, that he has no power to conclude final terms of peace irrespective of the Powers, though he may arrange with King Milan the basis of a complete cessation of hostilities. The other promises to carefully consider Bulgaria's request to refrain from sending a governmental commission into Roumelia and to withdraw the commission already sent to Philippopolis. The popular animosity in Roumelia against these Turkish agents increases every day, and threatens to result in another revolt against any attempt to restore the Ottoman yoke. Mass meetings are held daily, at which popular orators exhort the people not to let their liberty, so nearly realised, be snatched from their grasp by the wily Turk.

British Elections.

Liberals Leading by Four.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Election interest centres round the struggle between the Liberals and the unholy alliance, as on this depends Lord Sailsbury's action. It is commonly stated that he is but his colleagues are most unwilling. The Times this morning calls upon him strongly to retain office. I understand that Lord Randolph Churchill is the only member of the Cabinet who has a definite scheme of his own for Home Rule.

ANXIOUS NOW TO RESIGN,

The other striking aspect of the elections it that a large number of aristocratic county magnates and patricians by large majorities by plebeian labour candidates, land reformers, Crofters, etc.

WILL BE TURNED OUT

RETURNS.

There have been elected up to 3 p.m., 324 Liberals, 245 Conservatives, and 76 Nationalists. Rumors are current that Lord Salisbury has resigned, but they are not confirmed.

An estimate of the final result of the elections gives the coalition of Tories and Parnellites a majority of 10 over the Liberals. Apart from the Parnellite vote the Liberals have a majority of 79. The Irish Conservatives, headed by Lewis, are forming an independent section opposing any coalition with Parnell. Burt replaces Lawson as leader of the Local Optionists.

Keene.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Things are booming here since the frost has regularly set in. Loads of pork for our local packing house, for we too have a pork factory, on a gem scale, which is a great convience to producers of that staple. Loads of grain for the mills and local buyers. Loads of hay and straw for the needy animals. Loads of wood for human comfort, and, since the sleighing came, loads of pretty girls and handsome attendants, to round up the general symmetry of the whole. Also the staff of life at eight cents a loaf. Two bakers—Cunningham of Keene and Murray of Hastings. It is war to the hilt between the "knights of dough" and grand times for the consumer. The result is not hard to see, after a Keene contest bold Murray must yield to brave Cunningham, and be forced to quit the field; always knowing that he retires with colors flying, and that he carries the grateful thanks of all this section of the country with him, for his timely supplies when we were in sore need.

Thirty dollars expended in gravelling the Keene station yard road, from the base line to the track at the platform: ten by the township, and twenty by the railway corporation. Ten dollars more, needed to complete the job. Will it come? Our old friend Jef. Dinsdale, was "king o' the causeway," and well did he acquit himself.

You ought to see the glorious big curling and skating rink that our Keene Syndicate has built for us (and themselves). They have eclipsed Sir John's syndicate altogether, for they have finished the enterprise with their own money. They are men who would scorn to promise to do the work on their own basis and then borrow the money from the township, as did their seniors from the country.

Mr. David Houston has opened a general store in the premises lately occupied by Stevenson, of Norwood, next to Gall's hotel.

We seldom saw anything more beautiful than the Highland dance by the two children, who are also pleasing singers. Don't forget—Next Tuesday evening.

An Important Fact.

It is not generally known that though the British Parliament was dissolved Nov. 18, yet there was one event which could have called its members together with all the functions of a live Parliament. That event was the death of the reigning sovereign. The English practice provides that should the Sovereign die between the dissolution of a parliament and the election of a new Parliament, the old Parliament shall be summoned.

The Fight Between British and Arabs.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—The news from Cairo is to the effect that a second engagement has been fought between the British forces on the Nile and the advancing Arabs under El Mahdi's ambitious successor, and that the British were victorious; but have thought it best to retain an entrenched position on both banks of the river, in anticipation of a renewal of the attack. Reinforcements have been forwarded to them.

"Daniel."

The public are informed that the plan of reserved seats for the cantata "Daniel" is now open at Hartley's music store, where seats may be secured. A good many seats have already been sold.

St. Andrew's Church Choir.

The new choir in St. Andrew's church, with Miss Johnston as organist and Mr. D. D. Galletly, as leader, commenced their duties last Sunday. The members of the church speak very highly of the abilities of the new choir, and it is expected they will materially assist in the church services.

Not Sharp Shod.

A temporary sensation was created last evening at the corner of Hunter and George streets. Dr. Kincaid was turning the corner rather rapidly, when his horse, which was not sharp shod, slipped and fell, breaking the shafts. The incident collected quite a crowd, who were glad to see, however, that the genial doctor nor his equipage had received no fractures that a carriage builder could not reduce.

County Court.

December Sittings of the County Court and General Sessions Before His Honor Judge Dennistoun.

SECOND DAY—WEDNESDAY.

There has only been one case disposed of by the County Court up to the time of writing, viz: Quintal vs. Corniel. The jury rendered a verdict of $68 and costs for the plaintiff.

It appears that in the month of June last, at Veitch's hotel, Lindsay, Corniel sold Quintal a horse which he represented to be sound of wind, for the sum of $120. Mr. Quintal took Corniel at his word, and shipped the horse to Montreal. Here it was found that the horse was afflicted with the heaves. Quintal returned it to Mr. T. Cavanagah, his agent, in Peterborough, who took the horse back to Corneil. Corneil kept the horse for six days, when he returned it to Cavanagh's hotel, saying he would not refund the money nor keep the horse. Mr. Cavanagh, on instruction from Mr. Quintal, sold the horse by auction on the market, realizing $45. He then instituted an action for recovery of the difference in the value received and what he paid for it, together with costs incurred. Poussette & Roger for plaintiffs and Martin & Hopkins, Lindsay, for defendant.

The larceny case, Queen vs. Cresswell, is being heard by the Court as we go to press.

A French-Canadian farmer at Bloomfield, New Jersey, named George Dupont, who came to Montreal on Saturday was robbed of $9 by two men, Vendeen and Hulliers, who are under arrest.

Judge Taschereau in a judgment given in Montreal, decided that Registrars had no right to charge for separate certificates on different lots of property in one execution, and that the sheriff had no right to charge fees on mortgages already settled.

The seizure placed upon the Craig pictures on Friday in Montreal has been withdrawn by the Exchange Bank liquidators, who are now confident that the entire lot belongs to Mrs. Tom Craig.

Capt. Henry Douglass was robbed Saturday night in Toronto of $170 and a gold watch and chain.

In a lecture in Montreal last night the Rev. Dr. Cameron favoured Imperial federation.

The barns, house and stock of a farmer named Beaulieu, of St. Laurent, Que., were totally destroyed by fire Saturday night; no insurance.

THE QUESTION OF RESPONSIBILITY.

Ever since the outbreak of the North-west rebellion, the enemies of the Reform party have sought to distort its position upon that subject and the incidents arising therefrom. The position of the Reform party is plain and simple. It holds the Macdonald Government responsible for the bloodshed, waste, suffering and ill-feeling that have resulted from the outbreak. Riel, as the figure head, is not to be held guiltless, but it is plain that in his execution, a monstrous injustice has been perpetrated if the real authors of the insurrection are allowed to escape punishment. It is not held that Riel and his co-agitators are less guilty, but the Dominion Government is more so.

The history of the dealings of the government with the halfbreeds of the Northwest is an unbroken record of neglect, injustice and tyrannical oppression, and to men of the least spirit, the last resort was force to secure the retention of their rights. The oppression and injustice are not only of recent date. As long as seven years ago, the Half-breeds not feeling secure in their position, made a move for the settlement of their claims, which no one has ever attempted to deny the justice of. They and their ancestors had lived for years upon the land they occupied and as settlement of the North-west was what was desired, the reasons for the adjustment of their claims were particularly urgent.

But what was the results of the Half-breeds' attempts to secure justice? Their claims were pressed as strongly as possible and backed by powerful influence, but no attention from the Government was evoked. The Northwest council urged the Government to settle the Metis' in the possession of their lands. No heed was paid to their advice. Archbishop Taché brought his influence to bear without result. The efforts of Bishop McLean, of the Church of England, in the same direction, were equally fruitless. Meanwhile the Metis were sending petition after petition to the government, but the same contemptuous indifference attended every fresh attempt. Bishop Grandin used his personal influence to secure attention to the claims of the Half-breeds, but without success. Again a special delegation was tried, at an expense that was a serious one to the poor settlers; Father LeDuc and Mr. Moloney undertook the long and arduous journey to Ottawa, to press the claims of the Metis, but the only success they met was empty promises and cavalier dismissal from the presence. The failure to secure even respectful attention to their claims, not to mention adjustment, naturally made the Halfbreeds uneasy; they had no spirit to enter upon the improvement of their holdings, which might be swept away from their possession by the whim of the government.

Later on surveyors were sent into the district in question, to prepare the way for opening up the country for settlement. Even the paid servants of the Government had not been instructed to respect the rights of the original settlers, but lines were run to cut up the lands of the half-breeds in the most annoying way. In some cases a half-breed's farm was so cut up that his barn was left on one lot and his house on another. Any farmer in Ontario can tell how this treatment would affect him, and whether he would tamely submit to it. The settlers' fears that Sir John would give their land to others, were fully justified. The conduct of the Government in connection with the Prince Albert and other Colonization Companies showed, not only how utterly regardless of the settlers' rights the Government was, but also how utterly regardless of the consequences it had a right to expect in view of its treatment of the Metis.

The half-breeds, after years of fruitless and peaceful exertion, not only found that they were not likely to be confirmed in the possession of their holdings, but to be actually evicted from them, sent to Montanna for Riel to assist them Riel came, not to talk treason and rebellion, but to renew efforts to get justice for his fellow half-breeds. When these, too, failed and the foot of the spoiler was virtually at the threshold of their homes, the misguided and gaded Metis struck for their rights. All this time the government was not in ignorance of what was going on; yet no attempts were being made to do justice, no attempt to forestall an outbreak of so serious a nature. Everything was allowed to drift along in a happy-go-lucky way, and a little squabble that might, with proper foresight, have been quelled as easily as a street row, was allowed to develop into a rebellion that caused the death of over two hundred British subjects, an expense of some four or five million dollars, and a serious injury to the future prospects of the North-west. If the Government had honestly striven to give the Metis their undoubted rights; if it had refrained from despoiling the Metis of their lands, and giving them to political favorites, can any sane man for a moment think that there would have been a rising in the Northwest?

On the outbreak of the Rebellion the government showed its guilt in a most unmistakable manner. A commission was at once sent up to adjust those very claims, the neglect of which had led to the trouble, and the appointment of the commission itself, as well as the fact that the commission settled the claims of nearly two thousand persons, who had been resting under injustice for six or seven years, show unmistakably that the Half-breeds had serious grievances. The fact, too, that open revolt effected what years of peaceful agitation failed to do, affords a excuse of justification for the course taken, and leads to the inference that it was the only course left open to a grieviously oppressed, slighted, neglected people.

Without the iniquitious course of the Government the Northwest Rebellion would have been an impossibility. Legally, Riel and his associates took a course which the law could not fail to condemn. But the Government are far guiltier than he, and they cannot escape the consequences of their acts. When the Government, to shield itself, put Riel to death, it merely put the effect of its own misgovernment out of the way. The Government was not thereby cleansed of its guilt in the matter, and the people of Canada still hold it strictly to account, and ere long the score must be settled.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The following from the Globe shows how hard our Dominion Ministers work for their $8,000 a year, travelling expenses and perquisites and how will they earn their money:—"Sir John Macdonald is in England, Mr. Chapleau is in New York, Mr. Caron is in Buffalo, Mr. McLelan is in Winnipeg, Sir Leonard Tilley is at Fredericton, and Hon. Thomas White in Peterborough. Sir David Macpherson is on the Continent, the rest of our late rulers are—but then it doesn't matter much where they are."

In announcing Sir Richard Cartwright's intention to address the Reformers of Orillia on December 17th, the Toronto World pays him this well-merited tribute:—"Sir Richard is the hardest worker and, next to Mr, Blake, the ablest man in the ranks of the federal opposition. As an orator he has few equals upon either side of the House. Should the Tory hope that Mr. Blake will before long retire from the leadership be gratified, which, barring accidents, we do not think likely, we know of no man so fit to fill the gap as Sir Richard Cartwright.

The Hamilton Times remarks:—"A despatch from Halifax announces that there is a probability that Sir Charles Tupper will soon resign his High Commissionership in London, and return to Canada. No doubt. Tupper will return when his useless office is abolished, as it will be when the Liberals come into power. The High Commissionership was established and is kept up at a big expense to the taxpayers chiefly on the ground that he would transact all our business with the British Government, and render unnecessary the frequent pilgrimages of Ministers. But the fact is that since Tupper was sent to London the visits of Tilley, Macdonald and other Ministers have been more frequent than ever, and not a single loan or other item of public policy has been arranged without the presence in England of one or more Ministers. Tupper will hold on to the office until he is kicked out, the taxpayers may rest assured, unless Macdonald finds his chances of keeping the Tory party so desperate that it will profit him to bring back the great stretcher, just as it was deemed politic that the Nova Scotia Knight should arrange the shuffle in Antigonish by which a seat for the new Minister of Justice was purchased."

Educational Notes.

The Stratford model students speak of holding an entertainment before leaving the city.

The advocates of the phonic system of reading claim that stammering can be effectually cured by it.

The number of teaching days in the Ontario rural schools for the present half of 1885 is 95. In cities, towns and villages the number is 84.

The Walkerton High School Board pays its principal, Mr. Morgan, a salary of $1,200 per year. The three assistants receive $800 each.

The Winnipeg Board of Education has resolved to adopt the Scripture lessons recently issued by Mr. Ross for the use of Ontario schools. These lessons are very judiciously selected and meet with great favor among teachers everywhere.

There were 1,014 pupils registered in the Galt public schools last month with an average attendance of 819. This is an increase of 100 over the same month last year.

Collections.

People will take fancies and collect almost anything. Madame Agar, the French actress, possesses a collection of dolls, Baron Oscar de Watterville, who only smokes cigarettes, has made a collection of pipes for the last 40 years; so, too, Richilieu used to have a famous collection of pipes, and the Duke of Zweibrucken left a collection valued at $40,000. When Gen. Vandamme died, his only fortune was a collection of pipes which realized $12,000. In France there are men who are known for their collections of such things as marionettes, gloves, garters, funeral cards, match boxes, door knockers, forks, buttons and shoe nails. One Frenchman had a collection of the bad grammar used by members of the French Academy from its beginning to the present day. It consists of about 3,500 clippings from books and newspapers. The owner has bequeathed it to the library of the Academy itself. These articles are only valuable as curiosities. If you require something valuable and useful go and inspect Mr. D. Belleghem's collection of furniture, which cannot be beaten for style, variety, material, or prece. His shop is on Hunter street. Go and buy something nice for a Christmas present.

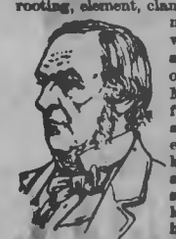
ENGLISH ELECTIONS.

THE MOST IMPORTANT CONTEST EVER HELD IN GREAT BRITAIN.

The Issues and Methods of the Canvass Told by a Well-Known English Writer—Portraits of the Leaders.

(Special Correspondence.)

LONDON, Dec 1.—We are in the midst of one of the most momentous and uncertain elections that this kingdom has ever known. The issues at stake are of vital importance, not to Great Britain and Ireland alone, but to the whole British empire. Look at them: Mr. Parnell, backed by a United Ireland, Catholic and Protestants, in the main, combined, clamors for legislative independence for his country and protection of its industries as against the generally accepted British doctrine of free trade. Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. John Morley, with a very strong backing of what is here called the Radical, or uprooting, element, clamor for the disestablishment of the church, which is not the church accepted by the majority of the English people. Mr. Chamberlain asks, furthermore, for a free and absolutely secular education for the whole kingdom. He wants also a redistribution of land, so that the land of England shall be no longer held by what, comparatively speaking, is a handful of lords and wealthy landholders over the heads of the millions who are ranged below "the upper 10,000." Thus he, the accepted leader of the Radical party, strikes at once at the church, the power of the peers, and indirectly, for the moment, at the very existence of the house of lords. He has a strong following, extending from Radical nobles of the Dilke stamp on the one side to extreme Radicals like Bradlaugh on the other. You will remember that it was Sir Charles Dilke who, years ago, created a sensation in the house of commons by moving the retirement of the queen. Perhaps the queen's remark on the motion and the scene is not so well known.



W. E. GLADSTONE.

"Why, I remember him as a pretty little boy," she said. "I don't know why he should have such animosity against me. I had him on my lap, petting him and rubbing his hair," and then she added musingly, "I suppose I must have rubbed his hair the wrong way."

Legislative independence and protection of industry for Ireland; disestablishment of the church, redistribution of land, free secular education, and possible dissolution of the house of lords, as at present constituted, for England—there is the situation in a nutshell. Before these home and local issues, all questions of foreign policy dwindle for the moment into insignificance. Russia, Germany, France, the Indian empire and questions of the colonies are for the time being absent from the public mind, which is intensely concentrated on home affairs. And just at this juncture, by one of the last acts of Mr. Gladstone's government, about 2,000,000 new voters have been created. The question that interests every actor in English politics is, how are the votes of these 2,000,000 likely to turn?

The Irish question and the Irish leader's demands are touched gingerly by the political leaders on both sides. It was by a coalition with the Conservatives, under the advice of Lord Randolph Churchill, the rising star on the Conservative horizon here, that the Gladstone government was overthrown. Mr. Parnell is sweeping Ireland and will return to the new Parliament at the head of the strongest Irish party that has ever existed in the British parliament. His followers are pledged to obedience to their leader's commands. In Ireland he is master of the situation. In England, Scotland and Wales it is much more difficult to calculate on the issue of the elections. The Conservatives of the old Tory school, the school that the late Lord Beaconsfield boasted truly that he had educated up to the level of the times and into broader political ideas than had possessed them before, view with alarm any alliance with the Irish Home Rulers. In the great Liberal camp, on the other hand, there is a split. Conservative Whigs, who follow the mild and cautious leadership of a great landowner like the Marquis of Hartington, shrink from the Radical programme of Mr. Chamberlain about redistribution of land, disestablishment of the church, free secular education, and so forth. Then, again, there is a strong Irish element in most of the large cities and towns in Great Britain. They will exert a marked influence on the campaign.

CHARLES S. PARNELL.

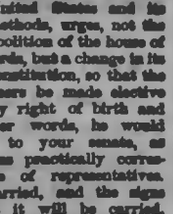
So that between the divided Liberals and cautious Conservatives, the consolidated Irish party, under their cool, clear-headed and ambitious leaders, are likely to cleave in as a wedge and exercise the balance of power in the new parliament.

As far as disestablishment of the church goes, Mr. Gladstone set a memorable example in disestablishing the church in Ireland. What he has done in the land question in Ireland and the deadly blow he dealt at landlord power there, needs no telling now. People over here who suffer, farmers and small landholders, complain that the same arguments apply to the land question in England. England is no longer self-supporting. There are too many mouths to feed. Rents are too dear; the rate of wages too low; taxes too high; hence the exodus to the United States and the colonies. So there is a land question in Great Britain as well as in Ireland, a question of protection of home industries against foreign competition as well, and the newly created two millions of voters are expected to vote mainly with an eye to these matters. Mr. Gladstone has more than once already menaced the house of lords, and that stanch Israelman of his, Lord Rosebery, who, like his antitheses, Lord Randolph Churchill, is well acquainted with the United States and its methods, urges, not the abolition of the house of lords, but a change in its constitution, so that the peers be made elective and not legislators by right of birth and inheritance. In other words, he would make it correspond to your senate, as the house of commons practically corresponds to your house of representatives. This measure, if carried, and the signs and tokens are that it will be carried, would change the English constitution into that of a veritable republic, and tend to reduce to still narrower limits the already limited, but still great prerogative of the crown. In fact, it needs no wild stretch of imagination to contemplate England as an actual as well as a virtual republic.

LORD SALISBURY.

The crown is found costly, and many ask what does it profit us? The dowries called for by the queen's numerous children and sons-in-law are a chronic cause of grumble to John Bull. The Prince of Wales is by no means the most popular man in England. Nevertheless, it would be a mistake to imagine that there does not still exist throughout the length and breadth of the land a strong Conservative sentiment in favor of the throne and of broad established institutions.

The electoral system in England reaches back to the Witenagemot, the council of "Wise" men of the early Anglo-Saxon days. From the beginning of the race and establishment of a settled government in the country there was always a strong tendency in the people to exercise a voice in the conduct of their own affairs. Through how many tortuous and troubled channels this tendency wandered until it developed into the very near approach to universal popular suffrage that is now on trial, is matter of history. The old days of electioneering are over. The days of the "pocket boroughs" are over. Wealthy men and great landlords are, of course, still a power in the land, and always will be. But they can no longer command votes at their will; they can no longer "pocket" boroughs so as to return relatives or favorites to parliament. The reform movement passed by Lord John Russell and his Whig following in 1832 went far to kill that system, but it did not go far enough. In those days and long after bribery and corruption were recognized features of parliamentary campaigning. There was no disguise about the matter at all. Even in recent days all the world has laughed with Mr. Pickwick, at the characteristic features of an English election and at the very open disguises under which bribery and corruption hid, or rather revealed, themselves. The parliament is the check upon the throne; the house of commons, the popular house, is the check upon the ring of lords and barons, that William the Conqueror drew around the throne. There have been ups and downs in English, as in all history. Sometimes the monarch was up, sometimes down. Sometimes lords and commons united against the monarch, but through all the commons steadily forced their way, until to-day they stand the dominant power in England, to whose united voice or to the majority of whose voices the crown itself must bow and the lords submit.



CHURCHILL.

Election by ballot was introduced here in 1874. It broke the terrorism exercised over voters. The change from open to secret voting, such as prevails in the United States, was introduced by Mr. Gladstone, and oddly enough Mr. Gladstone and the Liberals were the first to suffer from it. They were turned out of office. The franchise was widened at the time admitting a large number of workingmen who had been hitherto deprived of votes. Their vote went conservative, as it is anticipated that the vote of the newly enfranchised will go in this election. They embrace a large agricultural section, and with these the great landowners are still all powerful.

SIR CHAS. DILKE.

Bribery and corruption at elections are killed in England. By an act passed in 1854, the offer of money, office, employment or anything pertaining to personal or pecuniary advantage, so as to win a vote, was condemned by fine and imprisonment. "Treating" was also condemned. Undue influence was condemned. Anybody guilty of such offences was struck off the register. Cockades even were prohibited, and the only thing allowed was the use by a candidate of a conveyance for a voter, when needed. In 1868, the act was so amended as to admit of no payment being made on behalf of a candidate, save by his authorized agents; and all claims against a candidate must be settled within a month, otherwise the right to recover them is barred, the acts of bribery and corruption, when proved against a candidate, disqualifying him. At the elections that returned Mr. Disraeli and the Conservatives to power, not only were many of the elected members to parliament unseated, but quite a number of boroughs lost their franchise, owing to corrupt practices.

The mode of election here now is not very different in its general feature from that prevailing in the United States. Papers are issued with the names of all the candidates printed in alphabetical order. Formerly the sheriff of the county or borough paid all the necessary expenses of the campaign, the polling booths, paper, guardians and so forth. Now this expense rests upon the candidates. Booths or polling places are fixed on much the same as with you. There are returning officers of the various candidates to watch, and if necessary, challenge the vote. Where there is doubt concerning a voter and his qualifications a pink voting paper is given and deposited, the name, address, and so forth of the voter being taken. In case of a close contest the pink tickets are very carefully examined. Agents, called personation agents, represent each candidate in the booths. They take an oath before the sheriff to reveal nothing as to the cast of the vote. An illiterate man makes his cross opposite the name of the candidate he wishes to vote for, the personation agents directing him. By the act of 1874 any man in England who paid poor rates on his house was entitled to a vote. In Ireland only those who paid poor rates on a house valuation of £10 had votes in boroughs; in Irish counties the rate was still higher. The recent changes by the Gladstone government has largely helped to swell the Parnell vote in Ireland, while it tends to still scatter parties over here. We are moving toward great events and mighty changes. Whether the church will fall, the lords disappear, and Ireland gain legislative independence I cannot predict. The determining of these questions rests with our voters and 2,000,000 of them have as yet been untried. The saying in the old days was: "When France is at peace Europe is at rest." The tendency in Europe to-day is toward Democracy. England is the strongest of Democratic states here. Its movements are closely watched and largely followed. A radical change in its constitution would be the signal for still more radical changes in other lands. J. MCCARTHY.

Five Transcontinental Railways.

[Special Correspondence.]

ST. PAUL, Nov. 24.—With the driving of the last spike on the Canadian Pacific railroad, which took place on Nov. 6, is completed the fifth railroad which traverses our continent from sea to sea.

MAP SHOWING TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAYS.

These railroads may be divided into the Canadian Pacific, Northern Pacific, Central and Union Pacific, Atlantic and Pacific, and Southern Pacific railroads. Many of them intermingle at various points. All of them within the United States, connect at the Mississippi river with the great network of railroads east of that river.

The Canadian Pacific was begun in 1873. The government had granted it $38,000,000 in cash and 25,000,000 acres of land. This road has cost thus far nearly $250,000,000. Where the return for this outlay is going to come from will be the next question and is likely to remain a question. The country through which the great railway runs consists of three sections—about 1,000 miles of forest, swamps and rocks, from the Upper Ottawa to the Red River of the North; then 1,000 mile of alluvial prairies; and then 600 miles of mountains to the Pacific. Lake Shipping Disasters.

Sixty Vessels Valued at Upwards of a Million Dollars Lost.

The table of disasters to lake shipping during 1885, is published. It shows that 60 vessels passed out of existence during the year, involving a loss of $1,016,200. Of these twenty-two were steam and thirty-eight sail. Twenty-two went ashore and pounded to pieces, nineteen were destroyed by fire, fourteen foundered, four were capsized and broken up by seas, and one was blown to splinters by an explosion of boilers; twenty-five were wrecked on Lake Michigan, ten on Lake Huron, six on Lake Superior, six on Lake Erie and thirteen on Lake Ontario. With the loss of these sixty vessels seventy-four lives perished. The most notable of these disasters was the wreck of the Algoma at Isle Royal in Lake Superior, Nov. 7, by which thirty-eight lives were lost.

Dominion Doings.

Reding and his son, who were so badly burned in London, Ont., Saturday night, are in the hospital.

A young man named Mandeville was found dead from exhaustion near St. Thomas, Ont., Saturday. He was tramping home from Cleveland, Ohio, and had almost reached his mother's house when he died.

Lizabelle, of Brousseau & Lizabelle, whose frauds on the customs were discovered in Montreal a year ago, returned to Canada Saturday and was arrested. Brousseau will be extradited.

Patrick Nicholson, of Logan, Ont., was yesterday arrested at Stratford station for an assault on Felix Reid on Nov. 23rd. As the doctors have but few hopes of Reid's recovery, Nicholson has been remanded to gaol.

Mrs. Aggie Fuke, who disappeared from her husband's home in St. Thomas, Ont., and was supposed to have drowned herself in Pinafore Lake, has arrived in Big Rapids, and is now domiciled with her mother.

A number of St. Paul's leading citizens are in Winnipeg as a delegation in connection with the contemplated winter carnival in St. Paul. They were entertained by the St. George's Snowshoe Club of Winnipeg on Saturday evening.

John C. Kennedy, an ex-policeman of New York, was tried and convicted in Brooklyn of seduction, and sentenced to four years. He escaped to Montreal and defied the American authorities to retake him. The sheriff of King's County, N. Y., is said to have drugged and kidnapped him.

A Grand Trunk express from the east collided with a horse and waggon belonging to Reid & Co., lumber merchants, at Kingston road crossing, Toronto, Saturday, killing the horse instantly and smashing the waggon to pieces. The driver escaped.

Skating on the River.

There was good skating on the river last night and quite a number availed themselves of the opportunity and had their first spin on the ice this season. Games were indulged in to a late hour, and they had a good time generally. The storm and subsequent thaw have put an end to such amusement for a while.

The Jolly Argonauts.

Holt & Knowles' Argonauts appeared at Bradburn's Opera House last night, in the nonsensical musical absurdity "The Boarding School." There was only about half a house in attendance. From the character of the play, something ludicrous and absured might be expected, and expectations were more than realized. As a whole the play is exaggerated and overdrawn. Some parts were natural and very laughable, and at times quite interesting. The musical selections were good. The star of the company was supposed to represent a girl of sweet sixteen, and acted like a spoiled child of very tender age. She labored under the disadvantage of a cold which took all the charm out of her voice. She should wear more clothing in these cold regions. Some of the characters were really good and deserved the applause given them. The company need not "come again" with the same "laughable, nonsensical, musical absurdity."

The Christmas Examiner.

The regular annual Christmas edition of THE PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER will be published about the end of next week. This edition will consist of 6,000 copies, printed on fine pink-toned paper. The edition is intended for free distribution in town and surrounding country, and it is so large that not a home or hamlet in either, will be without a copy. Business men and merchants, seeking a first-rate medium for making their announcements to the public, cannot do better than secure a space in the Christmas edition of the Peterborough EXAMINER. They should apply at once, as the space at the disposal of advertisers is being rapidly covered by orders. In addition to this special edition, the Daily EXAMINER having a large circulation in town, and being widely read, and the Weekly EXAMINER enjoying a very large circle of readers in the country districts, afford especially excellent opportunities for profitable advertising. Advertise in the paper that is not only widely circulated, but well read.

Baptist Anniversary.

The Murray Street Baptist Church intends holding its first anniversary of the opening of its present place of worship on Sunday, the 20th inst. The Rev. Dr. Castle, of McMaster Hall, is expected to occupy the pulpit both morning and evening of that day. The Rev. Dr. Thomas, of Jarvis Street Church, whose eloquence delighted all who heard him on his former visit to this town, will deliver his great lecture on "Men for the Age" on Monday the 21st. On that evening also the annual tea meeting of the church will be held. On Tuesday, the 22nd, the Sunday School will have its annual festival. And on Wednesday evening a Christmas cantata will be given under the direction of the Rev. E. Duff. Further particulars will be published at a later date.

Ashburnham Council and Board of Health

A meeting of the Ashburnham Council was held on Monday evening. There were present Mr. John Burnham, Reeve, in the chair, and Messrs. Wright, Smith and Ward. After routine business was disposed of some matters relating to charity were dealt with and a number of accounts ordered to be paid. The Council then resolved itself into the Board of Health, Mr. Ward, who is not a member, retiring. Dr. Clarke, Medical Health Officer for the village, read his annual report. On motion the report was received and filed and a vote of thanks tendered the doctor. The chairman was authorized to arrange with Dr. Clarke as to payment for services. The Board decided that active measures should be taken to abate the deposit of sawdust in the river, and the Reeve was authorized to memorialize the Government to see that the law was carried out. The Board then adjourned.

Police Court.

The police court this morning presented the appearance of a school for tramps. There were arraigned before Magistrate Dumble, eleven of this "noble army of martyrs," charged with vagrancy. The magistrate remarked that there was surely something wrong and that it was a pity that a community should be taxed to support able-bodied men as they were. One of the band complained that a stone had fallen on his feet and that he was unable to work. All admitted the charge. James Chambers and William Smith accepted a proposition made by the magistrate, allowing them two days to get employment or get out of town, and were dismissed. Chambers said he had half a cord of wood to saw. All the rest complained that they could not get employment, and could not or would not leave town. Among these was a youth of about 16 years of age, Thos. Nixon, from Toronto, who wished to be sent home. They were remanded until Monday, and were escorted up to gaol. The magistrate will consult the authorities as to the proper course to take.

The charge against T. Cavanagh for selling liquor to Jacob Roberts, held over from Monday, was withdrawn on payment of costs.

The sawdust cases were again brought before the court. Mr. C. W. Sawyers appeared for Mr. Irwin and objected to any proceedings being taken. Mr. E. B. Edwards for the prosecution, was ready to proceed, but after some discussion agreed to let it stand over. The Magistrate thought it would be well to let it stand over, pending the decision of the courts in Toronto in the matter. It was a pity that orders nisi had not been issued in all the cases and the court in Toronto could have adjudicated. It was further enlarged until December 23.

Personal.

At the regular meeting of the Peterborough Lodge of A. O. U. W., No. 126, held last night, Bro. Wm. McLean, was appointed a delegate to attend the grand lodge.

Dr. R. W. Bell has been suffering for several days past from a bilious attack. He is now recovering and will soon, it is hoped, be able to resume his professional duties.

We had, this morning, a call from Mr. Geo. Tanner, the first visit since his emergence from a seclusion of two months. He has to thank many friends for personal visits and personal favors during his retirement, and others for letters of sympathy which he appreciated. While Mr. Tanner believes that he got—well full justice at least—he feels that he has not been the object of extraordinary kindness or forbearance on the part of those who had the power to mitigate his condition. He desires his friends to bear in mind the importance of not allowing "their angry passions rise" and of "keeping their heads out of the lion's mouth."

Tennyson's New Poems.

A Volume that Contains Some Things Equal to His Best.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Tennyson's new volume, "Tiresias," dispels the fears raised by his recent efforts in dramatic poetry. It contains some things equal to his best, and few below his average. It ranges from a dramatic idyl in the Irish dialect to the simplest Grio verses. It is dedicated to "My good friend Robert Browning, whose genius and geniality will best appreciate what may be best, and make most allowance for what may be worst." The first poem is inscribed to Edward Fitzgerald, the translator of Omar Khyyam. Among the notable poems is a long philosophical one in blank verse with exquisite gems interspersed, from which the following is taken:—

"But vain the tears for darkened years
As laughter over wine,
And vain the laughter as the tears,
O brother mine or thine;
For all that laugh, and all that weep,
And all that breathe, are one
Slight ripple on the boundless deep
That moves, and all are gone."

The following quatrains are addressed to freedom:—

O follower of the vision
Howe'er blind force and trainless will
May jar thy golden dreams
Of knowledge, fusing class with class,
Of civic hate no more to be,
Of love to leaven all the mass,
Till every soul be free,
Who yet, like nature, would not mar,
By changes all too fierce and fast,
This order of her human star,
This heritage of the past.

Affairs in the East.

The excitement over the political contest in England, and over the political crisis in this country, has almost driven out of public view the events that are transpiring in the East. The Afghan boundary may be considered as temporarily settled. How long Russia will permit it to remain so is an unsettled problem. Even Russian statesmen who are best informed on this subject, we dare say, would be unable, if they were willing, to give accurate information. Russia waits her opportunity; she does not always make it. She takes advantage of it, however, when it arises. But Russia, as we have before pointed out, was desirious of pushing forward to Herat, not more for its military advantages in connection with her ascendency in Afghanistan, than because it is of immense military importance in any attempt to acquire further dominion at the expense of Persia. Russia has long had her eyes fixed upon the Persian Province of Khorassan, and will, when she feels she can most safely do so, annex it to her already vast dominions. Her telegraph line, which has been extended all the way from the shore of the Caspian to Sarakhs' passes through Persian territory on the left bank of Herirud, and this territory Russia will no doubt endeavor to make her own. Persia offers the least resistance to the progress of Russia to the Indian Ocean. The distance between the Persian Gulf and the Caspian Sea is not great, and Russia could dominate Asiatic Turkey with greater success and with more safety than from any other quarter. With Persia in the possession of Russia, the Turkish Empire would soon become a Russian Province. With Persia and Asiatic in her possession, Russia would be by far the greatest empire ever established on the globe. And Russia could perhaps threaten British India more successfully by inroads upon Persia than upon Afghanistan, for her operations will be carried on at a greater distance from any military base that can be established by the English. England can do little to prevent Russian intrigue and Russian aggression, especially upon the northern borders of Prussia. The aggression of Russia upon the northwest borders of Afghanistan will do not a little to overawe the Persians, and it is not improbable that the influence of Russia, which was before very great at the capital of Persia, has been largely increased by Russian successes on the northwestern frontier of Afghanistan.

Some time ago there was talk of an Anglo-Persian alliance, as there was talk also of a German-Persian alliance, but whether either of these alliances has been seriously entertained, and whether any progress has been made towards the completion of the one or the other, we cannot say. Unless Persia receives vigorous support from some powerful European State she must within a few years be reduced to the condition of a Russian Province. Russian railways will then be extended to the Persian Gulf, and the Tigris and Euphrates will cease to be Turkish, and will become Russian territory, and the whole continent from the shores of the Levant to the China Sea will be more or less dependent upon Russia, and will owe whatever independence she may enjoy in a large degree to Russian forbearance.—London Advertiser.

County Court.

December Sittings of the County Court and General Sessions Before His Honor Judge Dennistoun.

THIRD DAY—THURSDAY.

Queen vs. Cresswell, was a prosecution against Charles Cresswell and Almira Cresswell for stealing clothing from Lafayette Carpenter. The clothing alleged to have been stolen belonged to Carpenter's wife, who died about twelve years ago. The prosecution failed to identify the clothing to the satisfaction of the jury, and they returned a verdict of not guilty. Mr. C. A. Weller for the Crown and W. H. Moore, for the defendant.

Price vs. Broad, an action for the recovery of wages to the amount of about $160, in which the plaintiff was non-suited, producing no evidence to support the case. A. P. Poussette, Q. C., for plaintiff, and C. A. Weller for defendant.

The action brought against some parties for obstructing a road in Eaniswore, in which the Grand Jury returned a true bill, was held over for next sittings of the Court.

The Goheen Affair.

All the Toronto papers, says the Guide, of Port Hope, this (Tuesday) morning have a long sensational telegram from Cobourg in reference to Thomas, William and John Goheen, who were arrested here yesterday on a charge of attempting to rob and murder their brother-in-law, Knox We refrain from saying anything to-day on the merits of the case, more than that the parties chargrd are all respectable citizens, while Knox is a vagabond of the very worst type, and instead of possessing $40,000, parties who know him well say that he never owned forty dollars at one time in all his life. Some 9 years ago, after maltreating his wife, from the effects of which she died a couple of days afterward, leaving an infant six weeks old and five other children to be cared for by the Goheens, he never until now inquired whether they were living or dead. This is the man who has charged the above respectable citizens with such a henious crime. We wait until after the preliminary examination before we make any further remarks.

W. H. Vanderbilt Dead.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Wm. H. Vanderbilt died suddenly at his residence on Fifth avenue about 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The dead millionaire was the controlling spirit of the Canada Southern Railway, which forms the connecting link between the Michigan Central at Detroit and the New York Central at Buffalo. The Canadian solicitors of this line are Kingsmill, Cattanach & Symons of Wellington St. West, Toronto. Mr. Kingsmill left for New York yesterday afternoon to attend a Board meeting of the road, being at the time of his departure unaware of Mr. Vanderbilt's death.

New York is excited, but not mournful, over the death of W. H. Vanderbilt. It is the death of the millionaire, not the death of the man, that attracts attention. The best that can be said of him is that he resisted the coarser temptations that are incidental to the possession of great wealth, and did not scatter what his father had gathered. And this is no mean tribute, as rich men's sons go. But he has left no mark such as has been left by the rail splitter, Lincoln, the tailor, Johnson, or the mule driver, Garfield. His name is written in ledgers, not in histories. Had the wealth been taken from the man a very ordinary man would have remained, but as the man has been taken from the wealth, work for the probate judge and the attorneys remains. He did the best he knew how with his great opportunities, but that was not a great deal comparatively.

The Caraquet Railway was opened from Bathurst to Grand Anse, N. B., on November 23.

Edouard Bowin, a Montreal fruit pedlar, had his leg fractured by a barrel of apples falling upon it. He would not submit to amputation and he died of gangrene.

It is understood application will shortly be made at Osgoode hall to admit to bail Havelock Smith, charged with the murder of Marshall Piggott of Malihide.

Peter Mandeville, aged 32, who had just returned from Cleveland, O., was walking to his home at Southwold Saturday night, when he fell exhausted by the wayside and was frozen to death.

The city council of Hull, Que., Monday night passed resolutions declaring that the Northwest rebellion was provoked by the Dominion government and condemned the execution of Riel.

Dennis Collins, aged 30, living at the corner of Centre and Leslie streets, London West, not feeling well went to the cupboard to get a drink of brandy. He made a mistake and took a deep draught of carbolic acid instead. There are very slight ones of his recovery.

The pride of Savannah, Ga., is her beautiful shade trees, but they have been dying in such large numbers during the last few years, and particularly during several months past, as to excite apprehensions in the minds of many citizens that in a few years they will all have entirely disappeared and the squares and streets will be left without protection from the sun.

One sometimes hears strange modes of reasoning during that favorite pastime of some women, shopping. "This little scent-bag is not quite perfect," said one at the Woman's Exchange, as she called the attention of a girl in waiting to an article that lay on a table. "Now, if it were for myself I should not care at all, but I would like to buy it to give as a present to a little niece, and she's so observing that she'd notice any defect in it in a moment. Couldn't you let me have it at half-price?"

Of Edmond About it is said that to those who saw him for the first time he seemed to be an intellectual millionaire, but his pockets were full of 50-centime pieces. He once wrote in a feuilleton that Alboni's singing (she was fat) was "like a nightingale piping out of a lump of suet." The indignant prima donna sent him a goose-quill by the hands of a Marquis. About received the pen with his most charming smile, and said: "I regret, sir, that Mme. Alboni should have plucked you for my sake."

A little rain, the sun again, a shadow; a summer day, some new-mown hay, a meadow. A girlish face, a matchless grace and beauty; we spend the day in making hay, sweet duty. Some fading flowers, some happy hours, but fleeting; a week of rain, and then again a meeting. One quick, shy look, a rippling brook, some clover; a sky of gold, the story old, a lover. A fair, sweet maid, a short word said; what is it? I try my fate, and not too late to miss it. The years have gone, and still loves on that lover; he loves always, as days and days pass over. A loving life, a long, long life together, have made him bless that shy, sweet "Yes, forever."—Chambers' Journal.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1885.

HON. THOS. WHITE'S OPERA HOUSE SPEECH.

Last night the newly-born Liberal-Conservative Club of Peterborough made its debut at the Opera House under the ægis of Hon. Thos. White, Minister of the Interior. Hon. Mr. White's reception was a very cordial one, and on personal grounds the EXAMINER joins in the welcome to a former citizen of the town, whose business success and political advancement are legitimate subjects of hearty congratulation. His appearance on a political platform here is an event which is deserving, on our part, of some attention—it is the opening of a series of political events that will make the coming winter a lively one in political circles in Peterborough. In dealing with Hon. Mr. White's address we wish to be understood as ignoring his personality and dealing with his utterances as those of the politician and not of the man. Hon. Mr. White is a fluent speaker, of taking address, but last night he seemed to be handicapped—"he did not strike his gait," as the horsemen would say—and he showed a charming facility in talking round the subject with which he was dealing. Still, he is a pleasant speaker, and the Young Conservatives are fortunate in securing his services; for the members of the Cabinet are so scattered over the face of the earth that it is pretty certain that Hon. Mr. White is the only one of the baker's dozen the pin-feather politicians could lay their hands on for the occasion.

Of course the address fiend was on hand with, as Hon. Mr. White put it, the "all too flattering address," one portion of which is perhaps deserving of a passing mention. At the passage alluding to Hon. Mr. White's disinterested patriotism "a broad smile broke over the faces of many persons present, when they remembered that the Gazette printing company, of which Hon. Mr. White is a prominent shareholder, secured in illicit printing something like $20,000, of an equivalent for "disinterested patriotism." The allusion to the fact that his promptitude in visiting the Northwest at once after his appointment, was a proof of the desire on the part of the government of which he was a member, "to deal out justice to the Northwest," was rich, and showed that the callow political catechumens did not know what they were talking about, or they unconsciously conveyed the only sincere compliment the address contained, by a practical appreciation of the doctrine of "political exigencies," of which the ingenuous politician controls the the copyright.

The speaker sought to make the point that the "positive policy" of the Conservative party had been endorsed by the people, because the people had returned Sir John to power in 1878 and again in 1882. He did not point out, however, that the bogus cry of the N.P. which bristled with promises that have not been fulfilled, deceived the people as to the character of the burden they were imposing on the country, and that the gerrymander of 1882, which was an infamous piece of trickery, clothed with the sanctity of legislative sanction, accounted for his success on the second occasion. No reference, either, was made to the Franchise Act by which the voter's lists are impounded to be manipulated in the interest of the Government as the means to obtain a third lease of power. The by-election fallacy was paraded with an entire omission of reference to the fact that St. John was left vacant seven months to perfect the corruption and purchase of the constituency till it was meet to return a supporter of a corrupt Government. Nor was allusion made to to the equine expedients adopted to carry the constituency of West Durham. Hon. Mr. White deals more in declamation than proof. He pointed out that it was usual for governments to grow weaker as they grew older, but the government of the Conservative party was "an exception." Verily it is "an exception." History nowhere furnishes record of a government that has so shamelessly prostituted its functions, so corruptly misapplied the resources of the country, or wasted the public resources with a more reckless hand, to purchase the support and retention of power, than the present Conservative Government of Canada.

The London Advertiser, edited by Hon. D. Mills, was quoted as authority for the statement that the National Policy was a "dead issue," since the expenses of the country had so enormously increased that it was only by continuing a policy of high taxation—the parallel of which only the fellahleen of Egypt have any knowledge of, that the engagements to which the extravagance of the Tories have committed the country, could be honorably met It is not necessary to enlarge upon this point, for it is possible that at some future time Hon. Mr. Mills will have an opportunity of personally exposing Hon. Mr. White's fallacies before a Peterborough audience.

Hon. Mr. White having, fresh in his memory, the enjoyment of free rides over the continuous if not "completed" line of the C. P. R., was in duty bound to deal with the subject. He indulged in a large amount of "from ocean to ocean" spread-eagleism and declamatory laudation well calculated to catch the claquers and win the unthinking applause of beardless boys. The triumph of the company in "completing" the road was duly insisted on, but Mr. White might have pointed out that the question of the enormous expense incurred, the gigantic obligations imposed on the country, was something vitally important to the people, who have yet to pay the shot. Windy declamation and fulsome panegyric are very pretty, and all very well in their way; but back of all these is the solid fact that the building of the line has cost the country in all something like 120 millions of dollars. Hon. Mr. White denied that the 30 millions grant was a gift; it was a loan. True we have the road in pledge, but we have no assurance save the Syndicate, finding that the operating of the road will be unprofitable, will not throw it upon the country's hands. The "completion" as far as continuity is concerned, is one thing, paying for it another thing of a very different character, and one which Hon. Mr. White did not indulge in much spread eagleism over. Much was made of the point that the C.P.R. Company had returned the five-millions granted last session. It was to their interest to do so. The company gave eight of the fifteen millions of dollars of bonds they were authorized to issue, for the five millions grant, and as these bonds were virtually Canadian Government securities, bearing 5 per cent. interest, the company had an object in releasing the eight millions of bonds which, owing to the "endorsation" of Canada they were able to dispose of at 95 cents. There is nothing to boast about in this transaction, for, practically the liabilities of Canada are added to by three millions by withdrawing the eight millions of bonds—bonds of Canada—and returning treasury bills to the amount of five millions. We all know very well that not a cent of the five millions would have been returned if the company had not found it in their interest to make the return.

Hon. Mr. White, in referring to the Hon. Mr. Mackenzie's connection with the C. P. R. enterprise, asserted that the latter never lost sight of the fact that Canada's honor was involved in the completion of the road, but Mr. White could not sympathise with Hon. Mr. Mackenzie's mode of building it—it was too economical. Yet Mr. Mackenzie's policy was the sound one; to build the road as rapidly as the resources of the country would admit of, without unnecessarily burdening the people, and in proof of the soundness of his policy, his successors stole his route and stole his Pacific coast terminus. Mr. Mackenzie did not see the wisdom of building the North Shore route but proposed utilizing the water stretches. If this had been done, the necessity of the construction of the Trent Valley Canal to secure access to the sea-board, would have forced itself upon the Government. If Mr. Mackenzie had remained in power, there is no doubt that to-day the canal would have been a fact, and that the produce of the Northwest would be passing over its waters on its way to the sea. Mr. White's felicitations on the sending of the troops over the North Shore route was very like a gratuitous insult. The volunteers are not likely to soon forget the three weeks' dreary march and their sufferings in the gaps, especially when they could have been sent over another route which would have been a pathway of roses compared to the way they were sent. Gen. Middleton and other officers could take the short route, but the volunteers were sent over a course that did more to weaken their constitutions and implant the seeds of disease, than all their privations and hardships on the scene of the campaign. Emphasis was also placed upon the fact that British naval stores could be shipped across the line. What of that? Are the people of Canada required to tax themselves into national pauperism to build a road for the prosecution of military campaigns, which they had no share in creating, and, in which, at least, they may have only a moral interest? Congratulations on this subject come with very bad grace from a party whose declared policy is that British connection must be sacrificed to the retention of a fiscal fad.

The Young Liberals of Toronto came in for their share of rebuke. They were charged with seeking to make constitutional changes that would imperil British connection, which the speaker piously hoped would be far off, thus showing more liberality than the Mail, which boldly asserts that if British connection could not stand a discriminating tariff against Britains, for the sake of enriching monopolistic manufacturing contributors to Tory election funds, "so much the worse for British connection." The Young Liberals were justly accused of seeking changes that would "minimize the central authority." That is, indeed, what Mr. Minister White and his party dread, and will forever oppose. The consolidation of the "central authority" at the expense of the provincial authorities has been the one great aim of Sir John and following. Provincial governments, not in political accord with his own, have proven great stumbling blocks in the way of Sir John's successfully carrying out his schemes for the benefit of himself and party at the expense of the country. Hon. Mr. White's statement that the Ottawa Government had no desire to deprive the local government of any powers, evidently showed that here was the point where "political exigencies" demanded the sacrifice. He apparently forgot Sir John's course on the Boundary Question, and the Liquor License Question as he did not refer to these important questions.

Hon. Mr. White entered upon the treatment of the questions, arising out of the Riel matter, in a very gingerly manner. He entered upon the defence of the Government for the standpoint of the policy of the Reform party, the question as enunciated in yesterday's EXAMINER, namely that the Government is to be held to responsibility for the Northwest Rebellion. Here Mr. White was on his "native heath" but a lamer conglomeration of inane apologies, and impotent conclusions was never delivered. If, as is to be supposed, Hon. Mr. White is in a position to make the best defence of any member of the cabinet, their case is a most hopeless one. Nationally he asserted that the government was not responsible, but of proof, there was not an iota. Of course the dealings of Hon. David Mills with the halfbreeds, was alluded to, and official documents were quoted, but what they showed was that Hon. Mr. Mills and the government were committed to the policy of giving the Halfbreeds a fixed and permanent location, and that they expressed a willingness to adjust any claims that might be presented. But the tu quoque argument, even if it were made from sound premises, does not relieve the present government from the guilt of having neglected the claims of the halfbreeds for years, and only paying decent heed to them when forced to do so. Hon. Mr. White's assertion that the mode of survey was the only matter the halfbreeds had to complain of, is open to objection. What does he say of the effect of the favors extended to colonization companies at the expense of the halfbreeds? By means of these companies Sir John purchased thousands of votes in 1882. Hon. Mr. White asserted that no man who had claims had rebelled. Let us see:

By an order-in-council adopted on August 4, 1883, the broken township 45, range 27, west of the second meridian, was transferred to a colonization company in exchange for an equal portion of another township. There were 29 half-breed families settled upon the lands at that time according to the Government reports. Men had petitioned the government for year after year to issue their patents, but the government, however, not only neglected to do so, but it actually transferred their improved lands to a colonization company. The settlers who would have been entitled to their patents even were they white men—then took up arms under Riel against the power which oppressed them and several of the men whose names are given were among the killed, and wounded at Batoche. The government deprived them of their improved lands, but they won six feet each of earth which it could not deny. Yet Hon. Mr. White completely exculpates the Government. His memory must be brief. A little over two months ago he admitted that there were grievances and injustices that ought to be redressed. This statement was made at a banquet in Winnipeg about the first of October. The chief organ of the party joins Hon. Mr. White on this point, but in more forcible terms. In an editorial in the Mail of July 8th, it is asserted that "the Metis had good ground for grievances," that the Department of the Interior had for years "steadily refused to move in the matter," and it (the Mail) agreed with Mr. Blake that "their negligence was gross and inexcusable and contributed to bring about the insurrection." And yet Hon. Mr. White clears the Government from any guilt in provoking, by their tyranny and misgovernment, the rebellion. Hon. Mr. White is the first Minister of the Crown that has entered upon the defence of the Government on this question and if he presents the strongest plea that can be urged then the apology is tantamount to a plea of guilty.

In the closing paragraphs of his address Hon. Mr. White was a political Proteus. Referring to the attitude of the Quebec supporters of the Government, he asserted his belief that they would not sever their allegiance to the Conservative party. He values their support much more highly and is more hopeful of retaining it than the Mail, for the chief organ of the Tory party has, during the past month, heaped all manner of abuse upon the French allies of the party, and has virtually told them that the Conservative party neither courted nor cared for their support. He, transparently appealed to Roman Catholic prejudices and tried to rouse religous rancour, by picturing in melting periods the slaughter of priest and nuns by the Halfbreeds and Indians, (through a rebellion brought on by his government), while at the next moment he trimmed by insinuating, that if the Blues of Quebec persisted in their hostile attitude towards the Conservative party, that party would ride the Protestant horse in Ontario.

The speech of Mr. White was, on the whole, a disappointing one, and is remarkable more for what it did not contain, than for what it did contain. Not the slightest reference was made to the financial condition of the country; the people got no explanations why, with an enormous increase of taxation, there was an enormous deficit. No explanation was vouchsafed of the fact that while the revenue was literally melting away, the expenditure was alarmingly increasing. No reference was made to the great questions of the day. His whole speeech, in which he seemed hampered, was a halting and ambiguous apology for the sins of the government or a platitudinous glorification of its course.

NATURAL GAS WELLS.

SOME PICTURES OF PITTSBURG'S BOOMING BONANZA.

A Revolution in Iron and Steel Manufactures—Pittsburg the Coming City—It Is Clean—One of Nature's Wonders.

(Special Correspondence.)

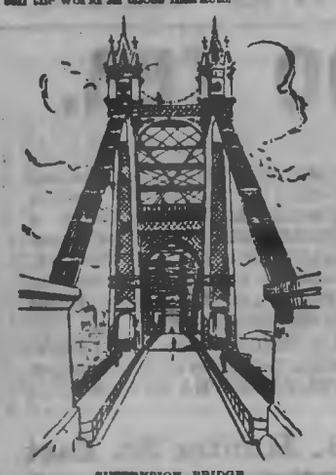
PITTSBURG, Dec 8.—Not the wildest fancies of sober, slow-going people in the rest of the Union can picture the excitement that the gas wells have created here. I fancy that San Francisco, in the blooming days of the Bonanza mine and the Comstock lode, when Senator Sharon made $20,000,000 in a year, was something to be compared to it.

The opening of these natural gas wells and their utilization as fuel generators marks an era in the Nineteenth century. Even the taming and binding of electricity is not more marvelous. Staid Pittsburgers are fairly standing on their heads for excitement and joy. They see their busy, pleasant old town booming ahead at a rate which paralyzes the imagination. Fuel gas at their doors at the cost of not much more than the piping and valves to bring it into their furnaces! It means iron, glass, steel, copper and a thousand manufactured products at a rate so low that no other city in the Union can compete with it. Consequently Pittsburg can under sell the world in those markets.



SUSPENSION BRIDGE.

Even that is not all. The natural gas is practically pure hydrogen and carbon. There is none of the sulphur in it which is always found in coal and which is so injurious to iron when melted in the common way. This is what Mr. Jung, of the great Sable Iron and Nail works in Pittsburg tells me. Consequently the gas-made iron is of a better quality than that manufactured by coal, and Pittsburg iron and steel will be better than any other. Pittsburg is indeed favored of the gods.

But her gain, alas! will be the loss of other towns all along the Ohio valley. Already the disaster is felt. Already foundrymen, steelmen and glass manufacturers foresee that they are doomed. They must "go to pieces or go to Pittsburg."

Yet one other advantage this marvelous discovery gives Pittsburg.

"I am swart with the smoke of my chimneys."

It was before 7 o'clock in the morning when our train reached the outskirts of the city. The great shops had not yet started their hum and roar for the day. We passed close to a huge black mill, with its chimneys standing like masts of a ship. There was one small iron pipe that had a cloud of flame rolling and lapping about it, changing with every gust of wind. This was my first sight of natural gas. The pipe was what is called a "stand pipe." They are common enough in Pittsburg. The pressure from the wells is so heavy that the fluid cannot be shut off and let on at will. When not in use it must be allowed to burn or escape in some way. The usual way is to conduct it off by an extra chimney and set fire to it at the top, and let it burn all night. In Pittsburg and vicinity a quantity equal to 70,000 bushels of coal thus goes to waste every day, they say.

MAP OF GAS WELL REGION.

The Philadelphia company is putting in pipe connections in factories and private residences at the rate of forty a day. They keep 1,500 men constantly employed laying gas mains. The fluid is already used as fuel in thirty-four iron and steel works, sixty-six glass factories, 300 other manufacturing establishments and 8,000 private residences. At this time gas is used in such quantity that it has taken the place of 10,000 tons of coal a day that would be otherwise consumed. When the work is complete Pittsburg will be as clean as New York. And coal will be so cheap that dealers can "hardly give it away." Then points down the rivers from Cincinnati to New Orleans will get their revenge on the Pittsburg coal merchants. It will be a poor sort of revenge though, if they are robbed of all their manufacturing.

The map showing the gas well region here produced from one published by the Chamber of Commerce of this city. It is probable the fluid can be struck almost anywhere in western Pennsylvania. But the largest bunch of wells are those at Murrysville, twenty-two miles out. The gas is conveyed by pipes from here and elsewhere to the city. The greatest length of these pipes is thirty miles. There is doubt, they say, whether a line can be made much longer than that. The pressure is lost by friction of the pipes at the rate of seven pounds to the mile. Unless some new methods of conducting it are discovered, therefore, the dreams of a line of natural gas 100 miles long can hardly be realized. Mills must remain here. But why could not it be pumped?

MURRYSVILLE.

One of the memorable experiences of my life was my visit to the gas wells at Murrysville. It was a cold, muddy, snowy, neck-risking ride, but—well, I would do it again.

To reach the village, one goes by the Pennsylvania railroad to Irwin Station, twenty-one miles east of Pittsburg. Then it is necessary to hire a carriage and go nine miles across country over a "dirt road." I think it was the dirtiest dirt road in America, too, up hill and down, along side of bluffs so steep that if you tipped over you would go into kingdom come before you had time to remember a millionth part of your sins. Such highways are a disgrace to the rich farmers of Westmoreland county.

It was 3:30 p. m. when my livery stable-man drew up alongside the railway station platform with a fine pair of black Kentucky trotters.

"Can you get me back here in time for the 5:49 train?" I asked.

"With decent roads I could, easy, and I'll try it as it is," he replied.

As we went along, whenever there was smooth road and level ground enough to take a long breath, my driver, Mr. R. D. Stewart, noted points of interest.

"Irwin Station," said he, "is a town of 3,000 inhabitants, and there aint a man in it who whips his wife."

Mr. Stewart told me of the desperate fight that had taken place between rival claimants to the first well that was utilized at Murrysville.

"Two sets of men were puttin' down pipes, Weston's men and Haymaker's men. They got to quarrelin, and, b'gosh, they fought a regular pitched battle, and Haymaker was killed. That was several years ago, and they ain't got through with the law trials yet."

At that moment a strange, steady murmur struck the ear. As we proceeded it deepened into a roar. It sounded like the noise of the surf in a high sea. It sounded like an engine as big as the United States Capitol building, at Washington, blowing off steam.

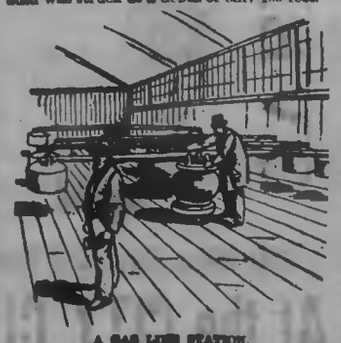
"There she goes," said Stewart. "Do you hear her? That's the old gas well. She goes a bizzin just that way all the time, bizz, bizz. I wouldn't like to live around there for a steady thing."

No more would I. Of a calm day, the roar can be heard nine miles away. At the wells themselves, when gas is first struck, it is deafening. The workmen put cotton in their ears to protect their hearing.

SHOOTING A WELL.

The force of the gas is tremendous. It is such, that when first struck, it hurls everything before it, this blind, mad force rushing towards a venting place. Tools weighing two or three tons are thrown many feet into the air. Thus far the stream has always been struck in a layer of sand. The illustration shows the furious sand storm that is raised when the fluid fuel is reached. Striking the gas is called "shooting a well." It is more like a well shooting, one would think.

Gas is reached at a depth of 1,300 to 2,000 feet in western Pennsylvania. It costs $3 a foot to bore. At Tolono, Ills., however, the fluid was struck at a depth of only 100 feet.



A GAS LINE STATION.

Great care is taken to avoid explosions or other dangers. At intervals along the lines are stations, through which the pipes are named. At these points huge safety valves are inserted, so that when the pressure is greater than a certain number of pounds the valves are blown open and the gas escapes. The valves, with the weights that hold them down, are shown in the picture of the gas station.

To separate the gas from the water that pours out along with it a powerful tank is placed at the mouth of a well. Confining the gas as it escapes is called "piping off" a well. The gas and water are together conducted into the large tank. The water being heavy falls to the bottom of the receiver. The gas rises to the top, and passes into a pipe, which conducts it away in any desired direction. Connected with each well is one of the iron "stand pipes" mentioned, through which the fluid escapes when not in use. It is ignited at the top of the tube, so that it may not poison the atmosphere. The stand pipe must be some distance away from the derrick and buildings around the mouth of the well, otherwise with every gust of wind it would lap them in flames and destroy them.

In the view of Murrysville gas has such an escape tube with flaming gas at its mouth. Duff's well was thus on fire during my visit. The great flame lit the scene with a lurid red light even in day time. It curled and ducked and changed to weird shapes that looked alive as the wind drove it hither and thither.

This fuel gas is not a good illuminant naturally. At present two sets of gas pipes are necessary, therefore, in houses—one for light the other for heat. But the day I visited the gas wells it was announced that an inventive genius had discovered a way of treating and enriching it so that it could be used for illuminating as well. If this be true, then the problem will be indeed solved. The [illegible] for the [illegible] both in private houses and factories. The white hot heat that can thus be produced is something marvelous. A flue must be provided to carry off the products of combustion, otherwise they would soon poison the air.

BOILER ROOM.

I spent a forenoon looking into machine shops, rolling mills, etc., where the gas is used as a fuel. It gives me pleasure to acknowledge the kindness and courtesy of Messrs. Jones & Laughlin, of Mr. Jung, of the Sable Iron and Nail works, and of Mr. Hemphill, of the Fort Pitt foundry, in giving me information. They answered all my questions. I shall never forget it. May the shadow of their big, thundering mills never grow less. I am also indebted to the secretary of the Philadelphia Gas company. This is the great gas fuel company of Pittsburg. Though the price of gas is so low, and though it has only been working on a large scale some two years, it receipts are $1,500,000 annually. It operates thirty-seven large wells. There is also another gas fuel company.

The illustration shows what may be called the boiler room of the future. Instead of smoke, coal dust and grimy perspiring men shoveling with might and main, you might have a piano and parlor carpet in the furnace room if you liked, it is so clean. The Sable works have a battery of twelve boilers, and used to keep four firemen. Now there is needed only one man to look after the gas. The floor was clean enough for a New England kitchen. No ashes, no soot, no smoke, no clinkers, no residuum of any kind. Think of the saving when there is no more ashes to take out and cart off and dump. What will people do then for material to fill up their city lots with?

KITCHEN RANGE.

When gas is common for fuel, cooking will be as neat work as piano playing. It will be a good deal more fun. At least a third of the burden of housekeeping will be lifted in winter. Next to Murrysville, the most prolific of the Pittsburg wells are found at Tarentum, a village twenty miles northeast of the city. But there is no telling where it will or will not be found. It may underlie the whole United States, for all anybody knows. About the only point that has been certainly proved in the search for it is that geologists are ignoramuses. As often as any way, gas is found exactly where they have staked their scientific reputation that there was none. It does not particularly follow the oil fields. It has, more often than otherwise, been struck in regions where there are clay and limestone layers above, and sand below. In boring, the bit passes through four strata of sand at the west Pennsylvania wells. There is no sign of diminution in the supply so far. One well has been discharging twelve years, and is as flush as ever. The gas is believed to be in constant course of formation, and to be generated by the action of water upon the subterranean hydro-carbon oils.

At the end, I may say that I made the 5:49 train, splashed with mud from head to foot. Mr. Stewart explained that it was because "Jim," the near trotter, had a way of "setting his feet down vicious." I can testify to that, for the splashes came on my side. As a wind-up, the flying heels fired one last terrific splotch of coal black mud into my mouth and eyes.

"Jim, you're the——" began his master. He suddenly checked himself and reddened, looking sheepishly at me.

"Go on," said I. "Don't stop on my account."

In years I have not "struck" anything as interesting as these gas wells. I could write as much more about them. On the whole, though, I will stop. ELIHA ARCHARD.

Police Court.

The case of complaint against Mr. Webber for having and using a slaughter house inside the town limits was before Magistrate Dumble this morning, having been enlarged from last week. Mr. Roger appeared for the prosecution and asked that the case be held over, as Mr. C. A. Weller, counsel for the defendant, was engaged at the Court House and could not attend. The Magistrate enlarged it to Monday next.

Migratory Movements.

Mr. Frank Mercer left town for New Orleans this morning.

Geo. Rhodes left town to-day for new York, from which port he will take the White Star Line to Liverpool.

Mr. T. Menzies, of the G. T. R. Agency, furnished the tickets.

A Solitary Bird.

The result of yesterday's shipment of tramps to the county jail has had a good effect. Only one poor unfortunate presented himself at the police station last night for admission. The speech of Hon. Thos. White had no attractions for him. He had no faith in the N P, or its supporters. He had not enough money to start up a government printing office or build a railroad.

Attractive Posters.

The two large two-colored posters lately issued from the EXAMINER Office, announcing the St. Paul's Church Anniversary Services and the Cantata "Daniel" have been much admired. The public appreciate neat and attractive printing, and it pays therefore to get the best works done as it cannot fail to catch the eye. The EXAMINER Office has facilities for turning out colored work of all kinds equal to the best city work and on short notice.

Anniversary Services.

The Anniversary Services of the Murray Street Baptist Church will be held on Sunday the 20th Dec. when the Rev. Dr. Castle, Principal of McMaster Hall, will preach both morning and evening. On Monday the 21st Dec., the annual tea-meeting will be held in the basement of the church. Tea will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock p.m., when the Rev. Dr. Thomas of Jarvis Street Church will deliver his great lecture on "Men for the age." Tickets for tea or lecture, 25 cents each; for both 35 cents each.

Anniversary Services.

The services in connection with the anniversary of the opening of the new Sunday School rooms of St. Paul's church will be held on Sunday, Dec. 13th The Rev. Mr. Wells, of the American Presbyterian Church, Montreal, will preach both morning and evening. In the afternoon he will deliver an address to the Sunday School. On Monday evening tea will be served in the school room from 6 to 8 o'clock, after which addresses will be delivered in the church by Rev. Mr. Wells and resident ministers. Admission to tea, 25c.

Swarming.

Just now there seems to be intense activity among the life insurance men. A very large influx of outside agents, inspectors-generals and what-not in titles, appear to have "swarmed" in upon our peaceful town within the past few day. All sorts of new fangled plans and systems are now offered securing the great masses against every calamity from a mere trifle in cost to the insurer, up to Fifth Avenue or King St. prices. The local men, who, as a rule, are peaceful, law-abiding citizens, notwithstanding their calling, and who pay taxes, shovel snow, contribute their share to every tea meeting, &c., naturally think, and with reason, too, that they are quite capable of taking your life—that is, in a figurative sense—and of giving any one who patronizes them all the advantages of a home agency. The home men should claim protection under the N. P. or exemption under the proposed new by-law.

Philharmonic Society.

The Philharmonic Society meet in their rooms over Hartley's Music store this evening for practice.

Headquarters.

J. W. Butcher of the "Tea Cart Store," calls attention to his magnificent stock of fine plush articles, such as Photograph Frames, Fancy Mirrors, Brush and Comb cases, Whisk holders, etc. See advertisement.

Obituary.

The very many friends and acquaintances of Mr. Robert Roger, fifth son of the late Rev. J. M. Roger, at one time a resident of Peterborough, will be pained to hear of his death which took place in Australia on the 29th day of October, intelligence of which has just arrived. He received his preliminary education at the Peterborough Grammar School, from which he matriculated with honors in 1869 at Toronto University. During his second year his health failed him from overwork, and in accordance with his physician's advice he went in the autumn of 1871 to Australia for a change of climate. Here he graduated at Sydney University and obtained the position of second master in the grammar school at Brisbane, Queensland, which he filled up to the time of his death. He died haemorrhage of the lungs. His two sisters, who left here to join him about a [illegible] of his death.

Mr. Belford will give two recitals in Bradburn's Opera House, on December 16 and 17.

Curling Club.

The curling season will open with a grand match between President and Vice-President. All members joining before Monday the 14th instant, are entitled to play in this match. Ice is now being prepared, and the Rink will be opened in a few days.

Political Address.

The first of a series of political addresses, to be held this winter, under the auspices of the Tuplow Liberal Conservative Association of Peterborough, was given by the Hon. Thos. White, Minister of the Interior, in the Opera House last evening. There were about seven hundred people present, fully one-third of which were Liberals, and about fifty ladies. When the hon. gentleman appeared on the platform the Fire Brigade Band gave "a bar" of "Auld Lang Syne." The chair was occupied by Mr. John Carnegie, M.P.P., who introduced the speaker in a few brief remarks, referring to the series of meetings the Young Conservatives intended holding. At the conclusion of his remarks Mr. Geo. W. Hatton, president of the club read an address of welcome, congratulating the hon. gentleman on his advancement, and referring to political matters generally. There were on the platform, John Carnegie, M.P.P.; John Burnham, M. P.; Geo. Hilliard, M. P.; J. Dundas, M.P., South Victoria; Geo. Guillett, M.P., West Northumberland; Rev. V. Clementi; Jas. Stevenson; R. C. Strickland, Reeve, Lakefield; Thos. Cahill, Assistant Inland Revenue Inspector; E. J. Toker, Managing Director of the Review; and the following officers of the club: John Corkery, Vice-President, Ward No. 1; Geo. W. Hall, Vice-President, Ward No. 2; J. O'Meara, Vice-President, Ward No. 3; J. Kendry, Vice-President, Ward No. 4; Arthur Stevenson, Treasurer; and J. W. Minore, assistant Secretary. During the Hon. gentleman's remarks, which were composed of glittering generlities, the best of order prevailed, not a single interuption being made. Mr. White no doubt deemed it wise to not enter deeply into the many questions that are at this moment agitating the public mind. At the conclusion of his address Mr. O'Meara moved a vote of thanks which was seconded by Mr. James Kendry, and suitably acknowledged. After the meeting a number of the speaker's old political friends took advantage of his presence to congratulate him personally on his advancement to the responsible position which he now occupies. After the band played the National Anthem the meeting quietly dismissed, the best of feeling prevailing. We are pleased to see so many Reformers present, as they could not help but see that the hon. gentleman's apologies for the maladministration of the affairs of the country by the Sir John Macdonald Government were very weak. Reference is made in our editorial columns to a few of the fallacies in the address.

Y. M. C. A. Social Meeting.

The monthly social meeting of the Y.M.C.A. members will be held this evening at the Rooms. The programme includes a paper by Mr. J. W. Bennett, on "Sociality."

Personal.

Notable arrival. Stewart Rogers is registered at the Oriental Hotel.

Mr. Thos. J. Bell, of Nebraska, formerly of Smith Township, and well known around town, returned home yesterday to spend the Christmas holidays and remain over winter. He has taken up land in Nebraska and will have to return early in the spring. The climate of his adopted home evidently agreed with him as he is healthy and vigorous, and altogether a fine looking fellow. There is probably some other attraction than home and holidays to bring him back.

The British Elections.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The Daily News expects the Liberals will await a declaration of Lord Salisbury's programme before taking any action.

A London cable says:—Already there are many signs in the munificency of the Tory leaders to the rural poor and their sudden conversion to the theory and allotments of land that they expect a new election soon.

Salisbury's New Plan.

The salient point of Lord Salisbury's new plan for reform legislation, to be proposed to the new Cabinet at its next meeting is the establishment of divisional government boards for Ireland, to be elective, and to have such authority as to make them practically local legislatures. It is probable Mr. Parnell will demand more than this, as he has heretofore condemned a similar scheme as inadequate.

The Balkan Belligerents.

Alexander Still Defiant.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—It is considered that the Balkan question has taken a less reassuring aspect. The Porte is disposed to be obstinate in regard to the restoration of the status quo ante in Roumelia. Prince Alexander has sent to the Sultan a note which is defiant in tone and curt in manner to the effect that he is not cognizant of the proceedings of the conference of Ambassadors and therefore cannot act upon the Sultan's advice intelligently. He declares he will await the assembling of the National Assembly and be guided by its decisions. This introduces a

NEW ELEMENT INTO THE SITUATION.

The National Assembly called together in the presence of Alexander's victorious army, could hardly fail to be subservient to the Prince's views even if the public sentiment of the country did not of itself support the Prince's acts as there is every reason to think it does. The time granted by Prince Alexander in which King Milan is to reply to Bulgaria's demand having been extended to Thursday, it is probable the King is striving to gain time for further endeavors to secure Austria's influence in obtaining easier terms from Bulgaria. Austria is not inclined at this juncture, however, to interfere too actively in the settlement, preferring, it is surmised, to await some aggressive act on the part of Russia. The latter Government for some reason still continues its concentration of troops on the frontier, and will be in good position to enter North Eastern Bulgaria in case of any false move on Turkey's part.

THE SERVIANS ARE DRIVEN BACK.

The Servians to-day attacked the Bulgarian outposts at St. Nicholas, Loor, and Kriv ofor, and were repulsed at all points.

SERVIA MEANS TO FIGHT.

BELGRADE, Dec. 10.—It is not believed that the Powers will be able to prevent a decisive battle being fought between the Bulgarians and Servians. The Servians will not admit that they have been conquered. They now have a large army composed of concentrated here, and are burning to retrieve their military honour. Servia has sent a circular to the foreign Ministers here, stating that she cannot accept the Bulgarian conditions as the price of peace because they are dishonourable. Hostilities will, therefore, be resumed this evening.

THE FLOWER OF THE NATION,

Cabinet Changes.

It is announced from Ottawa that Prof. Foster, of New Brunswick, has been sworn in as Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and that Mr. McLelan has taken the Ministership of Finance. The most sanguine Conservative cannot persuade himself that such appointments as these show anything but poverty of intellect in the party. Neither of the new Ministers has any fitness for the office he has undertaken.—Globe.

Toronto's Time of Trouble.

Here is a pretty state of affairs: Smallpox on Hayden street, smallpox on Mitchell avenue, smallpox in Parkdale, smallpox in Matthews' ward; smallpox west, and north and east, and the health officers apparently rattled all round. This is the way a Toronto paper refers to the dozen cases of smallpox with which the Queen City is now bothered. A young girl working in a tailor shop spread the disease among a dozen by concealing her attack.

King Thebaw.

RANGOON, Dec. 10.—King Thebaw has been sent to Madras.

The Free Press printing office and James Hamilton's pump works at Alviston, Ont., were destroyed by fire yesterday.

Archbishop Tache Speaks.

He Deplores the Rebellion, and Blames Government Officials.

WINNIPEG, Dec. 10.—The Northwest Review, his official English organ, to-day contains a letter of five or six columns from Archbishop Tache on the Riel execution. His Grace stated that up to the present dispute and exciting events, he has remained silent, and repudiates the utterances placed in his mouth in the discussion in Quebec. His name has been dragged in, and he felt it necessary to declare himself.

HE DEPLORES THE REBELLION, WHICH HE SAYS WAS LARGELY DUE TO BAD OFFICIALS, SELECTED FOR PARTY MOTIVES.

This he believes to be wrong, especially in a new country where no one would do but men of tact and ability. He refers to the agitation as the result of disappointments on false expectations, and intimates that the rebellion was promoted by early frosts, and sometimes by a desire to secure money from the Government. He believes that in many cases there were

GOOD REASONS FOR COMPLAINT,

and expresses hope that confidence will be restored, and peace prevail. He expresses his sympathy with the Metis, and quotes approvingly the remarks of Lord Dufferin, Lord Landsdowne defends the race, and ridicules Sir Garnet Wolseley for describing this people as cowards and bandits. The question of cowardice, he thinks is amply settled now. He speaks of the influence the Metis exert over the Indians, of the neglect they had received from both political parties, and says that Riel was appealed to by the Metis because and they thought he understood their case. He says the attack at Duck Lake was an inconsiderate declaration of war, and again deplores the result that followed, for which he holds both political parties responsible, and now urges peace and harmony, and deprecates the agitation being conducted. He believes wiser measures will prevail.

THEIR CLAIMS HAD BEEN UNHEEDED,

Wm. H. Vanderbilt.

The Disposition of His Wealth Engages Curiosity.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Most of the intimate friends of the late Wm. H. Vanderbilt were questioned yesterday as to their impressions from conversation with him of what disposition he had made of his property. The gentlemen most likely to have been his confidants were disinclined to talk upon the subject, but the evident general belief is that Cornelius will be given the bulk of the fortune, in accordance with the old Commodore's known wish that one member of each succeeding generation shall be so endowed. J. Q. A. Ward, the sculptor, took a cast of the dead man's face yesterday and said it was a very successful one. The funeral services will be of the simplest nature. There will be no eulogy or address. The family have requested that no flowers be sent. Probably the Staten Island ferry boats will land at the west shore ferry slip on 42nd street and receive the hearse and carriages there.

HIS WEALTH.

From the last sources of information to-day it was learned that Vanderbilt died worth $190,650,000, of which $60,000,000 is in governments of various classes, $80,00,000 is in general railroad bonds, $5,000,000 in New York Central, $12,000,000 in Lake Shore, $7,000,000 in Michigan Central, and real estate, miscellaneous bonds, stocks, mortgages and notes to make up the total. His cash income per year was $10,343,000. These figures are as nearly authentic as it is possible to get them without a schedule of the estate.

Norwood.

Mr. Henry Bewell, at present Principal of Carleton Place public school, has been offered the position of Mathematical and Science Master of Norwood high school, to be vacated at New Year's by the resignation of Mr. G. W. Jackman, who is going to Europe to pursue his studies as an artist. Mr. Bewell has accepted the offer.

Lindsay.

Judge Dean, of Lindsay, in a recent charge to the County Court Grand Jury, pointed out at length the great need of exertion on the part of the temperance people to enforce the Scott Act, since a license law is better than free trade in whiskey.

It is said that $40 worth of vaccine points was used up in vaccinating the school children.

On Saturday night the rink was flooded and the frost being sharp, froze solid. On Monday afternoon the ice was again flooded, and on Tuesday was in fine order, but not quite firm.

Bobcaygeon.

Pigeon Lake was frozen in on Saturday night. Friday night was cold enough but too windy. Saturday being calm, the surface congealed and the lake was hermetically sealed for the winter.

A man from South Harvey crossed the lake, on foot, on Monday, the 7th. He reported the ice glare, in fine condition, and two inches thick.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 22.]

Mrs. Leprohon.

"One merit of poetry few persons will deny; it says more, and in fewer words than prose."
Voltaire.

In giving a brief sketch of Mrs. Leprohon, well known as a skillful novelist and poet, it is pleasant to be able to say she was a true Canadian, having been born and brought up in Montreal. Her maiden name was Rosanna Eleanor Mullins, and under the initials of R. E. L., from the age of fourteen, she contributed many articles to the magazines of her native city. At the time the Literary Garland was published by Mr. Lovell, and it was in the columns of this well-known Canadian magazine her chief effusions appeared. Miss Mullins was indeed the leading contributor, until want of financial success compelled the enterprising proprietor to suspend its publication. As a writer of prose, Mrs. Leprohon wielded an industrious pen, her novels spreading over a period of twenty years. She contributed short articles and poems to almost every periodical published in the Province of Quebec, and to many United States magazines and papers, notably the Boston Pilot, the Journal of Education, the Canadian Illustrated News, the Saturday Reader, the Hearthstone and other periodicals which were always glad to number Mrs. Leprohon's productions among their most attractive features. She had always a ready pen, the result of a full heart and far-reaching sympathies, and therefore, was frequently asked to write on subjects of current interest.

A well known authority in literary matters declares she has done more than almost any other writer to foster and promote the growth of a national literature. It is pleasing to notice that to some extent her exertions have been successful. For, while in her early days there were no writers of celebrity in the Dominion, now there are several whose articles are sought after by leading journalists and a national literature is at any rate in process of formation.

Mrs. Leprohon's poetical works have been gathered into one volume which was published by Lovell & Son in 1881. Her poems are classified under the following titles: Sacred, Narrative and Descriptive, Lyrical, Reflective and Elegiac and Voices of the Hearth. In each of the divisions the careful reader will find something to profit and delight. In poems of the affections she is at her best. When she writes in sweet and simple rhyme of the tenderness of a mother's love, when she expands on a wife's devotion and pourtrays a husband's loyal trust, or tells of a death-bed parting not without hope, or speaks of the lovely and gentle offices of home and homely duties, she touches a chord in every heart and shows poetic instinct of no mean order.

In 1851 our author married Dr. J. L. Leprohon, the founder and editor of the first French medical journal published in Montreal—La Lancette Canadienne. Her husband belonged to one of the most distinguished Canadian families and their married life was a very happy one. After a long and tedious illness endured with Christian resignation she passed away on the 20th of Sept., 1879, at the early age of 47.

Just a few words as to Mrs. Leprohon's prose writings. In this simple and hurried sketch we have dealt mainly upon her work as a poet, but it is as a writer of fiction her main success has been won and by her facile pen she has found a place in the hearts, both of French and English residents of Quebec.

Some of her tales have been translated into French, viz, "Ida Beresford," written in 1848; "the Manor House of Villerai," in 1849; "Antoinette De Mirecourt," 1864, and "Arnaud Durand" in 1866. Besides these well known works, she wrote "Florence Fitz Harding," in 1849, "Eva Huntingdon," in 1850, "Clarence Fitz Clarence," in 1851, and "Eveleen O'Donnell" in 1859. In most of these stories Mrs. Leprohon depicted society as it was about the time of the conquest and by her very graphic delineations of the chivalry, of that now almost forgotten period, she sought to exercise an influence for good in days when "the almighty dollar" seems the only thing worth contending for.

Of her first novel the late Mrs. Moodie wrote as follows:—"The character of Ida is finely and effectively cast and with all her faults, there is thrown round her the fascination of a noble, grand independence, which genius alone could imagine and call into existence. The author is still very young—one of the gifted few whom fancy smiled on in her cradle and genius marked for her own. As a Canadian born, we augur for her a bright wreath of fame. Let her keep truth and nature ever in view and scorn not the lightest teachings of the Divine Mother and she may become the pride and ornament of a great and rising country." An able French critic said: "Her charm lies, not in any complication of intrigue or in problems hard to solve, but in a skillful working out of details, in incidents which fix the reader's attention, in the conception of her characters, in the painting of personal traits, in purity of thought, in sweetness of sentiment, in beauty of style, in the harmony of the parts, and in the most scrupulous regard for morality." With very slight changes the same words of commendation may also be applied to Mrs. Leprohon's poems.

Her life was a busy one, still it would be incorrect to imagine all her time was spent in preparing words of poetry for publication.

As a biographer says: "They constituted but one phase in a life nobly, yet unostentatiously, consecrated to the duties of home, of society, of charity and of religion. Had she never written a verse of poetry, or a page of prose, she would still have been lovingly remembered for what she was as wife, as mother and as friend."

We can only find space for one short sacred piece from Mrs. Leprohon's works, these articles having already exceeded their limits, and for this purpose we quote

VOICES OF THE DEATH CHAMBER.

The night-lamp faintly gleameth
Within my chamber still,
And the heavy shades of midnight
Each gloomiug angle fill;
And my worn and wearied watchers
Scarce dare to move or weep,
For they think that I am buried
In deep and quiet sleep.

But hush! what are those voices
Rising on the midnight air;
Full of strange, celestial sweetness,
Breathing love and hope and prayer!
Nearer still they grow and clearer;
Ah! I hear now what they say—
To the kingdom of God's glory
They are calling me away.

See! my gentle mother softly
To my couch approaches now—
What can be the change she readeth
Upon my pale, damp brow,
That she clasps her hands in anguish,
Whose wild depths no words might say—
Perchance she has heard the voices
That are calling me away.

The fond father of my children,
The first sole love of my youth;
He, the loving, gentle-hearted,
So full of manly truth,
Is kneeling now beside me
Wildly praying me to stay;
'Tis hard, oh! hard to tell him
"They are calling me away!"

Oh! if earthly love could conquer
The mighty power of death,
His love would stay the current
Of my failing strength and breath;
And that voice whose loving fondness
Has been o'er my earthly stay,
Could half tempt me from the voices
That are calling me away.

Now, they bring my children to me,
That loved and lovely band,
And with wistful awe-struck faces
Around my couch they stand,
And I strain each gentle darling
To my heart with wailing cry,
And, for the first time, murmur,
"Oh, my God, 'tis hard to die!"

But hark! those strains of heaven
Sound louder in my ear,
Whispering, "He, thy God, thy Father,
Will guard those children dear"—
Louder yet they grow, now drowning
All sounds of mortal birth;
In their wild triumphant sweetness
Luring, bearing me from earth.

Equal to Gladstone.

Is What a Scottish Liberal Says of Hon. Edward Blake.

The following from a private letter by a leading Scottish Liberal to a citizen of Belleville, shows the impression made by the Canadian Liberal leader in the old country:

"I was at the banquet to Lord Roseberry the other night. It was the finest sight I ever saw and the finest speeches I ever heard. Roseberry, Gladstone, Goschen and your leader, Mr. Blake, all made magnificent speeches. I will never forget Mr. Blake's speech. His eloquence went to the heart of every one in that vast audience, and when he sat down they rose en masse and cheered him again and again. He well deserved it. His eloquence was equal to either that of Roseberry or Gladstone, and his clear voice rang out over the whole hall."

When one of the devoted adherents—we had almost said worshippers—of the "grand old man," places Mr. Blake on an equality with his honored leader, it is, indeed, a high compliment.—Ontario.

FROST BITTEN.

"Which part do you sing, Mr. Liscombe?"

The brown-eyed organist asked the question with such—with O, such a charming smile.

Mr. Liscombe was very bashful. He was not accustomed to smiles from pretty young women; he had felt dimly that they were usually inclined to laugh at him. He nervously caressed the flaxen whisker on his pink cheek, and, after opening and closing his mouth once or twice in an ineffectual effort to reply, succeeded in stammering: "Tenor, usually—that is, sometimes. Do you have a bass—bass, Miss Frost?"

Miss Frost had stooped to regain the hymn-book fallen on the floor, and one of the half dozen girls who constituted the choir answered for her: "Mr. Harris used to sing bass."

"The first hymn is the 209th," announced the organist, and leading the singing herself with a light, pretty soprano, which the new tenor presently joined, showing himself possessed of an excellent voice, the rehearsal proceeded.

At its close the girls drew on the numerous wraps made necessary by the keen, biting air of a Northern winter, and saying "Good-night," left Miss Frost locking the organ and Mr. Liscombe standing irresolutely in the aisle.

"Do you think you will like Bluff City?" she asked.

"Well—really I—yes I—hope so." He was so painfully embarrassed that the girl quite pitied him.

"You have a beautiful voice," she said gently; "I am so glad you are going to sing with us," raising her eyes with a radiant smile to his face, and then modestly looking to the floor. The warmth of her glance seemed to pervade his entire being. He did not think of moving, nor of a word to say, but gazed steadfastly at the creator of this new-found delight until she said: "Won't you stand by the door, please, while I put out the lights? I know it is wicked, but I am always afraid to be alone in the church in the dark."

He moved mechanically to the door as she extinguished the kerosene lamps. It did not occur to him to assist her; he was occupied with a more momentous thought. Should he—dare he ask to see her home? Would she not think him too bold on so short an acquaintance? He had never in his life escorted a lady, except his mother, anywhere.

"Isn't it cold?" said Miss Frost, closing the door; the church was never locked. "How bright the northern lights are to-night." Bashful Mr. Liscombe could scarcely believe his happiness. She had placed her little mitten in his arm quite as a matter of course, and he was actually walking up the street with that pretty head nearly touching his shoulder.

"I am so much obliged to you for taking the trouble to see me home," she said at her father's gate. "Hasn't this been a pleasant choir-meeting! You must come and see us some time. Good-night;" and she had vanished.

The little Wisconsin town lay in a curve of the range of bluffs that guard the eastern bank of the Mississippi. Twenty years ago no railroad passed through the village, and the river steamers in summer, the stage lines in winter, gave it communication with the rest of the world.

Mr. Liscombe, assistant rector and teacher of the parish school, had been in the place but one week. He was engaged to take the place of Mr. Harris, lately discovered to be a particularly fierce young wolf in the sheep's clothing of a divinity student, who, until the disclosures so derogatory to his good repute were made, had very successfully conducted the school. He had at first made a most favorable impression both on Dr. Webster, the rector, and the townspeople generally. But when his landlady discovered on his bookshelves books of such a character that she was really ashamed to read a page, and in his table-drawer cigars and a euchre-deck, the citizens seethed with indignation that their children had been exposed to the pernicious influence of such a dissolute deceiver. They were narrow-minded people, and in a town where the Methodists and Baptists expelled from their churches such giddy young members as would join in a quadrille, a man preparing himself for the sacred office of a clergyman must stand without shadow of reproach before them.

On the day following his landlady's discoveries only fifteen of his forty pupils took their seats. He dismissed them, went to the rectory, and resigned his situation. Dr. Webster thought that that apparent necessity might be avoided.

"If you would give up smoking, and give me your cards and translations of George Sand," he urged, "so that I could explain to these people that you care nothing for them and had handed them over to me, I think they would become reconciled to you in a short time."

"No, sir," said the young man; "I do not care to be dictated to in my personal habits by the people of Bluff City."

"If you become a clergyman, John, you will find much more trying sacrifices before you than relinquishing French novels and cigars," the rector said rather wearily.

"I have decided not to enter the ministry," said John. "You know how it happened that I ever thought of doing so."

Yes, the doctor knew it had been his dying mother's request, reluctantly complied with from a loving sense of duty to her wishes.

The next morning saw Mr. Harris embarked on the southern-bound stage. Dr. Webster, when interviewed, believed he had gone to Dubuque, and soon after announced that the school would reopen under the direction of the Rev. Theodore Liscombe, whose coming, the rector hoped, "would prove a blessing to the school and the parish."

The Sunday following his eventful attendance at choir-meeting Mr. Liscombe's mind and eyes rebellio sly turned themselves from the service and prayer-book; his glances constantly wandered to the little organ standing below the chancel. And his thoughts! Would he have courage to ask to walk home with her after evening church? And if he did, in what language should he clothe the request? But when, in overcoat and muffler, hat in hand, he emerged from the vestry there was pretty Mattie smiling, almost as if she expected him, and saying, "Won't you lock the organ for me, please, Mr. Liscombe? The key turns so hard, I guess something must be broken." He did not have to "ask;" he walked out by her side as if he belonged there, drinking in every word of her delicious conversation about how difficult it was to keep the girls in the choir, and what a lovely book-mark Kate St. John had made for the Bible on the reading-desk. As they approached her home his heart sank, for he thought that he must leave her, but she said, "Won't you come in a little while? Father will be so glad to see you."

Capt. Frost sat by the fire scolding his gentle-faced wife. He was an habitual scolder unless strangers were present; but he never found fault with his daughter. She filled the one soft spot in his heart. He had earned his title on the river steamers. Mattie could remember when they lived on the boat all summer and boarded at St. Louis hotels in winter; and Mrs. Frost recalled every day of her life the dreary winter before Mattie was 2 years old, when the Captain had been caught at St. Paul by an early closing in of the river, and they had kept house for five long months in the boat frozen into the ice at the foot of the St. Paul levee. And the Captain had stormed day and night at the weather, at the town, at the boat, the boat's owners, at the unfortunate self, and at poor Baby Mattie, who would cry at night and disturb his slumbers. But Mattie never disturbed him now, she always pleased him; he was proud of her pretty face, her musical talent and of her good sense, which he often publicly boasted he would back against the heads of any two girls in Wisconsin; so now, when she came in introducing Mr. Liscombe, he was quite ready to drop his tirade against his wife and make himself agreeable to the guest.

"Take off your coat and sit down," he said cordially, "and Mat will bring us a bite. So you've come to take Harris' place! Young scamp he was. He dropped in with Mat one evening after choir-meeting, and I told my wife he'd turn out bad. I can look straight through a fellow like him."

The fact was, as Mrs. Frost distinctly remembered, that when Mr. Harris first came to the house her husband had pronounced him a fine young fellow whom it was a shame to spoil by making a minister of; but she would as soon have thought of applying a match to her kerosene-can as of attracting the attention of the choleric Captain to any discrepancies in the opinions he expressed, so she remained discreetly silent, her patient face looking a shade meeker than before.

Mattie came in with the "bite"—mince-pie, apples, bread and milk, and a bologna-sausage.

"I used to keep a chunk of bologna in my pocket when I was a boy up in the pilot-house learning the river with old Tom Corwin, and I like the taste of it yet," said the Captain, filling his capacious mouth. "Yes, sir, I followed the river a good many years, and no boat made better time than the City of Columbus while I was her Captain; but I got sick of it, it's an uneasy life, so I settled down here in the lumber business. That's my lumber piled up opposite the church, and you won't find a neater stock in that line this side of Chicago, sir."

He always monopolized the conversation, even when people called expressly to see his wife or daughter, and he continued bragging about himself and even about Mattie, who sat quietly by, until Mr. Liscombe rose, shook hands all round, and departed.

The days and weeks passed. Mr. Liscombe drew his pay regularly, and kept the children in the school-house the allotted hours of the session, but there his usefulness as an instructor seemed to come to an end.

"He doesn't know whether he's hearing Latin or geography," complained the rector. "The school is going to pieces. A man in love is good for nothing else; I wasn't myself," he added with a smile.

"Do you think Mattie really cares for him?" asked his wife.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Exhibitors.

The Globe mentions Mr. J. McClelland and Mr. N. Lush as exhibitors from Peterborough at the first annual show of the Toronto Poultry Association now in progress. The former exhibited "Buff Cochins," and the latter, Langshans.

Christmas Cheer at the "Golden Lion."

Every department full of choice new goods with many specialties for the festive season. Every intending purchaser should visit the establishment to be convinced of the variety and bargains now being offered by Fair, Van-Every & Co'y.

Y. M. C. A., Social Meeting.

The social meeting of the members of the Young Men's Christian Association last evening was quite successful. A capable paper on "Sociability" was given by Mr. J. W. Bennett, and elicited considerable discussion. Readings were given by Messrs. F. O. Warden and Wm. Beattie, and music was rendered by Messrs. King and Harry Stephens. A pleasant half hour of social intercourse was also spent, during which refreshments were handed round.

Mr. Geo. Belford.

The London Free Press says: "Mr. Belford fairly took the audience by storm. He brought with him the reputation of an excellent genius, but few were prepared to discover the towering dramatic ability, and elocutionary accomplishment which he displayed. Nothing so good of the kind has been heard here for many a year." The dates of Mr. Belford's appearance here are Wednesday and Thursday, December 16th and 17th. Tickets 25 and 50 cents.

Novelties for Christmas Presents.

A. L. Davis & Co. have now on hand the largest and best stock of goods suitable for Christmas presents they have ever had. Their stock of novelties is of great variety, while their Christmas cards are unsurpassed for assortment and cheapness. Their staple lines in Bibles, hymn books, prayer books, church services, etc., are most attractive. Photograph and autograph albums, illustrated books, etc., are a specialty. They solicit an inspection of their attractive stock.

Anniversary Services.

The Anniversary Services of the Murray Street Baptist Church will be held on Sunday the 20th Dec. when the Rev. Dr. Castle, Principal of McMaster Hall, will preach both morning and evening. On Monday the 21st Dec., the annual tea-meeting will be held in the basement of the church. Tea will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock p.m., when the Rev. Dr. Thomas of Jarvis Street Church will deliver his great lecture on "Men for the age." Tickets for tea or lecture, 25 cents each; for both 35 cents each.

Important Improvements.

The Central Iron and Bridge Works closed down last night and will remain so for a week or ten days so as to allow of the placing of their new boiler and engine. Other necessary improvements will also be made. Masons are now at work putting in the foundation for the boiler. The work will be pushed through as rapidly as possible as there are a number of orders yet unfilled which have to be finished within a certain time. The Lock Works will also receive some additions and improvements in the way of shafting, etc., but will not close down, as they have plenty work to do which does not require steam power.

First Game of the Season.

Two rinks of the Peterborough Curling Club left on the morning train for Lindsay, where they will engage in a game with the Lindsay rinks. This will be the first game of the season for the Peterborough team, while the Lindsay team has enjoyed a practice. Nevertheless, the Peterborough rink will do their little best and are confident of a lively game, if not a victory. The following gentlemen compose the Peterborough rinks and may be expected to give a good account of themselves:—

A. Stevenson.	John McClelland.
R. N. Roddy.	C. McGill.
W. Salisbury.	W. H. Buddes.
T. P. Attril, skip.	G. Dunsford, skip.

Successful Entertainment.

Mr. Stuart Rogers, dramatic reciter and character delineator, gave one of his entertainments in Bradburn's Opera House last night. The audience, though not large, was very appreciative and thoroughly enjoyed the treat. The first part of the programme consisted of dramatic recitals, "The Auction of Bachelors;" a selection from "Hamlet." "The Ghost," "Lady Clara Vere de Vere" and "Darius Greene and his Flying Machine." In the second part, consisting of character impersonations, "The Lady Killer," "Ben, the News Boy," "Miss Amarinthia's Visit to the Centennial" and "Oscar Wilde" were portrayed. Mr. Rogers was highly successful in each and all of his selections, delighting the audience throughout the evening. His voice is of exceptional compass and is fully under control, while his face is capable of almost incredible changes. He appears again to-night in an entirely new programme.

Satisfaction.

If you want to have a skate go to the Parlor Roller Rink, where you will get satisfaction.

Our Satin Mounted Xmas Cards are Exquisite. A. L. Davis & Co.

Migratory Movements.

Mr. Wm. McAndrews left town this morning for Philadelphia via G. T. R. and West Shore. Mr. T. Menzies ticketed him.

St. Luke's.

Next Sunday, Rev. Archdeacon Pinkham, of Manitoba, will preach in St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, at eleven o'clock, a.m., on the subject of "Church work in the Northwest." His discourse will be exceedingly interesting.

New Year's Calling Cards.

The EXAMINER printing establishment has laid in a large and elegant assortment of New Year's calling cards. Gentlemen desirous of obtaining the latest styles and neatest letterings should call at the office and make their selections. All these cards are of new and novel design and are the best that can be obtained. The sooner you leave your or-

Sidewalk Protection.

To avoid accidents from falling bricks, etc., two board fences have been erected across the sidewalk on each side of the new Cox buildings, under construction, to prevent persons from walking on the sidewalk in front of the building. It is certainly an inconvience, but is also a necessity. Happily the work will soon be completed, and the obstruction removed.

Xmas Cards are now so Cheap you can afford to send them to all your Friends. Select Early. A. L. Davis & Co.

High School Exercise.

Mr. D. C. McHenry, Principal of the Cobourg Collegiate Institute, has an article in this week's issue of the Educational Weekly. The points touched upon are:—(1) Careful classification. (2) Regular promotions. (3) Securing co-operation of parents. (4) Public meetings to explain and illustrate the work of the school. (5) To satisfy the public on financial matters. (6) To cultivate friendly relations with the public school and the university. (7) Reunion of old pupils. (8) Valedictory and salutatory.

Anniversary Services.

The services in connection with the anniversary of the opening of the new Sunday School rooms of St. Paul's church will be held on Sunday, Dec. 13th. The Rev. Mr. Wells of the American Presbyerian Church, Montreal, will preach both morning and evening. In the afternoon he will deliver an address to the Sunday School. On Monday evening tea will be served in the school room from 6 to 8 o'clock, after which addresses will be delivered in the church by Rev. Mr. Wells and resident ministers. Admission to tea, 25c.

Good Skating.

The Little Lake and river have been very largely patronized by skaters for the past two days. The ice is reported to be in fine condition, and strong enough in most places to answer the purpose. Where the current is strong, there is no ice, or worse still very little. Numerous drowning accidents occur every year by reckless fellows venturing on dangerous places, and a caution to such is not out of order. A drowning accident makes a sensational item but that is about all the good can be said about it.

Another Stage.

Peterborough's Government buildings have reached another stage of progress—on paper. Tenders are advertised for the "erection of public buildings for the Postoffice and Customs and Inland Revenue offices at Peterborough, Ont." It will be noticed that the advertisement calls for the erection of "buildings," not a building, for the Postoffice, etc., lending colour to the inference that the buildings for the postal and customs offices will be erected separately and therefore it may be expected that both the political sites will be utilized.

What We Would Like to Know.

Why Hon. Mr. White didn't tell us when the new post-office was to be built.

And where it is to be built.

Why he misrepresented Hon. D. Mills on the tariff question.

What Mr. Blake would say if he had heard Mr. White say the former had made a mistake of twenty millions in his C. P. R. figures.

Why Mr. White didn't explain the Liberal government's reasons for exercising the veto power.

How all parties concerned liked the double bare-back (faced) act with which Hon. Mr. White concluded his performance.

What They are Saying.

I'd have laid 'em out cold if I had got a whack at 'em—I was just itching for the chance.—The local member.

Didn't I make a good second.—Vice-President No. 3.

You did justice to our training and to our oratorical style.—Dufferin Debaters.

But it's a wise politician that knows enough to quit when he has nothing to say.—Vice-President No. 4.

The hall was nicely ornamented but the arrangements for cheering were very bad.—The orator of the evening.

But you know you hadn't anything very cheering to say.—The Young Lib. Cons.

What We May Expect.

The young Lib.-Cons. to swear hereafter that black is White.

And after the flatness of their first political demonstration, to be able to believe that the earth is flat.

Nobody to agree on what Mr. White was driving at, at the close of his speech.

Civic candidates to begin to be reaching for electors' buttonholes.

Stuart Rogers to appear again at the Opera House to-night.

And the Dufferin Debaters to practice "direct taxation" by going to hear him.

The people to begin talking about Belford, the English Elocutionist.

Moderate to fresh westerly winds; partly cloudy, slightly colder weather, with a few snow flurries.

Personal.

Mr. Jas. Gallon, general agent of the Standard Life Insurance Company, was in town to-day.

The Globe's report of The Toronto Poultry and Pigeon show places Mr. John McClelland in the list of prize-winners. No particulars are furnished—the judge not yet having made his report.

Mr. R. F. Morrow, dentist, of this town, a gold medalist and honor graduate of Toronto School of Dentistry, successor to J. Pentland, was appointed Hon. Vice-President of the Ontario Dental Association, at a meeting of that association held in Toronto last Saturday. This speaks well for Mr. Morrow, and shows that he is held in high estimation by his colleagues.

Mr. P. G. McGregor, formerly of Walkerton, and recently of Peterborough, has accepted the position from Mr. W. H. Hill of special agent for the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, for County of Victoria, with Lindsay as headquarters. Mr. McGregor has had an excellent business training and no doubt his honorable and straightforward dealings with the patrons of the Company will justify the wisdom of his appointment.

Nearly a Fatal Accident.

Narrow Escape of W. E. Roxburgh, Esq., of Norwood.

On Wednesday evening W. E. Roxburgh, Esq., of Norwood, was in town, and went home by the midnight express. While alighting he sustained a severe fall, the particulars of which, furnished by telegram, are as follows: "On Wednesday night as W. E. Roxburgh, of this village was returning from Peterborough, on the midnight express, which passes through here without stopping, he jumped from the train while it was going at a good rate of speed and unfortunately collided with the platform of the station, which he struck with great force, being knocked down and for a few minutes rendered unconscious. Fortunately Mr J. D. Ackerman was getting off the train at the same time and catching hold of Mr. Roxburgh by the shoulders prevented him from falling from the platform betweenit and the rapidly moving train.

Removing Monopoly.

There are hopes that when the Canada Pacific Railway telegraph line has been put in thorough working order that the public will get the benefit of the competition which promises to ensue with the Great Northwestern telegraph company. But when everything is ready Erastus Wiman will wait on Messrs. Angus, Stephen and Vanhorn, and will say: "Why should we quarrel, let us live together in harmony, for our interests are the same. If we are forced to cut the rates, what a great loss it would entail on both companies." Then Messrs. Angus, Stephen and Vanhorn will say, "But we have led the public to expect——" "In the language of the late W. H. Vanderbilt," Mr. Wiman will remark, "the public be d——d. It is always expecting something.' Then they will order in the wne, and two monopolies with a single object will squeeze greater than one.—Toronto News.

The exports of wheat from all American ports for Sept. 1, 1883, to Aug. 4, 1884, were 97,004,000 bushels, as against 120,188,000 bushels for the corresponding period of 1882-83. This shows exactly the great decline in our wheat exports, and furnishes one good explanation of the present low values.

Long articles have been written about the cholera bacillus, but a medical writer says our real knowledge of it may be summoned up by saying that it is shaped like a comma, that 40,000 to 60,000 of them placed lengthwise would make an inch, that it infests impure drinking water, favors the human intestines as an abode, and is supposed to cause cholera.

The beautiful Japanese lacquer, so appreciated by European amateurs, is growing scarce and much more costly. This is due to the abolition of the old laws protecting the lacquer tree, and which in ancient times required each family, according to rank, to rear a certain number of trees. Those belonging to the upper classes were bound to cultivate 100 trees, the middle classes seventy, and the lower classes forty trees.

J. S. Baldwin, of Newark, N. J., has conceived the startling idea of building an inverted railway. A Vermont farmer made a net profit of $43.50 from the produce of a single hen turkey during the past season. That's the reason there are so many bald-headed men in Dakota; that, an' lyin' 'bout the country. An', by gosh, it'll blow your clothes right off o' you, too, an' then you're deader than an icicle. Beats all how little cold Dakota liquor can stand.

Messrs. Spencer and Ridenour, who recently returned from their rich copper discoveries, have told us of a discovery they made when in the Grand Canon, which is almost too marvelous to believe. In the basin of the canon, which was once on a sand bed, and probably thousands of years ago a broad, level plain (but the narrow passage way is now hemmed in by walls 118 feet high), they came upon an imprint in the rock, denoting a bare foot, with toes, instep and heel as plain and unmistakable as the ore of day. It measured twenty-six in length and twelve in width. The average depth of the imprint is four inches, while at the ball of the foot it is six inches.

The men had only three pack mules and prospecting tools with them, or they would have taken out the rock containing the foot print, but it is their intention to return in a few days prepared to perform the work and bring these evidences of a monster human race to the public gaze. An Indian with the party, when he came upon the tracks, remarked: "Big Father here heap years gone." The gentlemen making the discovery are well known as reliable and truthful.—Peach Springs (Arizona) Champion

NOT ACCEPT HIS DICTATION.

The Hamilton Times thus refers to Hon. Thos. White's statement that the Reformers would go to the country with the cry: "Riel is a martyr and Sir John is a murderer":—

"It is very kind of Mr. White to so simplify the political issues of the day, but he will probably find, before he has done with them, that the Reformers of Canada prefer to make their own programme instead of letting Mr White make it for them. * * *

"The Reformers of Canada will not vote that Riel is a martyr, but they do most firmly believe that Sir John Macdonald, by his criminal negligence of his official duties, made himself responsible for the murders committed in the Northwest. It is useless to say that the half-breeds had no provocation to rebel. Men do not rebel without provocation. They may be greatly at fault in yielding to the provocation, but the man in high position who does them wrong cannot be held guiltless. In this city of Hamilton, there are thousands of men who have been robbed for years by the Macdonald Government. Their earnings have been reduced, and the purchasing power of every dollar they got has been lessened by the tariff with which Sir John Macdonald purchased the political support of men mean enough to sell their independence for the promise of money which belonged by right to other people. If there were no other way of obtaining their rights the men thus robbed would be justified in rebelling. It is contrary to nature that one man should sit down contentedly to be pinched by another. But there is a constitutional remedy for these wrongs. The oppressed may obtain redress by the wise use of the ballot. The half-breeds in the distant settlements of the Northwest lacked the knowledge of constitutional form and remedies which is possessed by the workingmen of the older Provinces. They took what they thought would be a short cut to freedom, and they are less blamable than the man at Ottawa who refused to redress their grievances when petitioned to do so. Had Sir John Macdonald not made his infamous bargains with the colonization companies, bartering the lands of the country for political support; had he not neglected the official work which the people of Canada paid him $7,000 a year to perform, there would have been no rebellion in the Northwest; there would have been no murders, and he would be free from the responsibility for blood, the stain of which he can not wipe out by hanging a dozen Riels or a hundred Indians.

To please Mr. White, the people of Canada will not range themselves on two sides to decide whether Riel was a martyr or a scoundrel. They will at the next election pronounce their judgment upon the man who robbed the people of their earnings by an iniquitous tariff, who mortgaged the property of the taxpayers to the amount of many millions to build a railway years before it was needed, and who caused a rebellion by his neglect and his oppressions. If Sir John Macdonald be found guilty of these offences, he will find his solitary plea in defence—that he hanged Riel—an insufficient offset.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Young Conservative Club of Belleville, will next week, have a debate on the "Ontario Franchise Act." If the pinfeather politicians want a debatable subject they should have selected the Dominion Franchise Act.

Hon. Thos. White says that except for the misery inflicted on the Halfbreeds, "the effect of the rebellion on the country has "not been bad." Is, says the Globe, this the measure of Mr. White's sympathy for the homes that were desolated, the discomforts that were endured, the families that were half-starved, and those Volunteers who are still out of employment?

The St. Thomas Journal puts it neatly thus: "After gerrymandering fifty-five constituencies, so that the minority might rule;

"After denying Ontario the rights granted at her Confederation, and forcing her to go before the Privy Council to prove those rights;

"After endeavoring to deprive Ontario of millions of her rightful acres;

"After assuming Ontario's railways;

"After attempting to take from Ontario the control of the liquor traffic;

"After foisting upon Ontario an obnoxious Franchise Bill;

"After robbing Ontario to pay Quebec;

"After doing all these things,

"Sir John Macdonald has the sublime check,

"Through the medium of his newspaper organs,

"To ask the Reformers of Ontario to help him to remain in power,

"If they do, they will be sublimely mad."

Tabernacle Sermons.

Discourse by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage.

HISSED OFF THE STAGE.

Men shall clap their hands at him and shall hiss him out of his place.—Job xxvii., 23.

This allusion seems to be dramatic. The Bible more than once makes such allusions. Paul says, "We are made a theatre or spectacle to angels and to men." The theatre is so old that no one can fix the date of its birth. Archilochus, Simonides and Solon, who wrote for it the dithyrambics, lived about six or seven hundred years before Christ. It is evident from the text that some of the habits of theatre-goers were known in Job's time, because he describes an actor hissed off the stage. The impersonator comes on the boards and, either through lack of study of the part he is to take, or inaptness, or other incapacity, the audience is offended, and expresses its disapprobation and disgust, first by over-applause, attempting by great clapping of hands to drown out what he says. That failing to stop the performer, the spectators put their tongues against their teeth and make terrible sibillation until he disappears behind the curtain. "Men shall clap their hands at him and shall hiss him out of his place."

My text suggests that each one of us is put on the stage of this world to take some part. McCullough, the actor, recently buried, was no more certainly appointed on an occasion to appear as Spartacus, or Edwin Forrest as King Lear, or Charlotte Cushman as Meg Merrilies, or John Kemble as Coriolanus, or Garrick as Macbeth, or Cooke as Richard III., or Kean as Othello, than you or I are expected to take some especial and particular part in the great drama of human and immortal life. Through what hardship and suffering and discipline these artists went year after year that they might be perfected in their parts, you have often read. But we, put on the stage of this life to represent charity and faith and humility and selfishness—what little preparation we have made, although we have three galleries of spectators, earth and heaven and hell. Have we not been more attentive to the part taken by others than to the part taken by ourselves, and, while we needed to be looking at home and we have been criticising the other performers and saying "that was too high," or "too low," or "too feeble," or "too extravagant" or "too tame" or "too demonstrative," while we were making ourselves a dead failure and preparing to be ignominiously hissed off the stage. Each one is assigned a place; no supernumeraries hanging round the drama of life to take this or that or the other part as he may be called upon. No one can take our place. We can take no other place. Aye, it is not the impersonation of another, we ourselves are the real Merchant of Venice or the real Shylock; the real filial Cordelia or the real cruel Regan; the real Portia or the real Lady Macbeth. The tragedian of the playhouse at the close of the third scene of the fifth act takes off the attire of Gonzalo or Edward Mortimer or Henry V. and resigns the character in which for three hours he appeared. But we never put off our character, and no change of apparel can make us anyone else than that which we eternally are.

Many make a failure of their part in the drama of life through dissipation. They have enough intellectual equipment and good address and geniality unbounded. But they have a wine closet that contains all the forces for their social and business and moral overthrow. So far back as 959 King Edgar of England made a law that the drinking cups should have pins fastened at a certain point in the side so that the indulger might be reminded to stop before he got to the bottom. But there are no pins projecting from the sides of the modern wine cup or beer mug, and the first point at which millions stop is at the gravelly bottom of their own grave. Dr. Sax, of France, has recently discovered something which all drinkers ought to know. He has found out that alcohol, in every shape, whether of wine or brandy or beer, contains parasitic life called bacillus potumaniæ. By a powerful microscope these living things are discovered, and when you take strong drink you take them into the stomach and then into your blood, and getting into the crimson canals of life, they go into every tissue of your body and your entire organism is taken possession of by these noxious infinitesimals. When in delirium tremens a man sees every form of reptillian life it is only these parasites of the brain in exaggerated size. It is not a hallucination that the victim is suffering from. He only sees in the room what is actually crawling and rioting in his own brain. Every time you take strong drink you swallow these maggots, and every time the imbiber of alcohol in any shape feels vertigo or rheumatism or nausea it is only the jubilee of these maggots. Efforts are being made for the discovery of some germicide that can kill the parasites of alcoholism, but the only thing that will ever extirpate them is abstinence from alcohol and teetotal abstinence, to which I would before God swear all these young men and old.

America is a fruitful country, and we raise large crops of wheat and corn and oats, but the largest crop we raise in this country is

THE CROP OF DRUNKARDS.

With sickle made out of the sharp edges of the broken glass of bottles and demijohn they are cut down, and there are whole swathes of them, whole win'rows of them, and it takes all the hospitals and penitentiaries and graveyards and cemeteries to hold this harvest of hell. Some of you are going down under this evil, and the never dying worm of alcoholism has wound around you one of its coils, and by next New Year's Day it will have another coil around you, and it will after a while put a coil around your tongue and a coil around your brain and a coil around your lung and a coil around your foot and a coil around your heart, and some day this never dying worm will with one spring tighten all the coils at once, and in the last twist of that awful convolution you will cry out, "God, my God!" and be gone. The greatest of dramatists in the tragedy of The Tempest sends staggering across the stage Stephano, the drunken butler; but across the stage of human life strong drink sends kingly and queenly and princely natures staggering forward against the footlights of conspicuity and then staggers back into failure till the world is impatient for their disappearance and human and diabolic voices join in hissing them off the stage.

Many also make a failure in the drama of life through indolence. They are always making calculation how little they can do for the compensation they get. There are more lazy ministers, lawyers, doctors, merchants, artists and farmers than have ever been counted upon. The community is full of laggards and shirkers. I can tell it from the way they crawl along the streets, from their tardiness in meeting engagements, from the lethargies they seem to hang to the foot when they lift it, to the hand when they point it out, to the words when they speak.

Two young men in a store. In the morning the one goes to his post the last minute or one minute behind. The other is ten minutes before the time and has his hat and coat hung up, and is at his post waiting for duty. The one is ever and anon, in the not most time to shut up. The other stays half an hour after he might go, and when asked why, said he wanted to look over some entries he had made, to be sure he was right, or to put upsome goods that had been left out of place. The one is very punctilious about doing work not exactly belonging to him. The other is glad to help the other clerks in their work. The first will be a prolonged nothing, and he will be poorer at 90 than at 20. The other will be a merchant prince.

HISSED OFF THE STAGE.

INDOLENCE IS THE CAUSE OF MORE FAILURES

in all occupations than you have ever imagined. People are too lazy to do what they can do, and want to undertake that which they cannot do. In the drama of life they don't want to be a common soldier, carrying a halberd across the stage, or a falconer, or a mere attendant, and so lounge about the scenes until they shall be called to be a Macready, or a Murdock or a Siddons, or a Junius Brutus Booth. They say, "Give me the part of Timon of Athens, rather than that of Flavius, his steward." "Let me be Cymbeline, the King, rather than Pisano, the servant." After a while they, by some accident of prosperity or circumstances, get in the place for which they have no qualification. And very soon, if the man be a merchant, he is going around asking his creditors to compromise for ten cents on the dollar. Or, if a clergyman, he is making tirades against the gratitude of churches. Or, if an attorney, by unskillful management he loses a case by which widows and orphans are robbed of their portion. Or, if a physician, he, by malpractice, gives his patient rapid transit from this world to the next, as the clumsy surgeon of Charles II., King of Navarre, having sewed up the feeble limbs of the King in a sheet soaked in inflammable material, and having no knife to cut the thread, took a candle to burn off the thread and the bandages took fire and consumed the King. Our incompetent friend would have made a splendid horse doctor, but he wanted to be professor of anatomy in the university. He would have sold enough confectionary to have supported his family, but he wanted to have a sugar refinery like the Redpaths. He could have mended shoes, but he wanted to mend the constitution of the United States. Towards the end of life these people are out of patience, out of money, out of friends, out of everything. They go to the poor-house to keep out of it by running in debt to all the grocery and dry goods stores that will trust them. People begin to wonder when the curtain will drop on the scene. After a while, leaving nothing but their compliments to pay doctor, undertaker and Gabriel Grubb, the grave-digger, they disappear. Exeunt! Hissed off the stage.

Others fail in the drama of life through demonstrated selfishness. They make all the Rivers empty into their sea, all the roads of emolument end at their door, and they gather all the plumes of honor off their brow. They help no one, encourage no one. "How big a pile of money can I get?" and "How much of the world can I absorb?" are

THE CHIEF QUESTIONS.

They feel about the common people as the Turks feel towards the Arapi, or common soldiers, considering them of no use except to fill up the ditches with their dead bodies while the other troops walked over them to take the fort. After a while this prince of worldly success is sick. The only interest society has in his illness is the effect that his possible death will have on the money markets. After a while he dies. Great newspaper capitals announce how he started with nothing and ended with everything. Although for sake of appearance some people put handkerchiefs to the eye, there is not one genuine tear shed between Central Park and the Battery, or between Brooklyn Heights and Brooklyn Hill. The heirs sit up all night while he lies in state, discussing what the old fellow has probably done with his money. It takes all the livery stables within 2 miles to furnish funeral equipages, and all the mourning stores are kept busy selling weeds of grief. The stone-cutters send in proposals for a monument. The minister at the obsequies reads of the resurrection, which makes the hearers fear that if the unscrupulous financier does come up in the general rising, he will try to get a corner on tombstones and graveyard fences. All good men are glad that the moral nuisance has been removed. The Wall Street speculators are glad because there is more room for themselves. The heirs are glad because they get possession of the long-delayed inheritance. Dropping every feather of all his plumes, every certificate of all his stock, every bond of all his investments, every dollar of all his fortune, he departs, and all the rolling of the Dead March in Saul and all the pageantry of his interment, and all the exquisiteness of sarcophagus, and all the extravagance of epitaphology, cannot hide the fact that my text has come again to tremendous fulfilment: "Men shall clap their hands at him and shall hiss him out of his place."

You see the clapping comes before the hiss. The world cheers before it damns. So it is said the deadly asp tickles before it stings. Going up, is he? Hurrah! Stand back and let his galloping horses dash by, a whirlwind of plated harness and tinkling head-gear, and arched neck. Drink deep of his Madeira and cognac. Boast of how well you know him. All hats off as he passes. Bask for days and years in the sunlight of his prosperity. Going down, is he? Pretend to be near-sighted so that you cannot see him as he walks past. When men ask you if you know him, halt and hesitate as though you were trying to call up a dim memory and say, "Well, yes-es, yes; I believe I once did know him, but have not seen him for a long while." Cross a different ferry from the one where you used to meet him lest he ask for financial help. When you started life he spoke a good word for you at the bank. Talk down his credit now that his fortunes are collapsing. He put his name on two of your notes; tell him that you have changed your mind about such things, and that you never indorse. After awhile his matters come to a dead halt, and an assignment or suspension or sheriff's sale takes place. You say: "He

OUGHT TO HAVE STOPPED SOONER.

Just as I expected. He made too big a splash in the world. Glad the balloon was burst. Ha ha!" Applause when he went up, sibilant derision when he came down. "Men shall clap their hands at him and hiss him out of his place." So high up amid the crags the eagle flutters dust into the eyes of the roebuck, and then, with eyes blinded, it goes tumbling over the precipice, the great antlers crashing on the rocks.

Now, compare some of these going out of life with the departure of men and women who, in the drama of life, take the part that God assigned to them and then went away honored of men and applauded of the Lord Almighty. It is about fifty years ago that in a comparatively small apartment of the city a newly-married pair set up a home. The first guest invited to that residence was the Lord Jesus Christ, and the Bible given the bride on the day of her espousal was the guide of that household. Days of sunshine were followed by days of shadow. Did you ever know a home that for forty years had no vicissitude? The young woman who left her father's house for her young husband's home started out with a parental benediction and good advice she will never forget. Her mother said to her the day before the marriage: "Now, my child, you are going away from us. Of course, as long as your father and I live you will feel that you can come to us at any time. But your home will be elsewhere. From long experience I find it is better to serve God. It is very bright [illegible] you can get along without religion, but the day will come when you will want God, and my advice is establish a family altar, and, if need be, conduct the worship yourself." The counsel was taken and that young wife consecrated every room in the house to God.

Years passed on and there were in that home hilarities, but they were good and healthful; and sorrows, but they were comforted, marriages as bright as orange-blossoms could make them, and burials in which all hearts were riven. They have a family lot in the cemetery, but all the place is illuminated with stories of resurrection and reunion. The children of the household that lived have grown up and they are all Christians, the

and the children following. What care the mother took of wardrobe and education, character and manners! How hard she sometimes worked! When the head of the household was unfortunate in business she sewed until her fingers were numb and bleeding at the tips. And what close calculation of economies and what ingenuity in refitting the garments of the elder children for the younger, and only God kept account of the mother's sideaches and headaches and heartaches and the tremulous prayers by the side of the sick child's cradle and by the couch of this one fully grown. The neighbors often noticed how tired she looked and old acquaintances hardly knew her in the street. But without complaint she waited and toiled and endured and accomplished all these years. The children are out in the world—an honor to themselves and their parents. After awhile the mother's last sickness comes. Children and grandchildren, summoned from afar, come softly into the room one by one, for she is too weak to see more than one at a time. She runs her dying fingers lovingly through their hair and tells them not to cry, and that she is going now, but they will meet again in a little while in a better world, and then kisses them good-bye and says, "God bless and keep you, my dear child." The day of the obsequies comes, and the officiating clergyman tells the story of wifely and motherly endurance, and many hearts on earth and in heaven echo the sentiment, and as she is carried off the stage of this mortal life there are cries of "Faithful unto death; she hath done what she could," while overpowering all the voices of earth and heaven is the plaudit of God who watched her from first to last, saying, "Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things. I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

But what became of the father of that household? He started as a young man in business and had small income, and having got a little ahead, sickness in the family swept it all away. He went through all the business panics of forty years, met many losses and suffered many betrayals, but kept right on trusting in God, whether business was good or poor, setting his children a good example and giving them the best of counsel, and never a prayer did he offer for all these years but they were mentioned in it. He is old now and realizes it cannot be long before he

MUST QUIT ALL THESE SCENES

But he is going to leave his children an inheritance of prayer and Christian principles which all the defalcation of earth can never touch, and as he goes out of the world, the Church of God blesses him and the poor ring his doorbell to see if he is any better, and his grave is surrounded by a multitude who went on foot and stood there before the procession of carriages came up, and some say, "There will be no one to take his place," and others say, "Who will pity me [illegible] and others remark, "He shall be held in everlasting rememberance." And as the drama of his life closes all the vociferation and bravos and encores that ever shock the amphitheatres, and the Drury Lanes, and the Covent Gardens and the Haymarkets and the Colosseums of earthly spectacle were tame and feeble compared with the long, loud thunders of approval that shall break from the cloud of witnesses in the piled-up gallery of the heavens. Choose ye between the life that shall close by being hissed off the stage and the life that shall close amid the acclamations supernal and archangelic.

Oh, men and women on the stage of life, many of you in the first act of the drama and others in the second and some of you in third and a few in the fourth and here and there one in the fifth, but all of you between entrance and exit. I quote to you at the peroration of this sermon the most suggestive passage that Shakespeare ever wrote, although you never heard it recited. The author has often been claimed as infidel and atheistic, so the quotation shall be not only religously helpful to ourselves, but grandly vindicatory of the great dramatist. I quote from his last will and testament.

"In the name of God, amen. I, William Shakespeare, of Stratford-on-Avon, in the county of Warwick, gentleman, in perfect health and memory (God be praised), do make this my last will and testament, in manner and form following: First, I commend my soul into the hands of God, my Creator, hoping and assuredly believing through the only merit of Jesus Christ, my Saviour, to be made partaker of life everlasting.

Then follow the bequests and the signature: "By me, William Shakespeare. Witnesses to the publishing thereof, F. Collyns, Jesse Shaw, John Robinson, Hammet Sadler, Robert Whattoott." Fit and beautiful closing of the drama of this life by a great dramatist.

We understand that Mr. Geo. Belford recited the above piece before the Mount Hebron Encampment of Oddfellows in Peterborough, a few days ago, and that they were delighted with his style. All who heard Mrs. T. Chas. Watson recite it last month, should hear Mr. Belford render it next week.

Ottawa Evening Journal.

The EXAMINER is in receipt of the Evening Journal, a new independent Conservative organ, published at the Capital by Mr. A. S. Woodburn. It is a neatly gotten up four page, seven column, paper, printed from new type and well filled with judiciously arranged matter. It is a very creditable issue, and will prove a formidable opponent to the spineless organ of the party at Ottawa. The EXAMINER welcomes the Journal to its exchange list.

Great Lumber Sale.

Mr. Jonathan Griffin, of Lakefield, having purchased from Messrs. Poussette & Roger, the balance of the Chalmers Stock of Lumber and Shingles at Young's Point, he has instructed Mr. George McIlmoyle, auctioneer, to offer the same by public auction, at the village of Lakefield, on Wednesday, the 23rd of December, commencing at 10 o'clock a.m., the whole stock, consisting of about one-quarter of a million feet of lumber, and seven hundred thousand shingles. This will be a bonanza for builders and contractors, as great bargains may be expected. For particulars see posters.

Christmas Presents.

The festive season will soon be upon us. At Christmas every loving husband makes his wife a nice little present. You don't know the effect it has on her nerves. Why, you get up in the morning and you will find your toast buttered on both sides, the baby all dressed, three fresh eggs instead of two at your elbow, and your coffee so steaming hot and sweet that you would think you were in Paradise. Husbands take warning, buy your darling little wife—or big, as the case may be—a nice easy rocking chair, sofa, or some suitable article of furniture at D. Belleghem's, and if you don't live well during 1886 it won't be her fault. There are many articles in the furniture line which would be very appropriate, and there is no better place to get them than at Belleghem's, Hunter street, Peterborough.

Our Satin Mounted Xmas Cards are Exquisite. A. L. Davis & Co.

Generous Gift.

A munificent, and it is to be hoped, substantial gift has been made to St. Paul's church by the Ladies' Aid Society in connection with that church. The gift consists of 50 dozen cups and saucers, 100 dozen plates, different sizes; with cream jugs, water jugs and slop bowls to match. Each and every piece is stamped "St. Paul's Church, Peterborough," and they are the finest granite ware manufactured. Messrs. Peter Conmal & Co. imported the goods, having had them made to order by the best manufacturers in England. The dishes will receive their "christening" by being used at the St. Paul's Church Sunday School Anniversary. The liberality of the ladies is to be commended and it is to be hoped the gift will prove as useful as it is novel, appropriate and beautiful. It will be the means of putting to an end the troublesome task of sorting out dishes after social entertainments.

Change of Office.

Mr. G. S. Rubidge, engineer-in-charge of the Trent Navigation works, has removed his office from Dalhousie street to the office formerly occupied by Dr. Pigion, corner of Charlotte and Stewart streets. It is hoped the engineer will make more progress with the plans and specifications of the canal in the new office than in the old, or it will be a cold day for the canal.

Curling Contest.

Fortune favors the brave, but when two parties of braves meet, one is compelled to take a back seat. The curlers who went to Lindsay yesterday to play a game with the Lindsay men were defeated. They do not complain of inhospitality on the part of their opponents or offer any excuse. The following were the competing rinks and the scores made:—

Rink No. 1.

PETERBOROUGH.		LINDSAY.
A. Stevenson,		Jas. Keith,
R. N. Roddy,		J. G. Edwards,
W. Sailsbury,		W. Needler,
T. P. Attrill, skip	16	S. A. McMurtry, skip	27

Rink No. 2.

John McClelland,		J. Cooper,
C. McGill,		W. McLennan,
W. H. Budden,		T. E. Bradburn,
G. Dunsford, skip	15	J. D. Flavelle, skip	28

Majority for Lindsay....24 shots.

The Peterborough rinks were not the best of the club, while the Lindsay rinks were composed mostly of their Montreal prize-winners, the best to be had in the club, which may in some degree account for the result.

Market Items.

The market was a scene of great activity this morning. Offerings of produce were large and varied, and were bought freely. Poultry was the principal article in demand and was purchased irrespective of sex or political principles. The butter market was filled with the odor of sage, thyme, mint, etc. Vendors of candies and other sweets were distributed around the square. Quotations were as follows: Butter, in rolls, 17c. to 20c.; in tubs, 8c. to 12c.; eggs, 20c.; turkeys, 50c. to $1.00; geese, 60c. to 75c.; chickens, per pair, 25c. to 40c.; ducks, per pair, 75c.; beef, per cwt., $4.50 to $5.50; pork, per cwt., $4.50 to $5.50; mutton, per lb., 6c. to 7c.; apples, 60c. to 75c. per bushel; potatoes, 60c. per bushel; beets, per bag, 60c.; parsnips, per bag, 60c.; carrots, per bag, 40c.; turnips, 35c.; onions, $1.00 to $2.00 per bag; cabbage, 3c. to 5c. per head. The addition to the butter market was not used. The work has been completed all but straightening up. The market clerk will have to issue reserved seat tickets.

Open for Traffic.

The work of rebuilding the Smith Street Bridge has been completed, and it is now open for traffic.

Accident.

Mr. Cranfield, driver for T. W. Robinson, met with a severe accident yesterday afternoon. He was in the act of taking a barrel of plaster off the delivery sleigh when one hand slipped and the whole weight came down on his other hand, scraping the flesh off three of his fingers to the bone; no bones were broken. His injuries were attended to and he is getting along as well as could be expected.

I keep a livery stable and own a great many horses, out at all hours and all kinds of weather. For the many troubles which arise and injuries to which stock are liable, I unhesitatingly pronounce Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia the most valuable remedy ever used in a stable. I have tried them all and am competent to judge. Theodore Gould, Mount Vernon, N. Y. Sold by John McKee. d'63eodw50

Sunday Sermons.

Sermon by Archdeacon Pinkham on the North-West, delivered in Saint Luke's Church, Ashburnham—Sermon in Saint Paul's, by Rev. G. H. Wells, of Montreal—Anniversary of the opening of Saint Paul's Sunday School.

The Rev. Archdeacon Pinkham, of the Diocese of Rupert's Land, occupied the pulpit of St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, on Sunday morning. He preached a very interesting and instructive sermon on the work in the North-west. He based his remarks on the 14th verse of the 5th chapter of Paul's Epistle to the Corinthians:

"For the love of Christ constraineth us."

The following is an outline of the sermon:

For the love of Christ constraineth us, that is the love of Christ who came down to die for us, rightly conceived and applied. It is the highest gratitude. What a power of influence it was on St. Paul, changing him from one of the worst persecutors of the church to

A MOST ARDENT MISSIONARY.

Strife, imprisonments, hunger, cold and persecutions were all endured by him for Christ. As soon as Christ made himself known to Paul, the love of Christ constrained him. Paul immediately went to work and did all he could to further Christ's work. There were the same privileges now. The diocese of Rupert's Land was a large field for the work. It included the whole of Manitoba and

A LARGE PART OF ONTARIO.

It should be borne in mind whose work it was and it would commend itself to Christ's church. Christ had died for these people and all possible assistance should be given to supply them with the Word.

A little over seventeen years ago, he, in company with several others, some of whom were from the congregation of St. Luke's Church, had crossed the plains to meet the Bishop of Rupert's Land and engage with him in the work of that great field. There were then only 22 clergymen engaged in the work of the diocese and one bishop. There are now 6 bishops and 100 clergymen, besides chatechists and lay readers. For this all church people should be thankful. Railways had opened up the country at the same time facilitating the work and increasing it. Not many years ago he had travelled from Fort McLeod in Minnesota to Winnipeg and nor even the habitation of anyperson. At that time all the Red River settlement was the same. Now it is quite changed and there are large territories well populated. People had settled without regard to religious and school privileges, and there are now many large districts without even one clergyman. There were 50 clergyman stationed in Rupert's land, and of these 17 stations were self-supporting, the rest being supported by outside aid. Twenty-five clergyman were at work among the new settlers, all having extensive districts. There were large settlements unsupplied. He gave examples of three large districts, the largest of which contained a tract of 12 municipalities and 180 townships, had only one resident clergymen. There were many other districts unsupplied. All had a fair protestant population. The board of missions, appointed two years ago for collecting for Algoma and the Northwest, had secured a promise of $7000 a year; $1000 of which was for St. John's College. Of this amount only $1300 or $1400 was contributed last year, and this year they had only received the small sum of $450. There were many other demands on the churches. What was wanted for next year for the Northwest missions was $7500. They proposed to place ten more clergymen among the new settlers. A guaranteed amount was required or they could not get good men. They hoped soon to have self-supporting congregations, and as they are

FOR DAYS SAW NO ONE

BRETHERN AND SISTERS OF OURS

it was hard to refuse them support. St. Luke's congregation had given considerable to support them. He hoped that when the collectors for the scheme went around this year they would receive more liberal contributions. If several congregations would contribute, the required amount could easily be raised. At one time the churches in England had assisted to support their church and they should help to lay the foundation stone in the Northwest. The work had been greatly blessed in Rupert's Land. There were no divisions. The clergymen were always well received. Those who loved their church should assist others in supplying them with what they also loved. He had been engaged in different work throughout the diocese, and was well acquainted with its requirements. He had been privileged to hold the first services in Edmonton, Regina, and other places. He had been lost on the prairie, but had suffered no bad effects. He had had the privilege of preaching in England and Eastern Canada to large congregations, but had never felt the privilege so glorious as when

IN THE SETTLER'S HOUSE

When the rebellion took place, there were those who were ready to go forth, and many who did go forth and fight for their country. Should it be that there would be any who were ready to assist in their country's cause, who would not go forward to help the more glorious cause of the church?

Every effort was being made to make the missions self-sustaining. The amount required this year was $7500. When enjoying the light, let others also enjoy it. In this let the love of Christ constrain you.

St. Paul's Sunday School Anniversary Services.

In connection with the above occasion, the Rev. G. H. Wells, of the American Presbyterian Church, Montreal, preached both morning and evening, besides addressing a Sunday School assembly in the afternoon. As the subject of the morning's discourse the Rev. gentleman took for his text a clause of the ninth verse of the second chapter of Exodus.—"Take this child away and nurse it for me and I will give thee thy wages."

The subject was most appropriate for the occasion as it was applied by the preacher, and proved a sermon for the parents about the children. The sublime character of the great law-giver, Moses, was dwelt upon and which operated in giving to this man such a distinctive and exalted character formed the outline of the discourse. These were three principally: (1) The home training, (2) the school training, and (3) the teaching which is indispensable to and inseparable from the character of him who would be truly great—the teaching of God himself. The first he received from his mother, the second in the Egyptian court, and the last in the solitudes of the desert. A short time, only a few years at the most, had the tenderness of a mother's love, a mother's sympathy, and a mother's moulding of character been allowed for the early and only preparation of her boy for the battle of life, for the snares of the world, the flesh and the devil,

AND YET IT WAS SUFFICIENT.

What encouragement to mothers and fathers to have faith in God; to breathe into the lives of their children in tender years those moral principles of God, and truth and right, which shall be in them "a well of water springing up unto everlasting life!" It was sufficient. When the temptations of the court of the palace of Pharaoh presented themselves; the temptations of luxury, of honor, of worldly ease; of sin, in all its most fascinating and insidious forms; the parental training, the whisper of a mother's prayer in the ears of the infant child was yet more than these, and "by faith," the Apostle tells us "when Moses was come to years he refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season." Here was the wages of a faithful mother, and which God promises to every parent, who, by an honest heart and upright example brings up a child in the way it should go. In our day, too much was thought of

THE COLLEGE TRAINING,

and too little of the parental. But when God comes to ask an account of parents of those souls which had been entrusted to them for training for this life and that which is to come, it would not do to answer that they were sent to Sunday School and college. In this age he hoped the prophecy would become more and more fulfilled, "When he shall turn the heart of the fathers unto the children," that conversion of children would be more eagerly pursued and believed in. The preacher himself had never forgotten and never could forget the early impressions received at the family altar, and advanced the statement that in nearly every case of Bible and secular history, greatness and nobleness of character could be traced to

THE INFLUENCE OF A GOOD MOTHER.

A college training, too, was necessary. No one could have too much culture or education who meant to use it for God's glory, and God approved of it. Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians. God set no premium on ignorance and when he wanted a man for his great mission of instructing the churches, he chose Saul of Tarsus, that eminent and cultured scholar.

This excellent sermon, full of spiritual and practical guidances, closed with an earnest exhortation to parents to persevere in the good work of moulding the child's character in its early years and thus fortifying it for the triumphal victory over sin and self in subsequent years.

It is necessary to hold over the synopsis of the evening's sermon, owing to the pressure of other matter. It will appear in to-morrow's issue.

Our Approaching Municipal Elections.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

The time for action will soon be upon us. If the people feel that they have a duty to perform they have not much longer to think about it. It is reasonable to suppose that they have some choice in the selection of councillors. It is reasonable to believe that they would like to see the business of the town conducted in the best and most economical manner. It is their interest to see this done. And it can only be done by choosing the best men for that purpose. It is useless to tell us that our taxes are light as compared to the taxes of other towns, and therefore that we ought to be content. But it must be remembered that there is not a town or city in Ontario in such a favorable position as we are. Other places are overburdened with debt, whilst we are comparatively free. If our finances are

MANAGED AS THEY MIGHT BE MANAGED

we could in the course of a few years pay off our debenture debt and then all we would have to do would be to raise revenue enough simply to pay our municipal expenses. But some persons do not want this. They think the town should go into debt. That we should spend money freely, and that we must invent some means to require us to do so. But this getting into debt theory will hardly please the people. They have worked hard for what they have got and they want to keep it and have the benefit of it for themselves. They mean every tub shall stand on its own bottom, and they mean that every one shall pay his fair share of municipal expenses. They don't want to see one man's property exempted and their own property taxed to make up the difference, as proposed by Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, Rutherford, Kendry and Hartley. They want equal justice and fair play and they mean to have them, even if the gentlemen named above have to be left at home for the purpose. The people once a year have an opportunity of being heard. And it is lucky for them that they have. And if they will only use their opportunity aright, and put the right man in the right place, they need not have much to complain of for the coming year at all events. They must not forget that upon their choice of councillors will depend the success or defeat of the question of exemptions which has occupied the time of the Council for the last six months. If they want to set that question at rest, they must put men in the Council who will carry out their views. But if they want to be compelled to take their money and pay other people's taxes with it, they will, of course, send back the men who have tried their best to make them do so. In all probability a proposal will be made to the incoming Council to in providing a system of sewerage all over the town. The people will be told that their lives in a measure depend upon the carrying out of such a plan. What is wanted just now is a big job out of which to put money in somebody's pockets, and the people must be frightened or gulled into giving it their support. Last spring the scheme to assist in filling in Spalding's bay, but that fell through. Now it is to something else. And the five councillors, whom I have named, will in all probability approve of any large public measure which will require a large expenditure of the public money. And I have been told that Mr. Kendry will likely want a further exemption of the Auburn Mills from taxation for the next ten years. These mills have already had one ten years' exemption and $2,500 in money besides, but there would be nothing strange in seeing Mr. Kendry, an employe at these mills, giving it as his opinion, backed by his vote, if he gets into the council again, that such extended exemption would be both right and just. If the people will only keep free from making promises to candidates to vote for them, and so keep themselves until polling day, they can then vote as they see their interests require. And if they can free themselves from personal and partizan prejudices and will vote only for the man who will economize and save the taxes, where this can be done, and keep out of debt, we will soon be in such a favorable pecuniary position as to bring into our town many settlers who otherwise will stay away.

SPEND, PERHAPS, A HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS,

A VOTER.

Peterborough, Dec. 11th, 1885.

The Late Dry Goods Prince.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The tribute which the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher paid on last Sunday to the late Horace B. Claflin, grandiloquent and eulogistic as it was, did not exaggerate the opinion in which he was held by those intimate with his inner life. Mr. Claflin was for years a veritable pillar in Mr. Beecher's church. He paid the highest price for a pew. On one occasion it amounted to $1,200 for a year's rental. He had been a trustee of the church from its organization, in 1847, and was president of the board at the time of his death. He subscribed most liberally to church affairs, was the most zealous defender of its pastor through the terrible scandal and trial; was, in fact, like a brother to Mr. Beecher. And yet, never having made a profession of faith, he was not a communicant or really a member of the church. So unostentatious was he in his charity that it will be a surprise to some to know that he was probably second to Peter Cooper as a philanthropist. He was always careful and discriminating in his almsgiving, but grateful for the privilege in a case of genuine need.

THE LATE HORACE BRIGHAM CLAFLIN.

It is as the leading wholesale dry goods merchant of his time that Mr. Claflin will be best remembered. He entered the business at a time when there was a chance for the development of a tremendous dry goods business under one management and lived to see the time when it was almost impossible to continue it. His business will undoubtedly fall to pieces, as did A. T. Stewart's on the latter's death. New York is no longer the great dry goods center. The changes in trade inevitable from the growth of Chicago and St. Louis, which made them great distributing centers, undoubtedly affected the bulk of Mr. Claflin's business, the western centers obtaining a great advantage over New York by making all their purchases "delivered in Chicago" or "St. Louis," as the case might be.

For years the two firms of Claflin and Stewart led the dry goods trade in this country, but of late years Bates, Reed & Cooley and Marshall Field & Co., of Chicago, have got ahead. It is understood that Mr. Claflin leaves a fortune of nearly $10,000,000. He came from a family of money makers. His ancestors were Puritans. His father was a store keeper in Milford, Mass., where, in 1812, Horace was born. A peculiarity of Mr. Claflin's was in regard to his age, which he would never disclose to any one except his wife. His invariable response to queries about it would be: "Well, I'm over 40." Even his partner, Mr. Eames, states that he never knew how old Mr. Claflin was until after his death.

Mr. Claflin was eminently a domestic man. He was fond of being at home with his wife and family, and enjoyed their society greatly.

Thos. P O'Connors, M.P.-elect, and Parnell's trusted lieutenant, thinks that the Parnellites could easily raise £1,000,000 in America to carry out the Nationalists' measures.

The New York State Board of Health has withdrawn its vaccinators, and the quarantine restrictions upon people entering the State at Niagara Falls have been removed.

The trial of Dr. Andrews and three female prisoners, charged with attempting and assisting to procure abortion, has been adjourned till Wednesday. The alleged seducer is also in custody.

Practically, at the present, Canada has no administrative body. Two thirds of the members of the Cabinet are skulking out of the country, that is, away from the capital, to escape the personal unpleasantness of meeting the consequences of their misgovernment. Canada enjoys Home Rule with a vengeance. We are not only free from outside dictation but the government machinery is allowed to run itself.

LETTING HIM SEVERELY ALONE.

The speech of Hon. Mr. White in Peterborough was the first official deliverance made by any minister in Ontario since the rising of parliament, and considering the stirring political events that have cropped up since the close of the Northwest Rebellion, one would naturally assume that his speech would be one of the first importance. Yet, strange to say, but little attention has been devoted to it. Not one of the Tory organs has had, as far as have been able to see, a single line of editorial reference to the official defence of the Government's Northwest policy. They have severely let him alone. The conclusion to be drawn is plain. Hon. Mr. White's defence, as we have before pointed out, was so weak as to be tantamount to a plea of guilty. And if he could not make a good defence, no other cabinet minister could do so. Mr. White is the equal to any of them in ability—he is as competent as the best of them to make the worse cause appear the better—and he is master of the whole facts connected with the matter; he has access to all the documentary evidence his Department affords; he has personally been over the ground and has, therefore, been able to avail himself of a vast deal of information in no other way obtainable. Yet after three months' preparation of his brief, after three months industriously spent in collecting evidence for the defence, his presentation of the case, his plea of defence, is so flabby that the party organs, which usually, politically speaking, see "sermons in stones and good in everything" done by a cabinet minister of their party, do not see enough in it to justify even a few words of formal commendation. The inference is irresistible that the Government is guilty of the political crime laid to its charge, and that all defence urged is only a form of proof of its guilt in being responsible, by misgovernment and official indifference, for the recent outbreak in the Northwest. The people will hold it to its responsibility, and though Sir Alexander Campbell's blue book may be submitted as an acquittal, though Hon. Thomas White's speech may be regarded as an acquital—though none of his organs has had termity enough to make such a claim—there is yet the final court of appeal, the people, to pronounce upon the question, and unless all patriotism is dead, there can be no two opinions as to what their verdict will be.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Port Hope Guide wants to know if the Tory platform is the one they hanged Riel on?

Hon. Arthur Stargis Hardy, Q.C., M.P.P., Provincial Secretary, was born at Mount Pleasant, Ont., Dec. 14, 1837.

The Toronto Tribune says it is stated that sufficient signature as required by law to warrant the Scott Act petition to the electors of Toronto have been secured.

The Ontario Government has appointed Rev. Dr. McCurdy, lecturer on Assyrian archæology, Princeton College, to the post of Tutor in Oriental languages in Toronto University College.

There is every probability that the coming Session of Parliament will be a late one, not before the latter end of February at the earliest. The truth is the Government is afraid to face Parliament and, therefore must have the dies ire put off as long as possible.

Goldwin Smith contends that the money spent in the Scott Act agitation on both sides in Toronto, had better be devoted to the relief of the destitute the coming winter, and he calls on the Scott Act Association to decide as to whether they will or will not submit the Act at once.

The West Durham News, a political opponent of Hon. E. Blake, has the following reference to his Edinburgh speech:—"Mr. Blake, of course, made a speech, and certainly a good one, for he can not only hold his own in speech-making, but can shine in any assembly which can be gathered together, and, at this particular banquet, he had a brilliant and intelligent audience.

Notice is given in the Canada Gazette of the intentions of certain individuals to apply to Parliament for an Act for the incorporation of a railway, with power to build from Louisville to Lake Temiscamingue. This lake lies directly north of Toronto, and under the "height of land" at the south eastern corner of the once Disputed Territory of which Sir John tried to rob this province.

With the imprisonment of Mr. Stead, editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, the excitement about his revelations seems to have died out. Yet the embers appear to be smouldering still. Rev. J. W. Horsley, chaplain of Cherkenwell prison, concludes a letter on social purity to the Church Times as follows: "Let me add a word of warning to some. The recent exposé has been in rem. If the London Press continues its policy and its tone, there must be another—and it will be in personam; and then a storm will be aroused, compared with which the recent wrath will seem but a passing frown."

The Ottawa Government must be in a bad way, when even its subsidized organs threaten to desert the sinking ship. The Mail goes exactly counter to many of the positions assumed on behalf of the Government by Hon. Thos. White in his Opera House speech. When at last a man has been found to shoulder the deficit and face the monstrous muddle in monetary matters left by Sir Leonard, the organs have not a word of genuine praise. The Ottawa Citizen extends a very cold and clammy hand to the new Finance Minister [illegible] compliment that Hon. Mr. McLelan is "a worthy successor of Sir Leonard Tilley," the man of deficits, is the very refinement of "damning" with faint applause.

A Disinterested Opinion.

The Toronto Mail now pretends that the Liberal party violates all the proprieties, by charging the responsibility for the rebellion upon the Government, but that was not always its opinion. Here it is in extenso the utterance from that leading Government organ made on July 8, last, sentences from which were given in a recent issue:—

"It has never been denied by the Mail that the Metis has good ground for grievances. By the passage of the Manitoba Act of 1870 old Canada had formally and frankly recognized the right of the Halfbreeds of that province to share in the Indian title, and it follows as a matter of course that if they had rights in the soil of Manitoba, those of them dwelling in the regions beyond had rights in the soil there. This admitted of no dispute. It must have been quite well understood by Parliament in 1870; at events the records show that the Government of the day recognized the point, though a settlement was not then asked for. In spite of this recognition, however, and of the manifest and unanswerable logic of the Halfbreed case, the department for years and years steadily refused to move in the matter. It was a tangled question; it would involve the appointment of a commission and no end of trouble; St. Albert and St. Laurent were far distant dependencies without political influence; it was a claim that would be NONE THE WORSE FOR BLUE-MOULDING IN THE PIGEON HOLES. This was the way in which the officials treated the JUST DEMANDS OF THE METIS, and we agree with Mr. Blake, that their negligence was gross and inexcusable, and contributed to bring about the insurrection."

Thus, it will be seen that an organ, no less unbiased than the Toronto Mail actually agreed with Mr. Blake that the officials' "negligence was gross and inexcusable, and contributed to bring about the insurrection." Our contemporary may argue that it only intended to censure the officials; but it must know that under responsible government the Cabinet ministers cannot thus shelter themselves. In truth if they could do so, the country might as well dispense with the Cabinet, and leave the permanent departmental officials to run the administration. There, however, can be no question that the Cabinet ministers are responsible for the actions of their subordinate officials, and therefore are chargeable with the gross and inexcusable negligence, which the Mail properly says contributed to bring about the rebellion. But our contemporary did not halt there. It went so far as to assign a motive for the Government's indifference to the prayers of the Halfbreeds; and that motive was the fact that the Metis had no votes! The Mail evidently knew how to estimate its own political chieftains accurately, and it may be depended upon, it would consciously do them no injustice; and, therefore, when it intimates that the lack of votes by the Metis prejudiced their claims in the eyes of the administration, it must be accepted as speaking by the book. Here are its own words:

"Had they had votes, like white men or if like Indians they had been numerous enough to command respect and overawe red tape, without doubt the wheels of the office would have revolved for them; but being only halfbreeds, they were put off with eternal promise until patience ceased to be a virtue. We repeat again that the departmental system under which such callous and cruel neglect of the rights of a portion of the community was possible, was wrong and should be censured."

The Mail of July 8, last, stated that this gross injustice should be censured; and it is certain that in January or February next, Parliament will take our contemporary at its word. A vote of censure will be moved and probably carried. But strange to say that our contemporary is not pleased at the prospect of its excellent advice being carried into effect. It threatens civil war, and the break up of a Confederation as a consequence. As a consequence of what? Why, merely of its own advice being acted upon; and of those who were responsible for the rebellion being censured by Parliament. A Tory is naturally a discontented animal and one impossible of being pleased; and after this inconsistent exhibition by the Toronto organ of the ministry that opinion is confirmed.—Ottawa Free Press.

FROST BITTEN.

"I don't know; she gives him encouragement enough. Ross Arnold is home from Philadelphia for a visit. I heard him ask to see her home last night, but she declined, saying she had an engagement with Liscombe."

Mr. Liscombe had heard her, too; and it almost gave him courage to ask the question that for two months had trembled in his heart and on his lips. But his tongue always refused to do its office, and so, to-night, although he intended to tell her he loved her, he found himself saying: "Were you much acquainted with Harris, Miss Mattie? I used to see him at the divinity school."

Miss Mattie removed her hand from his arm for an instant, but only to take her handkerchief from her pocket, and replied, with a sweet emphasis, "He was a very different person from you, Mr. Liscombe."

The tender inflection of her voice gave him the long-sought courage. "O, Miss Mattie," he cried, determined to say it now if he choked in the attempt, "if you only knew what you have become——"

"Hark!" Mattie turned her head. "Isn't that Kate St. John calling me?"

Yes, it was she, hurrying breathlessly to overtake them. Mr. Liscombe did not like Kate St. John. She was Mattie's very intimate friend, and had interrupted so many precious tete-a-tetes that he dreaded the sound of her voice. She was a telegraph operator and boarded one door above Capt. Frost's. Mattie often went to the office to be company for her in the evening, sitting out of sight behind the wire screen until 8 o'clock, when Kate was relieved from duty by the night operator.

The days grew warmer and the ice went out of the river, but it was still heaped up in great, broken sheets in the lake, and it might be several days before a boat would venture through.

"To-morrow is my 18th birthday," said Mattie, as they walked home from church. Mr. Liscombe had been telling her important news; he had just received an appointment to a parish in the eastern part of the State, but would not take his departure until Easter. Only one thought was in his mind—that he would take her with him to his new home. He had never yet declared his passion—but her birthday! He would present her with a volume of Tennyson with such tender passages marked that she could not help but understand him.

Capt. Frost was out of town; he had gone up to the pineries to see about some timber, and his wife, taking advantage of his absence, had driven over to Plain View, a village six miles distant, to spend a few days with an old friend, leaving Mattie to keep the house and sleep with her old friend Kate. It did not look like a very brilliant celebration of her birthday, but she seemed unusually animated as she saw that everything about the house was orderly and then went to the school-house door to speak to Mr. Liscombe. She frequently stopped to see if he had the list of hymns or to tell him that choir-meeting would be a half hour earlier or later than usual to oblige one of the girls. But no errand of this nature brought her today. He thought she seemed agitated as he stepped into the vestibule, and, without waiting for him to speak, she said:

"Mr. Liscombe, will you do me a great favor?"

"I will do anything in the world for you," he replied earnestly, for once forgetting his bashfulness.

"Then will you meet me in the church tonight at 7 o'clock and not tell a single soul?"

"In the church at 7 o'clock. Yes, I will be there," he said.

"Be sure," she cried almost breathlessly, "don't make any mistake," and moved away, but turned back to add: "Remember, you must not tell any one at all."

What could it be? Was she made desperate by the news of his approaching departure and would tell him that she could not bear him to leave her? His gentle heart was filled with dismay at the thought of causing her pain, but if she only would take the initiative and say she loved him, how inexpressibly relieved Mr. Liscombe would be.

He was promptly in the church at the hour she had designated, and, lighting one small lamp, waited quite happy and confident for her to come and bring his fate.

A long, deep steam-whistle broke the quiet of the evening. "A boat has gotten through the lake," said Mr. Liscombe. Immediately there was a din of shouts and hurrahs. The first boat through was a great event, and almost the entire populace rushed from their houses and down to the levee to welcome the first break in their long, monotonous winter. But all the boats on the Mississippi would not have drawn Mr. Liscombe from his station in the church, watching to see the door open and the mistress of his heart appear. It din open—she came, but to his sudden dismay she was not alone. Was he mistaken? Could that be tall, handsome John Harris? Close behind came Kate St. John and a stranger.

Mattie was very pale, but her eyes shone with a light never seen there before. Even then Mr. Liscombe could think he had never seen her so beautiful.

"Mr. Liscombe," she cried, "you promised to do me a favor."

"How do you do, Mr. Liscombe," said John Harris. "I have come to ask you to marry me to Miss Frost."

"Marry you?" gasped the young clergyman.

"Certainly, and we are in a hurry, too."

"You haven't any license," he faltered.

"No licenses are required in Wisconsin," proclaimed four voices in unison.

"Miss Frost isn't of age," he wailed, piteously.

"Isn't to-day my 18th birthday?" asked Mattie, severely.

He thought of the underlined copy of Tennyson he had sent her that morning, and great drops of perspiration covered his face.

"Come, Mr. Liscombe," said the bridegroom impatiently, "there is no reason why you should not marry us; we are in great haste," and taking a prayer-book from a pew, opened at the marriage ceremony, handed it to him. "Please begin at once," he said, authoritatively.

The clergyman could see no way of escape, so he tremulously read the solemn service that made the girl he had come prepared to clasp to his heart the wife of another man. John Harris kissed his bride, led the way to the vestry, and, holding the lamp in his hand, beside Mr. Liscombe filled out the blank marriage-certificate he took from his pocket. Kate St. John briskly signed her name as witness, and underneath hers the stranger placed his autograph, "Philip Sherwin, Clerk Str. Montague."

"Thank you, Mr. Liscombe," said John, leaving a crisp $5 bill in his limp grasp.

"Good-by, Mr. Liscombe." Mattie was gracious to the last. "I shall never forget your kindness, nor how good you have been to me this winter."

"Good-by," whispered Kate. "I would like to go down with you, but I had better stay here and keep Mr. Liscombe quiet a little while."

John, his wife, and Mr. Sherwin walked hastily to the river, avoiding the well-lighted streets. The steamer's whistle sounded long and loud. "That means me," said Mr. Sherwin, laughing; "the Captain's getting impatient."

There was a crowd about the levee and Mattie trembled with excitement as she stepped on to the plank leading to the deck of the Montague, but she was closely cloaked and veiled and had passed twenty acquaintances without their recognition. As the whistle again was heard and the boat swung around to the middle of the river, a small boy said: "Mr. Harris got on the boat here. He had his hat over his face, but I knowed him."

"I suppose you will all think that I have done worse than Mattie," began Kate, "but I have helped her all the time and I am glad of it."

"All the time!" repeated Mr. Liscombe.

"Yes, they were engaged before Mr. Harris went away. He got a situation in a telegraph-office in Dubuque. He learned telegraphy when he was a boy, so all he had to do was to send messages to Mattie through me and I answered them for her."

"Deceived her parents," groaned her listener.

"O, well, she was sorry to deceive her mother, but her father—I really believe that the Captain would have killed her if he had known that she was engaged to John. This morning," she continued, "he sent a message that he would be up on this boat some time between 7 and 9, and for Mattie to have you here ready to marry them——"

"Me ready!" It was almost a moan.

"So that telegrams sent to stop them, or any fussing of that kind, could not make any trouble. And the clerk of the Montague, Mr. Sherwin, is a friend of John's and he came up to the church with us, so that if anything had occurred to detain them the boat would not go on without them. But it has all come out splendidly, and there's the whistle; they are gone now. Good-night."

At Easter Mr. Liscombe went to his new parish. There was a young lady at the organ, but he never looked at her; he was shyer than ever of pretty girls.

A year from the following summer Kate visited Mattie. John had long since left the telegraph office to keep the books of a wholesale clothing house. Mattie looked pretty and happy, though somewhat older; but she no longer played in church she had to stay home to take care of the baby.

The New Bey of Tunis.

The new bey of Tunis is described as "a short-legged, obese, little man, near-sighted and deaf," who, when he desires to review the troops on horseback, must be lifted into the saddle. And yet, from the date of the late bey's accession, he was generalissimo of the Tunisian army. Formerly, he was a man of active habits and energetic will, and was charged with preserving internal order and with chastising those tribes who harried the Algerian colonists. During the French expedition against Kroumirs there was considerable apprehension felt at Paris lest he should oppose the march of the French troops. His youngest brother Taleb is declared to have been played off against him by M. Roustan, who threatened to make up with Taleb and put him forward as a claimant to the succession. All of late years has "grown soft and lazy."

Roger appeared for the complainant, and Mr. C. A. Weller for the defendant. Mr Weller attempted to show that the by-law under which the complaint was made was not in force. After a lengthy discussion, the Magistrate ruled that the by-law was in force, and the evidence was called. It was shown that Mr. Webber maintained a slaughter house on Park street. Judgment was deferred.

Serious Accident.

An accident occurred on Saturday afternoon by which Miss Hogan, housekeeper for Mr. W. H. Rackham, had her leg broken. Miss Hogan was preparing to take Mr. Rackham's children for a drive. They not being quite ready she started to drive the horse around the block. In going down Stewart Street near Charlotte, the horse became unmanageable and bolted, heading for a narrow entrance between the house and verandah of Mr. John Ray. Miss Hogan, seeing the danger, attempted to jump from the cutter, and in doing so was thrown against a tree, breaking her leg below the knee. She was carried into Mr. Ray's house and Dr. Pigeon called. The doctor immediately attended and set the broken limb. Miss Hogan was then carried on a couch to Mr. Rackham's house, where she is doing as well as could be expected. If she had stayed in the cutter she would in all probability have been killed, as the horse went through an opening less than 6 feet wide at a very rapid rate, smashing things generally.

ALMOST A CONFLAGRATION.

Just as the Rev. Mr. Andrews was reading the first lesson of the morning service in the Presbyterian Church, yesterday, an alarm of fire was quietly whispered, and the congregation soon filled the vestibule and porch in their anxiety to learn the worst, which proved to be that the lath near the furnace pipe, next the front, had taken fire, and the inner wall seemed to be consuming. Willing hands soon tore away the lath from the centre wall under the gallery, in the main body of the church, also the wall under the rose window in the gallery was stripped of plaster and lath, and in a wonderfully short space of time water was being poured down all available places wherever the smoke appeared, till streams ran from the gallery front into the church below, and the wall beneath seemed thoroughly saturated. It was well that this happened at service time, else the beautiful structure we are all so proud of, would soon have been destroyed. The fire in the wall must have made considerable headway, as those engaged in the Sunday School noticed an odor of burning pine all through school hour.

It was a costly blunder of those who lathed the church that they put the wood so close to the great furnace pipe, that almost the first heavy fire should ignite the well seasoned stuff. Why do men who know the great risk of fire, require so much watching? It was criminal carelessness, to say the least, and might have had most serious results. COM.

Musical Vespers.

Brilliant Musical Service at St. Peter's Cathedral.

Last evening there was an immense attendance at St. Peter's Cathedral, one that tested even the large seating capacity of the restored church. Rev. Father Lavecque intoned the vesper service, the responses being made by the choir. The Rosary was recited by Rev. Father Conway after which he preached on the subject of the Immaculate Conception, the text being taken from the first chapter of St. Luke's Gospel, 48th verse, "For behold, from henceforth all generations, etc." After the sermon the musical addition to the services were presented in an excellent manner by the effective choir of the Cathedral. These consisted of the Cujus Animam, from Rossini's; Stabat mater, the solo being taken by Miss Begley. This was followed by the trio, Jesu de Viva, (Verdi), in which the soprano was taken by Miss Dunn, the tenor by Mr. Geo. Ball, the bass by Mr. T. Dunn. The third selection was a solo and chorus, Benedicta Maria, the solo taken by Mr. T. Dunn. Then followed Rossi's Tantum ergo, in which Mr. Wm. Ball appeared in the tenor solo, Mr. James Coughlin in the bass, and both in duet, the choir joining in the full chorus. The musical services were delightfully rendered and added greatly to the impressiveness and interest of the occasion. At the conclusion of the sermon, Rev. Father Conway made an appeal on behalf of the charitable funds of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, and a collection was taken, making a substantial addition to the funds.

Sunday Sermons.

The following is a synopsis of the sermon delivered by Rev. G. H. Wells, in St. Paul's Church on Sunday evening, and crowded out of yesterday's issue:

The rev. gentleman took as his text a clause from the 16th verse of the 24th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles.

"I exercise myself."

He explained that one of the meanings of the word "exercise" is to make a finished article out of a raw material. As a workman forms the finest tapestry from silk or wool; or as the cutting and polishing a diamond from a rough pebble to a perfect jewel. The training of the mind was what Paul referred to and he could not have chosen a better word to express it. From the actual to the possible was a mighty work. His mind though rough, might attain unto infinite greatness. As the sculptor uses the best marble, Paul took his mind as the best thing to improve or exercise. Others might do as they pleased, but he would endeavor to have the

FAIREST AND MOST PERFECT MIND,

by governing and restraining that which was wrong and improving and cultivating that which was good.

We judge men by the efforts they put forth to advance the race, and honor them in proportion as they are successful. But if their works are for evil, no matter how brilliant, we say they are not great. The real work is the development of the minds of men. The man who has the greatest thoughts

IS THE GREATEST MAN.

The man who set himself to cultivate the mind, that which we cannot see but only imagine, receives the most honor. The man who had done the most for men was Jesus, he never spoke of statesmanship, all he did was for the souls of men. No statesman has ever been listened to as He was. And those men who have followed Him have been

THE MOST HONORED.

A good musician was thoroughly acquainted with his instrument and produced the sounds desired with ease; the athlete was well acquainted with his powers and could trust on all his muscles when required; the orator could with ease express his thoughts in the nicest language; and

ALL DUE TO TRAINING.

And so the man who would do good must be trained first as the athlete, the musician and the orator are. How different do we find it. Men say "I ought to be able to do this work, but I can't," because they are not trained, and like unskillful workmen, do more harm than good. They are slow and blundering, and consider Christian work a burden and a cross, and accordingly take long rests. Like a stream in the Catskill mountains, which forms a small cascade high up on the mountains. A few years ago an enterprising person invented a way of governing the water so as to have a large fall when visitors came to see the sight. The piety of some is much like this. It is kept for a long time and is shown at intervals. This is not like the picture Christ shows. He said he would give a well of water springing up and overflowing.

Practice makes perfect. All that we admire in the voice of a beautiful singer was attained by

STEADY AND UNREMITTING PRACTICE.

Religion may become easy and delightful by practice. Paul did not grumble, but gave up everything for it. He sang even in prison. It was not always easy for Paul. He said of himself, "The things that I would do I do not, and that I would not I do." The key to all his success was that he exercised himself. Like Dimosthenes, who by presistent practice, rose from a timid stammering boy to be the greatest orator.

RELIGION IS A WORK

or business as much as anything can be. It would not come by wishing for it no more than education or fortune. If you would be strong mentally and spiritually, you must train as for physical strength. It is true we cannot render ourselves acceptable, but it is not true that we cannot assist in our salvation. We can accept it, and then work. We talk of Lincoln and Garfield as

SELF-EDUCATED MEN.

They were not really self-educated, but had used the means in their power more than others do. The sailor did not sail his vessel, he only trimmed the sails, and took advantage of the winds, tides, and other forces. It is the same with the Christian life. We can trim our sails, accept Divine guidance, and shunning rocks of evil, will land at last in the heavenly harbor. "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling, for it is God that worketh in you, both to will and to do of His good pleasure."

Religion, besides being the most noble work, is the work which receives the

SUREST AND GREATEST REWARD.

No toil can be compared to that which seeks to perfect the human mind. When in the Far West the speaker had visited one of the richest gold mine known in the world. Sometime this great work will be abandoned and all the metal will, sooner or later, be destroyed. But the soul of the poorest workman who labored there will live forever, for good or evil. We often wish for

A WORK THAT WILL ENDURE.

We have the privilege within ourselves of training a soul for endless bliss. In this mine before mentioned, he had seen ore which looked like base rock, yet it was the richest ever found. We cannot estimate the worth of a soul, for God declares we are of infinite value. Be not discouraged for the Master sits as a refiner of silver looking for His image and will take us as His jewels. We should take the apostle's advice and exercise ourselves.

St. Paul's Anniversary Tea.

The First Anniversary Successfully Commemorated—The Tea, the Music and the Address.

The tea in connection with the anniversary of the opening of St. Paul's Sunday School rooms, given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, yesterday evening, was a decided success and was a most enjoyable event, such as might be expected of anything under such management. The spacious school rooms of the church were furnished with eight large tables beautifully decorated with cut and other flowers and provided with a lavish abundance of all kinds of edibles.

There was not an exceedingly large attendance, but just enough to make the enjoyment of the repast complete. After a blessing had been asked by Rev. Mr. Munro an attack was made upon the viands prepared. Numerous attractive and attentive young ladies acting as waiters added to the enjoyment by supplying tea and coffee and otherwise performing the functions of that office. The beautiful granite ware, the present of the Ladies' Aid Society, was much admired and seemed to give an extra relish to the repast. The seige was continued until 8 o'clock when an adjournment was made to the audience room of the church where the was provided. The chair was occupied by Rev. Mr. Torrance, the pastor of the church, who, during a delightfully pleasant couple of hours introduced the following programme: The choir, which was composed of some 27 voices, and whose singing during the evening, betrayed the excellent training they have received at Prof. Parker's hands, opened with the anthem "O be joyful in the Lord." To this succeeded a charmingly presented duet, "Love divine all love's excelling," by Miss Clara Cluxton and Mr. Craven.

Rev. Mr. Munro then delivered a brief congratulatory address, referring to the rapid lapse of another year and impressing upon the congregation the improvement of the privileges possessed and the earnest fulfilment of the duties devolving upon them.

Mr. Gael then contributed a pleasing bass solo, which was followed by the anthem, "Consider the Lilies," in which the solo was taken by Miss Logan.

Mr. Torrance, in a brief speech, in which he departed from the characteristics for which he is best known, introducing a rich vein of humor, referred to Rev. Mr. Wells as an old friend of a dozen years standing, whom he had the pleasure of accompanying on a trip to Great Britain and the continent.

Rev. Mr. Wells was delighted with the privilege of visiting Peterborough, a pleasure that he had long anticipated. He congratulated the congregation of St. Paul's upon the place of worship they possessed and pronounced it a proof of the church's work and faith—a work-shop in which to labor for the glory of God and the good of their fellow men. In the course of a long, eloquent and earnest address, the like of which on a similar subject is seldom heard in Peterborough, he pointed out to the congregation that this church gained its first importance from its being a place for setting forth the simple truths of the Gospel which was especially needed in an age full of 'isms, moral theories, and of general unrest in matters of belief. The plain, simple Gospel was what was needed. The speaker held that the vice and weakness of the pulpit was its apologetic tone. Preachers would find much more effective results from their sermons if they preached Christ and him crucified instead of vain arguments against the theories of scientists. St. Paul, in coming to cultured Rome, wicked Rome, luxurious Rome, considered that the plain, simple Gospel was all-sufficient. The Gospel preached in its fullness and purity offered a solution of all the political and social problems of the day. This church was a place dedicated as the temple of a pure and positive theology—a lighthouse from which would stream the light of good living, sound doctrine, Christian enterprise and personal religion, and a higher condition of Christian activity. The reverend gentleman's address was listened to with the attention, which its earnest eloquence important teaching and logical soundness deserved.

Miss Cluxton at the conclusion of the address sang in excellent voice and taste, Ambrose's "One Sweetly Solemn Thought;" and the anthem, "God be Merciful," with the solo charmingly taken by Miss Stephens, concluded the programme, and a pleasant and profitable evening's enjoyment and entertainment was closed, with the benediction pronounced by Rev. Mr. Torrance.

Reciprocity and its Prospects.

A Subject that Has been Revived by President Cleveland's Message.

MONTREAL, Dec. 11.—Those parts of the president's message touching upon reciprocity are discussed here with most interest. At first the opinion appeared to prevail that reciprocity would go far enough to include fish, coal, iron ore, lumber and salt, but no farther.. As the discussion proceeds, however, the view gains ground that the new arrangement will take a wilder reach than this. The probabilities are thus outlined by some who have paid attention to the subject. It is to be taken for granted that American farmers are naturally opposed to the free admission of Canadian grain and other produce, even if reciprocated. But the whole shipping, produce and commission trade along the northern tier of states are in favor of it, and will work hard to secure it. More important still, perhaps, the whole American railroad interest, counting eastward from the Northern Pacific railroad region through S. Paul, Duluth, Milwaukee and Chicago to the seaboard, is in favor of it too. This great American railway interest will work with might and main for the change, and may be able to convince farmers south of the line that they will gain by it more than they will lose. Such is the view advanced by some who are well posted, but time must tell. It would mean substantially the old reciprocity treaty over again. These American interests—railway coal, iron and lumber—will all support it. What particular interests are bound to oppose it must soon appear.

Perdition to Polygamy.

Senator Edmunds, the author of all the anti-polygamy laws of the United States, is determined to crush the temporal power of the Mormon Church as well as its peculiar institution. The bill which he will this year submit to the Senate is by far the most stringent of the measures he has devised. All previous laws have been directed not against the Mormon Church, but against polygamy. Charters of incorporation are presumably granted for the good of the community and the power that grants them can resume them if palpably used for mischief. The evil of polygamy is not the only one which the Mormon Church inflicts. It is stated, with what exactitude we do not know, that nearly all the laboring portion of the Mormon community are deeply in debt to the church. The new Edmunds law is devised for the purpose of putting a stop to this money rule over the subject, and provides for the assumption by the United States of all the temporal power and duties of the Mormon Church. It is in fact a scheme for the disestablishment and disendowment of the State Church of Utah. The Mormons are now not far removed, it would seem, from active rebellion and the provisions of this law will not have a pacifying effect.

FIXING THE BLAME.

The subsidized Conservative organs, (with the notable exception of the Mail, which has told a portion of the truth about the matter, though it now seems to be ashamed of so novel a departure)deny stoutly that any misgovernment or maladministration in the Northwest led to the rebellion. But their denial only results in the production of more proof. The Government, through its officials has iniquitously misgoverned the Northwest. It has not only denied justice to the half-breeds, and robbed them of their lands to bestow them on political colonization companies, but it has also ill-treated and starved the Indians. At the session of the Northwest Council, the "speech from the throne" read by Lieut.-Governor Dewdney sought to whitewash the Government. But this attempt only brought out new, and not at all palatable, truths, respectiug the Government conduct of the Northwest affairs. The following extract from the report of the debate on the address of the Northwest Council throws a flood of light on the subject:

Mr. Jackson (Conservative) referred to the attempt of Mr. Dewdney to whitewash the Dominion Government in his (the Governor's) speech, and asserted, on the authority of Dr Edwards, that it was true the Indian Head Indians (five of them) died of starvation. The Indians were not able to exist on the rotten pork and mud flour doled out to them by the Indian agents.

His Honour—False! false!

Mr. Jackson—I can prove the matter on oath. He then stated that unquestionably gross frauds were prepetrated by the Indian Department on the Indians in the delivery of provisions, etc. The Governor owed it to the Indians and the public that that matter should not be hushed up,

His Honour—It was not smothered up.

Mr. Jackson—It wasn't? Then how were the parties punished.

His Honour—That you'll find out by and by.

Mr. Jackson referred to His Honour's sneer at him as "the Halfbreeds' representative." He could assure His Honour if he, Mr. Dewdney, went for election amongst the Halfbreeds he would get very few Half-breeds votes. Few would regret His Honour's departure from the Territories. In fact if His Honour were driven out of office he had no doubt the North-west grievances would disappear.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The election in King's county, New Brunswick, will be held on the 31st inst., nomination day being fixed for the the 24th.

Sir Richard Cartwright, Mr. H. H. Cook, M. P., and Mr. Drury, M.P.P., will deliver addresses on the questions of the day at Orillia on Thursday next

A local rumor says that as Mr. Tasse stands no chance of re-election in Ottawa city, and Sir Hector Langevin none in Quebec province, that Sir Hector will be one of the Conservative candidates for Ottawa.

Herbert Gladstone, son of the "grand old man," has written a letter discountenancing the separation of Ireland from Great Britain, but adds, "but if five-sixths of the Irish people desire a Parliament in Dublin to manage local affairs, in the name of justice and wisdom let them have it."

The South Birmingham Post another English journal, in discussing the execution of Riel, wishes "That the Canadian Government will see that all cause for the legitimate discontent is speedily removed, for Riel's rebellion, unfortunately, was not wholly without cause."

The cabinet changes do not arouse the enthusiasm of the Toronto newspapers. The Toronto Mail presents Mr. Foster's qualifications as being those of a Baptist; the Globe says the ministers are "two new incompetents." The World damns with faint praise, but the Toronto News scathingly criticises the satirizes the appointment.

Hon. Prof. Foster, the new minister of Marine and Fisheries, should fill the bill exactly. He is essentially an acquatic, if not a marine man, he is a Baptist and a cold water orator, and, as for fishing he has spent his political life at fishing for preferment. He is a specimen brick of the so-called "independents." He was elected as an Independent by Liberal votes in 1882. As soon as he got to Ottawa, "however," "nevertheless," he caught the fever of the land grabbing mania. He applied for and got a grab of fifty square miles of territory, and buried his Independence beneath it, and became an out and out Tory—for the sake of the loaves and fishes. The loaves he has secured as he went along and the fishes came with his new portfolio. The chief recommendation of Hon. Prof. Foster to the place to which he has been appointed lies in the fact that he has been a fishy politican all his life.

The Montreal Herald predicts that parliament will assemble on the 25th of February.

The Montreal Herald (Ind.), after criticizing severely the cabinet changes, says:—"It is well known that the changes announced yesterday were decided upon before Sir John Macdonald left for England; in fact, they were actually made; but the swearing-in was put off until another election for Sir John could be held. In the meantime, the finances, and deficit, etc., although in such unsatisfactory shape, were deemed of less importance, and better entitled to wait, than the perfecting of 'pipe-laying' in connection with the protection of party interests. This may be called 'statesmanship,' but the less we have of that sort of statesmanship the better the people of Canada will like it."

Port Hope.

A meeting was held on Friday, for the purpose of organizing a skating club, Mr. Helm's pond, Mill Street, being utilized for the purpose. It is proposed to put an electric light in the centre of the pond, and to meet expenseas season tickets will be issued at a low rate. The following were elected officers:

Hon. President—Mr. J. H. Helm.
President—Mr. T. H. Ambrose.
Vice-Pres.—Rev. Father Brown, Judge Benson, Chas. Stuart, Esq.
Sec-Treas—M. R. A. Mulholland.
Executive Committee—Messrs. W. L. Connoly, S. J. Jarvis, D. F. Wood, J. H. Cooper, F. H. Salter.

Lecture on Chiniquy.

(From the Norwood Register.)

The Rev. Mr. Bennett, of Peterborough, delivered his lecture, "Chiniquy, his Trials and Triumphs," in the Presbyterian Church here on Tuesday evening last. The audience was not as large as the lecture and its subject merited. The lecture was full of thrilling incident and graphically detailed the trials and triumphs of Mr. Chiniquy, a man, whether as priest or minister, who has wielded more influence for good than any living Canadian. The lecturer described the childhood of Mr. Chiniquy, who like Timothy, was taught the Holy Scriptures, that as a boy he would read to the neighbors who would gather at his mother's home, from the Bible, since that home was the only one in the parish in which a copy of the Scriptures was to be found. His great success when a priest as a temperance reformer, the love and devotion always evinced to him by his fellow-countrymen, and the high esteem in which he was held by his ecclesiastical superiors, were vividly and eloquently told. Then his removal with a large number of French Canadians, to Illinois, his labor of self-devotion for his little colony, building a church and schools; the conflict which there was going on in his own soul between light and darkness, his interview with his Bishop and his final rupture with Rome, and his bringing the whole of his flock with him into the Protestant fold, were narrated with dramatic and thrilling effect. The civil actions he had to contend against, the false witnesses subs,nec to crush and destroy him, the frequent and ineffectual attempts made upon his life on his return to Canada, his success in bringing hundreds of his countrymen into Protestantism, were related in language of simple but sublime pathos. Mr. Bennett in his lecture has done both his subject and himself justice, and we hope that congregations who have not heard the lecture will see to it that they do so, since it is one both highly instructive and interesting.

At the Antwerp Universal Exhibition, Van Rysselberghe gave a practical solution of the possibility of sending a telegraphic and telephonic message over the same wire at the same time. The transmission and receipt of the messages were effected by the usual instruments over ordinary telegraph wire.

Talking with a New York Sun reporter, the old usher of the St. Nicholas hotel, now closed, referred to old-time patrons of the house as follows: "Erastus Corning, the former president of the New York Central railroad company, used to come with very light baggage. As for Gil Davidson, his partner, his heaviest baggage was a big roll of bills he always carried in his pocket, a share of which he always left with the boys. I never saw a more

Among the most recent uses discovered for luminous paint is for tapes for field use at night by the Royal Engineers' Department. Starting from a given point toward the front, the men leave a trail on their track, and on reaching a given point they mark the contour of the earthworks to be executed by the same means, paying out the tape as they return toward the camp. The working party then follow the outward trail, execute the work, and return to camp without having discovered a single ray of light to the enemy.

A plan of accurately measuring the temperature of a distant station by telephone has been described by Dr. R. Lenz. Two wires—one of silver and one of iron, or one of antimony and one of bismuth—connect the observer with the distant place, and any variations in the end loops of the wires as regards temperature causes a sound in a telephone, which ceases when the temperature at the observer's loop is brought to the same point as that of the opposite end—which may be miles away.

Oxygen Cheaply Liquified.—In a note to the French Academy of Sciences, Mons. Cailletet has communicated a plan for producing liquid oxygen which is so simple that it is expected that the product may soon become an article of commerce, as liquefied carbonic acid now is in Germany. He states that when the gas known as formene is slightly condensed and cooled in boiling ethylene under atmospheric pressure, it is resolved into an extremely volatile colorless fluid, and this fluid, in returning to a gaseous state, yields a degree of cold sufficient to immediately liquefy oxygen.

Mrs. Sargent, wife of the American Minister at Berlin, in a letter describing a call upon the Empress of Germany, said: "Her majesty surprised me by asking about my daughter Lizzie. She had heard that Lizzie began the study of medicine in California and was now continuing it in Zurich. 'We are much interested in medicine,' the Empress added, and then spoke of the civil war in America and the Franco-Prussian war, saying that the Germans had gained much valuable information from the Americans as to the treatment of sick and wounded soldiers, which was put to good use in their last war."

"Are you aware," asked the parson, "that you will have to answer for every idle word at the last day?" "Well," replied the trifler, "there's comfort in that. The trial will last so long that eternity will have nearly passed, and therefore one's punishment won't be so very severe."—Boston Transcript.

Professor Huxley insists that stockings of the same size, if of different colors, are not of the same size at all. He might as well tell us that stockings of the same color, if of different sizes, are not of the same color at all. It is not known how long the Professor's mind has been in this lamentable condition.—Norristown Herald.

A Lancaster gentleman, in honor of his thirty-ninth birthday, invited a dozen of his friends to dinner. On the table at each guest's place was something to designate his business—a bottle of medicine for the physician; for the real estate agent, a toy house bearing the placard, "For Rent;" for the soldier, a sword; the attorney, red tape; hardware merchant, package of nails; the hatter, miniature silk hat; the iron merchant, piece of tire iron; the jeweler, a gem; coral merchant, a piece of coral, and a well-known Alderman took the only remaining place, in front of which was a large terrapin shell and corkscrew, to indicate that he was fond of good living.

D. H. Moffat, who is President of the First National Bank of Denver, an institution whose deposits are over $3,000,000, was approached by Ferdinand Ward about a year ago with a request for a loan based on promises of enormous profits. Mr. Moffat, in speaking of it the other day, said: "Ward wanted $100,000, and said he could make for me $50,000 on it in sixty days. I told him I didn't know why he should be so good to me; that I had never done anything for him. I guess he understood me, for he went off. I never took any stock in the fellow. He was too white-livered. I never tie up to a man when I can see through his ears, as I could through Ward's."

Prospecting Party.

Messrs. R. A. Mulholland, J. P. Clemes, W. E. Beamish, J. B. Trayes, A. Winslow, W. Gamble, J. Eakins and W. G. Stevenson, who attended the Conservative convention at Millbrook yesterday, finding the village very dull and the prospects for a good meal slim, took the evening train for Peterborough, where they knew they could enjoy civilization and have their wants supplied. They amused themselves around town for a while and returned home on the 8:50 train. The party registered at the Oriental.

A Fine Portrait.

Peterborough has an abundance of artistic talent. Mrs. L. E. Horning is the latest and most promising aspirant for popular favor. Her beautiful life size crayon bust portrait of Mrs. Scott-Siddons now on view at Morgan's drug store is a capital piece of drawing and shading, betraying the true artistic touch and a fine perception of the qualities that go to the production of a first-rate picture in crayon. Mrs. Horning need not fear inspection of her work. She will place on view in a day or two, two excellent crayon portraits enlarged from photographs.

Anniversary Services.

The Anniversary Services of the Murray Street Baptist Church will be held on Sunday the 20th Dec. when the Rev. Dr. Castle, Principal of McMaster Hall, will preach both morning and evening. On Monday the 21st Dec., the annual tea-meeting will be held in the basement of the church. Tea will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock p.m., when the Rev. Dr. Thomas of Jarvis Street Church will deliver his great lecture on "Men for the age." Tickets for tea or lecture, 25 cents each; for both 35 cents each.

Hospital for One Week in Peterborough.

The Grand Central hotel was absolutely converted into a hospital last week by the doctors of the English staff of Physicians. There were 311 cases examined, and out of that number there were only 122 found to be curable. The staff will not take any case to treat without there is a moral certainty of effecting a permanent cure. If after an examination the doctor finds that the disease is incurable he refunds the money to the patient as willingly as it was accepted. The frankness, honesty and candour which has been manifested by the doctor to his patients has secured for the English Staff an unparalleled success in Peterborough. The doctor will return in about two months.

Attained its Majority.

To our readers who see in agriculture an art to be followed by the light of intelligence rather than speculation, we commend for their approval the Farmer's Advocate and Home Magazine. This journal has been established 20 years, is edited and owned by a practical farmer of 50 years' experience, and as an educator of the farmers in matters pertaining to agriculture, stock, dairy, apiary, &c., &c., combined, the Farmer's Advocate stands without a peer. It is got up in neat shape for binding, neatly printed on fine paper, and each number is well illustrated with original practical drawings. In addition to its fund of information for the farmer, its Home Magazine Department pleases all the members of the family, young and old, who find in it a large amount of profitable and entertaining reading. This month sample copies are sent free to applicants.

A Painful Injury.

This morning Mr. L. E. Horning, mathematical and science master in the Collegiate Institute, met with a very painful injury. He was experimenting in the laboratory to show his class the effects of combining chlorate of potash and sulphur. These were being triturated in a mortar, when Mr. Horning laying down the pestle with more force than he intended, an explosion ensued. The result was that his right hand was painfully lacerated, the two middle fingers especially, the nail of one being blown completely off, and that of the other so torn that it will come off. He will be deprived of the use this hand for some time to come.

Police Court.

Abraham Rose was brought before Magistrate Dumble this morning charged with assaulting his father, James Rose, on Sunday last. He pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by jury. The magistrate heard the evidence offered to see if there was sufficient to support the charge. The evidence showed that James Rose had ordered his son Abraham out of his house on Sunday last, and the son refused to go, and a family quarrel ensued. The magistrate thought the matter could be disposed of without being taken to a higher court. Mr. O'Meara, counsel for the defendant, consented to the proposal. The magistrate then ruled that the father had a perfect right to eject his son from the house, and on being assured that the parties would cease quarrelling, imposed a nominal fine of $1.00 on the son.

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough:

And that the offer to light the Council Chamber with one electric light at one dollar per night be accepted.

Also that the tender of McAndrew & Noble for the heating of the new Council Chamber and other offices, for the sum of $975, be accepted.

All of which is respectfully submitted.
A. RUTHERFORD,
Chairman.

Mr. Cahill expressed it as his opinion that the Council should be taken into the confidences of the Committe a little more in such important questions, by being informed as to the specifications of the contract. They should not accept the contract blindly.

Mr. Hartley said that the plans and specifications for treating the new buildings were by an oversight omitted from the report.

A discussion ensued, in which it was expressed as a general opinion that the report should be referred back to the Committee to decide more particularly as to the time the clock tower should be leased, and stipulations made with regard to the keeping of the tower in proper repair; also the reconsideration of the contract for heating the new town buildings, with a view of utilizing one boiler to heat the new buildings and the fire hall and hose tower.

It was moved by Mr. Hartley, seconded by Mr. Cahill, that the report of the Building Committee be referred back to the Committee for reconsideration.—Carried.

Sons of England.

The Hearts of Oak Hold High Festival.

About fifty members and guests sat down to a really excellent supper, prepared by mine host Croft.

In response to the toast of the "worthy President and officers of the Lodge," Mr. Gunn said that the aim of the Society was to bring Englishmen together for mutual improvement and assistance, and link them together by the tie of patriotism friendship, love, confidence and interest. The order, he said, was founded in Toronto, in December, 1874, and Lansdowne Lodge about two years ago. In a little over two years, this body had increased from 20 to 100, and now stood highest in the order for work during last term, having initiated no less than 55 members. There were to the credit of the lodge about $400, and everything was prosperous and satisfactory.

During the evening many excellent songs, speeches and recitations were given and the lodge can congratulate themselves on the high success and pleasure of their annual dinner.

The following is the toast list:—

"The Queen."

"The Prince and Princess of Wales, and all the Royal Family."

Song—"God bless the Prince of Wales," by company.

"Governor General of Canada."

Song—"The Girl that I call Mine," by W. Whitaker.

"Army Navy and Volunteers."

Song—W. Bowman, "Paving the Way."

"Most Worthy Grand President, Secretary and Treasurer."

Song—"Jolly good Fellows," by company.

Recitation—W. Tivey.

"Our Sister Societies," was appropriately responded to behalf of the Oddfellows by Mr. Foote and on behalf of the Foresters by Mr. Hooper.

"The Town Council," Mr. John McNaughton, being the only member of the body present, was called upon and acquitted himself admirably.

Songs—W. Whitehair and W. Gunn.

"Our guests."

Song by company—"They are Jolly Good Fellows."

Mr. H. T. Strickland wished the order success. He was proud to be the son of an Englishman. The aims of this society had his fullest sympathy and approbation, and were founded on the greatest of the cardinal virtues—charity.

Mr. Wm. Davidson and Mr. Wm. Wand also responded.

Recitation by Mr. Hooper—"Curfew Shall not Ring To-night."

Song by Mr. Whittaker—"A Rolling Stone Gathers no Moss."

"Our Town and Industries" was responded to by Mr. W. A. Stratton and Mr. J. McNaughton.

Recitation—Dr. Pigeon.

Song, Mr. Bowman—"Alonzo's Bride."

Song—Mr. Clark Spencely; encored.

"Our Railroad Friends and Others" called to their feet representatives of the C. P. R. and G. T. R., Messrs. Brundett, Waram and Forbes.

Mr. Barlow, song—"Battle of Trafalgar."

"The Sons of England;" proposed by Mr. W. A. Stratton, and responded to by Mr. Gunn.

Song, Mr. Bowman—"The Widow's Daughter."

Song, Mr. Mitchell—"Write Me a Letter from Home."

"The Press." Representatives of the local journals.

Song—Mr. Blade.

"Host and Hostess," Mr. Croft.

The annual banquet of the society was a most delightful success, which seems to be only a reflection of the general prosperity of the organization.

Decorative Art.

Passing up and down, engrossed with weighty cares of business, we catch glimpses of beauty, bringing their aftermath of pleasant thought and feeling. One of these privileges came to us the other day in a hurried view of Miss Sanderson's window. Surely no lady need enter and leave that establishment without securing her hearts' desire in fancy article, either useful or ornamental. Here are lovely hoods and jackets for lovely babies, charming toques for equally charming Misses, bewitching Fascinators for beautiful and artless maidens. Let ye young men beware! A novelty which strikes our attention particularly is a wonderful imitation of leather cut in sprays of flowers and sundry designs. This material is shown in screens by which fair faces may be protected from too intensive rays of light or heat. Further on we see a set of musical instruments — Banjos, Harps, Guitars—so admirably constructed that nothing seems wanting, but the touch of skilled fingers to bring forth the waiting melody. Here the practical meets the artful, these pretty backgrounds supporting Whisks, Calendars, and cunning little Thermometers. Celestial regions have contributed designs in golden stars and silvery crescent. Inspiration has been drawn even from the kitchen, the culinary department being glorified by dainty little pastry pins, decorated in style which would gladden the heart of Oscar Wild, and studed with tiny hooks, safe deposits for keys, rings, &c. Was not Solomon a little behind the time when he declared there was nothing new under the sun? Time would fail to specify the articles on exhibition. To one and all who desire fancy goods for home use or Christmas tokens, we say, go to Miss Sanderson's, and you are sure to be gratified.

The Wrong Shoulders.

It can only be called "cheek"—assurance is too weak to word. The hired organs not only deny that the Tory Government is not responsible for the rebellion through any misgovernment, but even have the hardihood to assert that the Mackenzie Government is to blame. It is asserted that in 1878—note the time—Hon. Mr. Mills had his attention drawn to the wants of the halfbreeds and their claims, and that he totally ignored these claims, and thus was responsible for the outbreak seven years after. What are the facts. The half-breeds asked for seed grain and implements, and Hon. Mr. Mills did not see the wisdom of supplying these at the people's expense. In this, of course, he was greatly to blame—he might have made it a paying political investment. A Tory government would at once have acceded to the request, for the sake of benefitting the hangers-on of the party. Seed grain and implements would have been granted to the halfbreeds, and their distribution left to the party heelers. The result would have been, as later experience proves, that the parties for whom the seed grain and implements were intended, might have got the grain sacks and the plough handles—the rest would have "stuck" to the hands of the Government agents. Regarding the claims in the matter of lands, Hon. Mr. Mills assured the halfbreeds that if they settled down in fixed locations and devoted themselves to agricultural pursuits, land would be secured to them. The reader must recollect that this was in 1878, the year the Mackenzie government went out of power, and, of course, that government was not in a position to carry out its policy for the redress of grievances. The reader will also recollect that the Tory Government had seven years to move in the matter and had the claims of the Metis urged upon them almost incessantly during that time, yet not the slightest attention was paid to them. Not only this but over acts of injustice were committed. The lands of the half-breeds, on which they had settled, which they had improved, cultivated and built upon, were taken from them and assigned to colonization companies, which acts of spoliation was more than the half-breeds could stand and armed resistance was the result. The Mackenzie Government was disposed to do justice to the half-breeds, but the claims of the latter were presented at the close of its lease of power and of course it was not in a position to take action. But the Tory Government had seven years of opportunity and took no action till the outbreak of rebellion forced them to do so. A contemporary coolly asserts:—"But now everything has been satisfactorily settled, and peace and contentment reign among the settlers of the far North West." There is a vital omission in this smug self-congratulatory little sentence. It is not stated that this settlement has cost the country a disastrous rebellion, an expenditure of millions of dollars, the loss of hundreds of valuable lives. The trying to throw the blame of the rebellion on Hon. Mr. Mackenzies Government, shows what desperate straits the organs are put, to earn their subsidies by relieving the government of the day, of its burden of guilt in producing the Northwest Rebellion.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

During his stay in London, Sir John Macdonald has his quarters at Batt's Hotel, Dover street, Piccadilly.

Russia wants Bulgaria to accept her protection; in other words, the bear has invited the lamd to lie down with him.

Welland County municipalties pay $10,000 a year to support vagrants and other casual paupers that find their way into that district. Wouldn't a poorhouse pay better.

Mr. Westbrook, formerly of Brant County, was on Monday elected Mayor of Winnipeg, notwithstanding that the local Tory Government and municipal jobbers made a dead-set to secure his defeat.

The annual meeting of the Conservative Association of East Durham was held at Millbrook on Monday. Mr. John Beatty was elected President and J. J. Preston, Secretary. No general politics was talked over—merely family politics, so to speak.

The distress among the working classes in Paris is so great that it has been proposed to hold fetes of industry and commerce for their benefit. And the electors of France were told that if they would only permit themselves to be taxed high they would all be made rich and happy.

Protection and the monopoly it involves seems to be doomed in the United States. A bill is to be brought into the House of Representatives to create a cabinet department to be called the department of labor, with a Secretary and Assistant Secretary, the former of whom shall be a Cabinet officer. The duties of this Department shall be to acquire and diffuse among the people useful information on subjects connected with labor, to ascertain the causes of discontent which may exist between employers and employees and to recommend proper methods for the adjustment of the same. The Secretary is required to make annual reports showing the general condition of labor throughout the United States, the evils under which laborers are suffering, if any, and whether such evils are the results directly or indirectly, of legislation or from the lack of it; and giving a statement of all labor strikes, riots or disturbances, setting forth clearly the exact claims of both parties to the controversy. Sworn statements are to be required from employers, showing the wages paid by them and the profits realized from or watered stock. The present Bureau of Labor Statistics is to be merged with this Department. When the interests of labor receive the same attention as capital does, capital won't be half so anxious for the perpetuation of a protective policy, for such a policy cannot exist with a proper regard to the rights of labor.

Jack Frost's Tail.

A little 4-year-old girl went running into the house the other day exclaiming: "Mamma, mamma, I've seen Jack Frost! I've seen Jack Frost!" "Where did you see him my darling?" queried the mother. "I saw the tip of his tail hanging over the eaves." She had seen an icicle.

The Balkan War.

Conflicting Reports Regarding the Last Battle.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—Such conflicting reports are received of Saturday's fighting between the Bulgarians and the Servians on the frontier that no attempt is made by those interested in the situation to estimate the effect that the engagement will have upon the negotiations for the settlement of the Balkan dispute. The first reports may have exaggerated the importance of the engagement, as it seems likely that otherwise some additional particulars would ere this have been received. The report emanated from Belgrade, and, of course, declared the Servians to have been victorious. The Bulgarian side of the story is yet to be heard. No hint of the consummation of the labors of the Ambassador's Conference is yet received, and there seems no present prospect for a speedy settlement of the conflicting interests.

The Blessing of Wealth.

Two tramps whose clothes were as ragged and tattered as clothes ever got to be, while sitting behind a fence discussing some cold victuals, were heard to say:

"I wish I was rich?"

"What would you do? Buy up the Legislature and run for the United States Senate, or would you take a trip around the world in your yacht?"

"No, that's not what I would do. I don't care to awe people."

"Maybe if you were rich you would do just nothing at all."

"Yes, I'd do that part of the time, but I have another reason for wanting to be rich."

"Start a daily paper in a one-horse town?"

"No, I would'nt be a fool if I was rich, I'd want to enjoy my wealth. If I were rich I could wear old old clothes without having people call me a tramp and make remarks about my slovenliness. There is more solid comfort in that than anything else."

Northwest Misgovernment.

How Macdonald Refused to Recall an Incapable Governor.

It now transpires that shortly before the close of the last session of the House of Commons a deputation of Conservative members asked for the removal of Lieutenant-Governor Dewdney. It was urged that Mr. Dewdney should be removed from his position of Indian Commissioner, even if he was retained as Lieut.-Governor, as there was no disguising the fact that his ill-treatment of the Indians was the cause of their uprising. Sir John was very indignant at the demand for removal of his protege, and told his supporters that they might as well have asked for his own resignation. Mr. Dewdney was a good officer and he (Sir John) intended to stand by him through thick and thin. If Mr. Dewdney was not fit to be Indian Commissioner, he was not fit to be Lieut.-Governor, and it would be impossible to remove him from one position and retain him in the other. The delegation left convinced that the back stairs "influence" exercised by Mr. Dewdney over the Premier was too strong for them.

Book Notice.

GODY'S LADY'S BOOK for January is a number equipped with special attractions. The steel engraved frontispiece, illustrating a couplet from Goldsmith's "Deserted Village," is a fine character study of juvenile life. It represents a scene in a country school a century ago and is one of the most finished engravings ever offered to the subscribers of a monthly magazine. There is an extra colored fashion plate this month, a page of original decorative designs, a work plate in colors, and the usual number of illustrations in black and white. The book opens this month with a story by Mary E. Bradley, "A Case of Necessity," and the conclusion of Mr. Bowman's picturesque "Romance of a Brute." A very charming Christmas story, called "Midwinter Night's Dream," appears in this number together with the account of "Miss Evelyn's New Year's Calls," by Kate Neely Hill, and a charade on the word "New Year's," by Mrs. S. L. Oberholtzer. Helen Mather's serial, "Love Lies a Bleeding," is continued this month and there is a judicious sprinkling of poems by several graceful writers of verse. The fashion and work departments of Godey's Lady's Book are admirably conducted, and practical hints on dressmaking, housekeeping, etc., are of substantial utility. With this number two new departments, i.e., Science and Agriculture, have been opened in the Arm Chair, and new subscribers are endowed with a superb steel engraving called "Sympathy," which is 17x20½ inches in dimensions. Gody's Lady's Book has never looked better or done better work than it is doing now and it deserves increased patronage during the coming year.

The Northwest council has decided to insist on the payment of a fee of fifty dollars by lawyers going to the Northwest to practice.

Terrible Fire and Loss of Life.

At Plymouth a few days ago a tenement house on Love street, in a low and squalid neighborhood, took fire, and a terrible calamity resulted. The flames burned rapidly and fiercely, and when at last subdued, twelve calcined human bodies were found among the ruins. Two others are missing, and in all probability they too have been burned to death. One unfortunate victim was dashed to pieces by jumping from a high window to the street. Several of the occupants of the burning building in their fright ignored the fire escape, and throwing bedding to the pavement forty feet below jumped from the windows. A number of these had their legs and arms broken by the fearful leap. A harrowing incident of the calamity was the appearance of a youth named Bickford, who, with his little sister under one arm hung suspended from a window by the other for some minutes until the flames surrounded him and caused him to lose his hold and fall to the ground. He had both legs fractured. The child was also severely injured. The intensity of the flames gave the building the appearance of a furnace, but this did not deter the firemen, many of whom entered the house and by a heroic struggle succeeded in securing several persons.

Melville Millar

One Hundred Years Ago.

It was the 25th of November, 1783—a brilliant day, that an excited crowd surged and shouted about Mr. Day's tavern in Murray street, near the road to Greenwich. Cunningham, the cruel and vindictive British provost-marshal, stood at the foot of the flag-pole, from which floated the stars and stripes, the flag of the new republic. "Come, you rebel cur," he said to Day, "I give you two minutes to haul down that rag—I'll have no such striped clout as that flying in the faces of His Majesty's forces!"

"There it is, and there it shall stay," said Day, quietly but firmly. Cunningham turned to his guard.

"Arrest that man," he ordered. "And as for this thing here, I'll haul it down myself," and seizing the halyards, he began to lower the flag. The crowd broke out into fierce murmurs, uncertain what to do. But, in the midst of the tumult, the door of the tavern flew open, and forth sallied Mrs. Day, armed with her trusty broom.

"Hands off that flag, you villain, and drop my husband!" she cried, and before the astonished Cunningham could realize the situation, the broom came down thwack! thwack! upon his powdered wig. Old men still lived, not 20 years ago, who were boys in that excited crowd, and remembered how the powder flew from the stiff white wig, and how, amidst jeers and laughter, the defeated provost-marshal withdrew from the unequal contest, and fled before the resistless sweep of Mrs. Day's all-conquering broom.

Sir Guy Carleton, K. C. B., commander-in-chief of all His Majesty's forces in the colonies, stood at the foot of the flag-staff on the northern bastion of Fort George. Before him filed the departing troops of his king, evacuating the pleasant little city they had occupied for over seven years. The waves of the bay sparkled in the sunlight, while the whale-boats, barges, gigs and launches sped over the water, bearing troops and refugees to the transports, or to the temporary camp on Staten Island. The last act of the evacuation was almost completed; and, as to the strains of appropriate music the commander-in-chief and his staff passed down to the boats, the red cross of St. George, England's royal flag, came fluttering down from its high staff on the north bastion, and the last of the rear-guard wheeled toward the slip. But Cunningham, the provost-marshal, still angered by the thought of his discomfiture at Day's tavern, declared roundly that no rebel flag should go up that staff in sight of King George's men. "Come, lively now, you blue jackets," he shouted, turning to some of the sailors from the fleet. "Unreeve the halyards, quick; slush down the pole; knock off the stepping cleats! Then let them run their rag up if they can." His orders were quickly obeyed and the marshal left the now liberated city. In a few moments, Colonel Jackson, halting before the flag-staff, ordered up the stars and stripes.

"The halyards are cut, Colonel," reported the color-sergeant; "the cleats are gone, and the pole is slushed."

"A mean trick, indeed," exclaimed the indignant Colonel. "A gold jacobus to him who will climb the staff and reeve the halyards for the stars and stripes!"

"I want no money for the job," said a young sailor lad as he tried it manfully once, twice, thrice, and each time came slipping down covered with slush and shame. "I'll fix 'em yet," he said. "If ye'll but saw me some cleats, I'll run that flag to the top in spite of all the Tories from 'Sopus to Sandy Hook!"

Ready hands came to his assistance. Then, tying the halyards around his waist, and filling his jacket-pockets with cleats and nails, he worked his way up the flag-pole, nailing and climbing as he went. And now he reaches the top, now the halyards are rove, and as the beautiful flag goes fluttering up the staff a mighty cheer is heard, and a round of thirteen guns salutes the stars and stripes and the brave sailor boy who did the gallant deed.—St. Nicholas.

Would Take the Job Himself.

One of the queerest applications for position that has ever been made is the request of an Oregon citizen, made to his member of Congress that he be appointed as "census." The Congressman looked through the list of all the offices in the gift of a member of Congress, and could not find any by that name. He inquired of all the other members of Congress if they had had application for the position of "census." They all denied that they had ever been applied to to fill that office. He finally wrote to the applicant and asked him what the application meant. The man answered that he had been reading that the last census embraced 150,000 women, and he thought he would like to be a census. The Congressman decided that if there was any such position in his gift he would resign his position and take it himself.—Peck's Sun.

At Madrid a few days ago an opera manager rebuked a danseuse for making a misstep, remarking: "You dance like a chicken." The dancer's husband demanded an apology, but the manager denied having insulted the lady. The husband thereupon pounced a dagger into the heart of his wife's tradducer.

Male and Female Cussin.

The man who apologizes. What a bore. Thinks an apology settles all accounts with his fellows. Carelessly steps on a friend's tender toes. Apologises and steps on them again. Walks along crowded streets swinging his cane against people and apologizing right and left. Turns to apologize to a man behind and runs into a woman in front. More apologising. Thinks he is very polite. Never stops to consider that if he were the necessity for apology would be removed. Would that he might bow himself off the government pier or choke on his tiresome "Beg pardon, sir."

The woman who apologizes. Fishing for compliments. Dressed in her newest and best gown she apologizes for her appearance. At table apologizes for her poor biscuits. O for somebody strong enough to reply, "Well, I have eaten better," just to see her fly in a rage and deny it. She will live a long time. Heaven does not wish for her.

The man who cannot wait. Makes everybody nervous. In the barber shop walks up and down in a fidgety manner if he has to wait for a moment for a barber. After he is shaved stands at the door half an hour wondering where he will go to kill time. At the bridge loses his patience and looks cross at everybody. Finally gets across, and waits ten minutes to tell a friend how he dislikes to wait two. At the railway crossing says it is just his infernal luck to have to wait for a long train to pass.—Sometimes runs to get across ahead of the train, and, being across, stops to see the train go by. Some time he may not run quite fast enough to get clear across. Great is hope.

The man who looks back to swear at a truckman who nearly runs into his buggy. Truckman drives right along about his business. Man keeps swearing and looking back at him. Will not a fire engine please come down street in front and knock him over a block or two?

Woman who primps. Disgustingly neat. Everything in its place—except the woman. She has a dust rag in her hand, and is in everybody's way. Makes you get up and let her dust the chair you have sat on for an hour. Looks completely discouraged at your dusty boots. Never opens doors or shutters, lest sunshine get in and fade the carpet. Keeps windows hermetically sealed to shut out dust. Life, though short, is, alas, too long in certain cases.

Man who wraps $10 bill outside a roll of ones. ——————. Harmless, though.

Man who talks to himself on the street Not always crazy, not always. Chicago is plentifully supplied with him.—Sometimes he talks because his mind is so engrossed in business he forgets where he is. Sometimes he talks to make people believe he has a mind and that it is engrossed. He would like to be deemed a much absorbed man. If the lake would only absorb him.

The woman who washes on Monday. Cannot think of doing her washing on any other day. Postpones her husband's funeral until Tuesday because Monday is washday. Must have breakfast at 6 to get dishes out of the way early and give the day to the regular order. Maybe this woman will fall in a washtub some Monday morning before anybody is up to help her out. While there's life there's soap.

The man who cannot tell a lie. How stupid. Can't tell a lie to entertain a friend. Sticks to the truth, no matter how stale and uninteresting it may be. Doesn't know that the right to be deceived is the most precious of all human rights. Thinks it is sinful to violate truth and make people happy. Must tell a sick man he is dying, even if it kills him. May he never hear anything but the truth. The curse is complete.

The man who uses a book-mark.—Thinks he has read up to it. Does not know that if he had read and not merely skimmed, he would need no mark to find where he left off. Does not know what reading means.—Chicago Herald.

Cutting Women's Noses.

The horrible crime of mutilating women by cutting off their noses is so common in Bombay as to call for the most stringent repression, and nothing, we imagine, will repress it but the free use of the lash. In the Sessions ending yesterday, Mr. Justice Scott had to hear three—we might say five—of these cases, one after the other. He postponed his sentences for a week, and we were in hopes that he would in each case order the criminals to be flogged within an ace of their lives.

Eventually, however, he sentenced them severally to what he had ascertained to be the usual punishment, three years' rigorous imprisonment. We are inclined to regret that the learned Sessions Judge, new as he is to the country, did not throw precedent over altogether. Surely these are cases in which the lash would be at once the most fitting punishment and the best deterrent.

Estimated by the misery inflicted, even the most severe penalties would seem too trivial, and if the law does not permit of flogging in the cases of such cruel mutilation, the law should be altered. The miserable women who are mutilated in this way are, of course, rendered hideous ever afterward, and because they are women it is simply impossible to calculate the misery and degradation that they will experience during the rest of their lives. No amount of imprisonment will eradicate a crime that is still evidently a customary form of marital punishment among the lower classes. But a wholesome terror of the cat-o'-nine tails is common to the degraded classes all the world over.—Times of India.

David F. Whitmer, still living in Missouri at the age of eighty, was one of the three witnesses who in 1830 published a certificate declaring that they saw an angel come down with the golden book which Joseph Smith, the mormon, pretended to interpret.

Arabi Pasha, in exile in Ceylon, does not appear to have a very hard time of it for a prisoner. In a letter to a friend he writes: "We arrived in good health, and were very cordially received by the authorities of the island. The town, the climate and the face of the country suit us admirably. We propose sending our children to the local schools, and learning the English language ourselves. Once the question of the confiscation of our property is settled, we shall lead a happy life."

On Monday the 21st Dec., the annual tea-meeting will be held in the basement of the church. Tea will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock p.m., when the Rev. Dr. Thomas of Jarvis Street Church will deliver his great lecture on "Men for the age." Tickets for tea or lecture, 25 cents each; for both 35 cents each.

Another Runaway.

Yesterday afternoon while Mrs. Dr. Pigeon and a little girl were out driving, as they were coming down Hunter street, near the top of the hill, the horse became excited and ran away. Mrs. Pigeon was thrown out, but the little girl managed to keep her place in the cutter until the horse was stopped, which occurred just after crossing Aylmer street. Both occupants escaped uninjured. The whiffletrees were broken, the horse when taken out of the vehicle staggered around as if blind, striking against trees and everything that came in its way. A bystander suggested "blind staggers" as the cause of the horse bolting.

S. S. Teacher's Association.

There were only about a dozen teachers present at the meeting of the local Sabbath School Teacher's Association in St. Paul's Church last evening. Mr. Flavelle occupied the chair. After the usual religious exercise, Mr. Sheriff Hall opened the proceedings with a short address on the subject of "Teachers' Meetings," taking up the points of their object, necessity, who should attend, who should conduct, &c., after which a discussion upon the address ensued. The subject of how to increase the attendance at the meetings of the Association was also considered and it was determined to try the effect of holding them in the different schools. The next meeting to be held in the Baptist S. S., if convenient to the officials of that Church.

An Interesting Group.

The last number of "Our Darlings," a serial for children, published by Dr. Barnardo, contains an interesting picture. It represents a bright little lad, richly and warmly dressed in furs, beside a sleigh, to which is harnessed a fine Newfoundland dog with a pert little Esquimaux sitting on the sleigh. The lad is Willie Merriam, the adopted son of Mr. T. D. Belcher, and the dogs are "Rover" and "Beauty," Mrs. Belcher's canine pets. The picture is engraved from a photograph taken this winter in Toronto, where Mr. Belcher is residing. The moral drawn by "Our Darlings" is that the bright, happy, well clad lad of the picture was three or four years ago, a "ragged, barefoot, hungry boy" on the streets of London. He was taken into the Barnardo Home at Stepney, and came, in due course, to the Hazel Brae Home, whence he was adopted by his present parents. No better nor more striking proof of the excellent results springing from the great work of Dr. Barnardo, could be furnished. Yet this lad is only one of the thousands that have been rescued from vice, hunger, degredation and squalor to become useful and happy members of the community.

The New Butter Market.

The ground floor addition to the butter market was used exclusively this morning, and was found large enough to accommodate the trade. It has been fitted up with benches of the softest wood and will be the favorite spot with the farmer's wives, as there will be less trouble in exhibiting produce.

A Prompt Business Transaction.

Toronto and Montreal claim to be the commercial axes around which the business world of Canada revolves, but a Peterborough business firm got the start of them. Recently Messrs. Taylor & Macdonald secured, against competition with Montreal and Toronto houses, a contract for supplying Mr. George Goodwin, for his jobon the Big Chute at Burleigh, with 300 barrels of Portland cement. On Oct. 14th the order was posted for London, Eng., and the 3rd of Dec. Messrs. Taylor & McDonald received from Mr. Goodwin a cheque in payment for the 300 barrels delivered at Burleigh as per contract. In the interval the order had crossed the ocean, the cement had made its ocean, rail and other journeys and the contractor had received his goods and remitted payment for them. The rapidity of this transaction reflects great credit on the push and promptitude of Messrs. Taylor & McDonald and shows Toronto and Montreal men that the competition of Peterborough business men is not to be despised.

Police Court.

John D. Shannon was brought before Magistrate Dumble this morning, charged with having assaulted Eliza Curtin, on Dec. 14th, and with assaulting George Curtin on the same day, and also with having made threats towards him. Shannon pleaded not guilty to the first charge. Eliza Curtin was sworn and testified that on Monday last, when she and her brother were driving home from Ops, they met Shannon, who was on a load of straw, and accompanied by two other parties. He had just left his own place in the Township of Ennismore and was coming towards them. When near enough to recognize, he dropped the lines, and seizing a pitchfork, got down off the load and stood behind the waggon in a threatening attitude. Miss Curtin told her brother to drive fast, fearing an assault, as she had heard that the prisoner had threatened her brother. Curtin struck the horse, which broke into a gallop, and as they were passing Shannon he struck Miss Curtin over the head with the pitchfork, also striking James Curtin on the hand. The prisoner followed them but could not keep up to the horse. George Curtin gave evidence supporting that of his sister.

In this case the Magistrate imposed upon Shannon a fine of $10 and costs, remarking that severe measures were necessary to stop such proceedings, which were becoming too common.

The prisoner admitted the charge of assaulting George Curtin and having made threats against him. Fined $20 and costs, and ordered to find securities to the amount of $500 for himself and two others at $250 each.

E. B. Edwards for complainant, and Geo. Edmison for defendant.

A Literary Feast.

Selections from Longfellow, Dickens, Shakespeare, Tennyson, Turner and others will be given by Mr. Geo. Belford to-night.

Christmas is Coming.

"Father, was you ever a boy?"

"O, yes, my son."

"And did you have a mother?"

"Of course I had."

"Well, then, I suppose you were quite a nice little fellow, and was pleased to see your father bring home nice things that pleased her?"

"O, y-e-s. Where have you been to-day, my son?"

"Oh, I was down street with mother; we were doing the town. You see it is near Xmas now, and the new goods displayed are the most beautiful I ever saw. Mother was looking at some things that I heard her say she would like very much to have."

"What were they, my son?"

"Oh, they were shaving mugs, and dressing cases with a nice razor and brushes, she ... to think the most of that. You see it would be such a nice present for you. And then we saw such beautiful furniture. There were such soft sofas and easy chairs, nice rocking chairs that don't squeak when you sit in them, and altogether the finest lot of furniture that ever came under the notice of my eye. Far nicer than neighbor Schwartfinger's."

"And where did you see all this?"

"Why, father, everybody knows that the cheapest place, the best assortment and the nicest goods is at D. Belleghem's, Hunter street, and don't you forget to remember."

Complimentary Dinner.

L. O. L. No. 80, Entertained at the C. P. R. Hotel by Mr. C. W. Sawers, W. M., of the Lodge—A Large Gathering and an Excellent Dinner.

Mr. C. W. Sawers, Worshipful Master of L. O. L., No. 80, entertained his lodge and a number of other friends at a complimentary dinner at the Canada Pacific Hotel last evening. Mr. Sawers received his guests in the lodge room from 8 to 9 o'clock. After some explanatory remarks from the Worshipful Master the company proceeded to the place of banquet, headed by the Fire Brigade Band, which discoursed excellent music during the evening. A committee was appointed who seated the guests. The spacious dinning room of the hotel was lined on both sides with two long tables, reaching from end to end and joined at the head by a cross table. The room was gaily decorated with "Union Jacks" and festooned with red, white and blue streamers. The tables were loaded with an excellent spread, and about one hundred guests surrounded them to do honor to Mr. Sawers. The honored host occupied the head of the table and was supported on the left by Sheriff Hall and Thos. Stevenson, of Omemee, and on the right by Mr. A. McQuade, ex-M. P. of Omemee, and Mr. Jas. Stevenson. The following prominent men of the Order were present: Bros. Thomas Stevenson, ex-County Master of Victoria, and W. M. of Lodge 114; A. McQuade, ex-County Master of Victoria; W. R. King, W. M. of Nassau Lodge; Dr. Shaw and B. A. Wylie, of Lodge 494, Keene; J. Batten, W. M. of Lodge 49; and also a number of prominent citizens, among whom were Sheriff Hall, Thos. Stevenson, Councillors Menzies and Hartley and Dr. Clarke.

After dinner had been dispensed with the host addressed the assembly, explaining that in public dinners such as this the host was not supposed to do much speaking, he would leave that to the able orators who graced the table. He was pleased and gratified with the large attendance and thanked all for their presence. He then read a number of letters of regret from prominent men of the order who were unable to attend, among whom were: Bro. Mackenzie Bowell, G.M. of the Grand Lodge of Ontario; Bro. Wm. Johnson, G.M. of Provincial Lodge of Ontario; Bro. Smithett, Grand Chaplain; Bro. E. F. Clark, of the Sentinel, Toronto; Rev. E. F. Torrance, Bro. J. B. McWilliams, County Master; Bro. Crowley, Bro. J. L. Winters, W. Dep.-Master, of Lindsay, Bro. J. Crowley; Bro. Maxwell Hall; E. J. Barker, W. M. Port Hope; Bro. Robt. Birmingham, Grand Secretary, Toronto; also from H. Calcutt and many others.

Mr. Sawers stated that Bro. McWilliams had declined to come as he thought the supper would have a bad effect, thinking that liquor would be supplied. He had informed Bro. McWilliams of his mistake. No liquor of any kind would be supplied and the hotel bar would be closed during the evening.

Mr. Sawers then proposed the first toast of the evening, "The Queen," which was responded to by the company singing the National Anthem, led by the band.

The next toast in order was "The Prince and Princess of Wales, and members of the Royal Family."

Then followed "The Governor-General and Lieutenant-Governor."

Followed by the "Chater Toast," to the glorious, pious and immortal memory of Prince William of Orange, drank in solemn silence.

"The Grand Lodges of British North American and the Provincial Grand Lodge," was responded to by Bro. Thos. Stevenson, an ex-Deputy-Master of the Provincial Grand Lodge, who gave some of his experience while connected with this Lodge, bringing to memory reminiscenes of the 17th of March, 1863, when he had at the head of a company of Orangeman restorted Protestant law in Peterborough. He also spoke of the prominent place some of the order occupied in managing the affairs of the country, which was due to the support they received from their brethern. He was proud to be present. The worthy Master who was entertaining them, deserved credit for the stand he had taken, and hoped it would be no loss to him. That whenever any of the order wanted any advice, they would know where to go for it. He concluded by wishing the Worshipful Master and his Lodge all prosperity, and thanking the host for his benevolence.

Mr. Arthtur McQuade, ex-M.P., also made a few remarks in the same strain in respond to the toast. He hoped the brethern would give their Master all necessary support, and particularly by attending Lodge meetings regularly. He was delighted that it was a strictly temperate dinner.

The toast of "County and District Lodges" was responded to by Bros. John Smith and Wm. King. They spoke of the creditable progress of the Orange order in the district. The Douro Lodge was spoken of as flourishing in the heart of Rome.

"Sister Lodges of Eighty" brought Dr. Shaw, Bros. B. A. Wylie, Mannel, Hamilton and Marshall to their feet.

The "Army and Navy" and "Our Canadian Volunteers" was responded to shortly by Col. Poole.

The "Corporation of the Town of Peterborough" was upheld by Jas. Stevenson and Councillors Menzies and Hartley, and Dr. Clark, who spoke in the highest terms of the prosperity of the town.

"The Orangemen's Guests" brought Sheriff Hall and D. McLeod to their feet.

Mr. Sawers then proposed the health of his son, "Owen Cuthbert Sawers," as it was the anniversary of his birthday, which was responded to by Mr. D. McLeod.

Mr. Sheriff Hall proposed "the Host," which was received with applause, and all joined in the chorus of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Mr. Sawers then made a short speech thanking the guests for the kind manner in which they had responded to his invitation. He was only an Orangeman of a few month's standing but had been placed by his lodge in the highest position in their power. Since he had joined the order he was a better man, [illegible] and every Orangeman who acted up to his obligation was such. The time had come when all loyal Protestant subjects should join to meet the movement made against our country. If they did not they would have to go under as they had in Ireland. He hoped to live loyally and never sully the name of a British subject. He trusted all had enjoyed themselves and would go away happier and better.

Dr. Clarke proposed the "Press," which was responded to by Messrs. Choate, King and McDonald.

"Wives, Sisters and Sweethearts" was proposed by Mr. McLeod.

"Our Mercantile Interests" was responded to by Mr. Hall.

Dr. Clarke proposed "The Caterer," to which Mr. Roddy responded.

"The Learned Professions" brought Drs. Clarke and Shaw, and Mr. C. W. Sawers to their feet, who, in short speeches, upheld their professions.

The gathering then broke up after singing the National Anthem.

Irish Home Rule.

The Details of Mr. Gladstone's Conciliatory Scheme.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—The following are the actual details of Mr. Gladstone's scheme for Home Rule. He is completely convinced that there are only two alternatives, coercion and conciliation; but the Liberal party will

NEVER CONSENT AGAIN

to exceptional repressive legislation for Ireland, and conciliation is only possible with Parnell's consent. This consent is contingent on granting a Parliament in Dublin, therefore Mr. Gladstone is if Mr. Parnell guarantees adequate protection to the minority. The Irish members will not be excluded from the House of Commons since the Dublin Parliament will only deal with Irish affairs. The power of the vote will only be exercised by the Crown upon

READY TO GRAND IT

ADVICE OF THE IRISH MINISTRY.

Parnell's recent statement about the protection of Irish industries against Great Britain will be serious, and Mr. Biggar is the only member of the Irish party who advocates separation and a purely Irish policy. Mr. Gladstone believes that the personnel of the Irish Parliament would be of the best elements of the Irish nation than the present Irish party in the Commons who have been elected merely to annoy the British Government. Mr. Gladstone has secured the support of Earl Spencer and Lord Granville, and expects to win Lord Hartington and even Mr. Goschen, and his scheme through the Lords in view of the great gravity of the situation. Failing that, he is confident of a fresh mandate from the English people. These authoritative details will not be made public here till to-morrow morning.

MORE REPRESENTIVE

HOPES TO CARRY

Return of the Auctioneer.

Besides Doing Good Work for the Government He Makes Money for Himself.

Mr. J. H. Metcalfe, M.P.P., who has been acting as government auctioneer in the North-West Territories, has returned to the city. For a considerable time he was selling the horses, carts and other equipment used in the late rebellion. These sales were held at Regina, Calgary, Moosejaw and Swift Current, and proved very profitable. Many things were sold up to their original value. Horses early in the year brought particularly good prices, but later, as the hay crop was found to be very inadequate, some were sold one-half less than they were originally valued at. The genial James, with a broad brimmed hat, was most successful, and not only ably aided the government but made a comfortable pile at a ten per cent. commission. He has been absent from the city since June. He will remain here during the winter. The Interior Department did not dispose of very large tracts of land during the past year.—Kingston Whig.

The manufacture of macaroni and vermicelli is assuming large dimensions in California. A peculiar kind of wheat is used that is grown on the islands of the Sacramento river from seed imported from Italy. About 10,000 sacks of this wheat are used every year. Some 30,000 boxes of the macaroni are consumed annually in the States and Territories west of the Rocky Mountains, exclusive of the city of San Francisco, which uses 25,000 boxes more. Over 25,000 boxes go to Mexico, Australia, Central America, China, the Sandwich and the South Sea Islands. Alaska calls for 10,000 pounds, and some is sent over to Siberia.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

For some time past the Rev. Mr. Logan, of Fenelon Falls, has made himself very conspicious in connection with the Trent Valley Canal. In fact he has laid "Sarah" out altogether in this connection. The sequel of it all may be learned from the Lindsay Post, which says that they have it from good authority that the Rev. gentleman, who is a Church of England Minister at Fenelon Falls, intends entering the field as Conservative candidate for North Victoria in the House of Commons, as there is a good deal of dissatisfaction in Conservative circles with Mr. Hector Cameron, on certain grounds it is quite on the cards that Mr. Logan may secure the party nomination. Refe[illegible]ng to the proposed candidate, the Guelph Mercury says :—

"We are not sure whether he is low, high or broad in church doctrine; but we fancy that three weeks at Ottawa would undermine his political faith if he saw all the peculiar doings of John Henry Pope or witnessed the return of Sir Charles Tupper effusively welcomed by the personages who wept on the public streets at his departure. One week's observation of the Senate would make a minister of Mr. Logan's strong intellect throw special emphasis in his prayers that they should be endowed with grace, wisdom and understanding. Mr. Logan would probably make a better bishop than politician; but if the "fortunes of war" should send him to Ottawa he may open a new avenue of usefulness to many of our ministers. We leave to more acute minds the consideration of the nice problem how a "descent from the pulpit" will compare with a "descent from the bench."

PROPOSED BANQUET.

The St. John Globe says :—

"There is a proposition to banquet Mr. Blake on his return to Montreal from England. The idea is to recognize publicly the fact that he placed before the country last session, truthfully and fairly, the real causes of the Northwest rebellion, and showed truly where the responsibility rested. Many of the French-Canadian members allowed themselves to be carried away from the real issues of that time. Sir John made no attempt to answer Mr. Blake's speech, but he roundly abused Mr. Blake for delivering it, alleging that he was giving sympathy to the rebels. It is time the whole of the facts were reopened and re-examined. No country ought to allow the men to go unpunished whose bad conduct and bad management led to the condition of things which recently convulsed the Northwest."

Mr. Blake made a most elaborate and able speech upon the grievances of the halfbreeds in the Northwest. It is impossible that any candid man, no matter to what party he may belong, can read that speech without coming to the conclusion that the present Government have grossly failed in their duty to the people of the Northwest Territories.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sarnia Observer :—Sir John Macdonald, when he was in opposition, not only encouraged the people of British Columbia to rebel, but he openly advised them to secede, and break up the confederation. The Mail and other Tory organs are even now advising the people of Ontario to rebel, and murder their French neighbors in Quebec, if they dare to vote against Tory rule in Canada. It is an old dodge of the Tories to advise rebellion when out of office, or threatened with ejection, and good Tory sheets ought to be prepared at all times to back up that sort of thing. At least they should never be surprised, nor expect any one else to be surprised, at such a suggestion.

Grip explaining his last week's leading cartoon, aptly says :—"The veracious organ just named (Mail) has gone on day after day laboring to make it appear' that the great question at issue is : 'Should Riel have been hanged or should he not?' If yes, then sustain John A. regardless of all other questions; if not, then let the Government be defeated and prepare yourselves for the terrors of French domination. Now, the truth is this: Riel has been hanged. Whether his execution was wise under the circumstances is a question upon which there is a difference of opinion, a large majority of our citizens, however, decidedly holding to the affirmative. But that is not the question at issue at all. The question is : Have Sir John and his colleagues ruled this country so purely, wisely and economically that they deserve a renewal of office, and especially are they guilty or not guilty of having made Riel and his second rebellion possible? It certainly does not strengthen the faith of Sir John's friends to find his principal organ kicking up such a tremendous dust on a side issue.

The Montreal Post (a hitherto Independent-Conservative journal) thus concisely puts the issue from the Quebec standpoint :—

No, the country is not safe because Riel is in his grave; it will be safe only when the men who brought the rebellion about by their misgovernment will have been hurled from power and chastised for their sins against the country and the people. The organs and partisans of the government cannot deceive an entire people. These have eyes to see and ears to hear, and they will not remain deaf or blind to the cries of the oppressed population of the Northwest. The cause of the misfortune of the half-breeds and Indians was not annihilated on the scaffold at Regina.

That position is perfectly sound. Riel was not the cause of the rebellion—he was merely the instrument. The government was the cause, and now that the instrument has been punished, justice demands that the cause be punished also. In Quebec province every English-speaking independent journal, save the Montreal Star, is more or less in opposition to the present Ottawa administration, whereas a few weeks ago, the only journal of that class which could be so suspected of Liberal leanings was the Montreal Witness. It will thus be seen that the anti-ministerial campaign is a popular and not a race movement.

General Grant.

We have received from George Stinson & Co., of Portland, Maine, the well-known Art Publishers, a magnificent full length, steel engraving of General Grant. It is after Anderson's celebrated photograph, which was made while the general was still in full vigor and represents him in his sturdy, manly strength, as the people wish to remember him. It is, undoubtedly, the best portrait ever made of the general.

Blowing out the Gas.

Every few days the newspapers contain reports of persons found smothered in hotel bedrooms because they blow out the gas. If the smothered man looks like a drummer, or other enlightened individual, the Coroner's verdict is apt to hint darkly at suicide. The municipal authorities of Atlanta takes another view of the matter. They have been advised that one-half the deaths from asphyxia are caused by hotel proprietors, and have made a law that economical landlords shall not turn off the gas from the meter at night. A large number of travellers leave the gas burning dimly when they retire; then the hotel man cuts off the gas. He turns it on again for early rising travellers, and the others, if they sleep late, run a risk of death from suffocation. Travellers should turn the gas completely out before going to bed.

The Nominations.

We must make preparation
For the day of nomination,
Seeking men of calculation
Clever in their generation,
With both sense and education.
And above the vile temptation
Of indulging speculation,
Or of seeking compensation
For the duties of their station.
Men of emulation
And with earnest aspiration
To avoid the degradation
Of a general prostration
Caused by bad administration.
Leading to our ruination.
Men who act with moderation.
Who will favor light taxation.
And sidewalks' reparation,
And prevent dilapidation
Of our road communication
With the rest of this great nation
With a just appreciation
Of our drainage legislation.
By which our corporation
May be free from inundation.
Men who will in each relation
Show their thoro' preparation
For the high and noble station
Of a Councillor's situation.

The Bleeding Continues.

Just as we expected, when referring to the subject last week, the completed section of the Canadian Pacific Railway is to be run for many months to come at the expense of the taxpayers of Canada. It came about in this way :

Onderdonk obtained the contract to build this section at a cost to the country of $209,255 more than the lowest tenderer was willing to do the work for.

Onderdonk was a friend of Sir Charles Tupper, and to aid him in making a still bigger half of the public money the passage of the Chinese Restriction Act was delayed for several years. Onderdonk wanted the Chinese to work for him, at low wages, and he imported many thousands of them.

The line was completed some months ago, and Onderdonk came to Ottawa to collect his "extras," amounting, it is understood, to about $2,000,000. What arrangement he has come to with the Ministers has not been made known. But it is a well ascertained fact that all last summer Onderdonk carried freight and passengers on the line, with Government sanction, and charged scandalously high rates.

A few weeks ago Onderdonk resolved to stand from under. Doubtless, he believed he had bled the people as much as they would stand. He therefore asked the Syndicate to take over the section. "No, we won't," was the response of the millionaires. "The section is not complete as we want it "—as we believe our contract stipulated, "and we cannot accept it unless the Govern-"ment gives compensation." This compensation mounts up in the millions.

Onderdonk, on this refusal, immediately ordered the stoppage of all trains on the section. This did not please the Tory M. P.'s, who had promised their constituents continuous service so soon as the line was completed, and they in turn remonstrated with Mr. Pliable Pope, the Minister of Railways & Canals. The result is that both Onderdonk and the Syndicate are excused from operating the line from Port Moody to Kamloops which will be run during the winter month, and as much longer as the Syndicate may appoint, at the expense of the Dominion ratepayer.

The man who believed that the country would cease paying for the Canadian Pacific Railway so soon as the contract was let, and that the payment of the sum stipulated in that agreement, would be all that the Dominion would be reliable for, will now see how he was gulled. Favored contractors and Syndicate grabbers will bleed the country so long as there is a willing and unscrupulous Government to deal with.—Hamilton Times.

Melville Millar

"His Icy Bride."

"Kiss me again."

Sibyl Sartoris spoke these words in a grave, calm manner that betokened the serious import in which she held them, and as Herbert Holdfast bent tenderly forward and pressed his lips softly to hers she looked up to him in the shy, cat-on-the-back-fence fashion that had so witched him in the golden-hued days of courtship—those days when all the world seemed filled with sunshine, when every breeze spoke in whispers of his love for this beautiful girl, and the cloudless skies seemed only to reflect the deeper azure of her eyes.

There was no tint of deception in the pure nature of this girl, and her every act was the result of reflection, often profound. Brought up in Boston, she had all her life been accustomed to put to its best use the power of discernment which a thoughtful mind gave her. Surrounded as she was by the mystic influences of Emerson, the Concord School of Philosophy, and several large warehouses where Mackerel were sold, it is small wonder, that when, standing on the threshold of womanhood, she beheld suitors for her heart and hand approach; she had analyzed with critical care the hopes and fears of each—had subjected the character of every wooer to the rigid scrutiny of a mind that, seated cross-legged on the starry summit of psychological research, looked upon man as only vivified protoplasm, and the deepest emotions of the heart as merely the manifestations of a too active nerve centre.

Herbert knew this. He know that this girl—the rounded curves of whose figure and the dewy sweetness of whose lips would have made an anchorite leave his job without a pang—had naught of passion in her nature. And so when he had complied—oh, so gladly—with her request, there stalked from out the banquet halls of his imagination where they had so long been unwelcome guests the sheeted ghosts of Doubt and Apprehension. He knew now that Sibyl loved him with a love that would never fail—a love that, securely built upon a foundation of respect and admiration, was now crowned with the large, roomy, mansard roof of a deathless, never-changing passion. Her words proved it. Never before had she even so much as hinted at a kiss, and when he had sought to take one she had submitted to his caresses more as a dutiful wife than an ardent lover. But now all was changed, and it was she who sought the bliss that a large, well-regulated, three-story-and-basement kiss alone can give. The thought was ecstacy.

"You love me better to-day, Sibyl," he said, "than you did yesterday. Is it not so, darling?"

"No," she answers, standing there calm and pulseless as a clam at high tide.

"Then why," he says, "did you ask me to kiss you?"

"Because," Sibyl replies, "I desired to acertain whether or not you had been drinking Medford rum."—Chicago Tribune.

All About the Bony Fish Shad.

In an old country shad would come in with a fete day. The world has not their equal for fineness, indescribable freshness like a water cress, and delicacy, yet with satisfying potency. One shad is the measure of the representative family. The father's partiality is shown where he gives most of the roe. From birth to bones the shad's epic is like a silver spirit; noiseless, translucent, unresisting, like the passage of the moon through the river and sea. Migratory, but with childhood memories of locality, fruitful religously, and even in the dream of young children and large gentle families, they seem like the spring lambs of the water, grazing the infinite fields of sheen. What dangers they pass through, going and returning, the innocents in the time of Herod never had. Provided with nothing to make battle, with tiny teeth and miniature fins they course the ocean like the silver galleys of old days beset by pirates but protected by the saints. Although the royal guest at feasts and poor men's tables, they are, like all enduring nobility, peasant-born. The martyred menhaden is, their cousin, the herring is their step-brother. To see them caught is like seeing angels fall; so peacefully, so flashingly; and in the butcher's shamble they carry upon their delicate armor the light of skies.—N. Y. Tribune.

A new version of the Red Riding-Hood story comes from Shrewsbury, Quebec. Before starting into the woods to work Farmer Le Blanc, of that place, told his wife to send their little daughter with his dinner. He waited until 3 o'clock, but as no dinner arrived he retraced his steps homeward. He had not gone far when he noticed a monstrous bear busily engaged eating something. He watched its movements for a moment and fired his rifle at it and succeeded in killing the animal, little thinking of the terrible sight that was to be revealed to him. There lay his little daughter, disfigured almost beyond recognition, holding in her hand the can which contained her father's dinner.

There is a rivalry between Kansas and Colorado as to which shall be considered "the banner wheat state."

Ventilating Corn Cribs.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial relates his experience in ventilating corn cribs in the following:

We have cribbed great quantities of corn before many of our neighbors would begin husking, and yet we have no moldy corn. We make ventilators to reach from the floor to the roof. Our floors are eighteen inches from the ground, so as to secure perfect ventilation underneath. We set ventilators where the corn falls from the scoop as it is thrown in at the windows, since at that point in the crib the corn packs closely and the shattered corn and silks and husks and pieces of leaves and tassels that more or less will be found in every load will accumulate, be one ever so careful, and prevent free circulation of air through the mass. Where the farmer helps to husk his own corn, and is untiring and persistent, he can keep out husks, and silk, and trash; but when several teams are at work, and each gang of men is expected to crib a given amount for a day's work, we may say it is impossible to keep out the trash, which keeps corn from drying out freely, as well as brings in with it much moisture.

In such cases, then, we must have more ventilators, that is, they must be placed nearer together. In our crib, that is six feet wide, and long enough to hold 3,000 bushels, we have windows every twelve feet for throwing corn. Three feet back from, and directly in front of them, we place the ventilators. They are not in the way in scooping in the corn, and there the pile of corn is always the highest and most packed, and from that point each way the corn rolls down and is clean and loosely packed farthest from the ventilators. The heating that always starts up in a crib causes an upward draft through the ventilators which carries off moisture and reduces temperature to the saving point.

How do you make the ventilators? The distance from floor to roof is fourteen feet. We rip out four strips three inches wide and fourteen feet long. We then make four frames of inch boards four inches square. To these four frames we nail the four long strips, through which the corn will not pass. We bore holes in the floor where the ventilator is to sit, and put up the ventilator, fastening to the floor and roof so it will keep its place.

The cost is trifling, but the device is satisfactory in its results. We have seen men throw rails in cribs of wet corn to let the air in. If the rails are set in perpendicular they do some good, as the heated air passes upward beside them, but if placed in horizontally they are of little value, as they do not work with the ascending gases struggling to pass upward.

There is no excuse for a great crib of moldy corn. By such a device one can begin to crib corn a week earlier than without it. That week's gain, too, on some of the bottom lands when overflows come may save the crop.

These ventilators cost little, occupy little space in the crib, and yet let off vast quantities of heat and moisture from the pile of new corn.

No More Frontier.

The system of building railroads into the wilderness and then allowing the wilderness to develop afterwards, has knocked the essential joy out of the life of the pioneer. At one time the hardy hewer of wood and drawer of water gave his lifetime willingly that his son might ride in the "varnished cars." Now the Pullman car takes the New Yorker to the threshold of the sea or the boundary line between the United States and the British possessions.

It has driven out the long handled frying pan and the flapjack of twenty years ago, and introduced the condensed milk and canned fruit of commerce. Along the highways where once the hopeful hundreds marched with long handled shovel and pick and pan, cooking by the way thin salt pork and flapjacks and slumgullion, now the road is lined with empty beer bottles and peach cans that have outlived their usefulness. No landscape can be picturesque with an empty peach can in the foreground any more than a lion would look grand in a red monogram horseblanket and false teeth.

The modern camp is not the camp of the wilderness. It wears the half civilised and shabby genteel garments of a sawed-off town. You know that if you ride a day you will be where you can get the daily papers and read them under the electric light. That robs the old canons of their solemn isolation and peoples each gulch with the odor of codfish balls and civilization. Civilization is not to blame for all this, and yet it seems sad.

Civilization could not have done this all alone. It had to call to its aid the infernal fruit can that now desolates the most obscure trail in the mountains. You walk over chaos where the "hydraulic" has plowed up the valley like a convulsion, or you tread the yielding path across the deserted dump, and on all sides the rusty, neglected and humpliated empty tin can stares at you with its monotonous, dude-like stare.

An old timer once said to me: "I've about decided, Bill, that the west is a matter of history. When we cooked our grub over a sage brush fire we could get fat and fight Indians, but now we fill our digesters with cold pizen and pewter of the canned peach; we go to a big tavern and tuck a big towel under our chins and eat pie with a fork and heat up our carcasses with anti-christ coal, and what do we amount to? Nuthin! I used to chase Indians all day and eat raw pork at night bekase I dassent build a fire, and still I felt better than I do now with a wad of tin can sodder in my stummick and a homesick feeling in my weather-beaten breast.

"No we don't have the fun we used to. We have more swarrys and sciatics and one bloomin' thing and another of that kind, but we don't get one breath of fresh air in a year. They are bringin' in their blamed telephones now and malaria and aigue and old sledge, and fun might as well skip out. There ain't no frontier any more. All we've got lef is the old fashioned t'rantler joos and rhumatis of '49."

Behind the red squaw's cayuse plug,
The hand car roads and raves,
And pie-plant pies are now produced
Above the Indian graves.
I hear the oaths of pioneer,
The caucus yet to be,
The first low hum where soon will come
The fuzzy bumble bee.

The Elocutionist.

Mr. George Belford, the eminent English elocutionist, gave one of his recitals in the Opera House, Peterborough, on Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. The audience was very small, not over seventy-five being present. Notwithstanding the small audience, Mr. Belford went through the programme in fine style. His rendering of the different selections was a magnificent display of elocutionary powers that probably will not be equalled in Peterborough in a long time. He deserved a much larger audience. Mr. Belford will give another recital this evening in the Opera House, and those who miss hearing him will certainly not again have the opportunity of listening to one whose powers of mimicy are so great. Mr. Belford is certainly an accomplished elocutionist.

Magnificent Christmas Box.

At present China Hall, George street presents the appearance, in its holiday trim, of a gigantic and gorgeous Christmas box. Its show windows are dressed with great taste and show a splendid array of brilliant and beautiful goods. Yet this display is only a sample of the immense stock of holiday goods this establishment contains. Tons of silverware of bewildering beauty of design and finish, load the shelves or crowd the vaults. The variety of fancy goods suitable for Christmas presents is simply endless, and these being imported directly from England by China Hall, enables the proprietor to put only one profit of them before they reach the buyer's hands, and the buyer to enjoy the advantage of a marked reduction in price. A volume would not contain a descriptive catalogue of the immense stock of goods of every description to be found at China Hall. Nothing but a visit will satisfy, and when the visit is paid, the visitor will be ready to fancy that Aladdin's lamp, has, for the time being, been loaned to him

Opening of St. Thomas' Church, Millbrook.

St. Thomas' church, Millbrook, was formally opened and dedicated to the service of the Lord, yesterday, by the Lord Bishop of Toronto. Confirmation services were held in the morning, the Lord Bishop of Toronto preaching an eloquent and impressive sermon. Services were also held at 3 o'clock and 7 o'clock p.m. Archdeacon Pinkham, Manitoba; Canon DuMoulin, Toronto; Rural Dean Beck, Peterborough; Dr. Smithett, Ormemee; Dr. O'Meara, Port Hope, and several other clergymen of the district, assisted in the services. The church was built by John Alford, by plans prepared by Mr. J. Belcher, Architect of this town, and is said to be one of the prettiest churches in Ontario. It will accommodate a congregation of 450 persons. All were highly pleased with the appearance of the edifice, and congratulations were tendered Rural Dean Allan on his good fortune, and to the architect and contractor on the excellence of their work. The rector provided refreshments in the school room, and the ladies of the congregation entertained the lady visitors, of whom there were a great number. The congregation of the church are to be congratulated for their energy. A number of visitors from Peterborough were at the the opening services.

Harmonious Hummings.

The Harmony Club met last night in their rooms and had an enjoyable practice.

A Splendid Entertainment.

Is that given by Mr. Geo. Belford. To-night is the last opportunity of hearing him.

Belford.

When you hear your friends talking about the magnificent powers of the above elocutionist you will be sorry that you didn't go to hear him.

A Too Practical Joke.

A farmer complained last night that a number of boys who rode up George street on his sleigh, had stolen a quantity of Christmas groceries from him. He had no idea who they were, where they came from, or whither they went. He returned home poorer and no wiser, his purse light, and his heart heavy.

Xmas Cards are now so Cheap you can afford to send them to all your Friends. Select Early. A. L. Davis & Co.

Without Bells.

The police should give those persons who are continually driving about town without bells an interview with the Police Magistrate, before some one is seriously injured. Yesterday morning an old lady about 75 years of age, Mrs. Newbold, was struck with a sleigh while crossing over at Mr. Mercier's corner and completely turned round. She had a narrow escape.

Mr. Belford's Readings.

It is doubtful if any elocutionist ever furnished two such charming literary evening's to a Cobourg audience, as did Mr. Geo. Belford on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. He is an accomplished English gentleman, possessing a voice of remarkable flexibility, and silvery richness of tone. All his selections were enthusiastically received. — Cobourg World, Dec. 10th, 1885.

A Demand.

The cities of Belleville and Kingston have written to the Minister of Militia asking if it is the intention of the Government to recoup the municipality for money paid to the families of volunteers who served in the Northwest. As the volunteers were doing service for the whole Dominion when the money was paid, the Dominion Government should assume the responsibility.

Anniversary Services.

The Anniversary Services of the Murray Street Baptist Church will be held on Sunday the 20th Dec. when the Rev. Dr. Castle, Principal of McMaster Hall, will preach both morning and evening. On Monday the 21st Dec., the annual tea-meeting will be held in the basement of the church. Tea will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock p.m., when the Rev. Dr. Thomas of Jarvis Street Church will deliver his great lecture on "Men for the age." Tickets for tea or lecture, 25 cents each; for both 35 cents each.

Our Satin Mounted Xmas Cards are Exquisite. A. L. Davis & Co.

Enterprising.

The Campbellford Herald comes to hand this week twice its usual size. The enterprising proprietor, Mr. Vosper, giving a full list of the building operations of the past season. The business men of that ambitious village show their good judgment by largely making use of the Herald to secure a share of the extra business always transacted at this season of the year. The editor also announces that it is the intention of the Herald to spread out shortly from a 28 to a 32 column paper. It is one of the best village papers in the Province, always neatly printed and newsy. We trust it may go on and prosper more and more.

What We May Expect.

Belford at the Opera House to-night.

The town clock to be transferred to the tower of the new post office building.

And to stay where it is for several years at least.

The present town fathers to leave a little legacy of law suits to their successors.

Their successors to succeed as well as corporotions usually do.

What We Would Like to Know.

If it wouldn't pay the Town Engineer to charge an admission fee to see the Post Office plans to-day.

And if the receipts wouldn't turn out pretty handsome.

Especially if the holders of reserve sites took reserve seat tickets.

If Brandon isn't trying to work a corner in the Chief of Police market.

If a contract, that like nearly all Government and Corporation works, pans out a bill of extras, can be called an "extra" good job.

What They are Saying.

Go you two to one the new postoffice and customs buildings will be on our corner.—The Syndicate.

Gently, now, we've got the straight tip from head quarters.—The Faction.

Betcher life the party that kicks the hardest again' the government 'll get the boodle.—The ward politican.

"A plague 'o both your houses." Give us a postoffice if you have to place it on Spaldings Bay.—The disgusted onlookers.

How is it now that the assessors make so many mistakes in putting dogs on the assessment roll?—Councillor McNaughton.

The dogs make the mistake in not staying put on.—The assessors.

The sleighing is excellent hereabouts.—Everybody.

Quickly the days are drawing nigh when joy and mirth young hearts will cheer.—The children.

Oh, I am so glad the vacation is close at hand.—The teachers.

We too.—The pupils.

I won't have any objections, as my nails will have a chance to grow.—L. E. Horning.

And I'll have a little extra time to train the Dufferin debaters.—J. H. Long.

It will not be long now before I will obsquatulate on the Mayor's chair.—J. Stevenson.

Why did you not put in your paper that Messrs. Hilliard, Flavelle and Kendry were in Ottawa last week and had an interview about the post-office.—The Faction.

Coasting.

Boys will be boys! We were boys once ourselves and took advantage of every available hill to have a sleigh ride. But it is becoming a nuisance in town when every sloping sidewalk is being used by boys for coasting. The sidewalk on the north side of Hunter street, and the Court House and school walks are becoming dangerously slippery through their being continually used for the above purpose. This is a hint for the police to give the boys a warning.

We regret to hear that Mr. Mercier, the Quebec Liberal leader, is seriously ill with congestion of the liver. It is to be hoped he will speedily recover, and that the state of his health will permit him to make his contemplated trip to Ontario.

Mr. Joseph McClelland left for Toronto this morning. The affairs of the Saved Army are undergoing a change, which it would be pr ture to announce at the present time, as nothing has yet been definitely decided upon. In the meantime the Trumpet will be issued from Toronto.

Mr. T. S. Quincey, who, it will be remembered, was for some years with the hardware firm of McKee & Davidson, has been elected secretary and treasurer of the North Western Travelling Men's Association of the Northwest, and also secretary of the Mutual Accident Association of the Northwest, which includes the territory north of St. Louis. A very fine cut of Mr. Quincey appears in the Northwestern Commercial Traveller for December, a paper published in Chicago, and owned and edited by Mr. Quincey, and devoted to the interests of the above associations. Mr. Quincey's many friends in Peterborough will be pleased to hear of his continued prosperity.

Where are the Police?

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR EDITOR,—I hope the police will take the hint given them in your edition of last night and look sharply after those who drive without bells, and so endanger the lives and limbs of pedestrians by frequently coming upon them suddenly; and also after the boys and girls who seem to think that they have a full right to the sidewalk wherever there may be a hill, and slide down at a pretty high rate of speed, and care but little who they may run into and knock over.

A few examples would no doubt have the effect of putting a stop to the two evils, which, up to the present—although attention to them has been before drawn—seem to have been winked at by those who should have looked after them

Yours,
PEDESTRIAN.

Appreciation.

We have received the following letter:—

To the Editor of THE DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I read with much pleasure your "Poets and Poetry of Canada." Will you kindly inform me where I can obtain Helen, Mr. Johnston's poems and price, also G. S. Ascher's; and your price for binding "Picturesque Canada," and much oblige

[In reply to the above, we would inform our correspondent that Miss Johnston's poems may be obtained from the Rev. J. M. Orrock, editor of Zion's Herald, Boston, Mass, U. S. He is Miss Johnston's brother-in-law. Ascher's poems may be had through a local bookseller, or from Dawson Bros., Montreal. We are glad our correspondent appreciates our articles.—ED. EXAMINER.]

THE McCARTHY ACT ILLEGAL

Provincial Rights Again Sustained.

Sir John's License Bill Upset.

(Special Cable Despatch.)

LONDON (ENG.), Dec. 17.—The report to Her Majesty by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on the Dominion Government's appeal from the Supreme Court of Canada as to the constitutionality of the Dominion License Act was published to-day. It confirms the judgment of the Supreme Court to the effect that the power to issue tavern and shop licenses rests exclusively with the Provinces. It reverses the decision of the Supreme Court as to the powers to issue wholesale and vessel licenses. The Supreme Court had decided that the power over wholesale and vessel licenses resided in the Dominion. The Privy Council, however, decided the other way, and holds that this power is also vested in the Provinces. The case was argued on the eleventh and twelfth of November last. The counsel engaged were Sir Farrar Herschell, Mr. G. W. Burbidge, Q.C., and Mr. Jeune, for the Dominion; Mr. Horace Davey, Q.C., Hon. C. F. Fraser, Q.C., and Mr. Haldane, for Ontario; the Hon. Mr. Church for Quebec; and Mr. W. W. Tyrwhitt Drake, Q.C., for British Columbia.

HEAR WHAT SIR JOHN SAID.

Speaking at Toronto, on May 30, 1882, Sir John Macdonald said:—

"But gentlemen, I tell you as a lawyer, as a constitutional lawyer,—and it is with some pride that I say I have never laid down yet, since 1867, a constitutional question, which on reference to the highest courts of the realm has not been sustained, and that I have not in one case expressed a constitutional opinion, but that the highest courts in this country and in England have sustained my opinion."

Sir John has since got left on:

The Insurance Case,
The Escheat Case,
The Case of the Queen v. Hodge,
The Rivers and Streams Bill Case,
The Boundary Case,
The License Case before the Supreme Court,
And the License Case before the Privy Council,

Speaking at Yorkville, on June 2, 1882, Sir John again declared his invincibility. He said that:—

"Since Confederation his decision had often been given, as Minister of Justice, on constitutional questions, and in no single case had his judgment been reversed. He believed the Scott Act was not worth the paper it was written on * * * Whenever the licensed victuallers brought the matter before the Courts it would be decided that the Act was a usurpation, and held no force whatever, and he was surprised the question had not been pressed long before this. If he (Sir John) carried the country, as he would do, he would tell Mr. Mowat, that little tyrant, * * * that he would get a Bill passed at Ottawa returning to the municipalities the power taken away from them by the License Act."

Sir John, speaking in Parliament on Feb. 12, 1883, said:—

"It is quite clear to every lawyer, and any man who is not a lawyer, who reads the judgment of the Privy Council in the case of Russell v. The Queen, will see that the very reasons on which the Privy Council decided that this Parliament had the right to deal with with Scott Act are the reasons showing that the Legislature of Ontario had not the right to deal with that subject under the Crooks Act."

The Hon. Oliver Mowat's course has been vindicated by the highest court in the realm.

Obituary.

To-day we have to chronicle the death of one of our oldest and most respected citizens, in the person of Mr. James Campbell, which took place this morning at 2:30 at his residence, "Wakervale," North Monaghan. Deceased was on the market on Saturday, and though suffering from the effects of a cold, did not think seriously of it. On Monday, not having improved any, he had his physician called in, who, we believe, pronounced it a case of inflammation of the lungs, from the effects of which he so suddenly passed away this morning, at the very time when a medical consultation was taking place. Mr. Campbell came to Peterborough about thirty years ago, and commenced business on Hunter street, adjoining the Henthorn block, where he carried on business for a number of years. He afterwards removed to George street, and having accumulated a sufficient competence, retired about fifteen years ago, and purchased from the Gilmour estate, the beautiful property he resided upon until his decease. Mr. Campbell only this fall let a contract for the erection of a beautiful residence for himself, on the south portion of his land opposite what is now known as the Nicholls Hospital, the brickwork being completed about two weeks ago. He intended that his son-in-law, Mr. Geo. W. Hatton, should occupy the homestead. Mr. Campbell lived a retired life, and was highly respected by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. In agriculture Mr. Campbell took considerable interest, and always kept a good stock of the best class of animals. He was for a number of years President of the West Riding Agricultural Society, and only retired from that position one year ago. In politics he was a supporter of the Liberal party, and in religion he was a member of the English Church. He leaves a wife and one daughter (Mrs. Hatton) to mourn his loss. The funeral will take place on Sunday, the 20th inst., to the Little Lake Cemetery.

Curling.

A number of enthusiastic curlers assembled at the rink last night and had a game, the first of the season in town.

The rink will be opened to-night for skating and curling. The ice is in excellent condition and a good time may be anticipated. Electric light will be used. Tickets may be obtained from A. L. Davis, T. Menzies and Miss Jenkins, agents for the rink.

A match between rinks skipped by the President and Vice-President will come off next week.

The Peterboroughs will play with the Orillias for the Caledonian medal. Mr. Jas. Keith, of Lindsay, has been appointed umpire, and will decide on the time and place of contest.

The new stones purchased by Mr. C. McGill in Toronto recently, one pair for himself and five pairs for the club, will receive immediate attention, and their qualities tested.

A Happy Meeting and Supper.

A most enjoyable supper was given by the senior partner of the firm of Porter Bros., carriage builders, Peterborough, at his residence on Aylmer street, on Thursday evening the 17th inst., to all the employees of the firm, and their wives and other personal friends. After being cordially welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. C. Porter, Mr. James Stewart was called upon to preside, who made a brief speech of welcome to all. After grace being said, and all present had partaken of a splendid supper, the chairman proposed the "Queens' Health," the "Prince and Princess of Wales," and all the rest of the Royal Family, "the Governor-General and Lieut.-Governor of Ontario," "the Army and Navy," and "the Canadian Volunteers," "the Mercantile Interests of Peterborough," which were all duly responded to. During the early part of the evening, Mr. C. Lyle read an address on behalf of the employees of the firm, and presented Mrs. Porter with a beautiful hall lamp, which was thankfully accepted by a neat little speech from her better-half, thanking them very kindly one and all for the present and the kind words conveyed in the address, and glad to meet them all to-night, showing a good feeling that should always exist between employers and those in their employ. The remainder of the evening was taken up with speeches, songs and music. After "Auld Lang Syne" was sung, a happy meeting was brought to a close. About forty sat down to supper.

Figures are wonderful things. Here is a sample of what can be done with them: By placing one grain of corn on the first square of a chess board, doubling the number of grains for each succeeding square, the quantity of corn required for the whole board of sixty-four squares would fill 1,844,375 barns, each holding 1,000,000 bushels of 100,000 grains each, bushels round numbers. If the United States grows 1,800,000,000 bushels each year, it would require a little over 550 years to make enough.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 23.]

James McCarroll.

"There is in poesy a descent pride
Which well becomes her when she speaks to prose,
Her youngest sister."
Young Night Thoughts.

The Province of Ontario has reason to be proud of the remarkable ability and literary power of one writer, James McCarroll, long and favorably known to the reading public. As a poet, as a humorist, as a skilful editor and writer on miscellaneous subjects, he has had few equals, and as a lecturer, he has also been most successful. What could be said in higher praise of any name among our best journalists, and yet all this is in his case fully deserved?

McCarroll was born in the county of Longford, Ireland, on the 3rd of Aug., 1815. He obtained an excellent English education with some knowledge of classics, and at the age of 16 came with his people to settle in this province. Although supposed to aid in farm work, McCarroll's taste for literature was so keen that the drudgery of uncongenial tasks could not deter him from attempting to write, and soon his prose and poetic productions were eagerly sought for by many journalists. The more he sent to the press with the greater favor were his pieces received, and so, like many another genius, to find scope for his talents he purchased a paper.

This was the Chronicle published in 1843, in Peterborough, and here he conducted his paper with marked ability for about four years. In 1847 he published the Newcastle Courier, published at Cobourg, and from that date hardly a paper of any note existed outside Toronto in this province, to which he was not in some form or other a constant contributor. As a critic of literary works, as a correspondent and as active editor, few writers have shown such wonderful ability without special training.

The more labored works of Mr. McCarroll's pen appeared in the Canadian Gem, Cobourg, the Anglo-American Magazine, Toronto; the Leader, the Home Journal and the British American Magazine. He was for a time the owner and editor of a comic weekly called the "Latch Key," and in that sheet he published a series of humorous letters under the pseudonym "Terry Finnigan." They were addressed to the late Hon. T. D'Arcy McGee and were so well received that they were published in book form in 1864 and had a large circulation.

The Hamilton Times, speaking of this famous series of letters, said: "Canada could boast of having at least one real wit whose genius, force and fine imagination are a happy blending of the leading characteristics of Dickens and Lover."

McCarroll also prepared a humorous lecture, entitled the "The House that Jack Built," which was delivered in most of the Canadian towns and cities, and by this attempt on the platform our author and poet added greatly to his reputation.

It is as a poet, however, that his real powers are best seen, and upon this part of his work his fame will rest. A journalist may be skilful and clever, and show real genius in his arguments and methods, but his work is too ephemeral. It is, indeed, forgotten as soon as read, for his articles are only of passing interest and are designed merely to catch the popular taste.

McCarroll was the author of the following stories: "The New Gauger," "The New Life Boat," and "The Adventures of a Night," all of which were published in the Anglo-American Magazine. As a writer for the press his style was terse, vigorous and pointed. His sentences were short and epigramatic, and were marked by logical force and cleverness. He knew the power of sarcasm, and could employ drollery with great effect.

Our space forbids quoting any lengthy extracts from his poetry, but the following short pieces will give some idea of his style. His description of autumn is very fine and evinces great powers of observation, no detail escaping his watchful notice. Here is an address he makes:—

TO THE SEA.

Unfathomable waste of winds and waves,
And stars that tuft the purple woof of night,
And pin it, shadowed down, amid thy depths—
How great art thou in all thy two-fold strength!
Whether one vast unbroken sheet of calm,
Where the long finger of the lonely mast
Points through the azure solitude, to God!
Or whether, from out thy solemn chambers roused,
Shaking thy dripping hide and awful crest,
Thou goest forth to meet the fierce typhoon
That, plumed with darkness, blurred with fire and flame,
Scatters thy fleets mid shoals and sunken rocks,
And leaves them, like dead sea-fowl, drifting there!

How great art thou!—at morn!—at noon!—or eve,
When through the crimson portals of the west
The huge, red furnace of the dying day
Pours out its lava o'er thy radiant floor,
Till thou art as the vestibule of heaven
Leading to the great clamor of the sun
That carpets the dread space before the throne;
And till the earth clasped in thy glowing arms
In emerald splendor's hurse slung its path,
And then dost seem a giant ruby set
In the broad chasing of a thousand shores,
When thou dost meet the sea shells and the sands,
A rim of golden dust, and pearl and rose.

There is exquisite humor and genuine poetry in the following production from McCarroll's pen. It is called

THE GREY LINNET.

There's a little grey friar in yonder green bush
Clothed in sackcloth—a little grey friar
Like a Druid of old in his temple—but hush!
He's at Vespers; You must not go nigher.

Yet the rogue! can those strains be addressed to the skies?
And around us so wantonly float,
Till the glowing refrain like a shining thread flies
From the silvery reel of his throat!

When he roves, though he stains not his path through the air
With the splendour of tropical wings,
All the lustre denied to his russet plumes there,
Flashes forth through his lay when he sings.

For the little grey friar's so wondrous wise,
Though in such a plain garb he appears,
That on finding he can't reach your soul through your eyes,
He steals in through the gates of your ears.

But the cheat! 'tis not heaven he's warbling about—
Other passions, less holy, betide—
For, behold! there's a little rosy nun peeping out
From a bunch of green leaves at his side!

Immigration had much to do with the increase of population in Ontario during this period, but in Quebec the increase was chiefly due to the excess of births over deaths.—Hamilton Times.

Keene.

Sleighing at last—after the long thaw.

Rev. Francis Johnson delivered a most interesting lecture in the Methodist Church here last Friday evening. The subject was "A trip to Britain and the sights and scenes viewed there, and lessons to be learned, etc., etc." Everyone was interested and all went home highly gratified with the many graphic scenes depicted, and in the hope to hear more of it.

The quiet of our hamlet was broken on Sunday by an alarm of fire in the Presbyterian Church, just as service was opened. The building was soon emptied, and a bucket brigade formed who worked like heroes, and soon the walls were dripping at the eastern front. The lath and plaster were torn from beneath the rose window in the gallery, also under the gallery in the centre of the church, and in the basement round the pipe of the furnace. It was a narrow escape from the total destruction of the building, as, if it had occurred at any other time than at service, the fire must have got too far under way to be controlled. It started near the smoke pipe of the east furnace. The damages are probably about $50, and the repairs will be so conducted that no such accident will occur again.

The Town Hall was crowded to hear the Bairnsfather family, who gave us a rare treat to-night (Tuesday) in one of their "Twa hours in Scotland." They fairly surpassed anything we have heard since Kennedy was here. They are a talented family, and the Scottish hearts were visibly touched by the wonderful rendition of Scottish humor in Mr. Bairnsfather's stories, and the equally delightful interpretation of Scottish poetry and song by Madame Etta Bairnsfather. Her voice is exceedingly sweet and pure in the upper tones, and she has the happy art of looking happy when she sings, and carrying the audience with her, though she has not yet recovered from the indisposition from which she was suffering when she sang in Peterborough, on St. Andrew's night. The children brought down the house with their sweet songs, and their dancing set the audience half wild with delight. They were repeatedly encored, as were Madame and Mr. Bairnsfather, who responded gracefully and generously to the many calls on their repertoire, and made themselves a name long to be remembered here with delight. Mr. Bairnsfather is a genius and has the gift of a raconteur in a wonderful degree, calling for mirth, patriotism or enthusiasm, at will. We saw many weatherbeaten faces quivering with emotion,—and two musical friends said, "we never heard the like since we left the old country." Success to them all. They will get a bumper house if ever they return to Keene.

Campbellford.

During the past season Campbellford has spent $31,000 in new buildings.

The school accommodation is now very much over-taxed, and the board are considering the advisability of erecting new buildings and procuring an increased teaching staff.

Several accidents have happened hereabouts during the past week. More care should be exhibited in driving during the slippery season.

The Daily Examiner.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1885.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

A New Hall.

We understand that a new Masonic Hall will be erected next season by the Masonic Fraternity of Peterborough.

Municipal Matters.

Municipal matters are still extremely quiet, but it is possible that it is the lull before the storm. It will break between Christmas and the New Year. None of the wards seem inclined to move first.

Schools Closed.

The public and high schools close this evening for the Christmas vacation. The entrance examinations commence on Monday. We understand quite a number of pupils have signified their intention to write at this examination from outside the town.

Christmas Cheer at the "Golden Lion."

Every department full of choice new goods with many specialties for the festive season. Every intending purchaser should visit the establishment to be convinced of the variety and bargains now being offered by Fair, Van-Every & Co'y.

Lodge of Instruction.

R. W., District Deputy Grand Master, Bro. Dr. Turner, of Millbrook, will hold a lodge of instruction in masonry in Peterborough, about the 15th of January, 1886. There will no doubt be a large attendance of the members of the order at this meeting.

Festival of St. John.

The festival of St. John the Baptist falling this year on Sunday, the installation ceremonies in connection with the Masonic Lodges of Peterborough, will take place on Monday evening, the 28th December.

New Year's Calling Cards.

The EXAMINER printing establishment has laid in a large and elegant assortment of New Year's calling-cards. Gentlemen desirous of obtaining the latest styles and neatest letterings should call at the office and make their selections. All these cards are of new and novel design and are the best that can be obtained. The sooner you leave your order the better.

Another lot of those Low-Priced Photograph Frames just received. A. L. Davis & Co.

Address and Presentation

Mr. Smith, formerly head master of the West Ward School, who has been promoted to the position of Principal of the Public Schools, was on Wednesday afternoon presented with an address and a beautiful hanging lamp by his late pupils. Mr. Smith acknowledged the gift in a pleasant reply. He spoke of the good feeling which had existed between himself and the pupils, during his term, and hoped they would be as dutiful and attentive to their studies under their new master.

A Good Suggestion.

The English newspapers publish paragraphs, inspired presumably by the post-office authorities, cautioning the public against choking the central postoffices with matter the day before Christmas. If all cards and letters are posted on the same day there is no chance whatever of all being delivered on the same day; whereas a little sensible distribution over a few days preceding Christmas, prevents a block in the postoffice, and recipients have no objection to seeing friendly remembrances on the table a day or two before the actual anniversary is celebrated. To avoid being too late post your cards a little too early.

The Royal Arcanum.

The following officers were elected for Peterborough Council No. 735 of the Royal Arcanum on Thursday evening:

Bro. Rev. W. C. Bradshaw.....Past Regent.
" J. R. Stratton.....Regent.
" W. G. Ferguson.....Orator.
" C. H. Gesle.....Secretary.
" B. Shortly.....Treasurer.
" W. A. Stratton.....Collector.
" John Braden.....Chaplain.
" R. B. Rogers.....Guide.
" James Alexander.....Warden.
" F. J. Jamieson.....Sentry.

Bros. J. H. Roper, H. C. Winch and R. E. Wood, Trustees.

Rev. W. C. Bradshaw was elected representative to the Grand Lodge, which meets in Toronto in May. The meetings of this society will in future be held in the Post-office block. The Royal Arcanum is a secret beneficiary order founded on business principles. The objects of the order are to unite fraternally men of sound bodily health and good moral character, who are socially acceptable and between 21 and 55 years of age. To give all moral and material aid in its power to its members and those dependent upon them. To educate its members socially, morally and intellectually, also to assist the widows and orphans of deceased members. To establish a fund for the relief of sick and distressed members. To establish a widows' and orphans' benefit fund, from which, on the satisfactory evidence of the death of a member of the order, who has complied with all its lawful requirements, a sum not exceeding $3,000 shall be paid to his family, or those dependent on him, as he may direct.

Piano Tuning.

Mr. Geo. Gumpricht is in town for a few days. Orders left at Mr. T. Menzies Bookstore or Messrs. Taylor & McDonald's Drug-store, will be attended to.

An Upset.

Yesterday, while the Grand Central hotel bus was entering the hotel yard, at a more lively gait than a walk, the bus upset, throwing the driver over on the sidewalk. With the exception of a little damage to one of the runners, the overturn did no harm.

Full Line of the Celebrated Prangs Cards in Stock. A. L. Davis & Co.

New Year's Address.

The EXAMINER carrier boys are preparing their New Year's address. Each subscriber should bear in mind whether the boy has delivered his paper faithfully or not. Boys should be made to appreciate the fact that honesty and industry are good policies.

Division Court.

The usual December sittings of the Division Court was held to-day in the Court House, His Honor Judge Dennistoun presiding. The docket was not very large, which would indicate that accounts are being well paid up, or unusual leniency on the part of creditors.

Elocutionary Entertainment.

Mr. George Belford gave another of his pleasing recitals in Bradburn's Opera House last evening. The attendance was not large. Mr. Belford's powers were again marvelously exhibited. It is a pity that entertainments of this nature are not more largely patronized, as they are instructive as well as interesting.

Weather Changes.

The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist:—

3 "	28	29.15

Xmas Cards are now so Cheap you can afford to send them to all your Friends. Select Early. A. L. Davis & Co.

Crayon Portrait.

Mrs. L. E. Horning has on exhibition at Mr. Morgan's drug store, a beautiful life-size crayon bust portrait of her father, Mr. Charles Nixon, of St. George, Ont. It is exceedingly well executed, being done with fine point crayon instead of the stump crayon which is generally used. Mrs. Horning's crayon portraits are being much admired and are well worthy of inspection.

Banquet.

A complimentary banquet to Geo. Hilliard M. P., and John Carnegie, M. P. P., is announced by poster to take place at South Monaghan shortly. The poster does not say whether it is the intention to congratulate Mr. Hilliard on his double-back action on the Post-office site or not. Probably it is to give "Sarah" another opportunity of appealing to the Protestants of "South Monaghan" to vote against Fraser. It might possibly be to give Mr. C. a chance to explain his attacks on the Model Farm. We've got it now! It may be that the approaching municipal election in South Monaghan are again receiving a little attention from our M. P. P. Mr. Willan may require "booming;" but to charge the ladies 25 cents for attending such a banquet, is the quintessence of shabbiness. The ladies should resent the insult. This is carrying women's rights a little too far?

Our Satin Mounted Xmas Cards are Exquisite. A. L. Davis & Co.

The Prospecting Party.

Referring to our comments on the number of Port Hopers that paid Peterborough a visit the other day, the Port Hope Times says:—This is not quite correct. The "prospecting party" did not leave Millbrook for fear of not getting a "good meal." The party had some hours on their hands, and went to Peterborough more particularly to compare the electric light in that town with our own. The "Royal" is a very fine light, but not equal to the "Ball," either in brilliancy or steadiness, on the street or in-doors. The lights in Peterborough, we think, are unnecessarily close together, in the proportion of about two or three to one here, and we do not think the people get the benefit of it. The party rather astonished Mr. W. VanEvery and Mr. Robt. Fair, by walking into the Golden Lion in a body. Peterborough is undoubtedly a progressive town, and a walk through the principal streets after dark, will convince anyone that the merchants are a live lot of pushing fellows. The party, we need not say, were greatly pleased with their kind treatment." It is all right, gentlemen, we'll take your word for it; come again, "we'll trait you dacent."

Labor and Wages.

Mr. David McDougall, of this town, is at present collecting for the Bureau of Industries, Toronto, statistics of labor and wages in the town of Peterborough. Among his duties are the compilation of reports of all the occupations in important lines of industry of the town, the average rate of wages or earnings for the year therein, together with the average time employed, and the average cost of living. This information is collected from the employers. Similar information is also being gathered from the employers of labor, and it is very important that a sufficient number of returns should be obtained from workers to make a good average. Mr. McDougall takes especial care not to take up any more of the time of workers than is possible, and as far as possible not in business hours. It is very much to the interest of both employers and employed, that such reports should be as accurate as possible, and that all information should be given as willingly and readily as possible. There is no fear of anyone's affairs being published. All information is strictly private for the purposes only for which it is gathered, and there is not the slightest danger of such reports being used to any person's detriment. The statistics of every occupation are presented so as to give averages. The individual is merged in the mass and never appears. These reports are for the benefit of the working classes. Trades councils heartily recommend them and give them their full approbation. Many think that this work is done for the purpose of imposing new burdens on them, and consequently refuse to give information. This is a mistaken idea. As we said before, all information is private and confidential for the purpose for which it is to be used, and in no way will it be used other than for such purposes. We heartily wish Mr. McDougall success in his labours, and hope that both employers and employed will co-operate with him. When Mr. McDougall's work is completed, and the result published, a sufficient number of copies will be forwarded to Peterborough, for distribution among those from whom the information is obtained, so that the general state of wages may be compared in the different sections of the province, and a fair comparision may be made of the average wages, and cost of living in this and other parts of Ontario.

Anniversary Services.

The Anniversary Services of the Murray Street Baptist Church will be held on Sunday the 20th Dec. when the Rev. Dr. Castle, Principal of McMaster Hall, will preach both morning and evening. On Monday the 21st Dec., the annual tea-meeting will be held in the basement of the church. Tea will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock p.m., when the Rev. Dr. Thomas of Jarvis Street Church will deliver his great lecture on "Men for the age." Tickets for tea or lecture, 25 cents each; for both 35 cents each.

Personal.

Mr. Yokome, with the EXAMINER, has been confined to his room for the past few days, suffering from a severe cold.

The Ven. Archbishop Pinkham, of Winnipeg, left town yesterday evening by the C. P. R. He will preach in Hamilton on Sunday next and then return home.

Mr. John D. Baptie has signified his intention to contest No. 3 ward for a seat in the council of 1886. Mr. Baptie is an energetic young man, and will no doubt poll a good vote.

Mr. Wm. Walsh's many friends will be pleased to know that he has sufficiently recovered from the effects of his fall on Sunday last, having dislocated his left shoulder, to be out again. He was at the store last evening. We hope he will soon be able to use his arm as freely as before the accident.

Mr. Blake's popularity with all sections of the Liberal party is well known by the enthusiasm his home-coming has evoked in many quarters. Halifax was anxious to honor him, Quebec was prepared to give him a warm greeting, Montreal extends her congratulations, London proposes to banquet him, and the Young Liberals of Hamilton are arranging to give him a cordial welcome on his homeward journey.

Our Approaching Municipal Elections.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

SIR,—As a rule there is very little good accomplished by what some will call faultfinding, and very little credit given to those who honestly try to do what they think is right. Some persons are sure to be offended, while others care very little about what is said to them, especially about town affairs. They are too busy with their own private business to trouble themselves with what concerns everybody alike, so they content themselves with voting for any candidate who presents himself before them. Many electors feel flattered when they are asked for their support, and they are, therefore, pretty sure to make the desired promises and then go and vote simply to fulfil that promise. In this way many men get into the Council, who, for the common interest, had better be out of it, but it is easy to make a promise, although the consequences may be different from what the promiser contemplated. I could point out many things which I think and I could point some councillors who I think ought not to be returned again. But I wish, as far as I can, to avoid anything like personalities, for it is as much the duty of the ratepayers to keep themselves acquainted with the conduct of their representatives as it is my duty to do so, and if all classes would make it a rule to inform themselves as to the acts of their councillors, the result would be both for their own individual benefit as well as for the good of the town. And when they do this they will find that the business of the town will go on much more economically and satisfactory than it does now. At present, candidates for office represent matters to the electors to suit their own interests, and the people don't know whether they are right or wrong. I may tell them what I think about the proceedings of the council, but how are they to judge between me and their representatives when the don't possess the means of judging who is right and who is wrong. There can be no harm in my saying that I consider Mr. Menzies, Mr. Yelland and Mr. Douglass, the three members of Ward 2, and Honest John of Ward 1, as good men at the Council board. This is simply my opinion. The electors can think it

NEED TO BE REFORMED,

NOT FOR THEMSELVES.

It is their duty to do so. There is no mistake about it that Mr. Rutherford is a dear councillor. He is ambitious and is fond of big schemes. He is a great waterworks man, and the result of this is that henceforth the ratepayers will be paying $3,000 a year taxes to the waterworks. Everybody alike has to help pay this tax, many of whom will not, perhaps in this generation, have the use of the water. I don't object to this because it makes my taxes all the lighter, and if people are willing to do this much for me, I shall not complain. The first duty of the people is to secure good, unambitious, and economical councillors, who will make it their special duty to cut down salaries to something like the value of the work given for them, and to something like what the recipients of these salaries could obtain in some other employment, and then to turn their attention to other things requiring the pruning knife, and if they do this they can save the town yearly a large sum of money, which now is as good as thrown away. At the present moment the town presents this spectacle. Their councillors propose an exemption by-law, which they and every one else know is illegal. But they refuse to repeal it and now

THE COURTS HAVE BEEN CALLED ON to do so, and the council is defending the proceedings and doing all they can to keep the by-law in force. But the ratepayers will have to pay some three or four hundred dollars for thus trying to undo the work of the council. This is a matter for the consideration of the electors, and they must act accordingly.

The Cantata "Daniel."

A Grand Success—Large and Appreciative Audience—A Chorus of Over Fifty Voices—Rich and Appropriate Costumes and Excellent Impersonations.

The sacred Cantata of "Daniel" which has been under preparation for some time, and has been looked forward to with so much interest, was presented in Bradburn's Opera House yesterday evening, under the auspices of Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O. F., Peterborough. It was the most ambitious musical effort made in this town, and eclipsed anything of the kind ever given here. The large and appreciative audience was surprised and delighted with the excellence of the entertainment. The Cantata is a representation in three parts of incidents in connection with the captivity of the Israelites by the Persians and their subsequent restoration. Over fifty of the best voices in town, under the leadership of Mr. Finch Millar, assisted in the production, and were ably supported by piano and orchestral accompaniments, under the leadership of Mr. Hampshire. The costumes were exceedingly rich and appropriate, representing with grand effect the splendour, wealth and beauty of the Persian court. Mr. Anderson, of Millbrook, impersonated to perfection the King, Nebuchadnezzar, his commanding appearance and exceptionally fine bass voice added much effectiveness to the realism of his presentation of the character. Miss Eliza Johnston, as Queen, was a decided success, the beautiful dress of the Persian Queen giving her a charming appearance, while her sweet, rich voice added to the effect. She was ably supported by Mrs. Pentland, Miss Ada Huston, Miss Huston and Miss Wells as attendants, and a number of Persian and Israelitish maidens. All took their parts so well that personal mention would be out of place. In appearance the maidens were charming. The king's guards were a very handsome set of fellows. Mr. D. D. Gallelly, as Daniel, the prophet, excelled himself. Mr. Gallelly is too well and favorably known to need praise. He took his part faultlessly and his singing was much admired. Mr. Craven, as Azariah, did so well that he was thought to be imported talent, while Mr. Charles Bagauley and Mr. William Hill, as Azariah's companions, were conspicuous for their excellence. Miss Jessie Logan, the prophetess, as Azariah's sister, acquitted herself with great credit and success. Messrs. Steele, Means, B. Hill and S. F. Hill, made admirable Princes. Messrs. Stevens and Ed. Dawson impersonated well the first and second Presidents of the realm. Mr. J. Billington acted as Herald. The choruses by the ladies, "Queens' Attendants," "Israelitish and Persian Maidens," were grand. The following are the names of those who took part in the Cantata, with the characters assumed:—

LADIES.

Miss Johnston, Queen; Mrs. Pentland, Miss Huston, Miss Ada Huston and Miss Wells, Queen's attendants.

Israelitish, Persian and Assyrian maidens: Mrs. G. W. Hall, Mrs. G. B. Sproule, Mrs. Allison, Mrs. Steele, Mrs. Hampshire, Miss Smart, Miss Brandrette, Miss Hughes, Miss Metherall, Miss Turner, Miss Cameron, Miss Dawson, Miss Gallelly, Miss Patterson, Miss Daisy Sproule, Miss Stevens, Miss Butcher, Miss Campbell, Miss Hattie Johnston, Miss Green, Miss Sophia Cameron, Miss Millar. Miss Minore, Miss A. Gillespie, Miss A. Sproule, Miss Maggie Stevens.

GENTLEMEN.

Mr. Anderson, Millbrook, King; D. D. Gallelly, Daniel; Mr. Craven, Azariah; Mr. Wm. Hill, Hananiah; Mr. C. Bagauley, Mishael; Mr. Steel, 1st Pres.; Mr. E. Dawson, 2d Pres.; Messrs. Steele, Means, B. Hill, and S. F. Hill, Princes; Mr. J. Billington, Herald; Messrs. A. H. Turner, Moore, Allison, Dawson, McLean, Whitlow, Turner, Huffman, Chowan, Brown, Matthews, Allingham, Pentland, Kings Guards and Attendants.

ORCHESTRA

Mr. Hampshire (leader) piano; Mr. Butcher, flute; Messrs. Cooper, Doucet and Martin, violins; Messrs. Millar, Morne and Bryden, brass instruments.

Previous to the preformance, Mr. Wm. Clurton, master of ceremonies of Otonabee Lodge, addressed the audience. He said he was pleased to see the large audience, and welcomed them on behalf of the Lodge. He wished to make a slight change in the order of things, which he had been long of the opinion was the proper way, viz: singing the national anthem at the beginning of public entertainments, instead of at the close. His suggestion was acted upon, the full chorus of the company and the audience joining in "God save the Queen" with splendid effect.

The Cantata opened with a grand chorus, "By the Rivers of Babylon," representing Babylon at the 27th year of the captivity of the Israelites. Nebuchadnezzar raises a golden image and makes proclamation that at the sound of musical instruments all shall fall down and worship, and the result of the proclamation. The scenic and costume effects were rich and the music grand. Daniel's solo, "Blessed be the Name of God Forever" was loudly applauded, as was also the duet of Miss Logan and Mr. Craven, as Azariah and sister.

The scene of the King's throne, with the King, supported by his guards and surrounded by attendants, was very striking and picturesque. The solo of Mr. Gallelly in Daniel's prayer was an exquisite rendition. The duets of the King and Queen and of Daniel and the King in the second part, were splendidly presented and loudly applauded. In the third part the trio of Daniel, Azariah and sister was exceedingly effective and elicited loud applause. The King's solo, "Go, servants of the Living God," received probably the most enthusiastic applause of any solo presented during the evening. The final chorus was beyond description. The grouping of the characters for the closing scene, was done with splendid effect. In the foreground the King and Queen, with their surrounding retinue, on the right Daniel and the Israelites, on the left the Persians, in the background the attendant soldiers, guards, etc. The brilliantly clad throng, with its flashing background of glittering spears, caught and enchanted the eye, while at the fall of the leader's baton, every voice in splendid unison filled the hall with a magnificent burst of harmonic sound. The grandeur of the theme and its perfect rendition, fifty voices blending as one, made the closing chorus a fitting finale for a successfully presented cantata, considered in every way. The Oddfellows of Otonabee lodge, to whom the conception of the musical enterprise is due, are entitled to a large amount of credit for the active manner in which they promoted it, and the success of the cantata is chiefly due to the capable and intelligent manner in which the musical citizens of the town seconded their efforts, and carried their conceptions into effect. Prof. Miller's leadership is entitled to a large share of praise, while the fine accompaniment of Mr. Hampshire, had a large effect in making the different choral numbers complete and coherent. The orchestral accompainment added largely to the effectiveness of the instrumentation. After the conclusion of the entertainment, a vote of thanks was tendered the Oddfellows, for giving the public such an excellent treat, on motion of Rev. Mr. Davis. Mr. Sproule replied thanking the audience for the appreciation of the Order's efforts.

Lakefield.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A very successful entertainment was given here by the Warsaw Glee Club, on Thursday evening. The programme was very interesting and of a high character. Mr. A. F. Choate, of Warsaw, performed the duties of chairman very satisfactorily. An orchestra of five instruments, during the evening, delighted the audience with their selections. In addition to choruses by the club, Mr. Thos. Dunn, of Peterborough, sang "London [illegible]" in his well known and excellent style and was loudly applauded. Mr. Chambers, also of Peterborough, contributed two capital songs. Miss Addie Choate sang two charming solos, and Miss Addie and Hattie Choate gave the pretty duett, "I Know a Bank," in fine style. Miss Mollie Lumsden contributed "Caller Herrin'," which was well received. Mr. John Kidd's rendition of "Miss Flaherty's Christmas Cake" elicited loud and prolonged applause. The club gave an excellent entertainment, and are worthy of patronage.

FIGHTING DIPHTHERIA.

The Board of Health is having its hands full in fighting against the diphtheria. Regulations are being strictly enforced, and every precaution taken. The feeling, whether rightly or wrongly, is not favorable to the Minden authorities. For months, in fact, since April, diphtheria has been around Minden, and until September, was allowed to spread itself throughout the country without hindrance. Since September a board of health has been doing what it could, but the idea of letting such a disease as diphtheria, a disease worse than the small-pox, run wild for five months, is nothing less than criminal negligence. The number of deaths has been close on forty, a proportion that is most serious. A death occurred last week, and some of the friends of the deceased came from Bobcaygeon to the funeral. A more ill-advised thing could not be imagined. Before they arrived here, the Board of Bobcaygeon wired our Board to prevent their return they were thoroughly disinfected. Mr. Watson had a narrow escape from serious consequences. He was inhaling some disinfectant, and it rendered him unconscious.

A party of hunters, from Hamilton, passed through, last week, on their way home. They had been around the country quite a pit, and made a good hunt. They stopped some time with Mr. Pocket, near Haliburton, and say they were well used. The game list footed up two moose, one bear, three deer, and thirty brace of partridge. The moose weighed 1,170lb. and were shot about five miles from Haliburton.—Independent.

News of the Day.

One of the greatest slaughters ever wrought by plague in modern times has been the death of a hundred thousand people in Spain through the cholera this year.

The country has suffered a great loss in the death of Dr. Marsden who passed directly from arduous activity in his country's service to his grave.

A former Kingstonian has struck a bonanza in California. There years ago he bought 560 acres of rocky land at Riverside for one dollar an acre, and has recently sold it for $78,000, its value consisting in an abundant water supply.

The Newfoundland correspondent of the Gazette gives a terrible account of the barbarism that exists among the fishing people who make an annual migration from Newfoundland to the Labrador coast, as shown by the horrible condition of the vessels in which they are transported backwards and forwards, and of the wretched huts in which they live when on the coast. The degrading picture given is only equalled by those of the horrible slavery of women in the English coal mines, which was long ago put a stop to by legislation.

The London papers are bewailing the removal to Toronto of another of the forest city's most prominent wholesale men, Mr. Wm. Bryce, whose line is books, toys and fancy goods. The reason assigned for his change of base is the lack of railway competition from which London suffers. Within a few years Toronto may be said to have practically absorbed the wholesale trade of Hamilton and London, and to have conquered a large area of Montreal's former territory.

It is rumored that the sudden visit of Sir John Macdonald to England, was to confer with the British on the subject of the joint Commission, with a view to Commercial Union.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

A Horrible Tragedy.

DETROIT, Dec. 17.—Investigation has proved that the fire in the suburbs last night at which Mr. and Mrs. Frank Enoch and two children lost their lives, covered a horrible tragedy. Examination of the body of Frank Enoch showed that the forepart of the skull had been burned away, but the brain remained intact and lodged firmly within it was a 22 calibre bullet, badly mishaped. The blood about the brain was coagulated, showing that death had taken place some time before his body was burned. The head of Mrs. Enoch was next examined and a bullet found in her brain. The bodies of the children showed no bullet marks. A man known as Alec. Houser, who formerly worked for Enoch, is suspected. He was seen in Ecorse with a lot of boon companions spending money freely. Detectives are now on his track.

Conductor Morris Captures the Lamp.

At a bazar recently held in Belleville, among the events was a voting contest for a splendid silver conductor's lamp. The conductors were Mr. C. Corcoran, of the Grand Trunk main line, and Mr. Wm. Morris, of the Grand Junction. All who know the affable, obliging, good-natured Conductor Morris, would surely vote him one of the most popular of living conductors, and it is no surprise that, although Corcoran is a resident, and received all the benefit of such a condition, as well as the benefit of the topographical antipathy felt by the Bay City towards this town, Conductor Morris' popularity placed him to the front as winner of the lamp with a majority of 263 votes. Anyone who has ever travelled on a train conducted by Mr. Morris, will heartily endorse the verdict, and the EXAMINER has pleasure in congratulating him on so public and pronounced an expression of his popularity. The lamp is on view at Stephens' tobacco store, Hunter street.

A Successful Bazaar.

The ladies of the Charlotte street Methodist Church are to be congratulated on the success with which the bazaar held in the Cox block, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, has so far been attended. Early this morning the two new shops in the Cox block underwent a fairy transformation, the deft fingers of the ladies beautifying the windows with lace curtains, etc. Inside the right hand shop constituted the bazaar premises. The first that met the view was a large table containing fancy articles, dolls, and doll's furnishings, presided over by Misses Emma and Bella Morrow. Further on a long counter contained a further display of fancy stock, while on the wall in rear were displayed the more splended specimens of the stock on hand. Mrs. Davis, Mrs. W. J. Green and Miss Clark and others were the saleladies in charge. On the opposite side of the bazaar were two fruit tables, the first presided over by Miss Jennie Lumsden and Miss Brownscombe, and the second by Masters Bertie and Fred Cox and Howard Hughes. An archway opened to the next shop, which was the banquetting hall, where three tables were laid with a most brilliant and tempting display of edibles. These were in charge respectively of Miss Cox and Miss Logan, Mrs. J. J. McBain and Mrs. W. H. Morris, and Miss Lumsden and Miss Barrie, each having at her command a full staff of competent waitresses. The industrious Marthas who serve in the culinary department, must not be forgotten, although their services are not so publicly noted. A large number from time to time took dinner at the bazaar banquetting hall. The tables will be kept laden this afternoon and evening and merchants will find them a great convenience—they can drop in and take a most sumptuous meal and be back again to business in a few minutes, thus saving a long and cold tramp home, and avowing a lengthy absense from their shops at the busiest time of the week and year.

Wooden sailing vessels are being rapidly superseded by iron steam craft for even coastwise trade in Great Britain. Higher freight is considered to be more than compensated by speedier and more certain voyages. This is what a circular of the iron trade sets forth: "Perhaps 10 per cent, on an average, of our whole yearly export in iron was, a few years ago, always on board ship, and the uncertainty of arrival further caused buyers to keep considerable quantities in their stores; but every year, and even every month, changes the position, and now we calculate the quantities on the seas do not amount to 5 per cent of the total export. In fact, large stocks afloat and ashore are becoming a thing of the past." A useful lesson from British experience might be learned with advantage on this side of the Atlantic.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1885.

THE CROWNING VICTORY.

Referring to the last and most mortifying defeat of Sir John Macdonald as a constitutional lawyer, the Globe says :—

The great constitutional lawyer who knows no law has sustained another, and this time a crushing blow. His high-handed attempt to deprive the Provinces of rights amply secured to them by the British North American Act has been defeated. His boasted knowledge has been shown to be empty egotism. He is overwhelmed with humiliation.

The whole history of the license dispute is full of defeat and disgrace for Sir John Macdonald. His object in interfering with the licensing power in the first place was base and unworthy. Defeated in his efforts to induce the people of Ontario to discharge Mr. Mowat, he sought to destroy the Province which persisted in retaining Mr. Mowat's services. Temporarily checked in his mad design he yet refused to acknowledge his error, but persisted in his infatuated course while the faintest hope of success was left to him. The decision of the Privy Council rendered yesterday is the fitting reward of his efforts to grasp absolute power in Canada. The Hon. Oliver Mowat's course and opinions have been amply vindicated. To Hon. C. F. Fraser and Hon. Mr. Church, who so ably handled the case in behalf of Ontario and Quebec, and to all those associated with them earnest thanks are due.

The World (Independent Tory) says :—

Mr. Mowat is the one statesman who has succeeded in repeatedly frustrating the schemes of the wily leader of the Canadian Tories. The latter's defeat on every point in the river and streams and the boundary disputes are matters of history. Yesterday word was received that the Ontario Government had scored a crowning victory by the decision of the Privy Council invalidating the Dominion License Act. This decision will be received with popular satisfaction, and we trust that it will put an end to the aggressions upon provincial rights and privileges which have so long been a source of irritation in our public life. Our provincial laws are as a rule good laws, and even if they were not it is our business to amend or repeal them, and not the business of the other provinces.

The News says:—It is announced that the final decision of the Imperial Privy Council on the long-disputed question as to whether the Dominion or Provincial Government has the right to issue liquor licenses, is in favor of the Province. This was only to be expected—in fact, any other decision, after the previous rulings of that body on issues very closely approaching the direct question, would have created considerable surprise. Sir John himself can hardly have hoped for success after the repeated defeats he has sustained in contests with Premier Mowat before the Privy Council. It is none the less satisfactory, however, to everyone else concerned to have the matter at length settled decisively and all possible doubts set at rest

The Mail, after the information had been published for two days, says :

"It was rumored in the city yesterday that the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council had decided against the Dominion in the case of the appeal from the decision of the Supreme Court on the liquor license question. Up to a late hour last night the Dominion Government had not received advice of any such decision."

The Evening Journal, the new Conservative paper of Ottawa, says :—

"The little Premier of Ontario has scored another point. A cable despath says that the Judical Committee has decided, in the case of the Dominion vs. the Province, on the constitutionality of the Dominion License Act in favor of the Provinces. This knocks Mr. McCarthy's pet bill higher than a kite and adds a new feather to the cap of Mr. Mowat. The probabilites are that the Privy Council has handed over the whole matter to the Local Government. It is just as well that this decision has been arrived at. There has been a very general impression prevailing for a long time past, even in extreme Conservative circles, that the Government did a rash thing in interfering with what could have been left to the provinces, without any harm being done. And now we may also expect Mr. Dalton McCarthy's organ at Collingwood to once more demand the abolition of the Privy Council.

The Montreal Witness shows conclusively that the charge so often made against the graduates of the military college, that they were of no service to their country in her hour of trial, is not well and truly laid. Of thirty-one possible graduates, twenty-one took an active part in suppressing the rebellion, which was a large proportion, considering the force engaged.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Ottawa Free Press : "The secession of Senator Malnes of British Columbia from the Conservative party, is now complete. He has publicly denounced the government's North-west policy and condemns their execution of Riel. Over a dozen conservative senators have seceded to the liberal party since last session, and next session the liberal party will be stronger in that body than for many years past. So much attention is directed towards the House of Commons that this fact is being overlooked. This is a new peril which threatens the government."

The Toronto Telegram in an editorial note on the likelihood of a senator being appointed from either Peterborough or Lindsay, says :—

"We understand that the Government coincides with this view, and that the only difficulty found is in deciding whether the new senator shall be John Dobson, of Lindsay, or James Stevenson, of Peterboro. The decision of this question will be announced immediately upon Sir John Macdonald's return home."

By all means give us a senator. There is something for the Junior Liberal Conservative Club to look after. If Sir John goes back on Peterborough for Lindsay, it will be a frigid day for him.

Norwood.

Another of those pleasing and happy events occurred on Wednesday, being the union in marriage of Mr. Henry Buck, son of Thos. Buck, Esq., and Ella, eldest daughter of P. W. Reynolds, Esq., both of this place. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. F. Gee, in the presence of a number of the invited friends of the bride and groom. Hearty congratulations and good wishes were expressed to the newly wedded couple. Numerous gold and silver presents were presented to the bride by the family and friends. The young couple took their departure on the 6.04 p.m. train for a trip west.

A FINE JOB.—Mr. Ralph Carton, of Peterborough, has just completed a very fine job of painting on the woodwork of the interior of Mr. W. H. Mullin's new store. The good taste and skill displayed are worthy of notice.

PRESENTATION.—Rev. J. Carmichael has been presented by the members and adherents of the Presbyterian church at Havelock, with a beautiful horse. It is gratifying to see this appreciation of Mr. Carmichael's labours. Long may he live to enjoy the sympathy, not of the donors only, but of all who know him, for to know him is to love him.—Register.

HER BUSY LIFE.

A Pen Portrait of the Late Frank Leslie's Assistant.

A handsome woman sat before a big desk in a cosy office in Frank Leslie's publishing house, busily engaged over-looking bills, writing letters, and attending to the details of the immense business. It was Mrs. Frank Leslie. She arose gracefully and greeted the reporter cordially. Mrs. Leslie was plainly attired in a black dress with white trimmings. The only jewelry she wore consisted of a pair of neat pearl ear-drops. Her dark hair was tastefully arranged over her white forehead, and her large gray eyes sparkled with animation as she conversed.

"The public has been treated to so much of my private affairs," said Mrs. Leslie, "that I think it time to set people right. A few days ago a letter was published in a Chicago paper, and was extensively copied, giving what purported to be an account of my extravagant life at Long Branch. It stated that I had sixty-five different toilets while at the resort; that I drove five blooded horses upon the Concourse, and that my diamonds would fill a peck measure. The fact is that I was only at Long Branch for four days, and that was the only time that I had been away from my business this season. I only wore three different toilets while there, and those were very plain, being either black or white. The fact is I have not worn any colors since Mr. Leslie's death. I drove a team occasionally, but it was not a blooded one, and I never owned five horses. My diamonds were only worn at a proper time and place, and are not conspicuous gems. Then the papers stated that my hotel bill for the four days was $450, while in fact it was but $39.50. I would not notice such gross exaggerations as these were it not for the fact that my business may be injured by such reports. I attend strictly to business and superintend the whole work of this great establishment. I am at my desk from early in the morning until late in the afternoon, and I do not know any lady that works harder than I.

"I noticed in a paper the other day that I kept a French maid to constantly wait upon me. This is false also, as I never had a maid of any kind, having a firm faith in the proverb that 'God helps those that help themselves.' I have always been treated with great consideration by the press of the United States, with few exceptions, and I am heartily grateful for it. But I suppose these attacks originate in the malice of some persons, although I never knowingly wronged any one."

Mrs. Leslie sighed, and the New York Journal reporter remarked: "The Marquis de Neuville has not always been treated with consideration by the press?"

"Oh, dear, no," said Mrs. Leslie. "The fact is, there is an antipathy to foreigners among the majority of Americans. The Marquis cannot help it because he was born with a title. It was even said when my engagement to him was first announced that his title was not genuine, but I believe every one acknowledges now that it is. For my part, I would prefer that he had no title, but it cannot be helped. The Marquis is a thorough gentleman, and the newspaper flings at his manner and personal appearance are fabrications. I never saw him wear a colored neck-tie in the four years that I have known him, and he always dresses in the most simple manner. It has never been claimed that he does not pay his debts, and he is one of the most charitable of men. No man ever applied to the Marquis to relieve his distress and was refused."

"When does your marriage take place?"

"When that event takes place it will be as publicly announced as my engagement was," said Mrs. Leslie. "It is always painful to have one's private affairs brought before the public, but I believe they will appreciate the reasons which impel me to correct the false statements which have been put in circulation."

Agricultural Intelligence.

A gentleman accompanied by his little son took a stroll out into the fields that were white unto the harvest. They met a sturdy farmer, whereupon the gentleman remarked:

"That's a fine field of oats you have got there."

"Don't you know the difference between oats and wheat?" asked the sturdy farmer, contemptuously.

"No, I don't."

"I thought every donkey knew that," courteously returned the rustic.

"You see, pa," said the gentleman's little boy, who had not taken any part in the debate, "you see, pa, if every donkey knows the difference, it's lucky you said you didn't.—Texas Siftings.

The Khedive's Favorite Wife.

The present Khedive of Egypt is said to be very much under petticoat government, his wife, Princess Kafi da Hanem, having a strong mind and stout temper. This young lady keeps herself remarkably well posted in all that goes on in Egypt, and is something of a politician. She speaks excellent French, has blazing black eyes, and wears yellow satin and plush, with large diamonds in her ears.

A Persian Spoon.

A sherbet spoon is from one to two feet in length; the bowl, cut from a solid block, holds from a claret glass to a tumbler of the liquid. This bowl is so thin as to be semi-transparent, and is frequently ornamented with an inscription, the letters of which are in high relief. To retain their semi-transparency, each letter is undercut, so that, although standing up an eighth of an inch from the surface of the bowl, yet the whole is of the same light and delicate texture, no part thicker than another. One-half of the surface of the spoon-bowl is covered by two cleverly applied pieces of carved wood, which appears to be carved from one block. But this is not the case—they are really cemented there. These pieces are carved in such a delicate manner as to be almost filmy in appearance, resembling fine lacework.

The handle of the spoon—at times twenty inches long—is formed in a separate piece, and inserted into the edge of the bowl in a groove cut to receive it. This handle is also elaborately carved in delicate tracery, and a wonderful effect is produced by the rhomboid-shaped handle, at times four inches broad at the widest part and only a tenth of an inch thick. The groove where the handle is inserted into the edge of the bowl of the spoon, and the point of junction are hidden by a rosette of carved wood, circular in shape, only a tenth of an inch thick. This, too, is carved in lace-like work, and it is cemented to the shaft of the spoon. A kind of flying buttress of similar delicate wood-work unites the back part of the shaft to the shoulder of the bowl.

The spoon which, when it leaves the carver's bench, is white, is varnished with Kaman oil, which acts as waterproof and preservative, and dyes the whole of a fine gamboge yellow similar to our boxwood. The weight of the spoon is in the largest sizes two ounces. The tools used by the carver are a plane, a rough sort of gouge, and a common penknife. Each spoon is of a separate and original design, no two being alike, save when ordered in pairs or sets. The price of the finest specimens is from 5 shillings to 15 shillings each.

These sherbet spoons are really works of art, and are valued by Oriental amateurs. Many of the merchants are very proud of their sherbet spoons, and being wood, they are "lawful;" for a metal spoon, if of silver, is an abomination; consequently, the teaspoons in Persia have a filigree hole in the bowl, and thus can be used for stirring the tea only, and not for the unlawful act of conveying it to the mouth in a silver spoon. Of course, these high-art sherbet spoons are only seen at the houses of the better classes, a coarser wooden spoon being used by the lower classes. The spoons at dinner serve as drinking vessels, for tumblers are unknown; and the metal drinking cups so much in use are merely for traveling, or the pottle deep potations of the irreligious.—Chambers' Journal.

How the Popular Toy is Made.

In all the toy, game and sporting goods stores the new supply of balls for the game of base ball has been laid in, and the balls, lying in pasteboard compartments and rolled up in tinfoil, or having their coverings colored red or blue, are as pretty as so many Eastr eggs. The first-class regulation ball for this year is no different from that in use last year. It costs $1.50, and sells at wholesale at the rate of $15 a dozen. It weighs about five ounces, and when thrown on a board floor sounds like a young paving stone. It is just about as solid and as heavy as a turnip of the same size, and, though it is perfectly round and smooth, and the stitches are almost even with the leather, it stings the uncalloused hands of its catcher as if it were red hot or covered with prickers.

Base balls are dear because they are made by hand, and they are made by hand because they must be wound very tightly, carefully and evenly. The basis of each one is a little lump of Para rubber, round and weighing an ounce. Wound around this in every direction is worsted yarn. In some balls, after a thick layer of yarn is wound on, the ball is dipped in rubber, then more yarn is wound on; then it is dipped again, and finally yet more is wound on and then the cover is fitted over it. One man affected by many professionals has a thin skin of concrete midway between the cover and the rubber. Girls make all the balls. The process is something like that of making certain mixed drinks, wherein the bartender puts in lemon to make them sour and sugar to make them sweet. Players want what is called a dead ball, that is one that won't bounce much. A stone will bounce more than a base ball ought to. So the rubber is put in to make it bounce just a little, and the yarn is wound tight and concrete is added to stop it bouncing at all. Thus the happy medium is reached. Sometimes molded vulcanized rubber is used.

The best balls are covered with horse-skin because it is strong and tough. Many of these are sewed with catgut, but in damp weather the catgut loosens and therefore at such times these balls are used which are stitched with flax.

Professionals have agreed upon the best form of balls and have ruled that it shall accord with these specifications:

The ball must weigh not less than five nor more than five and one-quarter ounces avoirdupois. It must measure not less than nine nor more than nine and one-quarter inches in circumference. It must be composed of woolen yarn, and shall contain not more than one ounce of vulcanized rubber in mold form, and shall be covered with leather.

Base balls can be purchased for 5, 10, 20, 25 and 50 cents. Many of these are machine made. They are stuffed with odds and ends of leather, wound up with cord, pressed into shape and covered with common leather. The second time one is hit with a bat it assumes the shape of an egg. A little later it still resembles an egg—one that has been hit with a club.—New York Sun.

NEWS OF THE TOWN.

Firemen's Social Ball.

The young men of the Peterborough Fire Brigade will give a social ball in the Fire Hall on Christmas eve. Dancing will commence at 9 o'clock. For information apply to any of the members.

Christmas Cheer at the "Golden Lion."

Every department full of choice new goods with many specialties for the festive season. Every intending purchaser should visit the establishment to be convinced of the variety and bargains now being offered by Fair, Van-Every & Co'y.

Another lot of those Low-Priced Photograph Frames just received. A. L. Davis & Co.

Separate Schools.

The closing exercises and promotion examinations in connection with the separate schools were held yesterday, there being a full attendance of the pupils. The separate schools are in a very prosperous condition. During the past year the attendance has been very large.

Repairing the Locks.

The Ontario Government are expending eight thousand dollars on the locks at Lindsay. The Post says: "Mr. McIntyre has been as zealous as his predecessor in looking after the local interests of the town and county, and the liberality of the Mowat government in carrying on needed works will be cordially appreciated.

Our Satin Mounted Xmas Cards are Exquisite. A. L. Davis & Co.

Change of Date.

The next issue of the weekly EXAMINER will be published on Tuesday evening, the 22nd December, instead of as usual, Thursday. The reason for the change is to give our advertisers all possible publicity before the Christmas presents are fully purchased. Read the advertisements. It will pay you to deal with those who advertise.

Sudden Death.

On Friday afternoon Mr. Clinkscale, who lives close to the village of Lakefield, while on his way home from the village carrying a basket on his arm containing provisions, dropped dead on the road. He was discovered a short time afterward by Mr. Geo. Strickland who had the unfortunate man conveyed home and preparations made for his burial. Mr. Clinkscale was unmarried, about 60 years of age and lived alone.

Great Lumber Sale.

Mr. Jonathan Griffin, of Lakefield, having purchased from Messrs. Poussette & Roger, the balance of the Chalmers Stock of Lumber and Shingles at Young's Point, he has instructed Mr. George McIlmoyle, auctioneer, to offer the same by public auction, at the village of Lakefield, on Wednesday, the 23rd of December, commencing at 10 o'clock a.m., the whole stock, consisting of about one-quarter of a million feet of lumber, and seven hundred thousand shingles. This will be a bonanza for builders and contractors, as great bargains may be expected. For particulars see posters.

Christmas Customs.

It has become a recognized custom and almost a necessity at this time of the year to give presents of some description or other to our friends and relatives (and especially to intended relatives) whether they be lovers, sweethearts, wives, husbands, mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, children, grandchildren, mothers-in-law, etc. There are as many articles suitable for presents as there are persons to receive them. A china doll, white or black, will cause as much joy in the heart of a child as a gold ring will give to a young lady; or a tin whistle will please a small boy in about the same ratio as a diamond pin would a dude. So govern yourself accordingly and do not present a young lady with a doll, or a dude with a tin whistle. To those who have settled down to enjoy this life, or to those who are engaged in the most active business, nothing would be more appropriate than a proper article in which to rest. Praises of old arm chairs have been sung for centuries, and what were they compared to those offered by Mr. D. Bellegham? Chairs are not the only articles of furniture he keeps in stock suitable for Christmas presents. The best thing you can do is to take a walk down to his shop on Hunter street, and examine the stock.

Piano Tuning.

Mr. Geo. Gumpricht is in town for a few days. Orders left at Mr. T. Menzies Bookstore or Messrs. Taylor & McDonald's Drug-store, will be attended to.

A Challenge.

The following challenge appears in this week's issue of the Lindsay Post under the heading "Sporting Notes":

"We hereby challenge any roller skater in the Counties of Victoria or Peterborough to a contest for a silver medal for a mile race on the Lindsay roller rink.—KINNEY & BRENNAN, proprietors." No doubt some of the Peterborough scatists will accept the challenge.

George Street Methodist Church.

Sunday School Anniversary Sermons will be preached to-morrow, both morning and evening, by Rev. M. L. Pearson, of Lindsay. On Monday evening a public meeting will be held, at which over a hundred members of the Primary Department will furnish an exceedingly pleasing entertainment, under the superintendency of Miss Grundy and [illegible] addresses will be delivered by Rev. Mr. Pearson, Tovell and others. The public is cordially invited.

Renew Your Subscriptions.

The subscriptions of a large number of subscribers to the weekly EXAMINER will expire at the end of the present year. We would take it as a special favor if the subscribers whose subscriptions run out at that time would forward their renewals as soon as possible—the sooner the better. Let every subscriber examine the date following his name on the address label of his paper. We believe that nearly all the subscribers whose time runs out at the end of this year will renew on account of the great benefit of having the weekly EXAMINER in their homes for another year. As a correspondent writes: "I cannot get along without the EXAMINER." It is only $1.00 a year. We hope to have our subscription list much increased during the coming year.

What We Would Like to Know.

What the hotel-keepers think of the duplicity of Sir John as to the McCarthy Act.

And if the present temperance agitation was not caused by his intermeddling with the liquor question?

If the Scott Act will not also be declared unconstitutional?

The number of hotel men ruined by the law's uncertainty.

How many have visited Mr. Belcher's office to see "the plans," and how many were disappointed?

If it would not be a convenience to those who have money on the event, that Mr. Belcher should put a public notice at the foot of the stairs that "the plans" are not received and are not likely to be?

If Mr. John Garvey did not indirectly pay for the Orange supper by his bets?

When Mr. Phalen will again appear on the scene at Ottawa.

If it is true that Mr. John Carnegie, M.P. P., is banquetting himself in South Monaghan.

What Mr. Hilliard ever did for South Monaghan?

If it is true that about fifty boxes of dynamite passed through George street on their way north this morning.

What They are Saying.

As Senator, Mr. Dobson would be an ornament.—The Lindsay Warder.

Save me from my friends.—Mr. Dobson.

To Ontario it is of absolutely vital importance that the markets of the States should be free to the Canadian producer.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

When a Peterborough tramp asks for bread they give him leather—boots.—Omemee Herald.

Mr. Belcher, are the Post-office plans here?—The Public.

No! Close the door on the outside, please.—Mr. Belcher.

The ladies' of my congregation are very successful in the bazaar line. Rev. F. H. Wallace.

I told you the McCarthy Act was unconstitutional.—O. Mowat.

I was much pleased with the presentation of the Cantata.—Rev. G. H. Davis.

So we're we all.—The audience.

That is what we aimed at.—The Committee.

I always thought that it was a poor compliment to her Most Gracious Majesty, the Queen, to sing her praises at the close of an entertainment.—W. Clarton.

Then why am I always placed at the foot of a programme.—Her Majesty.

The last is the post of honor.—The Press.

Christmas Supplement.

The Christmas supplement to the EXAMINER was issued yesterday. It is intended that a copy will go into every house in the town and country, a sufficient number having been printed for that purpose. The engrossing question of the hour is, "where shall I buy my supplies of necessities, luxuries or presents for the holiday season?" This question the present number of the Christmas EXAMINER answers in the fullest and most satisfactory manner. The advertisements that adorn its pages are a directory for the holiday buyer. They represent the cream of our business men, and if their various shops and various wares do not contain what you want in limitless variety, you are impossible to suit. We can recommend them all as entirely worthy of public patronage. Their stocks are so complete and able to stand criticism, that these business men do not fear the result when they invite public inspection. Their liberal advertisements guarantee the excellence of their goods. Every household—for a copy will be found in every one—will find it to its advantage to closely study the advertisements in the Christmas EXAMINER. Follow our advice, and visit the establishments represented in the EXAMINER daily and weekly and you will reap both pleasure and profit.

The Council.

We understand that all the old Council have signified their intention of seeking re-election for another term.

Social Ball.

The postponed Ball of the Social Club will be held in the Parlor Roller Skating Rink, Water street, on New Year's Eve.

All Closed.

The Institute and Public Schools of the town are all closed for the Xmas vacation. We have been requested to announce that they will resume on the 7th of January.

Christmas Ale.

The very finest Christmas ale is to be had at Calcutt's Brewery. Put up in large and small cases and pint and quart bottles. Telephone connection.

Xmas Cards are now so Cheap you can afford to send them to all your Friends. Select Early. A. L. Davis & Co.

These Plans.

According to advertisement the plans for the new post-office were to be seen at 9 a. m. Belcher's office, on and after Friday, the 18th inst. Friday and Saturday have come, and almost gone, and the plans have not yet arrived. Did you ever see such bungling and disappointment, as this Tory Government is being guilty of? They must think that the people of Peterborough are composed of semi-civilized barbarians.

A New Gymnasium.

Those interested in athletics will be pleased to know that Prof. Reid intends opening at once a gymnasium in the old ball room of the Oriental hotel. Prof. Ried who is athletic champion of the United States, late of the Amateur Athletic Association, of Montreal. The subject of instruction and exercise will be fencing, swordsmanship, single sticks, dumb bells and everything usually comprised in the curriculum of a first-class gymnasium. Prof. Ried intended to go to Montreal, but at the request of a number of prominent citizens he has remained in town to take charge of the new gymnasium. Arrangements for an early opening are already being made.

A Good Medium.

Hello, there!

Yes.

Is that the EXAMINER?

Yes.

Will you please take out my advertisement for servant wanted?

Yes.

Did you get one?

Yes; the same evening the "ad" appeared.

Then the EXAMINER is a good medium to advertise in.

Yes.

With that the bell rang and the connection was broken.

Market Mems.

The market this morning was in keeping with the season. It was so crowded that it was difficult to navigate. Produce of all kinds was offered in abundance. Meats were offered by the ton, and fowl might have been sold by the cord. Notwithstanding the crowded state of the market, prices were not perceptively lowered. Both butter markets were used, all available room being occupied. The up-stairs market, contrary to expectations, was the favorite. Prices were: Butter 16c. to 18c.; eggs, 18c. to 20c; turkeys, 60c. to $1.25; geese, 60c. to 75c.; chickens, 30c. to 40c.; ducks, 70c. per pair; beef per hundred, $4.00 to $5.50; pork per hundred $5.00 $5.50; mutton, 6c. to 7c.; potatoes per bushel 60c.; apples per bushel, 40c. to $1.25; onions per bushel, $1.00; parsnips, 60c.; cabbages, 3c. to 5c. Wood was plentiful, and sold from $2.00 up for soft wood, and for hardwood $3.50 to $4.00 per cord.

Christmas Meats.

Mr. John J. Howden, butcher, George street, north, makes to-day a splendid display of meats for the Christmas trade. His premises are well stocked with the finest lot of meats he has ever shown. The following animals were dressed for use: One heifer fed by Mr. J. Riddle, of South Monaghan; one heifer fed by R. Riddle, of South Monaghan; two steer from Edward Armstrong, of near Warsaw, all specially fed for one year. Two heifers from Mr. McIntyre, North Monaghan; one heifer from M. McManus, of Douro; four steers and heiers fed by Mr. Howden; two calves fed by Mr. R. C. Strickland, of Lakefield; six sheep by Mr. Kelly, and twenty sheeps and lambs, fed by Mr. Howden. Besides these he has also on exhibition and for sale, a fine black bear, fat and gamey, this bear was captured in Snowden a year ago, and has been fed by Mr. Howden ever since for this Christmas trade. He has also Geese, Turkeys and other fowls for sale. The whole display is artistically decorated with tissue paper. Those who need a nice juicy roast of beef or anything else in the line will do well to call on Mr. Howden.

Personal.

The Hon. Thos. White will deliver a political address in Lindsay on Tuesday, 12th January.

Mr. Harry Rush has returned from the East, where he has spent a short vacation.

Mr. Clement Gordon has expressed his intention of contesting for civic honors in No 1 Ward.

Mr. Robert Jaffray, of Toronto, was in town to-day and dined at the Ladies' Bazar in the Cox Block.

Mr. G. W. Crowell, manager of the Harry Lindley Company, was in town to-day. He has secured the Opera House for a week's entertainment, to commence on Christmas Eve.

Sunday Sermons.

The Anniversary Services in the Baptist Church—Rev. Dr. Castle, of McMaster Hall, Toronto, Preaches Morning and Evening—Sunday School Anniversary Services in George Street Methodist Church—Rev. M. L. Pearson, of Lindsay, Conducts the Services.

The services in connection with the anniversary of the opening of the Baptist Church were held yesterday, Rev. Dr. Castle, of McMaster Hall, Toronto, preaching eloquent and impressive sermons, morning and evening, to large congregations.

The following is a synopsis of

THE MORNING SERMON.

The reverend doctor said he was particularly happy to meet the congregation under the present circumstances, so changed from those of his last meeting with them. He was that had been made in the house of worship and the growth of the congregation, and also pleased to meet with his friend and colleague, Rev. Mr. Munro. He took as a text for his discourse the 16th verse of the 15th chapter according to St. John: "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you." In the verse previous to the text Christ had said to his disciples: "Henceforward I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you." He not only called them friends, but showed by his actions that he was their friend. It was the part of Christians to follow his example and befriend the outcasts, the homeless and friendless. The word friend implies one who we confide in, or endorse; one whom you deem worthy of confidence. Therefore Christ called his disciples

PLEASED TO SEE THE CHANGE

NOT SERVANTS, BUT FRIENDS.

Christ did not tell his disciples that he had chosen them, and that they had not chosen him, to humble them or excite them to deeper gratitude. If Christ should stand on the platform of the church, and looking kindly down upon the congregation, repeat those words he had said to his disciples, would their hearts not be stirred with gratitude deep and fervent? He did not call them friends because they had chosen him, as his choice preceded theirs. It was the same love which induced him to give himself as a

PROPITIATION FOR OUR SINS.

It is possible that a person may be able to tell the circumstances of his conversion. The powerful sermon; the gentle teachings of a mother; the earnest solicitations of a friend; the faithful appeals of a Sunday School teacher, or the passage of scripture. They may tell the circumstances, but do not tell the reason why they are Christians. "Why was I induced to come to the Lord's table?" It is the same love that spread the feast that brings Christians to the table. There were hundreds of thousands to whom the glad sound of salvation had come who had not accepted it, waiting to be chosen, who were chosen of God long before the foundation of the world.

By ordination is meant the setting apart or devotion to the ministry. Prior to ordination men, who are desirious of entering the ministry are examined, as regards their conversion; their call to the ministry; and as to their acceptance of the Christian doctrine, the great fundamental truths. God forbid that any should be ordained who were not converted, who were not called to the ministry, or who did not accept the Christian doctrines. Having passed examination by laying on of hands. This is not done as a means of power but as a solicitation for the Master's blessing and the assignment to a place. "I have chosen and placed you." Why were we not assigned a place before the flood, or with Moses, David, or when men said, "Crucify Him, crucify Him," or in the dark ages? Why were we allowed the privilege of living to enjoy the light of the Gospel? What have we to do with it? Who of us were doing what we intended to? We have all been pushed backward and forward, and were where the Divine hand placed us. As with Joseph. It was a sad day when his brothers sold him into slavery; and in Egypt when his integrity sent him to prison. Yet it was God's means of placing him in the highest position. The hand of the Lord had also upheld the child Moses in the bulrushes, and floated him to Pharoah's daughter, who took him to her father's court where he received his training for his mighty work. Bismarck and Gladstone were nothing compared to him. David, Daniel and Isaiah were also Knox, Calvin, Wesley, Spurgeon and Munro, down to the present day. And not only were God's ministers, but everyone. What patience it gives one to know that Jesus places us and gives us our burdens. The speaker remembered when he was only a boy ten years old, when he stood by the deep, dark grave of his mother. It seemed but yesterday, though more than forty years ago. He remembered the pressure of his father's hand as he said, "John, John, it is hard, hard to bear." He had since then known what it was to be without a mother, but also since then he had been able to see the hand of God in everything, and its influences had moulded his life. It was not peculiar, but the experience of every saint of God. God's object in choosing and placing us was that we might BRING FORTH FRUIT.

THEY ARE SET APART

PLACED BY DIVINE HANDS,

He was the full vine, and we were the branches. "Herein is my father glorified." When God choose a person he ordained him to bring forth fruit. Firstly, personal character. Not dress, but peace, charity, long suffering, and Christ-likeness. The voice speaking no evil, and feet walking in the way of the righteous; and then his blessing shall go forth from the church to the whole community.

SOMETHING THAT WILL LAST

is what all want to do. We can never loose seeds of character; they only ripen and brighten. Somethings are lost in time, but the works of God's saints are never lost. Peterborough in some future day may be entirely forgotten. Cities as large as London have passed away and antiquarians are quarelling as to the place where they once stood. That which is connected with Jesus Christ will never pass away. Men's works are often like those of the little boys who roll snow balls for the sun to melt. A few years ago a Wall street man, Daniel Borou, in a fit of generosity, gave $500,000 to institute the Borou Seminary. He invested the money for the seminary and lost it all; and if it had not been for the generous support of the community the seminary would have perished. A friend of the speaker's had married a beautiful girl. Everybody said not because she was beautiful, but because her father was worth twenty millions. A few years after that man lost his entire fortune. What men do without Christ perishes, but that which is done with and by Him never perishes. The work of the apostles never perished. They built all the meeting houses in Peterborough and everywhere else. It is not only the Apostolic labors that remain. If there was a person in the congregation who had succeeded in bringing one soul to Christ he or she had done a work which would last forever. It was a star added to the Master's crown which would shine in glory for eternity. The word everlasting is only applied properly in connection with God's work. We speak of the everlasting hills, but there were none such. The works and rewards of God's children were everlasting. He exhorted the promoters of God's work to remember that Jesus said, "Henceforth I call you not servants but friends;" "Ye have not chosen Me but I have chosen you." He had placed them here in Peterborough that they should bring forth fruit and that it should remain.

IT WAS A GOOD MATCH,

After the usual services the Sacrement of the Lord's Supper was dispensed.

Evening Service in the Baptist Church.

The Rev. Dr. Castle, preaching in the Baptist church yesterday evening, took as the subject of his discourse the relation of Ananias to Saul of Tarsus in the conversion of Saul, as shown in the 9th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, from the 10th to the 22nd verse, inclusive. This was a subject seldom discussed. The part that Ananias played was lost sight of in the result—the conversion of Saul and his brilliant record. It sometimes occurs that one event in the experience of some men outweighs all the rest of their life, and this was the case with Ananias.

In Philadelphia, the native city of the speaker, many years ago Rev. Mr. Stockton, one of the most eminent and popular preachers of the day, preached three times a day to large congregations, with the result of bringing much people to the Lord. He was also accustomed to go out in the country and preach at a large farm house. On one of these occasions a child who had listened to the metropolitan preacher from a ladder leading to a loft, was brought to a knowledge of the truth as it is in Jesus. This event in the life of Dr. Stockton. The child grew up to be a Christian man of solid character, and the ancestor of a family of solid Christians. One of this family, a manufacturer, amassed great wealth. This he gave freely to the cause of Christ, instituting missions in the Southern States, in the South Sea Islands and in India. He was also the founder of the great Baptist mission publication house. The boy was J. P. Crozier. He did not doubt but the conversion of Crozier outweighed all the rest of the life of Dr. Stockton. As shown in Acts, the part that Ananias took in the conversion of Saul outweighed all the rest of his life. It would be worth while to consider the relation.

OUTWEIGHED ALL OTHER EVENTS

When the Lord spoke to Ananias in the vision he said, "Behold, I am here, Lord," "and the Lord said unto him, arise and go into a street which is called Straight and enquire in the house of Judas for one called Saul, of Tarsus, for behold he prayeth, and hath seen in a vision a man named Ananias coming in, and putting his hand on him, that he might receive his sight." These two preliminary visions acted as co-operative cog wheels. The first vision prepared Ananias for his mission and the second prepared the mind of Saul to receive the message. This was

A VERY PRACTICAL ILLUSTRATION.

While not living in the age of visions, we often have a deep impression to go and speak to someone about his soul. If the impression was acted upon it would be found that God had gone before and prepared the way. The speaker narrated an incident in his college life, when his room-mate had been the means of bringing to Jesus a young man, a leader of men, yet a scoffer and sceptic of the worst type. He was so socialistic and logical that all were afraid to approach him on the subject. A wave of revival had moved the whole college. Still, Lane, the infidel, remained unaffected. Bonhurst, the speaker's roommate asked him to pray for him as he was going to speak to Lane about his soul. When he arrived at Lane's room he immediately commenced and told the sceptic his errand. The poor fellow fell in his arms and wept and asked him

WHY HE DID NOT COME LONG BEFORE.

He was converted and a few days afterwards was actively engaged working for the Master, trying to bring others to a knowledge of the truth. The reverend doctor told a story related to him by a drover, whom he had met on the shores of the Georgian Bay. He had been a dissipated man, hard and relentless. One night, on entering his house, he overheard his child praying for him, which, by the power of the Spirit, convicted him, and he was soon brought to Jesus. He immediately began and told the story to all his associates, and was the mans of bringing a sceptical drover companion to a knowledge of the truth, and many others. God, the Holy Ghost abides with his people to direct them, and GOES BEFORE TO PREPARE THE WAY.

The fear of Ananias was natural when he said, "Lord, I have heard by many of this man, how much evil he hath done to the saints at Jerusalem. But when God directs it is safe to go. Paul was opposed to Christ as much as it was possible, yet in the vision God said, "He is a chosen vessel unto Me, to bear My name before the Gentiles, and kings and the children of Israel." This red-handed murderer and persecutor of the saints was a chosen vessel. The obedience of Ananias triumphed over his fears and he entered the house, and said, "Brother Saul, the Lord, even Jesus that appeared unto thee in the way as thou comest hath sent me," with

THE HAPPY RESULTS.

There is no joy equal to that of bringing a soul to Christ, and the thought of being the instrument of bringing the great Saul, the apostle of the Gentiles, to Christ, was a source of sweet satisfaction and joy to Ananias. Three days before Saul was stricken blind with the light, but was not converted, he was only deeply impressed. The obscure man Ananias was used as the instrument to bring the tyrant to his master. It was a happy day for the little church when Saul was added to their number. How much we owe to Paul. From his example, young men of ability spend four years of their life in attending college, with an addition of three more for theological training, to go and preach the word for a small sum of a few hundred dollars a year; when by their ability they might earn thousands. Paul the eloquent man, learned in all the arts of his time, gave up all

TO WORK FOR JESUS.

What a meagre book the Acts of the apostles would be, if the records of Paul's works were taken out. The New Testament would also loose much if all Paul's writings were excluded. Moses and Saul were the subline characters of the old and new Testaments. This was the age of Sunday schools. God bless them, and he would not say anything against them. But the Sunday school should not be the only means of reinforcing the church. It should go out into the slums and pick up the fallen, the bold and such as Paul had been. He then gave the testimony of a man converted in Kingston, who had been raised from the lowest vice to respectability and a happy home. The church clothed with the power of the Spirit could gather in these free-thinkers, infidels, and degraded men, and they would become great powers for good.

MEN LIKE BOB INGERSOLL

That feeblest individuals, supported by the Holy Spirit, could accomplish the greatest ends. If all the congregations could, they would have Spurgeons. It was not Spurgeon who converted, it was the Holy Spirit, and Mr. Spurgeon is only the instrument. It did not matter to God whether it was a child, a blacksmith or a shoemaker, all might engage in the work.

Of late there were no less than four great funerals in New York. Vanderbilt, the great Cardinal, General Grant, and Jerry McAulay. The death last mentioned caused a great sensation in the hearts of the people of New York as any of the others. McAulay was a convict, having been in Sing Sing three times, and was converted the last time. When he was relieved he immediately set about evangelizing his old companions of the slums of Water street. He was the means of bringing thousands to Jesus. From testimonies like these we should be convinced that God finds work for the humblest vessels.

The spirit of obedience always tends to honorable ends. If Ananias had not gone to Saul, the man who had no claim on Christ, he would not have enjoyed the pleasure he afterwards did. His career was favored by the spirit.

Paul, after his work had been completed, said, "This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief."

The speaker concluded with an eloquent appeal to his hearers to come to Jesus.

George Street Methodist Church.

The Anniversary Services in the George Street Methodist Church yesterday, were conducted by the Rev. M. L. Pearson of Lindsay, who preached able and instructive sermons morning and evening. His subject in the morning was the conversion of children, and their importance in the divine plan of human affairs. How God began with the child in His purpose of the working out of the great plans. For fifty years He waited for the development and training of Moses, for his great mission. Samuel was also dedicated to the service to the Most High in infancy, and was nurtured by the Holy Spirit for the express purpose of God's work in Israel.

Evening Services.

In the evening the text for the occasion was a clause of the 9th verse of the 21st chapter of 1st Samuel: "There is none like it," (the sword of Goliath.) The subject was the "Sword of the Spirit," the word of God. In other ages men had fought for the Holy Sepulchre and other relics of Christianity, but in our day the contest raged around the word of God. The hosts of skeptics, of "ists" and "isms" were arrayed with one purpose for the overthrow of the Bible. Never was such defence needed. And yet the first defence of the word was the word itself. Christ used the sword of the spirit to battle Satan himself. "It is written" was His reply to the wily tempter. Stacks of books had been written in defence of the Gospel. They perish but the Gospel remains uscathed. It has stood the fire and persecution of all ages. But it would not burn, nor remain obscure. Like hidden fire it springs up only to burn with more imperishable flame. We need not be alarmed for scepticism. "It is written" is sufficient to meet their subtlest argument. Holy text can foil the devil himself now as well as in the day of Christ.

Colonialism in the United States.

In the years which followed the close of the war, it seemed as if colonialism had been utterly extinguished. Unfortunately, this was not the case. The multiplication of great fortunes, the growth of a class rich by inheritance, and the improvement in methods of travel and communication all intended to carry great numbers of Americans to Europe. The luxurious fancies which were born of increased wealth, and the intellectual tastes which were developed by the advance of the higher education, and to which an old civilization offers peculiar advantages and attractions, combined to breed in many persons a love of foreign life and foreign manners. These tendencies and opportunities have revived the dying spirit of colonialism. We see it most strongly in the leisure class, which is gradually increasing in this country. During the miserable ascendency of the Second Empire, a band of these persons formed what was known as the "American colony," in Paris. Perhaps they still exist; if so, their existence is now less flagrant and more decent. When they were notorious they presented the melancholy spectacle of Americans admiring and aping the manners, habits, and vices of another nation, when that nation was bent and corrupted by the cheap, meretricious, and rotten system of the third Napoleon. They furnished a very offensive example of peculiarly mean colonialism. This particular phase has departed, but the same sort of Americans are, unfortunately, still common in Europe. I do not mean, of course, those persons who go abroad to buy social consideration, nor the women who trade on their beauty or wits to gain a brief and dishonoring notoriety. These last are merely adventurers and adventuresses, who are common to all nations. The people referred to here form that large class, comprising many excellent men and women, no doubt, who pass their lives in Europe, mourning over the inferiority of their own country, and who become thoroughly denationalized. They do not change into Frenchmen or Englishmen, but are simply disfigured and deformed Americans.

We find the same wretched habit of thought in certain groups among the rich and idle people of our great Eastern cities, especially in New York, because it is the metropolis. These groups are for the most part made up of young men, who despise everything American, and admire everything English. They talk and dress and walk and ride in certain ways, because the English do these things in those ways. They hold their own country in contempt, and lament the hard fate of their birth. They try to think that they form an aristocracy, and become at once ludicrous and despicable. The virtues which have made the upper classes in England what they are, and which take them into public affairs, into literature and politics, are forgotten. Anglo-Americans imitate the vices or the follies of their models, and stop there. If all this were merely a passing fashion, an attack of Anglomania or of Gallo-mania, of which there have been instances enough everywhere, it would be of no consequence. But it is a recurrence of the old and deep-seated malady of colonialism. It is a lineal descendant of the old colonial family. The features are somewhat dim now, and the vitality is low, but there is no mistaking the hereditary qualities. The people who thus despise their own land, and ape English manners, flatter themselves with being cosmopolitans, when in truth they are genuine colonists, petty and provincial to the last degree.—Henry Cabot Lodge in May Atlantic.

AFTER MANY DAYS.

The Mail, many days after the decision of the Privy Council, "smashing" the Dominion License Act had been made public, plucks up courage enough to deal with the matter, which it does in the most modest and retiring way imaginable. Referring to this decision the Mail plaintively asserts:—"It is probable that this decision will put an end to a constitutional uncertainty which has been for years a source of trouble." This is very modest, as well as reassuring. Its quiet tone of acquiescence shows that the chief organ entertains no designs of a destructive or annihilatory nature upon that useful and venerable institution, the Privy Council. The hole through which the chief organ seeks to escape the humiliation of defeat is an exceedingly small one. It is asserted that because Mr James Bethune once ventured the opinion that the local government did not legally enjoy the licensing power, and because Hon. Mr. Mackenzie, as alleged, entertained some doubts as to where the licensing jurisdiction lay, that Sir John was forced to pass the Dominion License Act, and put an end to an uncertainty that was prejudicial to all interests concerned. The organ with a laudable desire to let bygones be bygones, refrains from referring to the expressed motives that influenced Sir John. This magnanimous statesman at Yorkville, publicly delared that he was going to pass a licensing act that would "show that little tyrant, Mowat," that he should not enjoy the revenues and patronage derived from the control of the liquor licenses. The truth is, Sir John did not pass his act because it was demanded. He did it merely as an act of revenge. He wished to take a sweet revenge out of Ontario for remaining loyal to its best friend, Hon. Mr. Mowat, by depriving it of the revenue derived from the liquor licenses, and of robbing it of the right conferred by the constitution of confederation. Sir John's license act was an avowed act of revenge, and he has received by his defeat therein, the humiliation his high-handed outrage richly deserved.

"Only a Rumor."

The following from the Globe hits off the position of the Mail and most of the other Tory organs on the license decision so exactly that it is reproduced from the Globe:

"Something must have gone seriously wrong yesterday in the news department of our esteemed local contemporary. We cannot say whether its valued cable correspondent was hunting down another army of mad dogs or concerning himself to ascertain the latest facts about Ellen Terry's last marriage, but we cannot find by the most careful examination of the columns of our contemporary anything about the License Case but a line or two stating there was a "rumor" that it was settled.

The organ has a thrilling account of the birth of M. De Lesseps' twelfth child, and of the consequent immediate flight of the horrified parent to Panama. It has only a rumor of the decease of Sir John's last "constitutional" opinion.

It contains a blood-curdling record of the murder of a Paris butcher by a rival butcher and his wife and son, but only a rumor about the slaughter by the Privy Council of Sir John Macdonald's "reputation as a Constitutional Lawyer."

It mentions that Sir John has been made a "Turner," but only a rumour that, to give point to his new dignity the Privy Council has turned his "law" inside out.

It notes that Earl Fitzwilliam has granted his tenants a reduction of 50 per cent, in their rentals. The reduction of 100 per cent. in the value of Sir John's opinion on Constitutional law is overlooked.

A Paris despatch to the organ treats of the "Collapse of Pont Neaf" in detail. We are denied particulars of the collapse of the great Tory idol.

We have a statement about "Severe weather in Italy," but only a rumour about the bitterly cold spell that had just struck the Tory party in Canada.

The organ's Ottawa correspondment informs us that the Government are considering details necessary for the immediate putting into operation of the Dominion Franchise Act. We are not told that any provision is being made for the hundreds of inspectors and commissioners who are thrown out of employment by the slaughter of the Dominion Liconse Act.

The Norristown Herald has evidently heard of the illicit government printing jobs. It says: "Paper is now being moulded into spokes for carriage and wagon wheels." Some papers can be molded into almost any shape by the promise of a few thousand dollars' worth of official advertising."

Justice Henry, of the Supreme Court, Ottawa, has reason to be proud. When the Dominion license act was before the Supreme Court, he alone, of all the judges, held that the act was thoroughly bad, "not worth the paper it was written on," and now that the highest judicial tribunal in the world confirms his opinion, no one can blame Justice Henry if in a little outburst of pride he should exclaim: "Didn't I tell you so?"

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The party organs now play all their tunes on a mono-chord—Riel's rope.

The Mail's "leading" article—the rope that hanged Riel.

It has been decided to call together the Ontario Legislature for business on Thursday, 28th January next.

Mr. Charles Langelier has been selected as the Liberal candidate to fill the vacancy for Lotbiniere in the Quebec Legislature, caused by Mr. Joly's resignation.

The traffic receipts of the Canadian Pacific railway for the week ending December 14th were $150,000, an increase of $13,000 compared with the corresponding week last year.

In consequences of the many murderous attacks made on the members of the Montreal city police force, and which have resulted fatully in several cases recently, it has been decided to arm the force with revolvers.

Dun & Co. report a total of 255 failures throughout the country during the past week, an increase of eight compared with the preceding week. Twenty-two of the number were Canadian, against seventeen for the week previous.

The Mail wants to "smash confederation." It had better try the Privy Council. That illustrious body after the neat way in which it smashed Sir John's bogus License Act, can reasonably invite the patronage of those requiring "smashing" down with "neatness and despatch."

"Pica," writing to the Toronto News (Ind.), does not think much of the latest Cabinet changes. He says that McLelan, the new Minister of Finance, "when put up to reply to Cartwright during the budget debate last session was an utter failure. If he should ever have to introduce a budget of of his own, Cartwright will simply wipe the floor with him. As for Foster, his elevation is designed, I suppose, to placate the New Brunswick temperance vote, but both appointments are so poor that I am forced to believe that Sir John has made up his mind that the game is up, and is evening up things with his followers."

"The disquieting rumors circulated concerning the attitude of the Indians at Prince Albert and Battleford, Northwest Territories, are utterly without foundation. All the bands at those and surrounding localities are quiet and peaceable." This is what the Mail says. Of course it is official information and should be swallowed without tasting. But a little doubt is likely to crop up when we recollect that a day or two after the Northwest rebellion broke out, the Mail assured the country that there was no disaffection at all; that everything was serene; that the half-breeds were too happy, contented and light-hearted to sleep well, and that the Grit papers were inventing yarns for base political purposes. These little reminiscences tend to shake our faith in the Mail's infallibility. The organ makes the assertion evidently on its faith that the Christmas aura of peace and good will that enwraps the earth, will make the Indians contented to peacably enjoy their holiday rations of rotten pork and gritty flour till after the holidays, anyway.

Our Approaching Municipal Elections.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

If what I have already said, and what I may now say in this communication does not awake the people to a proper sense of their duties, and cause them to bestir themselves as they have never done before, nothing else that I might say will do it. I don't see why any one ratepayer should go largely out of his way to persuade the electors to take a more lively interest in their affairs, and, having done my part to have them do so, I will now leave the responsibility with them, and if they refuse to save themselves from future trouble, they can carry out that policy and take what comes after. I may just say here that I

DO NOT BELIEVE THEY WILL DO ANYTHING to bring about a better state of things. I don't believe they will look at the past at all, and I believe that they will do as they have hitherto done, vote for the candidates who present themselves before them. Let them just consider some of the acts of some of the councillors during the present year, and ask who advocated the filling in of Spaulding's bay at the cost of not less than one hundred thousand dollars. Who voted for, and still support, our illegal by-law, fixing the assessable value of a rich property at fifty thousand dollars a year for the next ten years, when the property is worth more than five times that amount, exempting as well any new buildings which may in the meantime be erected thereon?

WHO EMPLOYED DR. JOE

to look after one smallpox patient, at a cost of some $125, when at the same time the Council was paying another doctor to attend to all patients requiring town assistance. Who is resisting the application to the Court at Toronto to quash that illegal exemption by-law, sparing no expense in so doing, and putting the people to all the cost they can, intending that the ratepayers of the town shall pay all expenses, which will probably be not less than $400, whether they win or lose? Who is in favor of creating a general system of sewerage for the town, at a probable cost of a hundred thousand dollars? I might mention other things of a like kind, but if what I have already said does not have the desired effect, then nothing else will do so. The ratepayers, however, ought to know that there is an organised system on foot with men who will go for exemptions and carry out the wishes of certain parties, and nowhere is this more apparent than in Ward No. 4, where, I am told, a combination has been formed to put out Mr. Menzies, and put another councillor in his stead. Mr. Menzies is not pliant enough to suit the party opposed to him. He has honestly stood out for the rights of the people and he has opposed every measure which he considered injurious to their interests, and if the people in that ward reject Mr. Menzies they will reject the best and most unselfish representative for that ward, and they will deserve to suffer for it, and they will suffer for it, too. As I said before, if the ratepayers as to the management of the town affairs, and fully posted as to the acts and doings of their councillors, they would be in a position to know and to appreciate a good councillor when they have got him, and they would take especial care to keep him in the council, and such a man should be placed at the head of the poll. But we will see, when the time comes, how far they will do this. All they have to do in the meantime is to keep themselves free from making any promises, and then when the day of election comes, they can go to the polling places and deposite their ballots for the best man, and thus further encourage them to do their duty.

TO PACK THE COUNCIL

KEPT THEMSELVES FULLY POSTED

"The Voudoo Doctor."

With the advance of education among the colored people, the business of the voudoo doctors became less lucrative. They find enough duppes, however, to make their nefarious practice yield them a pretty good living. The voudoo doctor is generally an old white-haired darky, who walks with a crooked cane and carries something resembling an old army haversack slung across his shoulders. As he walks along he occasionally stops, looks upward, waves his stick in a peculiar way and seems to hold mysterious converse with the invisible spirits of the air, if such there be. All these antics have their effect upon the superstitious negro, especially those of the female sex, who are the largest patrons of the bogus doctor. In his bag or haversack he carries a queer assortment, the toenails of dead men, roots and herbs, curious pieces of iron, bits of wool, etc., with which he pretends to make marvelous cures.

It was during slave time the voudoo doctor flourished. He did a thriving business among runaway negroes, who were promised immunity from punishment in case of recapture for a small sum.

One of the voudoo doctor's methods of operating is to secure a black chicken and two pieces of silver from a dupe. He then procures a skillet, which he half-fills with water, placing the pieces of silver in the skillet opposite each other. He then requests his dupe to mentally name one of the pieces after the enemy whom he desires to circumvent. When the water begins to boil he drops an occasional feather from the black chicken into the skillet, mumbling something which is unintelligible. As soon as the water boils the pieces of money begin to rise and fall, as they naturally would do, and by a skillful manipulation of the skillet he brings one of the pieces on top of the other—the one beneath always being the one named after the enemy of his dupe. For this the dupe is expected to pay according to his means—from $1 up to $10.

Another voudoo trick is to pretend to sew a $1 or $5 bill in the upper band of the pants to insure good luck, but actually secreting the money and sewing a piece of folded paper in the pants instead.

Still another voudoo trick is to bury a small package wrapped in red flannel and get a dupe to dig it up. When the package is found it is said by the voudoo doctor to be a good omen, for which he charges the dupe a handsome fee.

An old voudoo doctor in West Washington recently acquired quite a reputation by his alleged cure of a colored girl afflicted with rheumatism, his recipe being a decoction of sassafras, red pepper, fine and coarse salt, and soap. For a small vial of this he charged $1.50 and for a personal visit $5.

The more mysterious the voudoo doctor is, the more patients he obtains. They are seldom arrested, as they enjoin secrecy on their patrons, who generally observe their requests. If a patient survives their treatment, the cure is attributed to the voudooist, and if he dies his friends are ashamed to confess that they have been victimised.—Washington Post.

A Lover of the Antique.

Mrs. Limoges is very bric-a-brac in her tastes, but is not very ready to pay her bills. The other day the grocery-man called:

"Can I see Mrs. L?" he said to the servant.

"What do you want?"

"I've got a bill here for some groceries she bought last month."

"Only a month old?" asked the girl, in surprise.

"Ain't that old enough?"

"No, sir, it is not. Mrs. Limoges, I'd have you know, is a lover of the antique, and should she pay a bill only a month old she would have a fit of nervous prostration."

"Well, that beats the deuce. When shall I come?"

"Oh, some time in the future. The older the bill gets the better; but don't you ever dare to come around with any of those vulgar new bills, that the stains of time have never touched," and she slammed the door in his face.—Merchant Traveler.

A man who advertised a horse for sale last week noted down the objections of all who called to look at the animal, and some of them are here: "Too large." "Too small." "Too old." "Not old enough." "Too lively." "Rather too sleepy." "Object to the white hind feet." "Would take her if she had more white feet." "Don't like her color." "Color just right, but she is too fat." "Weighs too much." "Don't weigh enough." "Has a bad eye." "Eyes all right, but ears too small." "Yes, handsome ears, but the nose spoils her." "Legs all stocked up." "Legs all right, but feet bad." If Shakspeare had said no man knew what he wanted in a horse there would be none to dispute it.—New York Com. Advertiser.

The Prince of Wales takes much active interest in agriculture, and is almost invariably to be seen at agricultural meetings, says an English exchange. He is a competent authority on the sowing of wild oats if experience teaches a man anything.

The Paradise of Women.

Miss Emily Faithfull, says the Pall Mall Gazette, who has just returned from her third lecturing tour in the United States, brings back a great store of information concerning the position and prospects of women who work across the Atlantic. The field for female labor is much wider there than it is in the Old World; prejudice against the employment of women, which are rampant here, are there either non-existent or so attenuated as to be innocuous. Women occupy almost every profession, and the Americans have realised much more than the Old World nations the ideal of letter carriers converte aux talents so far as the sexes are concerned. In the States there are female barristers, pastors, doctors, and, in short, members of almost every profession, except the army and navy, the nearest approach to a naval officer being Miss Captain Mary Miller, who recently succeeded to the command of a Mississippi steamboat on the death of her husband. There is hardly a newspaper in the country of standing and influence which has not at least two or three women as regular members of its staff. One of the leading newspapers in New York has a lady as its second-best writer, and one of the best newspaper properties in the foreign press of America is edited by a German lady, who took over the business on the death of her husband. Women act as regular reporters, and one has achieved considerable notoriety as a critic of cattle shows. As interviewers women are very successful, and the specialty of the female journalist in America is a certain indefinable lightness of touch, combined with a grace and brightness of expression, which her confrere emulates in vain.

One point which impressed Miss Faithfull much in her American journeyings is the fact that women in America are much less ashamed to earn a living than in this country. In England it is regarded as natural and right for a man to work for his daily bread, but for a lady to earn a salary is too often regarded as discreditable. Nine women out of ten who are earning their living will preface the statement of that fact by a more or less elaborate apology for having to work for their living. In other words, work is not regarded as the normal state of women, and this shows itself in many ways. English ladies applying for a situation will give false names, and in one case, which only recently came under Miss Faithfull's notice, a lady threw up a profitable situation rather than to allow her name to be known to her fellow workers. In America it is otherwise. Fine-ladyism is creeping in, no doubt, but it has not yet attained that universality which it enjoys in England. America, however, is unquestionably the paradise for American women; nor is there any country in the world in which the husbands are so good, so kind, so affectionate as in the States. In fact, they spoil their wives. In railway carriages the wife lolls at her ease, surrounded by cheap novels, while her husband nurses the children and supplies all their wants.

A Battle With a Shark.

Joseph Gosline, of Newton, L. I., was fishing in Flushing Bay Thursday afternoon, when the dorsal fin of a large shark cut the water a short distance from him. Sharks have been seen in the bay so often of late that he paid little attention to the incident. He caught a fish and was landing it in his boat, when a huge shovel-nose appeared beneath the gunwale of his boat and a pair of murderous-looking jaws snapped at the fish. Gosline seized an oar and beat the shark away. A minute later he saw the shark coming swiftly toward the boat.

He stationed himself in the bow, armed with an oar. When within five feet of the boat the shark thrust its head out of the water, and, with its jaws wide open, attempted to seize Gosline. The latter rained furious blows upon its head until the shark took refuge beneath the surface. Gosline pulled up his anchor and had just turned his boat toward shore, when the shark sprang out of the water a few feet away.

Gosline picked up a shotgun and waited for a shot. Bloody spots began to appear upon the water and Gosline was convinced that his oar had done effective work. Suddenly the shark, with a powerful spring, threw a part of its body over the stern of the boat. Gosline fired two charges of buckshot into the shark's head. Then he pushed it into the water and soon saw it flopping about on the surface. He succeeded in fastening a rope to it, and after a hard row landed it on the shore where it struggled for some time before dying. It was seven feet long.—New York Sun.

Wanted Information.

"Man does not conceive the magnitude of a billion," remarked the lecturer; "why, a billion sheets of paper placed one on top of another would make a pile nearly 50,000 miles high."

At this juncture a very solemn looking party with a large Adam's apple, rose up from the back seat and said: "Yes, but how are you going to pile them up?"

And because the lecturer wouldn't explain the solemn party sailed majestically out the of hall, thumping his cane angrily all the way.—Rockland Courier.

An hour later the Baroness C. sent for her husband. She was pale, and trembling with anger. The Japanese vase stood before her empty. She had emptied the candles into a big basket which was intended for an orphan asylum of which she was a patroness. In one hand she held a visiting card of Baron C., whereon was written:

"Happy new year, my Ninish."

The Baroness sued for divorce. The Japanese figured as evidence in court, and the Baroness' lawyer found it necessary to relate the adventures of the vase.—French.

T. G. Appleton, who died recently, once advertised a fine horse for sale "for no other reason than that the owner wished to leave Boston." The inner facts were that the horse always refused to go over a bridge, and that it was impossible to leave Boston without going over a bridge.

Police Court.

Police Magistrate Dumble has given judgment in the Carlisle vs. Webber case as follows:

The complainant complains that the defendant maintains a slaughter house within the limits of the town of Peterborough contrary to Town By-law No. 289.

This by-law absolutely prohibits any slaughter house being maintained in the town. The evidence proves that the defendant has a slaughter house on a lot lying between Park and Donegal streets, and that he slaughters there.

Mr. Weller, for the defence, contends that under the Public Health Act of 1884, the by-law given in schedule A, which the Act declares shall be in force in every municipality in this Province for which there is a Medical Health Officer and a Sanitary Inspector, is in force in Peterborough, and that under sections 8 and 9 of that by-law the defendant may maintain a slaughter house if it is 200 yards from a dwelling and not less than 70 yards from a public street and under inspection under the Board of Health—that in fact the town by-law passed in 1873 is repealed by the statutory by-law.

The legislature enforced that by-law in order to make some fair provision in the interest of private health, and every municipality must make its by-laws in harmony therewith, if they undertake by by-law to regulate the placing and management of slaughter houses. There is nothing, however in the statutory by-law which says that slaughter houses may exist in a municipality, but simply if they are permitted, they shall be subject to the regulations of that by-law.

Now, the town of Peterborough, acting in the same line as the legislature, but going a little farther, has declared that no slaughter house shall exist in the limits of the town. I think this perfectly consistent with the statutory by-law, and not in any way affected by it, that the town by-law is in force and that the defendant has violated the by-law.

The question is an important one, and I believe affects a number of persons, but as I have only to administer the law in this case—in this case a very good law—I give judgment against the defendant, and adjudge that he do pay a fine of $20 and costs.

(Signed) D. W. DUMBLE,
Police Magistrate.

They All Do It.

They are all going to Sailsbury Bros. for Xmas cards; but next week they will go there for plush goods, fine art books, poets, annuals, toy books and fancy goods.

Hawley Bros.' Christmas Box.

Every purchaser of one pound of Messrs. Hawley Bros.' celebrated tea during the holiday season will be presented with a selection from one thousand fancy and useful articles. This is a new way Santa Claus has taken to distribute his favors. It is a bona fide offer—don't miss it.

The Brown Company.

Prof. Brown's World of Wonders and Jubilee Singers, colored, appeared in the Opera House to small audiences on Saturday afternoon and evening. The Professor's efforts were not appreciated. On Sunday evening the company had a rehearsal of sacred music and the Professor delivered a discourse on "Uncle Tom." A silver collection was taken up. There was a large attendance.

An Unusual Runaway Accident.

This forenoon when the funeral procession of the late Jas. Campbell was coming down the hill on Weller street, the solemnity of the occasion was broken by the excitement caused by the holting of Dr. Bingham's horse. One of the bolts which hold the shafts to the cutter falling out, the shafts struck the horse's heels, and it being a spirited young animal, immediately ran away, overturning the cutter and depositing the occupants, Dr. Bingham and Mr. John McKee on the roadside. Mr. McKee says he stepped out. In its wild career the horse crossed the procession about half a dozen times, and tried to jumpover the cutter of Mr. Toker of the Review. It did not succeed, and narrowly escaped injuring Mr. Toker. Messrs. McAndrews and Noble, also barely escaped injury from the horses heels. Mr. R. B. Rogers, engineer of the Trent Valley Canal works, received injuries but is now able to get around.

Another lot of those Low-Priced Photograph Frames just received. A. L. Davis & Co.

Beautiful, Comfortable, Neat.

This heading is a general description of a very well-built and handsomely finished landeau sleigh, which the reporter of the EXAMINER noticed on the streets to-day. Inquiry showed that this elegant rig was built by Messrs. Porter Bros. for Mr. Wm. Snowden. It is all that could be desired for a comfortable and indeed, luxurious sleigh. While the greatest attention has been paid to solidity of construction, the finish, equipment and construction are of the highest order. The double goaring is painted a deep, rich, lake color, and the painting of the body is a beautiful, rich, dead black, with a polish that makes it like a mirror. The upholstering is of red plush, the box seat, however, being trimmed with a harmonizing colour of red leather, with spring cushion. The sleigh is provided with a hood so that its occupants in rough weather can be comfortably sheltered from any blast. The seats are well under the box, so that, without the top, the passenger is well protected. Altogether it is a splendid turnout, and a good many cities of Ontario would have to be looked over to find a finer, better finished and more elegant sleigh. It is one of the many triumphs of the carriage builders's art that Messrs. Porter Bros, have turned out. Their excellent work has procured them a reputation that brings them increasing patronage and they are so thronged with orders that after hours have to be utilised to enable them to keep pace with the orders that keep pouring in upon them. The secret of this is: perfectly reliable work, with artistic finish and a confidence on the part of the customer that he meets with square dealing and that a dollar brings a full dollar's worth of trustworthy work.

Fighting the Fire.

Mr. Thos. Beavis means to fight the fire with brick and mortar. He is now prepared to receive tenders for the erection of a brick terrace on the site where his late storehouse stood.

Entrance Examinations.

The entrance examinations began at the Central School building to-day, and will continue for two days following. The examinations are conducted by Mr. James Stratton, Inspector, Dr. Tassie and Mr. J. H. Long. There are 88 candidates writing, forty-five boys and forty-three girls.

A Bad Accident.

Yesterday afternoon at three o'clock, Mr. J. C. Sullivan, with two children, was driving down Hunter street, when he encountered the Salvation Army with beaten drums. The horse took fright, turned suddenly and overthrew the cutter opposite Belleghem's furniture store, fortunately without seriously injuring the occupants, while the salvationists marched triumphantly on, never stopping to see who had been killed or wounded.

Inland Revenue and Customs Buildings.

The Plans Prepared Regardless of Expense.

A few moment's inspection of the plans of the new Inland Revenue and Customs buildings to be placed on the corner of Charlotte and George streets, shows that they are to be fine structures of a cost that laughs to scorn the tax-payer's complaint of hard times. They will consist of 3 floors and a basement. The ground area is 496inx34 with a wing designed for an examining warehouse 31x17. The ground floor consists of a vestibute opening on a hall which contains the stairs to the next floor. From this hall access is got to the two Inland Revenue offices, and two private offices with the necessary closets lavatories, etc.

The first floor contains the Customs long room, collector's office and clerk's office, and necessary offices, and also a private or back stairway to the examining warehouse, Besides there are rooms yet to be utilized in the Mansard flat.

The work required to be done is all first-class. The wall material is to be of red Belleville pressed brick; all arches, string courses are to be of rock-faced limestone. The window quoins, plinths and sills are to be of dressed limestone. The termination of all arches are to be enriched with carved work. Throughout the building it is estimated that the carved work alone will cost $1200. The roofing is to be of slate, the Mansard portion to be covered with Richmond (P. Q.) or other approved slate, while the roof decks will be covered with galvanized iron.

Personal.

Mr. W. H. Stephenson and Mr. E. A. Peck, have been appointed president and secretary respectively, of the East Riding Conservative Association.

New Feature of the Liquor Question.

That the power to permit the sale of liquor implies the power to prohibit the sale of liquor, is a proposition that appears perfectly reasonable to the lay mind, although there will be no lack of lawyers to argue that it does not. At any rate the Privy Council's assertion of the right of this province to license the sale of liquor within her own limits, calls up the question of the constitutionality of the Scott Act. We may be certain that the Dominion Government will not fail to extract what consolation they can out of that decision by telling delegations of prohibitionists who wait upon them that the federal authorities cannot undertake the enforcement of the Scott Act, because the control of the liquor traffic has been taken out of their hands, and that, having no right to license they have no right to prohibit. The provincial governments may not admit the correctness of this contention, but whether they do or not it will have the effect of adding to the difficulties which already obstruct the operations of the Scott act. Should the provincial government, accept the responsibility, that will thus be sought to be thrown upon them, the constitutionality of the Scott act will be seriously impugned, and a demand for provincial prohibitory legislation will probably arise. There seems to be no end to the complications of this liquor question. It is like the man who drinks too much liquor, very much mixed.—Toronto World.

THE SITE SETTLED.

The Sawers Syndicate Secures the Post-office.

"Put not Your Trust in Politicians."

The in-coming mail to-day brought the over due plans for the much promised Peterborough Post-office. The question of site is settled at least—that is, until political pressure, secures another change in the programme, as it has done heretofore in the history of this extraordinary business. The plans show without mistake that they were prepared for the Syndicate site, for there are given the "Hunter Street elevation," "the Water Street elevation" and the "rear and west elevations." The size of the new building is 50 by 60 feet, three stories high with basement. The Hunter street front is fifty feet, the Water street sixty feet. In the former front—the real front of the structure—there are two sets of double doors, to which lead up at either end two flights of cut stone steps. The front of the first floor presents five windows, two on each side, and a set of triple windows in the middle. In the Water Street front there is only one door, a private door, for the postmaster. On the west side (first floor) is a door opening on a driveway for the reception of the mails. In the second floor front, on all the sides except the west, there are double windows with an arch common to both enclosing rich ornamental designs of carver work. The style of architecture is the Romanesque, and the material and style of construction similar to the proposed Customs and Inland Revenue buildings. The inside plans do not show much of the final appearance the interior will present, the plans not including details of the boxes, wickets, etc., etc., which are apparently after considerations. The second floor contains provisions for a dwelling at the Water street side, including living room, kitchen and bedroom.

The building, when erected according to the plans, will be a handsome and imposing structure and apparently well suited to the present wants of the town, though it is possible the future growth has not been sufficiently considered in the preparation of the plans, for according to the rate of progress made since 1883 the town will have grown to be a city of 20,000 inhabitants by the time the new postoffice building is ready for occupation.

Tea and Lecture.

Anniversary Festivities in the Baptist Church—Lecture by Rev. Thomas on "Men for the Age."

The anniversary tea given by the ladies of the Murray street Baptist Church in the Sunday school rooms yesterday evening was financially and socially a success, and was altogether a most enjoyable event. Throughout the evening the utmost sociability prevailed, and all were bent on having a good time, from the little girl who took tickets at the door to the respected pastor of the congregation. Bright and happy faces were the order of the evening. The school room of the church was converted into a spacious dining room. Three large tables burdened with a load of the most tempting productions of the culinary art, invited attention. The invitation was generally accepted, the tables being patronized on a liberal scale, and three or four relays of patrons, with the assistance of attentive waiters, did all in their power to assist in bearing the burden of the oppressed boards. The ladies of the congregation who had the management of the supper in hand exerted themselves to please, and succeeded thoroughly. After sufficient attention had been bestowed upon the feast, and all were more than satisfied, those who desired proceeded to the audience room of the church, where the Rev. Dr. Thomas, of Jarvis street Church, Toronto, entered to the meeting by delivering, in his masterly style, his great lecture on "Men for the Age."

The pastor of the church introduced Dr. Thomas to the assembly, as one on whom largely depended the success of their anniversary services. The congregation had been as one voice in inviting the doctor to attend their anniversary, and were particularly pleased that he had accepted their invitation.

Dr. Thomas said he had great pleasure in attending on this occasion, although he suffered severely from a headache. His subject was "Men for the Age," but from what he noticed down stairs "Women of the Age" would have been more appropriate. He then proceeded to show the necessity of having men who would keep up with the times. There never was a time in the world's history when it was so progressive, full of life and activity, and man never was so magnificently great. He had accomplished more wonderful things than Aladdin had with his lamp. He made steam to carry his burdens and the lightning to obey his will. It was also a sceptical age. Blind faith was considered a sin and infidelity a virtue. It was intensely progressive and the most pregnant age since the earth began. Such an age required men of broad and enlightened culture. Not men who turn up their nose at the home-spun, but men who would do honor to whatever position they occupied. A tailor who could make a good coat was more cultured than another tailor who could not make a good coat and could read Greek. The men for the age were men at their best. The weak and inefficient could not hold their own. A man must be at his best to win. There was always room for the efficient, and if a man could do his work equal to or better than the best he had nothing to fear. Men with clear and well-grounded conceptions were also required. Men without backbone or stamina were not required, nor were men of hypocritical sanctimoniousness. It wanted men of sincerity. Men of robust health, well developed physically and mentally and morally. Men of convictions, who know what they believe and believe what they know. Men of warm and wide-reaching energies and sympathies. The speaker related some stories of misplaced sympathy. It was hard to be hard-hearted and the world needed sympathy. Men of clear spiritual life were also required. Christians were the highest types of men. No man could touch the pinnacle of eminence with the man of clear spiritual reason. Living epistles were what was required. Professions should be lived up to. He then gave examples of some of the most prominent men of the age. As a great statesman, William Ewart Gladstone was the greatest. The first man in the leadership of the nations. The speaker gave a review of Mr. Gladstone's life from his school days, showing the ability of the great man. In him was realized the statesman for the age. Rev. Chas. H. Spurgeon, of the Metropolitan Tabernacle, London, was eminently the minister for the age. He also gave a description of Mr. Spurgeon's life and ministry. As ideal missionaries he gave A. Judson, the Burmese missionary, who, a number of years ago, left Massachusetts, refusing the pastorship of one of the finest churches in the States for the privations of a missionary life. The great merchants of New York, Morgan, Jewell and Dodge, who, by persistent honesty, rose from the tailor's son, the shop boy and the farmerboy to the highest positions of affluence. It was possible to be a Christian and by honesty rise to the highest position. Character was also essential in men for the age.

Lives of great men all remind us
We may make ourselves sublime.

Mr. J. Stratton moved a vote of thanks to Dr. Thomas for his able, eloquent and instructive lecture, which was carried unanimously.

On motion of Rev. Mr. Munro, a vote of thanks, tendered the ladies of the church who had taken such an active part in preparing and managing the tea, and also to the choir for their efficient and indispensable services, was also carried unanimously. The meeting ended by singing the doxology. The proceeds will make a large addition to the building fund.

Forty-Ninth Anniversary.

Closing in upon the Half-Century—George St. Methodist S. S. Celebrates its 49th Anniversary—The Jubilee of the Juveniles.

In yesterday's issue of THE EXAMINER was noted the sermons preached by Rev. Mr. Pearson, of Lindsay, on the occasion of the celebration of the 49th anniversary of the establishment of the George Street Methodist Sunday School. On Monday evening a public meeting was held in the school room of the church at which was presented a charming programme to about 700 of an audience. Upon a graded platform were ranged the children of the Primary Department. Miss Grundy and Miss Keele had charge of the programme, which opened with the kindergarten, "Welcome," chorus by the children, which numbered about 120, ranging from five to ten years. The chorus was followed by the repetition of the 23rd psalm, in concert by the children, and prayer was offered by the pastor of the church, Rev. Mr. Tovell.

Mr. J. W. Flavelle, occupying the chair, announced the Anniversary Hymn, which was very sweetly rendered.

Rev. Mr. Tovell offered a few congratulatory remarks upon the success of the occasion and to the Sunday School authorities upon the large gathering present.

The little folk rendered a kindergarten chorus in a very creditable manner, which met with loud applause.

Mr. A. Clegg, Secretary, presented the annual report. He presented a few interesting statistics. The number of pupils on the roll was 550 and the average attendance 293, with 36 teachers and 7 officers. The receipts were $267.80 and the expenditure were $282.63, leaving a deficit of $14.81. This was followed by a kindergarten chorus.

Rev. Mr. Pearson, of Lindsay, delivered a brief address, pointing out the glorious future of Sabbath school work, and congratulating the church on the success of the present occasion.

A kindergarten song by 12 little girls, was capitally presented with the mimetic action faithfully represented.

To these succeeded a kindergarten song, "Busy Children," a stirring song by the boys, and a Christmas carol by the company.

A pleasing spectacular feature of the entertainment was the "Building of the Cross," in which twenty little boys and girls, each depositing a snow white block, repeating an appropriate text of holy scripture till a beautiful cross rose in the centre of the platform. The hymn, "Crown Him," brought the programme of a delightful entertainment to a close, in which the children of the primary department of the Sunday school furnished the entire programme. After the benediction by Rev. Mr. Pearson, the delighted company separated, well pleased with the signal success of the 49th anniversary of the George street Methodist Church Sunday School.

The cantata "Daniel" to be shortly presented to the public of Peterborough.

What They are Saying.

The County of Peterborough demands a senator.—The people.

Mr. Stevenson is the old war-horse of the Tory party,—The Review.

Yes, by my labours, I retrieved the injury you did to the party, and as virtual representative, I am entitled to the seat.—James Stevenson.

Am I not a power in this county? What about my services in the last campaign, and my trip to Muskoka?—E. Phalen.

You have your whole reward—the Custom and Inland Revenue Buildings—I have never received anything yet, but the dubious pleasure of paying for two campaigns and a protest.—Dr. O'Sullivan.

The South Monaghan banquet did not pan out to meet our expectations.—Messrs. Hilliard and Carnegie.

I gave them the speech that knocked the government cold.—Sarsh.

It was rather a flat affair anyway.—T. N. Willan.

How on earth were we roped in?—Messrs. Rutherford and Munsey.

We give it up.—Those who were not present.

Who will think of me when I am gone?—A Layman.

By their work we shall know them.—The parents.

Gladstone is the greatest statesman of the age.—Dr. Thomas.

Mr. Munro deserves the thanks of the people for bringing Dr. Thomas to Peterborough.—J. Stratton.

Are We Interested?

It might be well for those in this section, who are interested in anyway, to remember that all joining now before the 28th of this month will share in this year's profits. The next division of profits will be made in January, 1888, say in about two years, in the British Empire Mutual Life Insurance Company, established in 1847, which divides its profits every three years. It is a purely mutual company; no stockholders to pay 10 to 15 per cent. to. It divides its profits entirely among its policy-holders. Its policies are all unconditional. It is a strong, solvent, reliable company, with between five and six millions of dollars of accumulated assets to guarantee its contracts, and which pays a thousand dollars for a thousand dollar policy without any "shirking." It has never disputed a claim. This company gives you real insurance; not a temporary makeshift, but absolute, permanent protection, whether the insured dies early or late, and at as low a rate as any assessment concern during the early years, and vastly lower than such associations after a few years. We occasionally meet some people who have an objection to mutual life companies because of the many failures of the "pass around the hat" affairs which appropriate the name "Mutual." It is asserted by insurance authorities that no purely mutual life company has ever failed. However, every regular life company, whether mutual or stock, has to give just the same security to the Government. The oldest, largest and most successful life companies in the world are mutual. Who can deny it? As an evidence of what the late Hon. George Brown thought of the mutual life companies, he had all his life assurance, amounting to $60,000, in mutual companies. Send in your applications now. Please remember, "don't all come at once." E. E. HENDERSON, General Agent British Empire Mutual Life Insurance Company, Peterborough.

A COUNTY POLICE MAGISTRATE REQUIRED.

In order that the Scott Act may be fairy tried, the Councils of the Counties which have carried the Act, are petitioning the Ontario Government for the appointment of County Police Magistrates. As the law stands there is no appeal from the conviction by a Police Magistrate, but from the conviction of two Magistrates there is no end to the appeals—and so scores of cases may be tied up, by appeals and further appeals, and thus practically defeating the object of the law. The Ontario Statutes of last session provides that the Lieutenant Governor on the petition of the County Council may make such an appointment, the expense being borne by the entire County. The County of Oxford has three Police Magistrates in Woodstock, Ingersoll and Tilsonburgh; yet by a vote of 24 to 6 the Council ask for a County Police Magistrate. A town Police Magistrate is under no obligation to act in county cases, as he gets none of his salary from the county; and as the County Magistrates, for obvious reasons, prefer not to deal with these liquor cases, it might be well to consider what our county is to do in this respect.

POSTOFFICE HOCUS-POCUS.

As applied to the present ruling powers at Ottawa, the popular idea, that the government is administered in the interests of the people, is a popular delusion. The chief object of the Conservative Cabinet is to strengthen its hold on power, and to strengthen its party; if, in the process, the country receives a little incidental advantage that is all the country can expect. Of this state of things we have ample proof at our own doors. Never has any public project been more persistently and thoroughly prostituted to party purposes, than the Peterborough Postoffice matter. A matter that might have been closed in six months has been kept dangling for three years. Local members of the party have been promised the site repeatedly, first one and then the other, and the government has used every crooked expedient, known to its corrupt versatility, to placate its local supporters,—both wings of the little Conservative family have been lied to and deceived, The matter has been settled in the interests of one party only to be opened at the pressure of the other, and to this hour it is not yet decided where the new post-office is to be placed, when with ordinarily straightforward and honest action the building might have been to-day completed and occupied and the public interest subserved. To be consistent with its character, the Government used a promise of new public buildings for this town as a sop to the electors in the general elections of 1882. "At the session of 1883," to quote the words of the report of the Minister of Public Works, "the sum of $15,000 was voted towards the erection of a suitable building (not buildings) to accommodate the postal, customs and other offices." Time went on, but no further action was taken and no site was selected. Then faithful members of the party, having corner lots to dispose of, began to send in petitions. A largely signed petition was sent in in favor of what is known as the syndicate site, owned by Messrs. Sawers, Poussette and LeBrun and, it is said, Stevenson. A still more numerously signed counter petition was sent in in favor of the Phalen site, corner of Charlotte and George Streets. At this juncture the representative of West Peterborough, instead of exercising in the interests of his constituents, his right to decide the question, as the local arbiter of government patronage, weakly decided, rather than offend his mutual friends, the parties to the little family quarrel, to remain neutral After considerable urging, the Government sent its chief engineer, Mr. Thos. B. Fuller, to town, ostensibly to select a site. In this he received the most willing assistance. Hitherto happy owners of corner lots suddenly found their property a burden they were frantic to sell to the Government. They followed the engineer around town and filled him full of suggestions and good advice, and afterwards filled him full of food and wine at the Oriental hotel, and this was the end of the matter of selecting a site. The engineer to this day has never made his report, or if he has done so, it has never seen the light. Here the matter rested for some months, and when the Government was urged to action, it fell back on the excuse that the engineer had not made his report, simply because he had been instructed not to do so. Meantime the Government shuffled its cards at will, alternately promising the supporters of one site and then those of the other, deciding in favor of one site and then revoking it and making a promise to the other. A pledge was given that the postoffice should be built on the Sawers lot. The syndicate party, elated with their success, began sawing—rather soon—Mr. Phalen took the matter in hand and had it reconsidered, and secured a solemn official pledge that his lot would be purchased, and the documents are in existence showing that this promise was made. The receipt given by the Department of Public Works to the Finance Department for the money appropriated for a Postoffice site, expressly stipulated that it was to be placed on the Phalen lot. So expressly was this condition understood that Mr. Phalen declined to complete the deed of transfer till the condition requiring the Postoffice to be placed on his lot was added to the indenture. That he was distinctly promised the postoffice on his lot, there is no doubt, and that the Government made a binding contract with him to that effect is equally certain. But to show the trickery and double-dealing of the latter, when the plans for the customs buildings arrived they were drawn for the Phalen lot, and as they filled the plot there was no room for the postoffice. Therefore the pledge to Mr. Phalen is broken, and the postoffice to fulfil the promises given the Sawers syndicate, is to be placed on their corner. THE EXAMINER, while leaving the matter at present in the hands of our representatives and the Government, does declare that the double-dealing duplicity political scheming and reckless disregard of the public interest, as shown by the Government, is simply iniquitous. Their dealing with the public matter of a postoffice, etc., has been made one of bargain and sale, as between two contending factions of its party. The public convenience has been entirely lost sight of. As shown by the public official document quoted above, the original intention was to put up only one building, for the required offices; but, to reward political supporters, two sites must be purchased at fancy figures, and two separate buildings, involving not only greater expense but great public inconvenience, erected. So prone to crooked ways is the government that its deceptive scheming has failed to satisfy either party; it could not keep faith with its own friends." The whole thing has been a huge fraud. If the government had not intended to make political capital out of a public interest, it would have been simple to send on its engineer, to confer with the sitting member, to accept his decision and proceed with the work. But this would have been straightforward and honest action and was not to be thought of. The facts are simply these: the Government promised the post-office to both. The Government bought both lots. The Government deceived and lied to Mr. Phalen to please the Sawer's syndicate.

CHRISTMAS POETRY

—FOR THE—

Boot and Shoe Emporium

Whoa Emma, where are you going in such haste. One would think you were walking for your last. Stand back! You need not be surprised, I'm on my way to McALEER'S.

Joe—whom you know to be no guy—gave me $5.00 our Boots to buy.

The Emporium in Boot line is such an attraction, with this V, I can buy to my own satisfaction.

Mens' Velvet Slippers, fancy wrought, down there for $1.00 a pair can be bought; and if this Slipper be hand-sewed, why sakes alive, they're sold for $1.35.

Don't be ecstatic over this little drive, Men's Coloured Plush are but $1.75.

As for myself, I needn't care, Ladies' Slippers are sold from 40 cents a pair.

Now don't stop me longer, either come with me, or go home in a hurry and get your tea; such bargains are not every day to be had, and if I got left, it would be too bad.

GIVING AND WITHHOLDING.

[Original.]

To him who sits on the heights of wisdom,
And looks on the throngs who grope below,
Lost in the dark and damp morasses
Of doubt and ignorance, want and woe;
Over the call comes high and higher
To shed his light on the dark below.
No man liveth, and no man dieth
Unto himself, as his soul must know.

To him who holds in his own high keeping
Great wealth, slow-garnered in many lands;
Who looks abroad where the poor are striving
For the little work with the many hands;
Over the call comes clear and clearer,
Ever increasing the stern demands
To give good measure of help and cheering;
They are his brothers, these struggling bands.

Whatever the gift the gods have given,
The law is still not to hoard but spend;
Every good increases with giving,
Trust to the store, it will never end.
Unto each call make ready answer,
Give of your heart's blood, pitying friend;
The fount of love is deep and unfailing,
The treasure is infinite—God to expend.

HATTIE TYNG GRISWOLD.

COLUMBUS, Wis., Dec. 16.

[Original.]

Floodgate is not a large town, but it prides itself on the excellence of its society. However, the only one of its people I care to talk about at present was never "in society."

He was known as "Uncle Adam." He had a surname, but so persistently was it ignored that all save a very few forgot it completely. He was the sexton of the Church of the Puritans. Besides performing all the regular duties of that office with his own hands, he pumped the organ. He was not required to do this, but he insisted on it, not for the sake of increasing his salary, for he stipulated particularly that he wanted no extra pay in consequence, but because he adored music and had theories in regard to organ pumping.

The pumper, he said, should be something of an artist as well as the organist. He should put his soul into the work and it would be felt in the music. This he surely did. Such energy and enthusiasm were never before applied to organ pumping. When the music gushed from the tall pipes, rose high and then softly died away, Uncle Adam, in the little dim room that concealed him, exulted. When he emerged from the organ loft, after services, instead of being weary from his severe exertion, his face was invariably bright and beaming. Often and often he was in a state of spiritual exaltation quite incomprehensible to the fine people who spoke to him kindly and patronizingly. His eyes burned with an unaccustomed light, and his thoughts seemed to be of things greater and grander than the old church contained.

The music wrought this change, thought the few who noticed it. Not entirely. Uncle Adam was dreaming of things they knew not of. He lived, at such times, in another world, the world of the invisible and the eternal. He believed that that world was shut out from this by the veil of flesh only, and that at times this veil was swept aside and the spirit in the flesh saw the spirits "who are as the angels of heaven," without flesh.

"I know there are spirits about us, because I see them," he said. "I know they are the spirits of men and women who once lived in this world, for my own people are among them—my wife, my children, my mother, and my friends of long ago. I know that we are immortal, for I feel that I shall never die. I am sure my soul can never perish, for I believe it to be a part of God."

The old man always grew eloquent when talking on this subject. His soul was aflame and his thoughts came forth in the strong and simple language of inspiration. His listeners smiled with pitying incredulity, or gave ear out of curiosity to what they called his harmless fancies. Here and there was one who possessed a vein of poetic sentiment which was kindled by his talk of "the cloud of witnesses" continually near; but all were too unspiritual to understand that this faith was the strength and support of the old man's life, a part of his honest and earnest soul.

Sometimes he told of the sights he saw in the organ loft, the radiant spirits that came to him there. The dim little room that shut him away from the sight of others was the very door of heaven to him. It was not strange that he entered it with delight, remained in it as long as possible, and emerged from it with a transfigured face. He believed that he there talked with angels.

I have spoken of Uncle Adam as an old man. He might better be described as one who had never been young. In years he wasn't really old; but he seemed far away from everything youthful; long past all the joys of life.

Cheerful was he always, unhappy never, though others, seeing only the outward phase of his life, saw no pleasure or beauty in it. Poor and hard as it appeared to them, it held joys they might well have been envied; but they were joys of the spirit only. They belonged to "the peace man did not make and cannot mar."

Uncle Adam lived alone in a tiny house close beside the church of his care. His small front room was a workshop, where he made and mended shoes every hour of the day and evening when off duty at the church. The remainder of his house contained the machinery of his domestic economy. He was his own cook, laundress and chamber-maid, and was suspected of being his own tailor and shirt-maker. His garments gave color to this suspicion. They had no affiliation with the prevailing mode whatever. Comfort, not Fashion, had guided the shears when they were cut. Cheap as well as behind the times were they, but clean.

Even so unobtrusive a person as the sexton of the Church of the Puritans cannot escape impertinent comment. There were people in Floodgate who bothered themselves about his private affairs. They kept a sharp eye on his sleuder purchases, and decided that he was starving himself in order to accumulate money.

He was never idle. Early every morning, the year round, he was at work, and the lamp burned in his workshop every night till 10 o'clock or later. All this brought in money. What did he do with it? The idlers of the town, having no industrial demands upon them, figured up Uncle Adams' income, and decided that he didn't spend an eighth of it. Some of the better class hearkened to this gossip, and concluded also that he was a miser. They even expressed a fear that he would be murdered for his hoard some night. They pitied him for his passion for money getting, but otherwise they found no fault with him.

Coarse young men who dropped into his shop on errands chaffed the old man about his concealed wealth. This he never resented, but worked away in silence without losing his temper.

As the holidays came nearer the sexton's duties increased. The church was to be decorated, and extra work without stint came on space. He was always cheerful and obliging, and always busy. The Sunday school was to have a Christmas tree, with appropriate services on Christmas eve. The ladies of the congregation, grateful to the sexton for his faithful services, made up a purse to get him a nice present, to be delivered from the tree. They decided on a suit of clothes, as the greatest novelty for him, though some argued strongly in favor of giving him the amount in money, as more likely to please his avaricious old heart.

The Christmas tree was to be the great event of the season in Floodgate. Everybody was talking about it. The services were to be unusually fine. Mrs. Dunlevy Wickersham, the wealthiest lady in the place, had promised the Church of the Puritans a great musical treat for that occasion. On the steamer coming home from Europe she had become acquainted with the new singer, Miss Judith Stanlini, and had engaged her to sing.

This was, indeed, something splendid to look forward to. The newspapers were full of stories of Stanlini's beauty and genius. Floodgate was on tip toe with interest.

When Mrs. Wickersham's carriage rolled away from the depot, bearing the famous singer, women peeped at it cautiously from behind their curtains, men stared openly, and small boys followed it in a disorderly procession.

Uncle Adam was as much interested as anybody. He had put the finishing touches to everything in the church, with a view to making a favorable impression on the beautiful young girl who was so good as to leave greater honors and come to Floodgate to sing for the Church of the Puritans.

"Is she very pretty?" he asked anxiously, as the troop of boys who had followed Mrs. Wickersham's carriage rushed into the church during the afternoon preceding the eventful evening.

"Oh, awful purty," answered the boy, with the reddest face, "and she wore a whole lot of fur off'n some animile I never saw nor heard of."

The old man's eyes glistened. "Can't you tell how she looks?" he asked eagerly.

"Like them pictures of angels down in the book-store windows, on the Christmas cards," said another boy, "only angels never wear hats. She has a hat that beats 'em all."

Uncle Adam listened with eyes and ears, as childishly curious as any of them. Thus encouraged, their imagination grew heated and each one added some graphic tribute to the singer's beauty, until she became something more than mortal to all of them, the sexton included.

"We'll all hear her sing, boys! We'll all hear her sing," he said excitedly.

The church was ablaze with light early. The wreaths and festoons shone green and fresh against the pale walls, and the umbrageous Christmas tree, loaded with its gorgeous fruit, towered so far toward the ceiling that some of the children were distressed lest their presents grew too high to be reached at all. Early, too, was the church crowded. Big and little, rich and poor, were there. The bulging eyes of the wee people were glued to the blazing Christmas tree, whose candles were outvieing the stars of heaven, while their elders divided their minds between that and the expected musical treat.

At last the exercises began. The children fidgeted nervously during the pastor's opening prayer, through the next little speech of the floating school superintendent, and the organist's jubilant voluntary. Nor did they "settle down" till the much-talked-of singer appeared.

She stepped to the front of the choir's small gallery and began the glorious solo from the "Cantique de Noël:"

"O holy night! the stars are brightly shining,
It is the night of the dear Saviour's birth;
Long lay the world in sin and error pining,
Till he appeared and the soul felt its worth.
A thrill of hope the weary world rejoices,
For yonder breaks a new and glorious morn."

Her clear, sweet soprano notes rang into the skies. The organ accompaniment bore them up, up, up to the very gates of the eternal city. "For yonder breaks a new and glorious morn," was rendered so feelingly it struck the listeners with the force of truth, and they involuntarily cast their eyes heavenward, half expecting to see the light of that wonderful new morn.

And the singer herself? She was even more beautiful than they had pictured her. Standing there with the light of the tapers flaring up from below, the charm of her fair young presence, as well as the power of her beautiful voice, enthralled them.

The people almost ceased breathing. The walls of the church faded out of sight, and boundless space opened to prolong the sweet strains. The stars themselves must surely hear and send back an answering echo of joy.

The solo was finished, but the spell wrought by it was still felt. There was a moment of absolute silence.

And now a curious thing happened. The door leading from the choir gallery opened and Uncle Adam came forth. He walked slowly, with uplifted head, until directly in front of the young singer. Then, pausing, he gazed upward, with a rapt, adoring expression on his face, which seemed somehow to look younger and happier than ever before. Then with that far away, exalted look still in his eyes, he moved slowly down the aisle and out of the door.

This was most unusual. The congregation turned, one toward another, with inquiring glances, but all kept silent. They wondered why the old man left his post at the organ at such a time, but, knowing his faithfulness, a second thought assured them that he had left some one in his place. They decided mentally, too, that he was a little beside himself on account of the music.

The choir began the chorus: "Fall on your knees! O, hear the angel voices!" The organ's voice pealed forth triumphantly, then suddenly dropped to a low, feeble sigh, that fluttered over the church like a wounded bird, and then died away altogether, leaving the choir stranded and startled. The organist's fingers ran over the keys, uneasily at first, then anxiously, then wildly. No sound came forth. The people waited with anxiety and interest in their faces. The choir stood voiceless.

When the suspense became insupportable the organist left his seat and hurried to the door of the organ-pumper's room. He returned with a white face and startled eyes. Leaning over the railing of the gallery toward the raised faces of the congregation, he said, in frightned tones:

"Friends, Adam Stanley, our sexton, lies dead in the organ loft."

"Dead in the Organ Loft."

A worldless wave of feeling went up from the people, but before any one recovered himself enough to make a movement, they were startled by another curious thing. Miss Stanlini, the singer, reached out her arms, as though unconsciously entreating help, and wailed out, "O, my father."

The shock, the sorrow, the surprise, all coming at such a time, created in the staid old Church of the Puritans an emotional panic not to be painted by words.

Yes, it was true, the beautiful singer was his daughter. She was only 8 years old when her mother died. An aunt in England took charge of her, and at her father's wish educated her abroad for a musical career. She had never supposed her father to be rich, or ever dreamed that he earned, by hard work, the money she regularly received. He traveled, she thought. Her aunt had been dead five years, and she really knew very little about her father. It was evident at last that he never intended her to know his true circumstances. All her letters to him had been sent in the care of a lawyer at Pembroke, thirty miles away. He had written her that he would be at Floodgate to hear her sing, if possible. Her welfare had been the object of his life. For her he had toiled and saved and borne the reputation of a miser.

The lawyer from Pembroke came and told the pathetic inner history of Uncle Adam's life. And they noticed that his dead face wore a look not usual to dead faces. It was an expression of rapture. No wonder. He had died of joy, his spirit floating out on the glorious strains of the Christmas hymn.

One thing the Floodgate people can never explain: How did the sexton walk past the pulpit, down the aisle and out at the door of the church, when he was lying, dead in the organ loft? No, they cannot explain that, though they talk of it to this day, and tell the story o'er and o'er at Christmas tide. Three or four daring ones ventured to say that as the sexton's last thought had been of his daughter it was not unlikely that his spirit, released from the body, at once unconsciously hurried to a point whence it could see her. They were unmercifully derided, of course, and talked about terribly. Intimations that they would be put out of the fold for holding such extraordinary opinions closed their mouths at once, and have kept them closed ever since. EBEN OLIVER.

CEDAR AND HOLLY.

[Original.]

COME, Jean, with your cedar and holly;
Oh, the scent of the woods is sweet,
I'll tell you a bit of a story
As you sit on the rug at my feet;
I'll help with the wreaths you are twining
Of the beautiful running pine,
And I'll tell you a bit of a story,
A story of Auld Lang Syne.

Sit here, if you please, my darling,
In the hearth-fire's ruddy glow;
Yes, I like the gleam of the holly,
Inwove with the mistletoe;
Oh, why do you drop your eyes, dear?
And why are your fingers cold?
Is it only the chill of the night, love,
And the sweep of the wind from the wold?

'Tis the blessed Christmas eve, Jean,
And a young heart should be gay,
When the world is clasping hands, dear,
And all in the dawn of day
The angels will come with singing,
And the vaulted skies will ring
Once more to the heavenly music
That gre ts the Infant King.

But you've had a quarrel with Robin—
Bend lower, golden head—
I was half-way down the stairs, child,
And I heard the words you said:
"Henceforward, we meet as strangers!"
Think of it, Robin and you,
Who have given each other troth-plight
To be ever fond and true.

Think of it, Jean, my darling;
Here it is Christmas eve,
And Robin is somewhere fretting,
And here you are, left to grieve;
Though hiding the heart-ache proudly,
And wearing a resolute face;
We women have learned that art, dear,
'Tis a part of our womanly grace.

This isn't my bit of a story;
And I'm helping you not at all;
Pardon me, Jeanie, darling,
If the help I'm giving is small.
But I had a lover once, dear,
And I sent him far away;
And of all the tears I've shed, dear,
The bitterest fell that day..

'Twas the eve of the blessed Christmas
Many a year ago;
I hear the chime of the bells, dear,
Coming across the snow;
And I see my Jasper's look, dear,
As he praised my cheeks' soft glow,
And kissed me twice and thrice, dear,
Under the mistletoe.

Oh, dearly I loved my Jasper,
And dearly he had loved me;
Perhaps that was why we quarreled;
For this is the mystery:
That just where we love most truly
We are quick with our words of flame;
And love that is lit by anger
Burns with the fiercest flame.

My old cheek blushes, Jeanie,
When I think how slight a thing
Gave me the loss of Jasper
And a life-long suffering.
'Twas Fanny, my cousin, caused it,
A little coquette like Fan;
But 'twas touch and go with me, then,
And Jasper was only—a man.

So, up I blazed on a sudden,
Then coldly turned away,
And flirted with Martin Selden,
And hadn't a word to say,
Though my own true love was pleading,
With all his heart in his eyes;
And I wouldn't bid him good-night, dear,
Though I saw his pained surprise.

He was then on "waiting orders,"
They came on Christmas Day,
And the first I knew was that Jasper
Was gone for a year, and away.
Away to the tropic seas, Jean;
I have never see him more
Since he turned and left me standing
Mute at my father's door.

Did he marry? Yes, Jeanie, darling,
A sweeter woman than I;
It wasn't Fanny Raymond,
And love has passed me by;
But make up your quarrel with Robin,
No grudge should have its way—
Its way of evil and sorrow—
Darling, on Christmas Day.

The beautiful cedar and holly,
Oh, the scent of the woods is sweet,
And sweet is the face before me,
And the dainty form at my feet.
Don't borrow a grievance, honey,
Don't buy for yourself a pain,
But, early to-morrow, my dearie,
Send for your Robin again.

Then the sound of the Christmas carols,
When the little children sing,
Will mind you, my love, of the seraphs,
And their praise of the Infant King.
Then the star that guided the strangers
To the place where the Christ-Child lay,
Will shine in earnest beauty
Over your happy way.

Town Council.

The town council hold the last meeting of the Calander year to-night. The report of the Building Committee, respecting the plans for heating the new town buildings will be up for reconsiderstion.

Migratory Movements.

Mr. J. Nicholson and Mr. Peter McIntyre and wife left town to-day for England. They go by the G. T. R. to New York, and will take the White Star Line to Liverpool.

Christmas Editions.

The London Advertiser, the Montreal Witness, and the Ontario Observer are out in imitation of the EXAMINER, with handsome Christmas editions.

Firemen's Social Ball.

The young men of the Peterborough Fire Brigade will give a social ball in the Fire Hall on Christmas eve. Dancing will commence at 9 o'clock. For information apply to any of the members.

Display of Meats.

Messrs. H. C. Winch and A. Laplant, butchers, have on exhibition at their stalls in the market a large display of choice Christmas meats. Their stalls are nicely decorated, and their meats are made as attractive as possible.

Christmas Cheer at the "Golden Lion."

Every department full of choice new goods with many specialties for the festive season. Every intending purchaser should visit the establishment to be convinced of the variety and bargains now being offered by Fair, Van-Every & Co'y.

Reduced Rates.

Mr. Alex. Elliott, of the C. P. R. agency, intimates that return tickets will be issued by the C. P. R. during the holiday season at reduced rates. The tickets will be issued from the 23rd to 25th December, good to return up to Jan. 4, and from 30th December to 1st Jan., good to return up to the 11th.

Vastly Improved.

We omitted to mention before that the Whitby Chronicle appears in a vastly improved form. It has wisely taken the eight-page form and its appearance is altogether creditable and the success it is meeting is richly deserved. Its recent improvements make it still more worthy of public patronage.

Deserving of Praise.

In our report of the cantata we omitted to state that the costumes were made by Miss Winters, milliner, with Mr. Jas. Alexander. An attempt was made to secure costumes in New York, which proved fruitless, and Toronto was tried and found wanting. Mr. Geo. B. Sproule busied himself to prepare designs for the costumes, and Miss Winters was engaged to make them. With only one week to get the costumes up in, Miss Winters, with a large staff under her direction, worked almost day and night until they were completed. She deserves great credit for the skillful manner in which she carried into effect, in so short a time, the ideas conveyed in the designs furnished her.

Weather Changes.

The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer
9 o'clock	20	29.32
1 "	24	29.30

For Xmas.

Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie have in stock for the Xmas trade, a very fine line of slippers of all kinds, specially suited for presents, and at prices much below the ordinary. Call in and see the stock, it is really handsome and cannot be surpassed in town. In every department they carry full lines, but make a specialty of fine hand-sewed work for ladies and gentlemen.

Nomination Day.

The 28th of December has been appointed nomination day. Nominations for councillors will open at 12 o'clock in one polling sub-division of the various Wards, and that for Mayor at 10 o'clock in the Council Chamber.

No. 1 Ward.

Mr. McNaughton wishes us to say that he has consented to become a candidate in No. 1 Ward for re-election to the Council Board of 1886, at the request of a large number of electors, both male and female. Mr. McNaughton will issue his address to the electors after nomination, but intimates in advance that one of the planks in his platform will be opposition to the Dickson estate by-law, as he believes it to be contrary to the interests of the town as it stands at present.

Another lot of those Low-Priced Photograph Frames just received. A. L. Davis & Co.

Beautiful, Comfortable, Neat.

This heading is a general description of a very well-built and handsomely finished landeau sleigh, which the reporter of the EXAMINER noticed on the streets to-day. Inquiry showed that this elegant rig was built by Messrs. Porter Bros. for Mr. Wm. Snowden. It is all that could be desired for a comfortable and indeed, luxurious sleigh. While the greatest attention has been paid to solidity of construction, the finish, equipment and construction are of the highest order. The double gearing is painted a deep, rich, lake color, and the painting of the body is a beautiful, rich, dead black, with a polish that makes it like a mirror. The upholstering is of red plush, the box seat, however, being trimmed with a harmonizing colour of red leather, with spring cushion. The sleigh is provided with a hood so that its occupants in rough weather can be comfortably sheltered from any blast. The seats are well under the box, so that, without the top, the passenger is well protected. Altogether it is a splendid turnout, and a good many cities of Ontario would have to be looked over to find a finer, better finished and more elegant sleigh. It is one of the many triumphs of the carriage builders's art that Messrs. Porter Bros. have turned out. Their excellent work has procured them a reputation that brings them increasing patronage and they are so thronged with orders that after hours have to be utilised to enable them to keep pace with the orders that keep pouring in upon them. The secret of this is: perfectly reliable work, with artistic finish and a confidence on the part of the customer that he meets with square dealing and that a dollar brings a full dollar's worth of trustworthy work.

Christmas Ale.

The very finest Christmas ale is to be had at Calcutt's Brewery. Put up in large and small cases and pint and quart bottles. Telephone connection.

The Cold Water Pledge.

The Guelph Scott Act Association has pledged its aid and influence to only such aldermanic candidates as will promise to give a hearty support to the passing of the necessary by-law or by laws and the appointment of a police committee, chief of police and police constables, to assist the proper authorities in the enforcement of the Scott Act. A verbal promise from candidates is considered quite sufficient.

The Cantata Daniel.

The public, and especially those who attended the cantata on Friday night last, have expressed a desire to see "Daniel" repeated. At a meeting of Otonabee Lodge held last night the advitability of repeating the cantata was discussed. It was considered almost impracticable to repeat it in town before the latter part of February or the beginning of March, as the lodge have another treat in store for the public—the lecture of Henry Ward Beecher, which will be delivered in February, and the Opera House is engaged to such an extent that it would be impossible to fix an earlier date without interfering with the success of the lecture. The cantata will in all probability be presented in Lindsay by the same company, under the auspices of Otonabee Lodge. The Lindsay public will no doubt give the cantata a generous support, which it deserves, and also as a return of the compliment paid the Lindsay Amateur Dramatic Company, who presented "Gertrude" here last winter. The support of the Lindsay Oddfellows is certain. Owing to the heavy expense for costumes, etc., the cantata can hardly be said to have been a financial success, and any arrangement that can be entered into to make it so should, and no doubt will, be liberally supported.

Xmas Cards are now so Cheap you can afford to send them to all your Friends. Select Early. A. L. Davis & Co.

Phenomenal Growth.

Mr. Sawyer is adding a labratory to the Business College at a cost of about $300. He has students already registered for a complete course in chemistry after the holidays, and is preparing to make the Chemical Department as complete and thorough as the Shorthand and Penmanship Departments. The college closes to-morrow at 3 o'clock; the students at present are being examined in the various subjects of each department. The term just ended has been a most successful one, over one hundred students having already entered. The certainty of a large and enthusiastic school after the holidays is confidently anticipated. Over 25 new students from a distance are expected to begin with the new term. It is marvellous with what rapid strides the college has grown up in our midst. Long before it was thought work had fairly begun, students were flocking in. But we must not forget that Mr. Sawyer had more even than a provincial name for excellence in his specialties, and long before he came to Peterborough he was a regular paid contributor to the New York Gazette, New York Art Journal, and many other papers of equally well know reputations. He has taught over ten thousand persons how to write. And he has taught over 900 public school teachers, who are scattered throughout Ontario to-day, and are every day speaking a good word for the Peterborough Business College, and are sending students to be instructed by their own former teacher, Mr. Sawyer.

Town Council.

An Adjourned Meeting—Communications—Building Committee's Report—Charity—Prospects for Another Stove Works.

A meeting of the Peterborough Town Council was held in the Council Chamber yesterday evening. The members were all present except Mr. Keadry.

The Mayor in the chair.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Mr. John Bell, begging the Council to compare his assessment with his neighbors' and give him fair play.—Received.

From Walter Paterson & Son, asking the Council to take action in the matter of relieving a destitute family now in the Protestant Hospital.—Received.

From Thos. Armstrong, applying for the appointment of chief of police.—Referred to Committee on Appointments.

From John Lynch, jr., asking for refund of dog tax which he had paid.—Amount of dog tax ordered to be remitted when petitioner had taken statutory declaration to the effect that he had no dog.

From Mrs. S. Tyrrel, who complained that she could not pay her taxes, and asked to have them remitted.—Referred to charity committee.

From Daniel Purcell, asking that his taxes be remitted, as he was unable to pay them on account of sickness in the family.—Referred to Charity Committee.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were presented for payment:—

N. T. Lapiant	$ 2 00
H. Ruah	17 30
G.T.R., on Rink street culvert	146 22
Peter Counal & Co.	63 00
Henry Best	31 05

D. Demuriels	3 45
W. B. Kelly	1881 41
Dr. Clarke	149 50
Wm. Cameron	100 50

On motion of Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. McClelland, the accounts were referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. A. Rutherford, chairman of the Building Committee, handed in

THE BUILDING COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough:—

GENTLEMEN,—Your committee beg leave to report and recommend that the arrangements with Mr. Bradburn for the sum of $115 per annum for use of clock tower be accepted.

And that the offer to light the Council Chamber with one electric light at one dollar per night be accepted.

Also that the tender of McAndrew & Noble for the heating of the new Council Chamber and other offices, for the sum of $975, be accepted.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. RUTHERFORD,
Chairman.

Mr. Rutherford, in moving the adoption of the report, said it was the same as presented at the last meeting of the Council. The committee had met and considered the advisability of using one boiler to heat the new buildings and fire hall. Mr. Belcher and Messrs. McAndrews & Noble had informed the committee that the boiler proposed to be used in heating the new town buildings was the largest size of low pressure boiler. A boiler large enough to heat both buildings would necessarily be high pressure, and would cost more than two low pressure boilers. The high pressure boiler would also require the services of a man to attend it, while the low pressure boilers were self-regulating. With regard to the lease of the clock tower, agreement could be entered into with Mr. Bradburn for from one to five years, subject to a notice of six months should either parties wish to discontinue the lease.

Mr. Hartley seconded the adoption of the report.

Mr. McClelland thought the clause in the report with regard to lighting the new Council room with one electric light, should be struck out, and as an amendment made a motion to that effect.

Mr. McNaughton seconded the motion to amend the report. The amendment was put and the vote stood a tie, but was decided lost, the Mayor casting his vote against it. The report was then put and carried.

MOTIONS.

Mr. McNaughton rose to explain the cause of Mr. Bell's complaint regarding assessment. By referring to the assessment roll it was found that Mr. Bell's property was assessed in the same proportion as the surrounding property, and the matter was dismissed.

Moved by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that the clerk prepare a by-law prohibiting tobogganing and sleigh-riding on the sidewalks.—Carried,

CHARITY.

On motion, Mr. Paterson was heard with regard to his petition asking for assistance to a destitute family, now at the Protestant hospital. He said they were in destitute circumstances, having no bedding or other household furniture. The family had been sent to town by a Montreal charitable institution. This institution had asked him to give the man employment. He was a currier. He had done so at the earliest opportunity. The man was entirely unfit for the work required of him. The whole family, man and wife and five children had been shipped to town on Tuesday last. Mr. Paterson had applied to Mr. Brundrett, of the Sons of England, who did all in his power to get him employment without success. The Sons of England were prepared to supplement any sum granted by the council to assist in securing a passage to England for the family.

A general discussion was entered into and a motion and an amendment were made as to the amount to be granted, when Mayor Cox settled the matter by promising to find employment for the man and see that he was properly provided for.

On motion Mr. Wilson was heard relating to the support of Mrs. White.—Referred to Charity Committee.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT INDUSTRY FOR PETERBOROUGH.

The Mayor then intimated that he had a matter of interest to lay before the Council. He had seen by advertisements in the Globe the McCleary Manufacturing Co., of London, who are about to move their extensive stove works from London, wanted propositions from municipalities desirous of obtaining their works. One of their requirements was good shipping facilities, which Peterborough could give them. A reasonable bonus was also asked. It was an important establishment, and he would give $5,000 himself towards a bonus. They also required sufficient ground to build 100 dwelling houses. He thought the town could supply this as part of the bonus. Exemption from taxation would also be necessary. The firm had storehouses all over Canada, and it was a very important industry. He thought it would help the other stove works in town.

The Council generally were of the same opinion.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, That the Mayor be requested to communicate with the McCleary Manufacturing Company, stating the probable inducements the town could offer and enquire as to further particulars, and invite one of the firm to visit the town with a view of making further arrangements.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned to meet in two weeks.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[The publisher of THE EXAMINER does not hold himself responsible for the facts asserted nor the opinions expressed by correspondents.]

"Falsity and Treachery."

We comply with the request of a prominent Conservative, in publishing the following letter, which has been refused insertion in the columns of the Review. The Review is no doubt afraid to publish the wholesale condemnation of the government which it supports, by one of its own party, who is just now having his eyes opened to the fact, that Sir John Macdonald and his government are thoroughly corrupt, unreliable and not to be trusted even when their promises are put in black and white:—

To the Editor of the Daily Review:—

DEAR SIR,—Your issue of yesterday informs the public that the plans for the Customs and Inland Revenue offices in Peterborough, have arrived. Many of your readers were disappointed that the plans for the post-office did not accompany them. And much to the amazement of the people, it is made known that the Customs and Inland Revenue offices are to be erected upon the Phelan lot.

During the month of October, I noticed it reported in your paper that Mr. Phelan had sold his lot to the Government as

THE SITE OF THE PETERBOROUGH POSTOFFICE.

It was also announced that he had executed a deed of his lot to the Government, and that it was declared in the deed that he so conveyed it as the site for the post-office. It was intimated in the Review that the acceptance of that deed by the Government, settled the contention as to where the postoffice would be erected. It is therefore with much surprise that I learn that the Inland Revenue and Customs offices are to be placed upon the Phelan lot. Can it be possible that the Government do not intend to carry out their contract with Mr. Phelan; and are they determined to break faith with him?

It is beyond any doubt that Mr. Phelan sold his lot for the purpose expressed in his deed, and that the Government purchased it for that purpose, I have been informed by reliable authority that Mr. Phelan agreed to sell his lot to the Government two years ago, and that it was then that the post-office should be built upon it. Moreover, Mr. Phelan positively refused to sell his lot to the Government for the Inland Revenue and Customs offices. For two years the Ministry have dealt with him upon the understanding that the post-office should be built there. He is not obliged to rely upon their verbal statements, however trustworthy they may be. He has a copy of the receipt for the purchase money in which the Department of Public Works stated that it was the price of the site for the Peterboro' post office. He can call upon the Government's solicitor here to produce the letter from the Government to him instructing him "to obtain the abstract and search the title of the lot situate on the corner of George and Charlotte streets to be used as the site for the Peterborough Postoffice." He can refer to the deed which he signed, and which the Government accepted and placed upon the public records. The registration of the deed was the final act whereby the Government proclaimed to the people the contract it had made with Mr. Phelan. It would be impossible to procure stronger evidence of what the intentions of all the parties were. In face of all these facts I cannot believe that which it entered into with so much deliberation and solemnity. Such a breach would shock the public mind to such an extent that no right-thinking citizen could longer support a Government guilty of such falsity and treachery. No matter what pressure or ingenuity may be brought to bear upon them by political wire-pullers, they should not for a moment entertain a thought of perpetrating a

EXTREMELY SPECULATED

THE GOVERNMENT WILL

FRAUD OF SO GROSS A CHARACTER

upon Mr. Phelan. He has loyally supported the Conservative party for thirty years past. Few men in this riding have sacrificed themselves so much in that cause as he has. The representatives for West Peterborough, both in the Dominion and Local Houses, owe much to the political support which he so willingly and self-sacrificingly gave them. During the years when the Conservative party labored under ignominy and defeat, when it was deserted by many of its old followers and friends, he and true, and are all his laborious services, all his loyalty and zeal to be rewarded by the basest deceit and grossest treachery. I cannot believe so. I anxiously await further developments.

STILL REMAINED STAUNCH

The Minister of Public Works, Sir Hector Langevin may be assured that the failing to carry out his promises and those of his leader in this contract with Mr. Phelan, will be one of the deadliest blows which the Conservative party and the Dominion Government has ever sustained in the County of Peterborough.

Yours, &c.,
"A CONSERVATIVE."

Our Approaching Municipal Elections.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

I suppose that many of the voters of the town will be glad to hear me say, as I do say, that this is my last letter upon the subject of our municipal elections. I don't imagine for a moment that they have done or will do any good. I have, however, honestly tried to make them think a little more of the importance of the approaching elections, because I felt that they ought to do so, and because the result of their indifference is to fill the Council with men, some of whom ought not to be there, whilst the others can do nothing in consequence of the opposition of those who should have been left at home. If the people had heretofore taken more interest in the proceedings of the Council for the past year or two, and had made it their business to know exactly what their councillors did do, or wanted to do, there would have been less necessity for me calling their attention to them; and a greater

PROBABILITY OF SECURING BETTER MEN

in the time to come. I am only a ratepayer, and all I want is to see the affairs of the town carried on as individuals manage their own private affairs. If that were done we would see a change for the better, and money saved where it is now wasted. If the number of councillors were one-half, or less than one-half what it is now, there would be fewer axes to grind and fewer people to grind them. At present there are so many councillors that it offers an easy opportunity for anyone wanting favors to get someone to do his bidding, and then say that the actor in the matter was no worse than all the rest, and so the complaint falls through. It is easier to fix the blame upon six councillors than upon twelve, and the less the number of councillors, the less chance there will be to go wrong. But to return to the subject of the town elections. I assume that that there will be no change and that the next council will be the same as the last. I don't hear of the first move made to bring out new men in place of some of the old ones, and it is hardly likely to be done now. The very worst of our representatives will go round and shake hands with the ratepayers who will feel flattered with the honor done them and they will go to the polls and vote, even though they know in their hearts they are doing wrong. A great many electors seem to think that their votes were only given to them to do with as a child plays with its doll, and they never think that they have any serious duty to perform, and so they leave the business of the town to take care of itself, that is, they hand over the best interests of the town to interested men, who want to go into the council to look after themselves, feeling, and justly so, that the great mass of the people

DON'T DESERVE ANY BETTER TREATMENT.

They don't consider that any saving to the town is a saving to themselves, nor do they seem to realize that a waste of the town's finances is a waste of their own taxes. They do not put so much value upon their votes, and the most they put is that they can vote, and that it is pleasant to have men come and ask them for their votes. And there they consider their duty ends. All I want the people to do is, to take care and select good honest men to represent them in the management of their affairs. To insist upon it that no man shall go into the council who will not act honestly and fairly by the town, and he will secretly lend himself to carry out the schemes of others, when they know that they ought not to do so, and when they know that the people would disapprove of such conduct. On Monday next the electors will show what they are going to do, and when they have done it let them not complain of what follows after.

Rev. Mr. Sewewright, missionary from the Northwest, occupied the Presbyterian pulpit here on Sunday morning, and will lecture here on Tuesday evening next.

The youngest son of Mr. George Isaac, of this village, died suddenly last Friday evening after a short illness of a few days. The family have the sincere sympathy of all who know them, as this is the fourth death in a few years.

Mr. Donald Anderson is seriously ill, also Mr. Alexander Gillespie, of Villiers, who has been poorly for some weeks.

Monday evening, a gratifying occurrence took place, nothing less than the surprising Dr. and Mrs. Harrison with a handsome service of silver, by the local members of the Methodist Church, who presented it as a token of their appreciation of [illegible] and untiring service, of Mrs. Harrison especially, in connection with church work. As we were not present, we cannot describe the gift, but do not doubt it was all it should be.

Hon. Mr. Blake's Home-Coming.

Among the passengers on the steamer Adriatic, which arrived at New York from Liverpool, on Sunday, was the Hon. Edward Blake. The steamer had a stormy passage. Mr. Blake remains in New York till Tuesday evening, when it is understood he will start for his home in Toronto. A private despatch from the last named city this afternoon announces that the honorable gentleman is expected there on Wednesday.

Was Bound to Get Married.

A very pretty girl engaged herself to two young men. She liked both, but was determined to have one to fall back on in case she quarreled with the other. She appointed the same day for her wedding to both young men. Both procured licenses, each, of course, unknown to the other. On the appointed day the clergyman and young man No. 2 was on hand, and the ceremony was fairly under way when expectant bridegroom No. 1 arrived with his friends. A big row ensued, during which young man No. 2 and the girl escaped to the nearest village and were married.

Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Dec. 21.—Society circles are agitated to-day over an elopment scandal. The wife of a well-known civil servant is alleged to have fled from her home on Saturday with a young lover. The husband followed in pursuit, and overtaking the truants at Prescott, brought his wife home again.

The newly-established "Independent" paper here has disclosed itself as a full-fledged Tory organ. It came out on Saturday with a "fair show" of Government advertisements and an article blaming the Privy Council for refusing to uphold Sir John Macdonald's Licence Act, and advocating the abolition of right of appeal to the Privy Council altogether. All the Tories here argue now that the right of appealing to the foot of the Throne should be dispensed with.

Liberals here are by no means frightened at the Mail's proposal that the Government should dissolve Parliament at once and appeal to the country. They fear that the proposal is too good to be carried out.

The Governor-General has been elected patron and honorary President of the Literary and Historical Society of Quebec. His Excellency has accepted the position.

Mr. Foster's hypocrisy on the temperance question is shown by the fact that while he was going around the country making ten cent speeches on temperance for ten dollars he was at the same time a member of the Rideau Club, at which intoxicating liquor of all kinds is sold without license.

A Home-made Spring-Trap.

An excellent spring-trap can be made of a flexible, elastic piece of wood, four feet long and three inches wide by a half-inch thick, which should be fastened at one end securely to a thick board, its middle resting firmly on a cleat, at an angle of about thirty degrees. Upon the upper or free end of this spring-piece fasten a tin blacking-box, hollow side up. Then fix the notched trigger by a hinge to the board in such a way that, when the spring is bent downward over the cleat, the notch can be made to hold it in that position until it is released by pulling a long cord attached to the top end of the trigger. This trap should be used as follows:

The elastic piece is bent down and made fast by the notch in the trigger. Any small object upon which shot will take effect is then placed in the box. The pulling-string being sixty feet long, when all is ready, the shooter stands eighteen yards from the trap, while the puller takes up his position a little behind and to one side of him. When the shooter is ready, he says: "Pull!" and instantly the puller gently draws the string, which releases the "bender" of the trap, and the small potato or block of wood, or whatever forms the target, is thrown into the air, and shot at before it falls.

The wide board, which forms the base of the trap, must be fastened firmly to the ground, by driving long stakes through holes made in it for the purpose.

Traps with steel springs, and hollow glass balls for targets, can be had of dealers in sportsmen's goods; but they are quite expensive, and this arrangement is just as good.—St Nicholas.

Congressman Chase, of Rhode Island, is the only Quaker in the National Legislature. He is described as a short, spare person, with thin, black beard, white face and black hair. You never see him save in a suit of immaculate broadcloth, with immense skirts to the coat, and an old-fashioned black choker on the expense of white bosom. About the Capitol and on the streets he looks like a figure from a fashion-plate of half a century ago, and in the House he never seems to care much about what goes on.

The site of the historic Black Hole of Calcutta, which was discovered several months ago and excavated, has been filled up and decently paved over. A handsome tablet of white marble, bearing a suitable inscription, is about to be placed near the spot.

PROVISIONALLY SETTLED.

At last the site for the new buildings for a Postoffice for the town of Peterborough has been apparently settled, but whether this settlement is final or merely provisional is not so clear. The thing has been long enough in doubt, and the delightful state of uncertainty has resulted in the loss of good round sums by those who are willing to back their opinions, while others are correspondingly benefitted financially, and it is time something positive were arrived at. It is estimated by those who should know that between four thousand and five thousand dollars have changed hands in wagers on the postoffice site.

As we announced yesterday, the plans for the postoffice buildings arrived yesterday, and those for the customs and inland revenue offices arrived on Saturday, the latter to be placed on the Phalen lot. This flippant shuffle, after the latter position had the written promise of the postoffice building, has naturally excited violent indignation among the southern section of local Conservatives. In another column of this issue appears a letter, scathingly exposing the Government's double-dealing trickery and rascality in connection with the transaction in question. It is written by a person who has a right, from a position he holds in the Conservative party, to know the true inwardness of the situation, and to know pretty accurately the state of feeling against the Dominion Government. But it is singular to note how short the fit of indignation will probably be. Sir John knows well how far to go and what liberties he can take with his faithful followers and to what extent he can safely dupe and fool them. He trusts to the magnetic effect of his personal presence to restore the most rebellious to discipline, and it would not be surprising to see in the case of his now disgusted followers in Peterborough, that when Sir John says, "Thumbs up," presto, up will come the thumbs and the recalcitrants will promptly amble back into the traces. It is surprising to see how Sir John's followers cling to him even when they know how tricky and unreliable he and his colleagues in office are. Mr. Phelan, after thirty years faithful service with the Conservative party, may be relied on to know the leading members of that party thoroughly, and it is a significant fact, as asserted, that in pressing his claims to having his lot chosen for the Post-office, he received profuse verbal assurances, officially uttered, that he "was all right;" but he knew the leaders of his party so well, that he refused to accept their most solemn asseverations, and would only be content with their written assurance, under official seal. Now that that, too, has been disregarded, and it is proven that Cabinet Minister's bonds are, like Sir John's license law, "not worth the paper it is written on," it would seem that Mr. Phelan's confidence has had a severer strain than it can stand. An old proverb insists that there is "honour among thieves." If this is true, it is more than can be said of Dominion Cabinet Ministers. One would not wonder so much to see them break faith with, and lie to party opponents, but when they ungratefully dupe, delude, defraud and betray those who trusted in them, and insultingly fling aside, as unworthy of recognition, the claims of a third of a century of faithful service, then there is ground for believing that some lineal decendants of that pleasant gentleman, Judas Iscariot, have found their way to the front rows of the Treasury benches.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Archbishop Tache says that the military operations in the Northwest did not convince the Indians that the power of Canada is very formidable, but quite the reverse. This is much to be regretted, as savages kept systematically on the verge of starvation, and often defrauded and insulted, can be kept quiet only by fear of a power they have learned to respect.

Henry George says this is the state of the labor market to-day: "Labor may be likened to a man who, as he carries home his earnings, is waylaid by a series of robbers. One demands this much, and another that much, but last of all is one who demands all he has left, save just enough to enable him to maintain life, and come forth next day to work. So long as this last robber remains, what will it benefit such a man to drive off any or all of the other robbers?"

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable," or "El Padre" brand of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pay them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby.

A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE.

(Original.)

I know years ago the person who tells the following story. The facts were conveyed to me by letter, with the request that I should put them in readable shape and publish them after I heard of the narrator's death. I have complied with the request to the best of my ability.

My name is Margaret Latham. My more intimate friends used to sportively call me "Doc" for reasons which will shortly appear. For the last ten years I have resided in a far away South American city among a people whose customs are very different from my own.

Christmas is here also a season of festivity. But it is all very different from the New England Christmas of my childhood. As this season draws near I feel an irresistible yearning to send to my own country something which may possibly remind certain friends I left of my existence. I thought I had shut them from me forever; I find I cannot. Year after year in this strange land, as this season draws near, have I felt the same impulse. It is as if then I would migrate to my northern home, like a bird of passage. The feeling has with me grown stronger and stronger. As I cannot come with my body I send my thoughts—my story—which I hope and pray may meet some old friend's eye. I desire to tell a woman's story—my own—a story involving faults, follies and inconsistencies, some real, some apparent, and involving also what I think to be some merit and good quality; for I hold that self-depreciation is as great a fault as an over-appreciation. Indeed, whenever I hear a person persistently "run down" himself, it seems to me as if it was accompanied by an underlying motive, possibly of which he is unconscious, to extort from his listener more praise than he really deserves.

I was born and bred in the hard, narrow, rigid life of a family "in straitened circumstances," in a New England village. I had when a girl two dominant desires: one was to get away from my people, the other to become a physician. The love of healing was inbred in me—I mean to heal as I think only a woman can heal—and to heal principally women.

I don't say this as a man hater—quite the reverse. I state it only as my peculiar inclination.

One of my besetting sins, and which injured my prospects in life, was an irresistible tendency to "cut up," and generally at the very time and in the very place where, of all others, I should have acted decorously. Be sure if there was a wrong thing to do in company or in any public assemblage, it seemed to me as if a very imp of mischief kept at my ear, whispering, urging, tempting me to do it, until at last I could resist the inclination no longer—and did it.

When I was fifteen I told my parents I wanted to be a doctor. Women physicians were little heard of in those days. My family scorned the idea and threatened to send me to bed for an indefinite period if ever I mentioned the subject again. So I nursed the thought and intent in secret. It grew stronger and stronger. One day I read in a newspaper of a woman who had commenced a medical practice in a western town. She was the first female physician of whom I had ever heard. It gave a renewed strength to my determination.

At the age of sixteen I commenced keeping the books of a village merchant on the meagre salary graciously allowed a girl for performing a man's work. I worked for him five years and saved a thousand dollars. With this I went to Boston, applied at a certain noted college and stated my desire to the principal of entering on a course of medical study. He told me that I could manage to "pull through" on a thousand dollars, but that it would be hard work, involving much deprivation and relative hardship. On fifteen hundred dollars he said I could get through properly, and advised me strongly against making further effort unless I had that sum.

I went from the college, and at the first retired spot in which I found myself, leaned against a wall and cried for half an hour. I terminated my cry with a laugh, went back to my native village, kept the merchant's books for two years and a half longer, returned to Boston with the necessary fifteen hundred dollars, and commenced my medical studies.

I went to Boston very full, indeed, of good intent and resolution to abandon my madcap pranks, and be a sober, solemn and demure young woman.

I made in Boston one very dear female acquaintance the loveliest, most gentle, most considerate nature I ever met. She seemed to accept my odd make-up, though, possibly, she did not understand it; but, for that matter, neither did I then, nor do I now.

The years that I spent in the earning of money to pay for my education and those occupied in attaining that education were years of close, hard, cheese paring living. I deprived myself of many things my nature craved. I dressed very plainly, and fed myself meagrely. I was obliged to deny myself amusement and recreation. I loved dress, rich and expensive dress. I appreciated and craved food much above the quality of twenty-cent meals in crammed restaurants. I was passionately fond of the drama. I enjoyed all the elegancies and luxuries of life. Wanting all these and as I now believe needing them, my life was a continual starvation. I tried to comfort myself by the belief that in all this necessary denial and in pressing forward toward the one aim—my education—I was doing the right thing.

Was I? I answer, as now I see life and its necessities: No! True, all the current sentiment of our time endorses self-denial, when the end to be attained by it is a creditable one. But it seems often to forget that this rigid and long-continued repression and starvation of tastes and appetites may beget peculiar evil results, which may lessen much of the good attained.

As now I see in my case, I longed for ten years to dress as I saw other women dress. I longed for choicer food, cosey apartments, and the gratification of many tastes. I looked back with loathing on my hard, narrow, pinched and relatively squalid life. I made certain friends, some of them wealthy. As my situation became known to them, their sympathies were enlisted in my behalf. Offers of money followed. I took it; More; I took it almost greedily. I clutched it as the starving man might clutch at some choice viand given him which he feared the others, starving, might snatch from him. I saw

—FOR THE—
Boot and Shoe Emporium

Whoa Emma, where are you going in such haste. One would think you were walking for your last. Stand back! You need not be surprised, I'm on my way to McALEER'S.

Joe—whom you know to be no guy—gave me $5.00 our Boots to buy.

The Emporium in Boot line is such an attraction, with this V, I can buy to my own satisfaction.

Mens' Velvet Slippers, fancy wrought, down there for $1.00 a pair can be bought; and if this Slipper be hand-sewed, why sakes alive, they're sold for $1.35.

Don't be ecstatic over this little drive, Men's Coloured Plush are but $1.75.

As for myself, I needn't care, Ladies' Slippers are sold from 40 cents a pair.

Now don't stop me longer, either come with me, or go home in a hurry and get your tea; such bargains are not every day to be had, and if I got left, it would be too bad.

A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE.

(Concluded from 4th page.)

It is a road more pleasant leading out of the barren, high-walled monotonous lane of Poverty, trod by so many weary feet that almost every flower that tries to spring up therein is trampled down in its dust. I took to do one starved may take any gift, thinking it was the last ever to be received. I became covetous. I hoarded away these gifts. While I would not beg for more directly, I did so indirectly. I inferred my cramped means and situation, instead of stating them openly. Though having then money enough to supply the needs of the hour more in accordance with my tastes and desires, I did not so gratify them. I continued still to dress plainly and live poorly. I did so because I could not bear to part with my treasure. I sent half my soul in a certain bank vault and left it there amid a package of sealed bank bills—mine! mine!—of which I would not touch one to make my life and surroundings more pleasant. I traded on my versatility and vivacity to make and keep friends. I was willing to go among them with my mouth ever wide open to receive whatever was dropped in it, and to attract their gifts to my powers of pleasing.

I found when I had sufficient means that I had not the courage to spend them for what I had so earnestly wanted. The saving, calculating, cost-to-a-penny habit of years clung to me.

Anything beyond my old plane of expense frightened me. I was cursed with a mania for cheapness. If I purchased a good article of any sort, and paid for it a good price, I would be pained for days at the thought of parting with so much money. So money brought me no relief—only the more distress. The reason was, I had trained myself to miserliness and could not escape. My mind on that point was diseased. Had a million been placed in my possession I should have felt the same. In thought I should have been no richer.

Besides, I'd had that villainous maxim, "Save when you're young that you may spend when you're old," and too worn out to get any pleasure out of your spending, drilled and drummed into my ears from my earliest childhood, until I had come to think every cent expended over and above what was necessary to keep life in one's body a semi-sin, if not a whole one.

Isabel and I planned a trip to England together. I wished for a course of study at one of the great London hospitals. We arranged the trip and set a time for our departure.

But when I came to think the matter over by myself it presented itself in a very different light. I felt that for this girl to accompany me would be for both of us a misfortune; that I should be ever leading her into trouble through my whims and humors, and that her gentle and sensitive nature was not able to endure the strain that would be put upon it through my possible acts. I feared, also, knowing then better my own erratic temperament and love of change, that the time might come when I should tug at any chain, however dear. So firmly did I believe that such would be the case, and so averse was I to the stating of this opinion to Isabel, that off I went to England alone and without giving her any explanation whatever. It cost me a succession of crying spells, and I presume it did her also.

I studied in a great London hospital for a year—rather a hard experience for a woman, as a woman in such a situation is regarded by the English medical student. Englishmen make ample amends for having one woman rule them nominally—for they seem to rule all the rest with a barbaric rod.

I returned to America a qualified physician. I had gained my end and paid dearly for it. The strain had been too much. I was, at the start, splendidly equipped as to physical vigor, but it had been exhausted in the contest of years. My health broke down. I was ready to commence life, but now life's corner stone and foundation to build upon—health—was wanting. I had expended all my reserve strength in forcing myself to accept food, dress and surroundings which did violence to my nature; in grieving my higher self by stooping to obtain means in the way I have stated; in forcing the reckless side of my nature to the front as a sort of protective armor, for as I began to realize that it was a part of my nature, I made it do double duty. I would work myself, force myself into that mood when I really felt far more like crying, when I so longed for a friend on whose bosom I could throw myself and tell her all about myself—tell her what I have tried to tell here—if I had dared. But these truths then I dared not own to myself.

The few friends I had in Boston—some of whom had given me means—may remember how suddenly I disappeared; how I left them without a word or line of thanks or remembrance. That they should deem me ungrateful I do not wonder. But I left them in the way I did because I dared not reveal myself to them. I could not as I have done here. Nor could I thank them for their kindness in any assumed mechanical fashion. I felt that I had played a part for a sordid motive. I loathed myself for so doing. So between the two I went off in silence.

This is my Christmas message—the one Christmas token I can offer. What I want it to impress upon its readers is that sordidness never results in good. Giving, not hoarding, brings back a rich return. Think of this, as Christmas dawns and the New Year opens. Be generous to others and to yourself.

And this: There is no ultimate gain in starvation, starved and repressed appetite, or starved and repressed taste, no matter what be the end attained through such starvation; it is only another robbing of Peter to pay Paul, only damming up injuriously what's in human nature to roll over the barrier at last and sweep all before it; only a starving of body, mind and spirit, whose result is to make one see through starved eyes and by a starved judgment.

Close the old year and open the new with the good cheer that comes from generous giving. Remember that all you can carry into the life hereafter will be what you have given, not what you have saved.

PRENTICE MULFORD.

Boston, Dec. 16.

CHRISTMAS CRUMBS.

MIDST the freezing sleet and snow,
The timid robin comes;
In pity drive him not away,
But scatter out your crumbs.

And leave your door upon the latch
For whosoever comes;
The poorer they, more welcome give,
And scatter out your crumbs.

All have to spare, none are too poor,
When want and winter comes;
The loaf is never all your own,
Then scatter out the crumbs.

Some winter falls upon your life,
The day of reckoning comes;
Against your sins, by high decree,
Are weighed these scattered crumbs.

I came upon the midnight clear,
That glorious song of old,
From angels bending near the earth
To touch their harps of gold:
"Peace to the earth, good will to men
From Heaven's all-gracious king!"
The world in solemn stillness lay
To hear the angels sing.

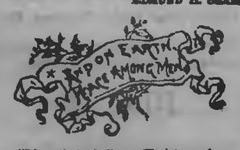
Still through the cloven skies they come,
With peaceful wings unfurled;
And still their heavenly music floats
O'er all the weary world;
Above its sad and lowly plains
They bend on heavenly wings,
And ever o'er its Babel sounds
The blessed angels sing.

Yet with the woes of sin and strife
The world has suffered long;
Beneath the angel-strain have rolled
Two thousand years of wrong;
And man at war with man hears not
The love-song which they bring;
Oh! hush the noise, ye men of strife,
And hear the angels sing.

And ye, beneath life's crushing load,
Whose forms are bending low;
Who toil along the climbing way
With painful steps and slow—
Look now! for glad and golden hours
Come swiftly on the wing;
Oh! rest beside the weary road,
And hear the angels sing.

For lo! the days are hastening on,
By prophet bards foretold,
When with the ever circling years
Comes round the age of gold.
When peace shall over all the earth
Its ancient splendors fling,
And the whole world send back the song
Which now the angels sing.

EDMUND H. SEARS.



"I heard the bells on Christmas day
Their old familiar carols play,
And wild and sweet
The words repeat
Of peace on earth, good will to men."

The Charm of Christmastide.

"It is marvellous, this charm of Christmas time, dear," remarked a lady to her husband. Age does not wither nor custom stale its infinite joyousness. It is earth's wister time, but the glorious summer of the soul. While the yule log burns, the ice of selfishness, hatred and malice disappears, and charity warm and glowing, fills the heart. We must warm ourselves in its radiant heat, for the ashes whiten soon enough—"

"Mamma," interrupted the lady's little daughter, "can I give Mary White a Christmas present?"

"Certainly not," was the reply. "She gave you nothing last year."

This may be all very good, but will not work in every case. Though you have not received a direct present, at the same time you have been the recipient of all the attention that was possible to be given. A little present goes a long way, but a generous one goes much farther. If you would do the proper thing, go to D. Belleghem's, Hunter street, Peterborough, where you can secure furniture suitable for presents great or small.

For Xmas.

Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie have in stock for the Xmas trade, a very fine line of slippers of all kinds, specially suited for presents, and at prices much below the ordinary. Call in and see the stock, it is really handsome and cannot be surpassed in town. In every department they carry full lines, but make a specialty of fine hand-sewed work for ladies and gentlemen.

Market Items.

The market this morning was not very large on account of the inclement state of the weather. There was a fair display of fowls offered and also other meats. Prices remained about the same. Quotations: butter, in rolls, 16c. to 18c.; eggs, 18c.; chickens, 25c. to 40c. per pair; turkeys, of which there were some exceedingly fine samples, 75c. to $1.00; geese, 60c. to 75.; apples, 90c. to $1.00 per bushel; potatoes, 55c. to 75c. per bag; beef and pork remain unchanged. There were some very fine porkers sold, three of which averaged 415 lbs.

Baptist Festivities.

The children of the Baptist Church Sunday School were entertained at a tea in the school rooms of the church yesterday evening. There was a good representation of the juveniles, who more than enjoyed themselves. Children of this school were admitted free, and others were charged 10c. After the tea was disposed of the Christmas cantata was rehearsed. It will be presented in church to-night and promises to be a grand success. The cantata is a happy combination of music, recitation and scenery and was composed by Eben E. Rexford and Prof. Martin, of town. The music will be rendered by one of "Old England's youthful voices," from the Barnardo Home. No doubt there will be a large attendance.

Christmas Display.

Mr. H. C. Winch, butcher, who always endeavors to supply the wants of his numerous customers, has in keeping with the custom, made a display of meats for the Christmas trade. His efforts to supply the demand and provide the best possible materials eclipse any endeavor of former years. His meats are displayed in tempting array, and cannot fail to please the most fastidious. His stall is handsomely decorated. He has a novel attraction, after the old country style, in the form of festoons of turkeys with the large tail and wing feathers unplucked, which gives the birds a grotesque and showy appearance. His stock has been supplied by a number of prominent stock raisers. Mr. J. Carter, of Otonabee, whose cattle always figure in Christmas and Easter displays, has contributed one Durham heifer. Mr. J. W. Hall, of South Monaghan, supplied one prime Durham steer and two Durham heifers. Mr. Jas. Brown, of Smith, the well known cattle-feeder, contributed a grade cow to the display. Mr. Richard Thexton, of Cavan, also supplied a grade cow. Mr. Winch had his choice of a number of cattle purchased by Mr. Wm. Denoon, drover, for the Montreal market. He has also dressed a number of cattle fed by himself especially for the trade. One of these took the prize at the Central Exhibition. His lambs and sheep are a particularly fine assortment, and have been purchased from the best breeders in the country, Messrs. Andrew Finney, of Cavan, John Moloney, Reeve of Douro, and S. Stewart, of Otonabee. H. Moore, of Otonabee, and E. Sutton, of Cavan, supplied the porkers. The stock is complete and merits attention. Call early and make your selection.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Perks, Port Hope, are in town for the Christmas holidays.

Rev. Drs. Castle and Thomas were the guests of Mr. John Walton, while in town this week.

The Convent De Notre Dame has made a valuable addition to its staff of music teachers, in the person of Prof. Doucet, the accomplished violinist, whose services have been secured to instruct pupils desiring to learn the art of drawing the bow.

In our report of the George Street Sunday School Anniversary entertainment, there was an omission of mention that to Miss Wells as well as Misses Grundy and Keele, was due the successful training that led to the children of the Primary Department acquitting themselves with such great credit.

Home for the Holidays.

A number of Peterborough young men have returned home from the colleges for the Christmas holidays, to enjoy a short rest from their studies and to join in the good cheer home affords.

Are We Interested?

It might be well for those in this section, who are interested in anyway, to remember that all joining now before the 28th of this month will share in this year's profits. The next division of profits will be made in January, 1888, say in about two years, in the British Empire Mutual Life Insurance Company, established in 1847, which divides its profits every three years. It is a purely mutual company; no stockholders to pay 10 to 15 per cent. to. It divides its profits entirely among its policy-holders. Its policies are all unconditional. It is a strong, solvent, reliable company, with between five and six millions of dollars of accumulated assets to guarantee its contracts, and which pays a thousand dollars for a thousand dollar policy without any "shirking." It has never disputed a claim. This company gives you real insurance; not a temporary makeshift, but absolute, permanent protection, whether the insured dies early or late, and at as low a rate as any assessment concern during the early years, and vastly lower than such associations after a few years. We occasionally meet some people who have an objection to mutual life companies because of the many failures of the "pass around the hat" affairs which appropriate the name "Mutual." It is asserted by insurance authorities that no purely mutual life company has ever failed. However, every regular life company, whether mutual or stock, has to give just the same security to the Government. The oldest, largest and most successful life companies in the world are mutual. Who can deny it? As an evidence of what the late Hon. George Brown thought of the mutual life companies, he had all his life assurance, amounting to $60,000, in mutual companies. Send in your applications now. Please remember, "don't all come at once." E. E. HENDERSON, General Agent British Empire Mutual Life Insurance Company, Peterborough.

Hall's Hive of Industry.

G. W. Hall's Biscuit and Confectionery Works—The Big Boom in Business—Whole Staff Working Fifteen Hours a Day—A Mighty Rush of Orders.

When an establishment, like G. W. Hall's Biscuit and Confectionery Works, secures a reputation for first-class goods, and when that reputation continues to be deserved, it is no wonder, that it drives a roaring trade. Never since his present premises were opened has Mr. Hall done so great a business as he is doing this season. His biscuits and cakes have achieved so good a reputation that the area of territory supplied is

WIDENING EVERY DAY.

The new line of the C. P. R. and the Central Ontario railway have opened new avenues of trade. The reputation of Hall's goods preceded and the trade naturally followed.

At the factory for the past two, months, every member of the staff has put in fifteen hours for a day's work, and still the orders keep ahead of the supply. Though the premises have been enlarged, and though as many hands are employed as can work in the space allowed, still it is almost impossible to keep up with the demands of customers.

At this season of the year especially the confectionery department, where the rush goes on from seven o'clock in the morning till twelve at night, would make the seem a dormitory in comparison. There is an immense run on the numerous varieties of candy and sweets manufactured. The staple stock is long since exhausted, but the work on special orders still goes on. While our reporter was looking in on the candy department this morning, a batch of seventy pounds of "Jumbo taffy" was on the hooks. In eight minutes it was rolled into saccharine ropes and in a few minutes more it was cut into sticks and was seized by the customer who had been waiting for it. When he came in a little over half an hour previously, the sugar was still in the cask in the store room. While one batch is being finished, another is boiling, and so the hot work goes on from hour to hour. Customers have to wait for their goods, and it is found necessary to give each one a third of what he wants "to keep him in good humor," and so on with succeeding customers. Mr. John Watt, the candy foreman, is kept in a

PERPETUAL PERSPIRATION,

and he keeps his staff in the same condition. So great is the demand for candies that there is no time to box the finer kinds, but they are dumped into a paper parcel, for the waiting customer, and the orders keep three days ahead of the capacity of the establishment.

There is only one explanation of this state of things and that is that Hall's goods are so excellent in character and have won so great a reputation that the people prefer them,—in fact the people must and will have them. It is probable that seven-eighths of the candy that will find its way into little Christmas stockings in this district was manufactured by Mr. G. W. Hall. First class goods and square dealing is what makes business thrive and his business is humming and will continue to hum till after the holidays. Success to Mr. Hall, and a merry Christmas and a happy New Year to him and his staff, is the wish of THE EXAMINER.

Advertising.

Frank Siddalls, the greatest Philadelphia advertiser, reported to have lately remarked, as a fact worthy of comment, that he had never had a personal application for patronage from the Newspaper Advertising Bureau of Geo. P. Powell & Co. of New York. The reason for this may be found, not in the fact that Messrs. Rowell & Co. do not want business or are unwilling to drum for it, but that they find a cheaper and more efficacious way of securing patronage is to keep their names before the public by using the advertising columns of the newspapers. Doing this they attract those who have not yet arrived at that conclusion. The newspaper is the most presistent and at the same time the best mannered of all advertising canvassers.

Educational.

Mr. Chas. Canning James, B. A., of Napanee, at present classical master of the Cobourg Collegiate Institute, has been appointed to the chair of Chemistry and Geology in the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, rendered vacant by the death of Prof. R. B. Hare, B.A., Ph. D. Although a young man, Mr. James has already given proof of qualities which eminently fit him for the responsible position to which he has been appointed by the Commissioner of Agriculture and the Government. He passed a distinguished course in science in Victoria University, having won high honors each year, including the gold medal at graduation. His post-graduate studies have been specially pursued with a view to some such career as the one which has now been opened up to him by his appointment at Guelph.

Sir John's Boomerang.

When the bill creating the Supreme Court of Canada was introduced to the House Sir John A. Macdonald was leader of the Opposition. The bill as introduced made the new court supreme in fact as well as in name, but as the leader of the Opposition objected to this, and made a "truly loyal" speech in advocacy of "the right of appeal to the foot of the throne," the Government of the day unwisely yielded the point, and there was thus created a tribunal which is of the most anomalous character. As the Ottawa journal suggests, it is rather curious and poetically just that Sir John has been repeatedly humiliated by the Imperial Privy Council, to which he paid so much deference. Probably legislation to make the Supreme Court supreme would now impress him less unfavorably than formerly.—Toronto World.

The British Elections.

Full Returns to Date.

We publish to-day the concluding instalment of the full returns of the polling in the British elections, as received by mail. The list is now completed, with the exception of the returns for Orkney and Shetland and Edinburgh and St. Andrew's Universities—two constituencies where the voting took place last week, and as to the results in which the cable correspondents have been mum. The following is a summary of the state of parties in the 668 constituencies where the poll has been declared:

	L.	C.	N.	Total.
Scotland	61	9	—	70
England—
Boroughs and Universities	95	84	1	180
Counties	153	101	—	253
Metropolis	25	37	—	62
Ireland	—	18	85	103
	333	249	86	668

It will be observed from the above table that the Liberals, while defeating the Conservatives by a large majority in England and Scotland, are still two short of tieing the Conservatives and Nationalists combined, supposing the constituencies yet to be heard from return supporters of Lord Salisbury, which it is probable, under exceptional circumstances, they may do. The University constituency at one time returned Sir Lyon Playfair, who chose to contest one of the divisions of Leeds, and did so successfully; but he was an exceptionally strong man, which Mr. Erichsen, the present Liberal candidate, is not, whereas his opponent is Right Hon. J. H. A. Macdonald, Q.C., a member of the Government. In Orkney and Shetland, as in too many Scottish constituencies, two Liberals ran against one Tory, and it is just possible that he may slip in, and thus give the Government the seat. In any case, the Tories are in a minority, and can only carry on Government by aid of Parnell's following, whereas the Liberals, who have undoubtedly a majority of the entire electorate in their favor, can almost at any moment, on the reassembling of the House, bring about the collapse of the Ministry. It would be more decent for Lord Salisbury to resign, seeing he is so hopelessly in a minority; but his followers are too anxious for power to consent to that course, hoping to make some temporary agreement with the Nationalists. That body, on the other hand, do not hesitate to affirm that they believe justice for the Irish can be best obtained at the hands of Mr. Gladstone, who has inaugurated all the ameliorating legislation granted to Ireland for many years past. A few weeks will decide.

Port Hope.

On Tuesday evening a joint meeting of the Town Council, Harbor and High and Public Schools Boards, was held to devise means of retrenchment whereby the taxes could be got down below two cents on the dollar. The Municipal loan indebtedness in coming down, and must be provided for. This amounts to $6,500, and it was estimated that the receipts would fall short $2,300 on account of the Scott Act coming into force, and that $9,000 would have to be raised next year, above the ordinary amount to be raised. An effort was made to cheese pare, by reducing the salaries of school teachers, but that as well as the meeting, according to a local paper, "ended in a fizzle." No decided action was taken. Port Hopers had better send a delegate to Peterborough to learn how to keep down the taxes.

The Peterborough Postoffice.

(From the Globe.)

The double-dealing and gross corruption of the Dominion Government are strongly and forcibly exemplified in the case of the Peterborough postoffice. For a long time Peterborough has been demanding public buildings in the shape of a Postoffice, Custom House and Inland Revenue office, but as both ridings of the county were considered steadily Tory, their demands, though repeated, received about as little attention as did the claims of the Halfbreeds prior to rebellion. Lately, owing to the widespread disaffection, it was deemed advisable to proceed with the business.

[illegible] the election of 1882, the Government threw the first bait and set aside a grant of $15,000 for the purpose of erecting public buildings in Peterboro'. The scheme worked admirably. Two parties pressed for the prize—one composed of Messrs. C. W. Sawers, A. P. Poussette, and Jas. Stevenson and the other composed of Messrs. E. Phalen and John Garvey. The claims of Mr. Phalen were strong. A strong Conservative and good Roman Catholic, he had travelled Muskoka with the notorious Stimson, H. H. Smith, and Roddy Pringle during the memorable "Frozen whiskey" campaign and many were his exploits. Mr. John Garvey is also a strong Conservative, a strong Roman Cathotic, and has always heretofore been a staunch ally of Sir John. From 1882 persistent efforts were being made by both these parties. Petitions were forwarded, recommendations were sent, and deputations waited on the Government until it was thought the matter was settled in Mr. Phalen's favor. That Mr. Phalen was about to succeed was also borne out by other circumstances from time to time. His opponents were bought off one by one. The two members for the county of Peterborough, Messrs. Hilliard and Burnham were duly recognized. Mr. R. B. Rogers, a brother-in-law of Mr. Burnham, received an important appointment as Engineer of the Trent Valley Works. A son of Mr. Hiliard received substantial favors in the Northwest. Mr. Ed. Snyder, a brother-in-law of Mr. Carnegie, M. P.P., who is also related to Mr. Hilliard, received a valuable appointment in the Northwest. Mr Carnegie himself prior to this had been appointed Census Commissioner. A son-in-law of Mr. Stevenson, Mr. C. H. Clementi, received an appointment in the Customs in Peterborough, and Mr. Pousette, a young lawyer without any special qualifications, was appointed a Q.C. All these things seemed to pave the way for the grant of the new Postoffice to Mr. Phalen, and, confirmed in his hopes, he staked large sums of money in bets that [illegible] block would receive the Postoffice.

The Government very naturally thought that all hands were now bought off, but they refused to stay bought. Mr. Sawers, who is but little known, to strengthen the hands of his party, joined the Orangemen, and attempted to lift the question from one of public plunder to one of religion, but his Orange brothers scented the game. The rest of the syndicate were not inactive. Combinations were formed and a bitter and hostile feeling was engendered. The Government were in a quandary. A happy thought struck them. Buy both lots! They did buy them and made the following handsome bargain:—Out of the Sawers lot they bought 66x100 feet for $6000, paying about $100 a foot, although but three years ago the Sawers syndicate bought the same for $52 per foot. Out of the Phalen lot, consisting of half an acre, they bought 60x114 feet for $3,900, although about three year ago the whole half-acre only cost $3,250, no improvement having been since made on either lot.

Neither of the parties was content with the money plundered from the Dominion Treasury. The site for the postoffice was still unsettled. Each wanted the postoffice as well as the money. Mr. Phalen, as he has repeatedly stated on the streets of Peterborough, personally interviewed Sir John and received his assurance that the postoffice should be on his block. Mr. Phalen then interviewed Sir Hector Langevin, and the latter confirmed the site, but Mr. Phalen, well knowing the treachery of Sir John, would not give the Government a deed of the property until it was expressly stipulated therein that the land was for the postoffice.

But alas! tenders have since been called for the erection of a Postoffice and for the erection of a Customs House and Inland Revenue office, and the plans show that the Postoffice is not to be on Mr. Phalen's lot, but on the Sawers Syndicate lot, and that, too, in spite of the word of honour, of the Queen's first Minister in Canada, in spite of the promise of Sir Hector, in spite of the clause in the deed.

It will thus be seen that out of the original $15,000 set apart for the purpose of public buildings in Peterborough, $9,900 has been spent in a site, together with the costs of surveys of the two lots and plans for both lots. In addition to this expense, arising out of the same matter, Mr. R. B. Rogers receives about $2,000 and expenses, Mr. Clementi about $1,000, besides the professional suffering and ill-feeling caused by the appointment of Mr. Pousette as Q. C. As a further addition, there will be the cost of two buildings, at an expense of about $30,000 each, when one building at half the expense was originally contemplated. And added to all, there is a "Phalen claim" to be dealt with on account of non-performance of the Government's contract.

Udy v. Stewart was an action of seduction tried at the last Lindsay Assizes. There was a verdict for the plaintiff, but the defendant died before term came round and judgment could be entered against him. The Serenade Season.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—As the season is now approaching when the Fire Brigade band will begin their annual serenade and call on our good citizens for the liberal support they deserve for the high standard the band maintains, I wish to call the attention of the public to an organization that is being got together for the purpose of making a little stamp for their own pockets. This will consist of a few former members of the defunct City Band (which has not been in existence for some time) and some foreign talent engaged for the occasion, to be styled the "City Band," organised only for the holiday serenade. It is to be hoped our citizens will look out for them [illegible] which is a permanent local organization and should be supported liberally. I also wish to give our city fathers a pointer, in the matter of the annual grant to the band which used to be $150 per year, and which was spent in buying instruments, now the property of the town, (since by by-law, all property acquired by the Fire Brigade becomes town property), and cannot be carried away by any member of the band, if they disbanded as was the case with the "City Band," which was last year granted $50, the same being taken out of the Fire Brigade Band's grants.

MONTREAL'S MATERIAL PROGRESS.

Astonishing Advance in Cigar Manufacturing.

THE TWO UNRIVALLED BRANDS.

(From the Mail.)

MONTREAL, Dec. 11.—The material progress which this commercial city has made during the present year is massive buildings for manufactories and warehouses cannot be very well reconciled with the complaints which are so often heard regarding business being dull and unprofitable. In no commercial centre probably on the whole continent of America, of its size, has there been so many great structures erected within the past twelve months for the hum of industry to be carried on as in Montreal. Go where one will throughout the city he finds some gigantic building raising its massive walls up into the clouds almost, or receiving the finishing touches of the painter's art, to make them ready for their hundreds of toiling hands that will be so soon busily employed within. Among the very largest and most substantial buildings, in fact a modern palace it might be justly termed, that is on the eve of receiving its five or six hundred operatives, is that of situated on Cote street, almost in the centre of the city. This huge block, towering up seven storeys, is not surpassed, or probably equalled, by any erection of the kind in America. The front is adorned with two picturesque towers, surmounting the apex, massive in their proportions, and from the blending of the body of brick with finished stone trimmings, are ornamental in a remarkably striking degree. The exterior is outrivalled by the interior, which has drawn out the superior talent of the architect in making it the most complete and tasteful business structure in all its various departments probably in Canada. The factory covers an area of 9,328 square feet, being 88 feet front and 106 feet deep. The staircases are built in the towers outside the building, and are separated from the interior by wrought iron doors. The water closets and steam elevators are built in detached towers, thereby leaving the capacious flats completely clear. The furnace and Brush boilers are in a separate building in the rear, and the steam is conveyed to the engine and throughout the building by iron pipes. All the doors are of iron, and the factory is designed in every respect to be impervious to fire.

S. DAVIS AND SONS' CIGAR FACTORY,

The basement or first flat will be used for tobacco steaming process.

The second flat will be devoted to the general and shipping offices.

Third flat will be utilized for manufacturing and preparing leaf.

Fourth flat for males engaged in rolling cigars.

Fifth flat for females engaged in same process.

Sixth flat for employes engaged in packing and sorting cigars

Seventh flat for drying leaf.

Each flat has an office for the superintendent, situated in the front, the windows being of coloured glass. Wardrobes, washing and other conveniences for the operatives are fitted up in a complete style on each flat. The building throughout will be illuminated with incandescent electric light, for which Messrs. Davis & Sons are now negotiating. The interior is at present in progress of being tinted all over in the finest taste, and will add materially to the beautiful ensemble of its appearance. Vaults, special storage rooms, and separate departments have been introduced, and next summer an extensive two-storey warehouse for storing stock will be erected adjoining the factory. The business that will be carried on in this monster pile of buildings had a comparatively small beginning, but after nearly a quarter of a century of successful running under the sole management of Mr. S. Davis, at first, but of late with the assistance of his three sons in the supervision, it has developed into a huge traffic, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, and to Europe, the brands of cigars which are turned out having become known and appreciated the world over, for they are shipped to all points of the globe. The leading brands are Cable and El Padre, the former being the most popular 5 cent, and the latter 10 cent, cigar in the market. A specialty with the firm is the fine quality of the tobacco used in the manufacture of all classes of cigars. The trade done by the firm has been rapidly increasing from year to year, and the greatest volume of progress yet was during the past twelve months. It surely proves when people go on expending more and more in what is a harmless luxury, that the country is not retrogressing in prosperity, at least such is the opinion of the head of this prominent manufacturing firm. It only remains to state that the architect of the building is Mr. A. F. Dunlop, and it reflects high credit on his abilities and designing talent. The masonry has been executed by Mr. Lyall, the carpenter work by Mr. McIntyre, and the plumbing by Mr. J. Thibeaut.

The total cost will be from $75,000 to $100,000, including the site.

Mr. Leger, of the insolvent firm of Leger & Rinfret, Quebec, has been arrested at the instance of the Banque Nationale to which he owes $50,000.) The Merchants, British and Union banks are also in for $10,000 each. Much of the firm's paper was signed by its own clerks.

CHRISTMAS.

The greatest festival of the whole year is close at hand. In accordance with a time-honored custom, the EXAMINER wishes its numerous and ever-increasing circle of friends and readers the compliments of the season, with the hope that they may all spend A VERY HAPPY AND JOYFUL CHRISTMAS.

Christmas has always been to our sober, Saxon race, at once a religious, domestic and merry-making festival. It is a season when the old angelic salutation,

"Glory to God in the highest
And on earth peace among men."

asserts its wondrous power and falls like heavenly dew on every care-worn, anxious heart. And yet amid the sounds of this sweet and ennobling strain, there comes to the reflecting mind also sober and saddening thought. The Nativity is the world's great romance. Through the Advent of the Saviour, the most glorious ideal is set before mankind. As the mind ponders on the glorious thought of the God-Man coming to earth, one marvels not at the angelic strains heard that first Christmas morn.

But how slowly has the world caught the noble strain, "Peace and good will to men!" That is at all times a subject for wonder and amazement. Nearly two thousand years have passed, and yet so little learned, so little progress in divine things, and the great ideal, followed if at all, afar off! Alas! if the day brings joy, it also produces sadness when we reflect on the glorious promise God sent by the angels, and the world's slow and feeble reception of the magnificent gift.

And yet, again, as the day dawns, we think that those things which now fill earth's cup of sin—sensual and violent passions, sordid aims and awful crimes and falsehoods—these would have been, but for the Nativity, —the usual, the unquestioned, the ordinary habits of our race. Because they are done in darkness, because we look upon them with sadness, and think of them with horror and indignation, they mark the growth of peaceful aims and higher aspirations, of holy thoughts and noble deeds, which men possess solely because Christ has taught them "the better way." Because of the glorious tidings of Christmas morn, men can no longer look upon sin unmoved, and pity and charity are to be found, where least expected, in hearts bruised and stained, perhaps, indeed, more than half dead—yet striving to catch the tender and forgiving spirit of the Master, whose life and light illume the world.

And so it is good for men to keep the Christmas feast that they may become kinder, nobler, better—by dwelling on the gift of God to a sinful world. Helpful and blessed is it amid earth's toils and cares to have one day at least when all shall practise the Divine lessons of charity, peace and good will to men.

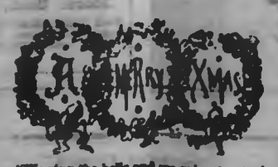
It is good to observe the festival both in its religious and social aspects. Of course there are many to whom the day will be a mere holiday of good will, a time appropriated to hospitality, to the bestowal of gifts to the rich and alms to the poor. Even thus let it be kept by all. But were this the end of the matter, it is easy to foretell that the good of Christmas day would soon pass away and its holy associations would end in selfishness or mere excess.

There is a higher aim, and there are nobler duties. The festival is also a holy day, having as its basis the stupendous fact of the incarnation. And the religious side has certainly gained and grown, because the social observance has been so universal, and the genial customs of the season commend themselves to the whole human race.

We sincerely and earnestly hope that the season may be to all the readers of the EXAMINER a truly happy one, productive of social and religious joys, and marked by the display of kindness to the poor, forgiveness of injuries, reconciliation of enemies, sympathy to the needy and distressed and the exercise of that divine charity in all things, without which the noblest deeds are as "the sounding brass or the tinkling cymbal."

Hon. Mr. Blake's arrival in Toronto was the signal for no flummery of reception. His relatives and personal friends met him at the union station and made him welcome. The Liberal leader has been much improved by his visit to the old country, and he is in apital trim for the contest that lies before him.

The election returns received by mail from Great Britain give the following results:—Liberals, 333; Tories, 249; Parnellites, 86. In England and Scotland the Tories were defeated by a majority of 84, but their alliance with the Home Rule party gives them the unworkable majority of 2, with two ridings yet to hear from.



"We ring the bells and we raise the strain,
We hang up garlands everywhere,
And bid the tapers twinkle fair,
And feast and frolic—and then we go Back to the same old lives again."

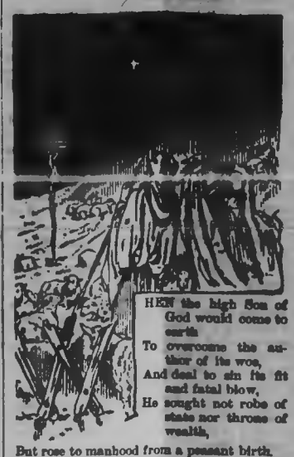
SUSAN COOLIDGE.

CHRISTMAS SONNET.



HEN the high Son of God would come to earth
To overcome the author of its woe,
And deal to sin its fit and fatal blow,
He sought not robe of state nor throne of wealth,

But rose to manhood from a peasant birth.
The babe is laid where cattle bleat and low;
Pleased it the gracious Lord of Heaven so
To charge the world with Heaven's holy mirth.
Whose ears first hear, whose eyes first gladly see
The tokens of a god within our race?
They are not monarchs, proud in heart and face,
But shepherds, listening to the harmony
Of angel voices. He must humble be Whom God will visit and his love embrace.

HOWARD CROSBY.

A FOOL'S CHRISTMAS

A TRUE STORY WITHOUT ARTIFICIAL LIGHTS.

Everybody said that the Carson children had done very well with themselves since their parents died. Indeed, there were those who considered it quite providential that they had been thrown on their own resources, since their father had been anything but a model of financial success and their mother a lily-like woman who had never thrived in the rude western garden into which she had been transplanted.

Both died in the same week, and the children at once set about the business of life with great good sense. They had not a dollar left when everything was settled. Even the old house was sold away from them. But they decided to hold together and get their share of the world's chances. There were five of them—George, Catherine, Julia, Annette and Davy.

Nobody ever mentioned Davy who did not speak his name softly and with an accent of gentle pity, for he was simple minded. He was a fool. Though he was large and well formed, at sixteen his face was as vacant as a baby's. But there was "no harm in him," the neighbors said. He was just a big infant, pleased with the trifles that delight the very least of children, and of as little use, as usefulness is reckoned in this blind old world, as the weeds that grow on the hillsides or the wild vines that choke the grain.

Yet he wasn't a disagreeable figure to look at. His appearance never excited repulsion, only pity. He was always well dressed, and the yellow curls that covered his big head like a fleece were always brushed and shining. Though his vacant brown eyes were sometimes misty with tears, they knew nothing of anger. He had a laugh for everybody and was invariably happy. He could not understand in the smallest degree the troubles which beset all humanity born to superior endowments. His world was so little and so comfortable, so simple and so beautiful, so entirely without distress or dread, that he was absolutely happy.

Mothers of bright boys just beginning to make places for themselves in the world sighed as they looked at Davy Carson and recalled his image when he was a chubby baby toddling by his mother's side.

They recalled him as he had often sat by her as she sewed, on the shady porch, putting the words of his small vocabulary together to express his pleasure. The dogs and the cats, the swallows that built their nests under the roof of the old porch, the squirrels that sometimes flashed through the yard, the butterflies and even the bees knew Davy. He who could talk only haltingly to men and women knew the language the voiceless creatures understand. Many the days he passed in their company, laughing and happy.

And so he grewup—grew in body, though scarcely at all in mind. It was pitiful to see him, almost a man in stature, holding his hands below some foolish toy, a baby's mug, or a glass bird, when another examined it, childishly eager to protect it from possible carelessness.

In but two things did he advance—kindness and love. Though his intellect stood still his spiritual senses seemed somehow to grow. Instinctively he understood that all living things were entitled to kindness, and in his poor, simple fashion he was forever trying to help the helpless. His mind was not clouded there. Higher than the intellect sits the soul. Through the strange veil that shrouded his mind the simple boy's soul looked out clear and beautiful. Literally and absolutely did he fulfill the golden rule—he who could not understand a law, who knew not a line of injunction, who had no idea of reward or punishment, of heaven or hell, of God or demon. Yet he did all that the wisest of us are commanded to do.

And so he grew up—big, simple, kind and loving.

When his father and mother died—both were carried to the cemetery on the same day—Davy was dazed by the strangeness of it all; but he could not understand that anything in the nature of a calamity had occurred. He tiptoed over the room and spoke in whispers, not because he was awed by the presence of death, but for fear a noise would disturb their sleep.

When he saw them no more he called them often, searched for them again and again, and waited for them always with a patience that was more than mortal, and a longing that made his childish face at times look old beyond its years.

There were days when he thought he must surely [illegible] that lingered [illegible] over which the long dark wagon had driven when it carried them away asleep—not there hopeful and happy, eager to be the first to greet them.

One day Reverend Winthrop walked by and was touched by the longing in the boy's face. The hunger of the heart had temporarily extinguished the look of vacancy in his eyes, and they burned with a pathos that was indescribable. He sat rocking a worn-out doll in his strong arms, alternately kissing and holding it up that it might see those he waited for while they were still far off.

"What are you doing, Davy?" said the minister, kindly.

"Waitin' for mother'n father," answered the big child, his face breaking into a laugh at the mention of their names.

Mr. Winthrop had a kind heart, but was sometimes clumsy in his methods of imparting instruction. He revered the truth, and thought he ought to bring it within the comprehension of the child's feeble mind; and so, with the best intentions in the world, he began by trying to rob him of his sweet hope.

"They will never come, Davy; never, never in this world again."

"Eh?" said the boy, and the momentary look of hope gave way to one of bewilder-

The minister continued: "They will never come, Davy. Not to-day, nor to-morrow, nor next day, nor next. Never! never! They cannot come. They are dead."

"Dead! dead?" echoed the child, looking into distance. "Dead like the birds that can't fly or sing; like the dog that kept so still and was put into the ground; like the squir'l that was killed on the old walnut tree? No, they couldn't die. My mother couldn't die. My father couldn't die."

He said this with such calm assurance, such unruffled hope, that the minister stood abashed and rebuked. Here was the perfect faith he had vainly tried to instil into greater minds; the sum of all his teaching. The soul he had tried to enlighten was on higher ground than he. It knew no doubt.

He repeated over and over the boy's words, "They couldn't die," as he walked away, seeing clearer than ever what is meant by the scriptural assertion that out of the mouths of babes cometh wisdom.

Yes, the "Carson children"—as the neighbors called them, though they were all grown up—had done well with themselves since their parents died. The four who constituted the working force developed a genius for the science of "getting along." They were as ambitious, practical and worldly as their father had been dreamy and unworldly. They reached out after the successes of life with hungry hands. The prizes he had passed by with indifference they strove for and gained.

They held together, and in a year or two bought back the old home and brought it out of dilapidation into smiling companionship with its modern neighbors. They liked to advance themselves in that never-to-be defined circle which calls itself society.

"What are you doing, Davy?"

George decided that money was the best thing attainable, and set about getting rich. Catherine managed the housekeeping; Julia made music her profession, and Annette, the youngest and loveliest of the sisters, married and went away.

For awhile Davy was not neglected. His brothers and sisters, remembering their mother's tireless tenderness and their father's unvarying patience towards his helplessness, did their best to make him happy. He was their one great charge, a holy one had they only known it. His weakness and trustfulness were continual monitors to their hearts.

But the days went on and their cares increased and their interests widened. Each had aspirations outside the circle of home. Contact with the world, successful contact, began to do its work. It was teaching them to value the tinsel gilding of life higher than the pure gold. It was teaching them a false standard of worth. It was inoculating them with the insidious sin of selfishness, and at last it taught them to be ashamed of Davy. Being ashamed of him they tried to keep him hidden, and assumed to have forgotten his existence. They were never unkind to him; but by and by there seemed to be no place for him.

He didn't notice the change. In his simple soul there was neither suspicion nor discontent. He rocked his dolls, talked to the birds and dogs, still watched at the gate at times for his mother and father, and still loved all the world.

They could never afterward tell who suggested it. Perhaps it was Catherine, who had grown less kind of late, or perhaps it was George, whose pursuit of money grew more engrossing every day; or it might have been Julia, who was continually sought after by what they were pleased to call "society."

They had all thought of it, but just who had dared to first utter it they could never afterward quite determine. After it had been spoken, however, it was easy enough to give it shape and development. It is the first expression of evil that is difficult. After that the way is smooth. At last it was talked quite plainly. Davy was in the way. He was a discredit to them and an obstacle to their advancement. They were ashamed of him.

"Something ought to be done with him." That was the verdict. They talked it over until they really felt like martyrs, and actually persuaded themselves, as people often will when they are about to do something very mean, that they are doing it for the victim's good.

Catherine urged that Davy wandered away so much that she was always uneasy about him, and she was too busy to be continually hunting him up. Besides, she thought he was growing more peculiar and ought not to have so much freedom. She couldn't answer, for what he might do.

George was absorbed in the great business of getting rich and did not dissent. Julia, too, seemed to have given up all weakness in the shape of love for Davy, and agreed with the others that he "ought to be put somewhere."

At last it was decided to send him to the poorhouse.

It was not that they grudged him the little it cost to supply his necessities; they wanted him out of the way. Neither did they want not as a person of infirm mind—not demented enough to be lodged in a hospital for the insane, but too uncertain to have his liberty.

A FOOL'S CHRISTMAS.

The way was perfectly easy. The law was on their side, though humanity was not. They even planned themselves upon having done more than their duty by him. They were to pay his board and buy his clothes. The idea was that they wanted him "looked after." This was the language in which they clothed the very meanest act of their lives. They measured out justice at a valuation of dollars and cents, and took no account of most precious things. They were about to hurt the helpless, forgetting it is written that the strong shall share their strength with the weak.

The evening before Davy was to leave an ominous silence fell on the household. A fire burned in the grate of the pleasant little sitting room; the lamp light was brighter than ever, but the good cheer that comes from well-doing was absent. Something invisible but dreadful was there, and all felt its presence but Davy. The unkind deed planned for the morrow had already taken evil shape at their hearth, intangible, but real. The knowledge of the invisible spectre, whose name was Injustice, made them strangely silent—all but Davy. He was exacting unlimited amusement from a toy fox that barked weakly when it was squeezed. At the feebles sound that came from the mouth of the distinctive Reynard he would break into peals of laughter. Curiously enough, the more he laughed the graver grew the three other faces. His joyousness rebuked them. His innocent happiness embarrassed them. His perfect trust put them to shame.

Outside the wind was making wild music. Suddenly it blew open the gate, which swung shut again with a clatter of its iron latch.

"It's mother! It's mother!" shouted Davy, springing to the door and opening it; but only the raw December night wind rushed in. At least that seemed to be all, but it brought with it a chill. The word "mother," as Davy spoke it, had rent her grave and brought her there—an actual presence. All felt her calm eyes look into their guilty hearts with sorrowful surprise and saw her wrap her arms lovingly and protectingly around Davy, as they had seen her do in life a thousand times. They did not see this with their natural eyes, but their slumbering consciences aroused by her name took this shape.

Davy shut the doors and sat down with a look of disappointment in his face.

"She didn't come," he said, "but I thought all day she would."

He sat silent for a minute and then said to Catherine:

"If mother comes to-night you'll wake me, Katy, won't you? She'll be so glad to see me," and at the very thought he was all sunshine again.

This innocent faith in his own importance touched them. There was not one of the three at that moment who would not gladly have undone everything and declared that Davy should stay there forever; but no one put the wish into words. It is as difficult to give expression to good at first as to evil. That curious shame which sometimes seals the lips when the noblest feelings demand utterance held them silent. And so the golden moment which might have been glorified by a deed of imperishable beauty rolled by, and an act of shameful selfishness was recorded in its stead.

Some of the gloom that shadowed the place settled upon Davy at last, and he laid his head upon Julia's lap and fell asleep.

It was ten o'clock the next morning when John Keller, who drove the wagon from the poor farm to the town every day halted before the Carson cottage.

The December sunshine was glorious, the air fresh and bracing and the sparrows in the leafless vines were holding a lively musicale.

Davy was never so jubilant. He was full of health, easily pleased, and was about to have a ride. At first he thought he would take the cat with him. He had had her in his arms all morning and hated to let her go. Finally he changed his mind and took his doll, which, by some—to him—unaccountable agency, had been freshly and gaily dressed, and was standing in the front window as though ready for ceremonious events. Her modish attire was a pitiful burlesque upon her destination; but, happily, she and her owner were both unconscious of that. Dolls have their romances as well as people. The irony of fate does not exclude them from its operations. Surely no one could have dreamed that such a beautiful belle of dolldom was destined to display her charms in an almshouse.

As soon as Davy saw her he dropped the cat and seized her in his arms, declaring that she was the prettiest doll in the world and should go for a ride. With the barking fox in his pocket and the beautiful belle in his arms he climbed into the wagon and sat down beside John Keller, as innocent and happy a child as ever found pleasure in childish things.

"Good-by, Katy; I'll be back by dinner time," he called out, cheerily.

"Good-by, Katy."

Catherine did not answer. She stood leaning on the gate, with dry eyes and a horrible heaviness in her heart. She could not have spoken if the penalty for not speaking had been death. The others had gone away like cowards, leaving her to go through the ugly work alone, as they had always done when disagreeable things were to be met. She was silent, but she suffered. She realized that she had helped to do a hateful thing, but she was sullen over it and would say nothing.

John Keller's face grew very white where the stubble of his beard did not shade it, and his big hands fumbled nervously with his coat. He ended the scene by slapping the lines on the horse's back, and away they went. Davy turned around, and with a grin that covered his entire face called out, "Good-by!" louder than ever, and holding the doll up helped her bow an ungraceful adieu.

Catherine watched them till they turned the corner and the fluttering ribbons of the doll's blue dress were lost in the distance.

It was most pathetic to hear John Keller tell of that ride afterward:

"I never saw any human bein' as happy as that boy. Every squir'l that crossed the road pleased him. Every bird that flew over our heads delighted him. He made that foolish little fox in his pocket bark a hundred times, a reckon, and he said he never had such a nice ride before. 'Pon my word, I couldn't keep the tears out o' me eyes to see him so happy and know where he was goin' to.

"I don't see how them 'Carson children' could send him away; I really don't. If he had been mean or stubborn or ugly in any way I could understand it; but Davy—why, Davy was as sweet-tempered and kind a critter as ever was born. Wouldn't harm a fly. Didn't know anything but good; didn't seem to have ever heard there was any bad in the world."

It was some time after they reached their destination that John Keller began to have trouble. Davy forget all about going home till the sun went down. He had been interested in the new sights and new people, had eaten his dinner with the sharp appetite of youth and had enjoyed the day; but now that he recognized the signs of approaching night he looked at his new friends with genuine alarm in his big eyes, and said, entreatingly, "I want to go home."

"Are they kind to you at home, Davy?" asked Keller.

"Ya-as," he answered, hardly understanding.

"Do they never scold you?"

"Na-ugh."

"Do you love them, Davy?—love George and Katy and Julia?"

"Y-e-es—love them all—and the cat—and the fox—and—Lizzie Ann" (the doll).

"But Lizzie Ann and the fox are here with you, and you ought to be contented. Come, my boy, make up your mind to stay here awhile and visit us," said the kind Keller.

"I want to go home; I want to go home," wailed Davy.

"He bent and kissed the shiny face of Davy's doll."

All attempts to please or comfort him were useless. He had never been away from his home a night in his life, and to be out of his familiar little world when the darkness fell was a calamity. The matron's heart was touched, and she did her best to pacify him, but in vain. The paupers, old and young, foolish and sensible, daft and sane, gathered about him and tried in their poor way to win him from his misery.

It was the same the next day and the next and all other days. He did not walk about, he did not talk, he did not look at anything, and he scarcely ate a mouthful. His mind was constantly filled with the image of the home from which he had been so cruelly lured. His happy young face had grown old and sorrowful. Even Lizzie Ann and the fox failed to comfort him. They stood on a shelf in the big sitting room mute witnesses of his agony. To all questions and speeches he had but one answer: "I want to go home."

Once when John Keller undertook to point out the beauties of the place to him and entreated him to dry his tears and learn to like it he looked up with a heartbroken expression and said, "Mother might come—me not there."

At the end of a fortnight the wagon of the almshouse stopped in front of the Carson cottage again, and John Keller went in. He told the story of Davy's homesickness in few but strong words:

"He doesn't eat and he doesn't sleep. He grieves all the time. He's never been without a stream o' tears running over his cheeks since he's been there. He's so weak from the grievin' that he can't sit up hardly half the time. I believe his heart will break."

The "Carson children" listened in silence, with white faces and averted eyes. They were remorseful, but had not the courage to say so even to each other. It is often so with people who have not cultivated their finest natures. Their hearts seem harder than they are because their tongues are untrained to the expression of the gentler emotions. They are ashamed of tenderness because they have no familiarity with the sweet speech of life.

So nobody answered.

Mistaking the silence for hardness, Keller continued: "The matron told me to tell you about it. Maybe if you knew how Davy took on you wouldn't want him to stay there: but if he is to stay we'll all do our best to comfort him, though nothin' gives him any heart. He never says anything but, 'I want to go home.' It rings in my ears so I can't hear what folks is sayin' to me half the time."

After some talk among themselves George said: "Well, tell Davy he can come home on Christmas and eat his Christmas dinner. You'll be coming into town; you can fetch him, can't you?"

The kind-hearted Keller nodded, feeling as grateful as if the favor were to himself. His honest soul had been so moved by Davy's sufferings that anything looking toward a ray of comfort for the boy was precious to him.

He went back to the almshouse and undertook the difficult task of reconciling Davy to be patient until Christmas. It was seven days ahead, and these he explained to the feeble mind of the big, homesick child by stringing seven beans on a stout thread, one to be taken off each day until Christmas was reached. Davy understood after much labored explanation that the beans represented days, and when the last one had been taken off he could go home.

What We Would Like to Know.

If the postoffice clerks won't be glad when Christmas is over.

How many of last year's Xmas cards were sent this year.

If everybody will see that his poor neighbor has Christmas cheer to-morrow.

If Sir John will be sea-sick to-morrow.

If Sir Hector's Christmas turkey won't make him see postal, customs and inland revenue nightmares.

How in the world the preachers will find anything new to say to-morrow.

And if there won't be thousands skating on the little lake to-morrow.

What They are Saying.

A tobacco taxing mill is not much of a reward after 30 years hard work for the party. —E. Phalen.

Couldn't say and don't care; but I know I've made the Protestant horse haul the postoffice on to my site.—C. W. Sawers.

Don't crow too quick. We took the postoffice from you once and will do it again. We haven't played our last card.—The South Ward section.

We are all out for re-election and the people will send us back.—The old Council.

There will be one vacant chair.—Mayor Cox.

O, I'll look after that.—James Stevenson.

And we're after some of the other seats.—The "dark horse" candidates.

We'll make a change in No. 4 Ward.—The triple alliance.

Yes, a change in the majorities—a little larger.—The sitting members.

A merry Christmas to you all, anyway.—The EXAMINER.

What We May Expect.

A Merry Christmas.

Santa Claus to have to work after hours to-night.

Little stockings to bulge to-night, and little eyes to-morrow morning.

The gastronomic form of gratitude to prevail to-morrow.

The doctors to lay in a big stock of "blue pill" for Saturday.

The "Factory Girl" at the Opera House to-night.

Harry Lindley, "all sweetness and light," to smile like a Saddle Rock oyster.

What handsome bachelor will be the ladies' candidate in the coming town elections.

A tumble in the small-boy revolver stock market.

Decreasing west and northwest winds, mostly fair, colder weather, with a few snow flurries.

Shooting Match.

A shooting match will be held at the quarry on Christmas day. Turkeys and geese will be offered as prizes.

Police Court.

David Evans, a boy of about 14 years of age, was brought before Magistrate Dumble this morning, charged with pointing a pistol at Ernest Hutchison. Evans' father was also charged with assaulting Hutchinson. Young Evans pleaded not guilty. Ernest Hutchison was sworn and testified that on Tuesday last, at Break-neck hill on Dublin street, he found young Evans in possession of his sleigh, which had been taken from off the verandah of Hutchison's house. He took the sleigh away from Evans. Evans put his hand in his pocket, and Hutchison, thinking he was going to draw a revolver, which he heard Evans carried, threw him down to prevent him from doing so, but soon let him up. Evans went down the track about sixty feet, where he drew a breech-loading pistol and pointed it at Hutchison, saying he would put a bullet through him, at the same time calling him abusive names. Hutchison run after him, when Evans started for home, going through Wainwright's. Hutchison followed Evans home to tell his father. Evans told his father that Hutchison had been kicking him. Hutchison explained to Mr. Evans, telling him the names he had been called, and was assaulted by Mr. Evans. Harry Connors, who was at the hill, gave evidence confirming that of Hutchison. Young Evans, examined by the Magistrate, denied having had such a pistol as Hutchison described, but admitted he had an old one. After a while he admitted that he and young Wainwright had a breech-loading pistol, but he had given it to young Wainright that morning. During the examination he contradicted himself several times. The magistrate remarked that there was a severe punishment for boys who carried revolvers, and who would not scruple to lie as he had. He hardly knew how to deal with him. If he had been a man he would have fined him $50. He gave him a severe lecture, warning him not to do it again under penalty of severe punishment, and dismissed him. Mr. Evans admitted that he was angry and perhaps had acted hastily and was dismissed on apologizing to Hutchison.

Henry Lynch and R. N. Roddy were charged with having, on Tuesday evening, committed a breach of the peace. Lynch appeared and pleaded that he was assaulted. He admitted that he had been drinking and had engaged in a row. Constable Pidgeon testified that he heard a noise at Roddy's Hotel and on going there found Lynch striking at Roddy, who was on the floor under him. The magistrate imposed on Lynch a fine of $5 or ten days. A warrant was issued for the arrest of Mr. Roddy.

"At Home."

The Ladies' Aid Society of the George Street Methodist Church intend holding another of their delightful "At Homes" on New Year's night in the Lecture room of the church. A splendid programme is being provided. Those who enjoyed the last entertainment of the above kind, given by the ladies, know what a great treat is in store for them and others who may attend.

Personal.

Messrs. J. B. Ferris, M.P.P., Campbellford, and E. S. Vindin, Port Hope, are in town to-day.

The Harry Lindley Company is registered at the Grand Central. The company numbers thirteen. "When thirteen sits at table, one of them's apt to die"—his moustache.

Are We Interested?

It might be well for those in this section, who are interested in anyway, to remember that all joining now before the 28th of this month will share in this year's profits. The next division of profits will be made in January, 1888, say in about two years, in the British Empire Mutual Life Insurance Company, established in 1847, which divides its profits every three years. It is a purely mutual company; no stockholders to pay 10 to 15 per cent. to. It divides its profits entirely among its policy-holders. Its policies are all unconditional. It is a strong, solvent, reliable company, with between five and six millions of dollars of accumulated assets to guarantee its contracts, and which pays a thousand dollars for a thousand dollar policy without any "shirking." It has never disputed a claim. This company gives you real insurance; not a temporary makeshift, but absolute, permanent protection, whether the insured dies early or late, and at as low a rate as any assessment concern during the early years, and vastly lower than such associations after a few years. We occasionally meet some people who have an objection to mutual life companies because of the many failures of the "pass around the hat" affairs which appropriate the name "Mutual." It is asserted by insurance authorities that no purely mutual life company has ever failed. However, every regular life company, whether mutual or stock, has to give just the same security to the Government. The oldest, largest and most successful life companies in the world are mutual. Who can deny it? As an evidence of what the late Hon. George Brown thought of the mutual life companies, he had all his life assurance, amounting to $60,000, in mutual companies. Send in your applications now. Please remember, "don't all come at once." E. E. HENDERSON, General Agent British Empire Mutual Life Insurance Company, Peterborough.

Christmas Cantata.

The Christmas Cantata in the Murray Street Baptist Church, yesterday evening, was an appropriate season of joy and amusement to the little folk, and a surprise and treat to the older people who attended. The cantata consisted of music, recitations and tableau scenes. It was composed by Eden Rexford and Prof. Martin, of town, and is a meritorious production. The musical part was well rendered by a choir of about thirty boys from the Barnardo Home, and a choir of young ladies who belong to the Sunday school, under the efficient leadership of Mr. E. Duff. The literary and tableau part of the entertainment was skilfully managed by Mr. J. P. Eastwood, who was well supported by a number of the willing workers of the church. The platform of the church was screened off to give the necessary effect to the tableaux. The Cantata opened with a chorus, "Again the Christmas Time is Here," sung in unison by the boys of the Barnardo Home with good effect. Their voices blended nicely, while their peculiar accent added to the charm. In the background stood a large number of the Sunday school children, waving banners of welcome. "Let every Heart a Tribute Bring" was given in excellent style by a full chorus of both choirs. A very pretty tableau, "The Star in the East," followed. It was produced on canvas by illumination from behind, and was accompanied by the words, "Peace, Good Will." The recitations of "The Unfortunate Doll" and "Wouldn't give a cent for Dolls," by little Clara Rossiter and Lawrence Lacey, were very good and merited the applause they received. These were followed by recitations, tableaux and choruses in abundance. The tableau of "Two Christmas Dreamers," with their two enormous stockings, and merry old Santa, tickled the juveniles hugely, as did also the recitation "The Two Canibals." "Farewell to the Old Year," by invisible voices in the distance, was very nice. "Christmas Bells" was a song and chorus, with a pretty scene of a huge bell swung by twenty-four children. The welcome to the New Year, with accompanying tableau showing the old and new years, attended by the seasons, was perhaps the most praiseworthy of the evening. The old year was represented by a decrepid old man, and the new year by a little girl as an angel, wings and all, while the seasons were represented by four pretty girls fitly decorated with the season's emblems. "Ugly Dreams, or too much Plum Pudding and Pie," was a descriptive recitation illustrated by three scenes, and carried the house by storm. "A Cross and Crown" elicited applause, as did also "The Happy Family." The Cantata closed with a grand finale, a full chorus to the waving of flaglets, and the National Anthem. It will be long and favorably remembered by the little ones of the Sunday School.

Tabernacle Sermons.

Discourse by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage.

NOW OR NEVER.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 6.—Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., arrived in this city yesterday afternoon. The news that the Brooklyn preacher would deliver a sermon in the First Congregational Church, drew a crowd numbering several thousands. Many were turned away unable to find seats. Dr. Talmage read and expounded the parable of the "Prodigal Son," and then announced the subject of his discourse, "Crisis in Life," and the text, II. Samuel, xviii., 32. "Is the young man, Absalom, safe?" Dr. Talmadge said:

Two great characteristics of Absalom were worldly ambition and splendid hair. By the one he was debased, by the other hung. He was a bad boy and broke his father's heart. He wanted to get his father's throne before the demise of the father. He wanted to get it immediately. He got an army. He started out in a great insurrection. David, the father, sits at the palace waiting for the news of the battle to come, not so anxious about whether Absalom's hosts won the day or whether his own hosts won the day, as he is anxious about the safety of his boy, the father in him mightier than the King.

While he sits there watching and waiting for the coming of a messenger from the battle field, he sees the dust rising in the highway, and long before the messenger comes up, bringing the swift dispatch, David cries out to him: "Is Absalom alive? Is Absalom dead? Is the boy wounded? Tell me quickly is the young man Absalom safe?" But as the messenger had so very decisive intelligence to give, he stood aside. There David sat, waiting for another messenger, and after awhile he saw the dust rising on the highway, and long before the messenger had come up, David shouted to him again—shouts to this one as he had to the other: "Have you heard anything from my boy? Is he wounded? Is he alive? Is he dead? Is the young man Absalom safe?

Alas, he was not safe. Absalom, riding on a mule—the meanest animal in all the world on which to ride, the hardest as the bit and the stiffest at the neck—Absalom, riding on a mule, has gone under a tree branch and his hair had caught on the tree branch; and the mule, true to its characteristics, had gone on, he not able to stop it, and Absalom was suspended, and so he died. With an awful negative the words of my text were answered: Is the young man Absalom safe?" No, he was not safe—destroyed for this life, destroyed for the life to come.

I want to utter a few words this morning in regard to the safety of young men, indeed of all men. While men may get along tolerably well without the religion of Christ in some circumstances of life, there are three or four turning points where a man must have God or perish; or, if he does not come to such a crisis as that, to such an extreme as that, he must have God or make a mistake that will last forever. I propose this morning to speak to you of three or four of these turning points in life.

THE FIRST TURNING POINT

is the choice of an occupation or profession. It is a very serious time when a young man comes from the school or the college, and has completed his education, or has received all the education from the schools he will receive, says: But what shall I be? For what occupation, for what profession, am I prepared? Mechanism will spread before him a hundred different occupations. Professional life will spread before him seven or eight callings. Indeed, perhaps in all there may be five hundred different callings and occupations. For only one of those five hundred is he fitted and prepared. If he does not have divine direction, and chances be one he will get in the wrong business. In other words, the most tremendous crisis perhaps in a man's life, or one of the most tremendous, is the time when he chooses his occupation or profession, and he needs God to tell him how to choose.

I knew a man who started in commercial life with bright prospects. He crossed over from commercial into the medical profession. He went from the general medical profession into specific surgery. He went from the surgery into the ministry. Then he passed from the ministry into surgery, and so his life has been a complete vacillation. How much better it would have been if that man could have got the right profession or occupation at the start? He was particulary qualified for surgery, and I believe if he had gone before God and asked for His direction he would have received it, and instead of going from one occupation to another, making his life a mistake, he would have gone on to great usefulness and success.

You ask your father what you had better do. He will give one kind of advice, he will advise you one style of occupation or profession. Your mother will give you other advice, your sister other advice, while you will be in doubt as to whether you have physicial endurance for this, mental acumen for that, or tact for some other business. At such a time one needs to go to God. God built your body and he knows what is your physical endurance. God constructed your mind, and He knows for what occupation you have particular adaptation. Go to Him and ask the question, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?"

I meet many young men in this house this morning who have not, perhaps, thoroughly decided upon the work or occupation for which the Lord has fitted them. Before you leave this house to-day ask God's direction, that you may make no mistake. Blunder here and you blunder forever. You know a great many men who have been ruined for two worlds because they got in the wrong business.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT PASS

in one's life, a turning point in one's history, is the time when he establishes his home. When a man builds his home he builds for eternity. Is it not amazing that affiancing in life is so often a matter of merriment and of joke, when it decides so much for this world and the world to come? I do not put the case too strongly when I say that when a man marries he marries for heaven or hell! Oh, build not your home on earth upon the sparkle of a bright eye or the color of a fair cheek. The time will come in your history when you will want in your home, not a pet or a toy, but a heroine, and you will find that life is not a gay romance, but a tremendous reality; and coming home from your store, or office, or shop, or factory, or studio, most of all you will need someone in your home with a face cheerful but sympathetic.

There is an aged man who looks back to a crisis in life when his fortune went away and reason almost left the throne. He knew not what to do. He remembers a particular evening when he came home from the store. He hardly dared break the news to his wife. He could not bear to tell he had suspended in business, that he had stopped payment, that his fortune had gone. He went into the house, he closed the door upon the world, and in domestic peace found a foretaste of that heaven where panics never come. Ah! if it had not been for that help that you had, what would have been the result when you told her of your financial embarrassment and misfortune? She was cheerful, she was sympathetic, she was helpful, she helped you all through those dark days of trial, and after the piano went she could sing without the accompaniment just as well as she ever sang with the accompaniment. There have been Christian women who have so had their domestic troubles sanctified that they could get more music out of a Wheeler & Wilson sewing machine than ever in the days of their prosperity they got out of a Chickering Grand or a Steinway.

A Christian minister in England called upon a home of great destitution. There were the husband, the wife, and there were the children. No comfort in the household. Everything indicative of want and struggle. The minister of the Gospel said to this young man: "Your mistake was in marrying so early. Do you not think that was the mistake of your life?" The man had been told that that had been the mistake of his life before. The minister said: "It would have been a great deal better for you to have gone on and got something of a property before you entered into the marriage state. Don't you think it would have been better?" And the young man looked around, and his eyes filled with tears, and he looked to his poorly clad wife and said: "No sir; she's been the same to me all through!"

Ah, there are some of you who would never have known what your homes were worth if trouble had not come. Perhaps your companion in life may have been too fond of the world and its gayeties, but one touch of misfortune turned her into a Miriam shouting the triumph on the banks of the Red Sea. If you have spoken of frivolity and fondness of display as the chief characteristic of woman, you may have to correct your mistake in some bitter pain of life, when, all other resources having failed, you are upheld by a wife's hand, suddenly armed of the Lord God Almighty for that emergency. Oh, in this tremendous pass of our earthly existence cry unto God and ask His direction! Make a mistake here and you make it forever. Walter Scott wrote something, half of which I do not like, for it is sarcastic; but the other half I do like for it is so true:

"Oh, woman, in our hours of ease
Uncertain, coy and hard to please;
When pain and anguish wring the brow
A ministering angel thou."

Blessed that home in which the newly-married couple dedicate their souls to Christ. Blessed the family Bible in which their names have just been written. Blessed the hour of morning and evening prayer. Blessed the angels of God who join wing tip to wing tip over that home, making a canopy of light and love and blessedness. It may be only yesterday that they clasped hands forever. The orange blossom may fall, and the fragrance may die on the air, but they who marry in Christ shall walk together on that day when the Church, which is the bride's wife, shall take the hand of the Lord and King amid the swinging of the golden censers.

THE FIRST GREAT SUCCESS.

Again, I remark: It is a tremendous pass in life when a man comes to his first great success. You get in the cars some evening. Everybody that looks at you knows there has something good happened. You sit down in the car, your face illuminated, and a lady comes in. There is no place for her to sit, and you get up in great cheer and insist on her taking your place, and with great courtesy she says, "Thank you," and sits down. You say nothing to anybody, but it is evident from your manner and appearance that great good fortune has happened unto you. Now, that is a crisis in your life. At such a time the question will arise: "In what enterprise shall I invest? What shall be the house I will live in? What shall be the library? What shall be my wardrobe? What shall I do with my money?"

At that point hundreds of men make a fatal mistake. Some go into dissipation. Some take on great arrogance—try to make everybody feel how small they are—whole caravans of camels going through the needle's eye of their meanness. They walk through the street with an air, as much as to say: "Get out of the way; here comes three hundred thousand dollars!" That is the crisis in life where so many fall, because they have no God to direct them.

There are men who, before their success, are kind and amiable and genial and useful, who after their success are arrogant and unbearable and unchristian. Here is a man who was once very useful in society, but great success comes, and he gets in his equipage and drives on; he lashes the fiery steeds; he goes faster and faster, eight miles the hour, twenty miles the hour, one hundred miles the hour, faster and faster, until in his last moments he rouses up to find that he is drawn by the fiery hoofs of eternal disaster as they come rocketing down on the pavement of hell. O, young man or man in mid life, you want God in your great success, your first great success.

THE FIRST SORROW.

Another tremendous pass in our life is when we get our first sorrow. It would be foolish for me to talk to the young men of this day as though their life was going to be smooth all the way. You might as well start a sea captain in a vessel without a carpenter, and without any tools, and without any cordage. That would do very well while the sea was smooth, but when the ship gets caught in the teeth of a northeaster, and the waves dash clear over the hurricane deck, then the captain cries out, "Where's the carpenter? Where are the tools? Where are the ropes?" The young men of this day would understand that I misrepresent the matter if I told them that their life was to be smooth. They know better. They know from what they see of the life of others that life always cannot be smooth. Many men came home from the late war without a scratch or a bruise, but in the conflict of life it not so; we all get wounded—wounded in the head, in the hands, in the feet, in the heart. Life is a conflict. The Bible over and over again states that. Paul states it, and he writes himself as in a war with this world, a war with the flesh, and a war with devil, and war all the way through. Now, how are you going to meet the first trouble? That is the question. Show me how you are to meet your first trouble and I will show you how to meet all the other troubles. It is the first bow that sends a man to drinking to drown his troubles, that knocks the fire out of him so he spends the rest of his life cowed down.

Who is that weigher in that large commercial establishment? He once owned the store. Who is that underling in a large manufacturing establishment, getting one or two thousand a year? He once owned the factory, but misfortune came; the first blow brought him to the dust, and he never had the courage to rise. O, how important is the manner in which we receive the first sorrow.

Perhaps the first trouble is bereavement. I suppose you know—I suppose you have recognized the fact, that so often the first-born is taken. I have seven brothers and sisters. Each one lost the first-born, and I suppose that in hundreds of cases in this house it was the first-born that was taken. Some people give what is to me a very absurd reason for that. They say it is because the child is loved too much. I do not think that is possible. I do not believe that any father or mother loved a child too much. You cannot love your child too much. God did not take your child because you loved it too much. I think this is the reason why God so often takes the first-born: It is to transfer your affections to heaven, and make that place the more grand and blessed, so that you keep thinking of that place and so be elevated and lifted on toward it. I think that this is the reason. Perhaps I am wrong. I am sure the other reason is wrong that so many people give when they say it is because you love your child so much.

Now, suppose the first trial comes and you have no God. What then? Have you ever tried to see one go through bereavement without any God? I have witnessed that sad spectacle. But we want grace, we want Divine grace, when bereavement comes into the house which ever was full of sunny looks and greetings at the door, and kisses flung by little hands from the window as you went down the front steps, and the doves in the nest cry because the hawk swoops, and the cheek pales, and the eyes close and the heart stops. Oh, to put away garments that never will be worn again, to gather up from the floor toys that never again will strew the carpet, and to go with a sense of suffocation through the desolated household that once rang with childish merriment! Oh, my God, who can stand that without Thy grace to help, without Thy grace to smooth, without Thy grace to comfort? Oh, you will want Christ in your first troubles, and so I beg of you this morning to take Him as yours.

You say you are strong and well. So am I. You say that life is buoyant and beautiful. So it is to me. But sickness will come to you and it will come to me. We shall be told we cannot go out; the door will be closed against the world; there will be two watches and some will order silence on the stairs, saying: "Hush, hush!" and in your dreams you will hear the dash of water, which you will take to be the beating of the wave of Jordan against your pillow, and you will hear a sound at the gate which you will take to be the pawing of the pale horse. Oh! then you and I will want a physician; we will want Christ to come in and put His arms around us and say: "Fear not; all is well, all is well."

THE LAST GREAT PASS.

But there is one more pass of great importance of which I must speak—one tremendous crisis when we will want God. I say that not more to you than I do to myself. We will want God in that crisis. And that pass is the last hour.

I suppose we all would like to expire at home. We want our friends in the room, some to recite the promise, some to sing, one to hold the hand. We want to look up in faces that have been familiar to us a good while, and we will have messages to give. If we are parents, we will want to tell our children how they ought to act when we are gone, what principles they ought to adopt, how near they ought to live to God.

And if we have aged parents living, we will want to tell our children how they ought to act toward the old people; how they ought to care for them when we are gone. I think when we leave this world we will all have a message to give to somebody. When that hour comes we will want Christ; we will want a Divine friend to stand by us and to say that all shall be well in the future. "When thou passest through the waters I will be with thee, and through the rivers they shall not overflow thee." But you know very well that if we go out of this world, my brother, without Christ, we take a leap into the dark.

Who would want to go out of the world like that when he can go in triumph indescribable? Like Paul says: "I have fought the good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will give me." Or that other battle shout: "O, death, where is thy sting? O, grave, where is thy victory? Thanks be unto God who giveth me the victory through my Lord Jesus Christ!"

Well, there are a good many men in this house who say: "What you have declared this morning if the truth, but I am so far gone in sin that there is no hope for me." Oh, my brothers! there you make a great mistake. I stand here this morning to declare there is hope for any man who wants to come to God.

"Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thought, and let him return unto the Lord, who will have mercy, and unto our God, who will abundantly pardon." Come this morning. "Oh," you say, "if you knew my history you wouldn't invite me." I do not care what your history is; come to God to-day. "Whosoever will." That word "whosoever" covers all cases of wanderings of iniquity. "Whosoever will, let him come."

"But," says some one in the house, "I have started in the line of iniquity, and I am going on.

I WILL RISK THE FUTURE.

I haven't much faith in Christianity. I am going to have an easy time in this world; get all out of it that I can; go into all kinds of sin, taking the risk for the future." Oh, will you not be diverted from that course? Will you not now realize the fact that you want God? Oh, how much you need Him. It may take a great struggle to bring you back, but come back you may and you will; this morning some of you will. May God by His Holy Spirit move upon your heart.

I have sometimes heard people say it is as easy for them to become Christians as to turn their hands. Oh, what a misrepresentation that is. It takes the blood. It is the mightiest struggle in all the world when a man who has been doing wrong tries to do right. It is a mightier struggle than I would ask any man to go into unless he lays hold of the strong arm of God, who will help him and who will deliver him.

Some years ago there was an excursion steamer some miles above Niagara Falls. There were many on the excursion, many passengers, and the boat floated down toward the rapids; but the captain expected to return in time to avoid all danger, and they were laughing on deck, when someone said to the captain, "Are you not going to far down?" He said, "No; I know what I am about." After a while he told the engineer to turn and go up stream; but lo! the captain found they were further down toward the rapids than he thought for. He cried to the engineer, "Put on more steam!" More steam was applied, but still the vessel made no headway up stream. The captain cried, "Put on more steam or we are lost." The engineer said: "We can't put on any more steam; if we do we'll blow the boat to atoms." Put on more steam!" cried the captain. More steam was applied, and the vessel floated up and out into safety, and some fainted, and all were thankful that God had rescued them from so great a peril. Oh, are there not some here to-day who are floating down towards the rapids? Ay, they are in the rapids going on toward the eternal plunge. Put back! In God's name, put back. You say it takes a greater struggle. Lay hold the oars with both hands, and pull, pull, if need be, until the blood starts. Pull for heaven. Now or never!

The Christmas Festival.

How it was Honored in Town.

The festival above all festivals in Christian lands, was duly celebrated by the people of Peterborough, each after his manner, yet generally with a full recognition of the glad-some spirit that should mark so all important an anniversary.

AT THE CHURCHES.

At the different churches there were good congregations to join in the thanksgiving services. At St. Paul's and St. John's there were special musical services, in addition to the special services and sermons. At St. Peter's Cathedral, mass was celebrated six times, on each occasion to large congregations. In the George Street Methodist Church, Rev. Mr. Munro of the Baptist Church preached the sermon. In St. Luke's Church, Asburnham, the rector conducted the services, and both this church and St. John's were beautiful with appropriate Christmas decorations.

AT THE RINK.

The sharp weather made magnificent ice, both on the skating pond and the curling rinks. In the forenoon the latter were kept warm with the whirr-barr of the stones, propelled by the parties to the international curling contest between rinks composed of representative old countrymen and Canucks. The result was that the colonists were beaten respectably, though the game was a lively and delightful one. The contest on the western side was pretty close, 21 to 20. It is a little remarkable that both of the old country rinks made the same score—21 each, exactly one for each end played. The total of the old country chalk-marks was therefore 42, while the Canucks, by the most complicated addition, could only tote 35—leaving them in the respectable minority of 7. Below are the rinks, skips and scores:—

OLD COUNTRY.	CANADIANS.
Rink No. 1.
D. W. Dumble	D. Bellegham
John McClelland	W. VanEvery
A. McNeil	T. Rutherford
M. Millar.....skip 21.	Adam Hall.....skip 20.
Rink No. 2.
J. Stanger	Robt. Hall
D. Cameron	Geo. Walker
P. Connal	C. Moulll
W. Ferguson..skip 21.	R. S. Davidson, skip 15.
42.	35.

This contest finished the morning programme, a few scattering skaters occupying the rink during the progress of the curling. In the afternoon, however, the skaters turned out in strong force, and the curling rinks were kept busy also. In the evening the programme was repeated, only with a much larger attendance, the music of the band far-

THE REAL CULPRIT.

Recently Sir Richard Cartwright delivered a splendid speech on public questions at Orillia. We have not before had an opportunity of reproducing any of it. His reference to the causes that led up to the late Northwest rebellion are so pertinent, and fix the guilt so unmistakably upon the party really guilty, that the portion of his speech bearing on the subject is submitted without apology. He said:

"And now we approach the last act in the drama—the execution of Louis Reil. My own opinion has been stated over and over again, and I am not disposed to go back upon it. I have said elsewhere, and I repeat it here to-day, that Louis Riel was very guilty, but also that Louis Riel was infinitely less criminal than the present Premier of Canada and the late Minister of the Department of the Interior. (Loud applause.) I say that of the two criminals Riel was far the less guilty. Recollect that Louis Riel owed us no allegiance. He had never sworn to discharge the duties of his office to the best of his ability. He had never—to do him justice—created any colonization companies to plunder the people. (Applause.) Riel was but the spark that fired the train which had been laid by the scandalous neglect and mal-administration of Sir John and his associates for seven long years. (Applause.) Had the Northwest been honestly and well-governed, a thousand Riels would never have persuaded the unfortunate half-breeds to take up arms. (Applause.) For them I have very considerable sympathy. I believe that they were very harshly, very iniquitously dealt with. I endorse for once every word that the Mail has uttered as to the callous and cruel neglect with which those claims of the half-breeds were treated. (Applause.) And I say this, and it is right that we people in Ontario should understand and act upon it, Whatever your opinion may be as to Louis Riel as regards those unfortunate followers of his, whose land was absolutely taken from them and sold from under their feet to strangers in a Colonization Company, without right of appeal—I say that if ever a revolt was provoked by insensate misconduct on the part of a government, that revolt, so far as Louis Riel's followers were concerned, was provoked by the conduct of the Government of Canada. It is absurd to set up Sir David Macpherson as a screen. He is out of the country, and I do not want to speak too hardly of him. But if there was one man on the face of the earth less fit to be Minister of the Interior than Sir John Macdonald that man was David Macpherson. I recollect being in Manitoba at the time when his appointment was gazetted, and I recollect hearing a prominent Conservative observe in reference to this appointment: "We had a minister of the Interior who knew nothing about it, but he knew that he knew nothing; now we have a Minister of the Interior who knows nothing, but if an archangel came down to teach him he would find it impossible to convince him of the fact." (Applause and laughter.) Why, it was asserted that on one occasion, when the leading representative in Parliament of the Province of Manitoba came to confer with the late Minister of the Interior about the claims and wrongs of these identical half-breeds, that after reading for twenty minutes a long and elaborate treatise of the grievances of the Metis, when he raised his eyes to see what impression he was making he discovered Mr. Macpherson fast asleep in his chair. (Applause and laughter.) But the truth was that Sir David Macpherson was a mere tool of Sir John. He was a puppet. He could only move, breathe, or act as Sir John directed. More than that, the worst follies that were committed in the administration of the North-West, were not Sir David Macpherson's but Sir John's own. They were done at any rate while he was the nominal head of the Department."

Return of the Liberal Leader.

Hon. Edward Blake arrived home to Toronto from England on Tuesday. His appearance indicated that he had derived great benefit from his long holiday. He returns home to find the Conservative party reaping the legitimate fruits of its persistent course of folly and misrule. He finds the country to a larger extent than ever before inspired with confidence in his great abilities and patriotic purposes. He finds a great majority of the people of Canada at last roused from their lethargy, and anxious to place the administration of the country's affairs in his hands. Much of his severe work of the last and preceding sessions has borne fruit in his absence. Time has amply vindicated his policy in all its essential features. The people of Canada congratulate him on his restored health, and look for his speedy success in the overthrow of the present corrupt administration, and the restoration of good government to the country.—Globe.

The Christmas Festival.

sioning an intensified attraction.

AT THE JAIL.

Even into its secluded precincts the festive spirit of the day found its way. It was meet that a change in the material menu should bring spiritual suggestiveness to the imprisoned malefactors on the anniversary of the birth of Him

"Who came to break oppression,
To set the prisoner free."

Governor Nesbitt and Turnkey Ray made ample provisions for giving their felonious family a substantial change from the everlasting skilly and taurine beef that comprise the rather constant bill of fare three hundred and sixty-four days in the year. The Christmas bill of fare for the county prisoners consisted of generous provisions in the way of goose and turkey, mince pie and plum pudding, and the fifteen unfortunates that exercised their unaccustomed molars on the viands highly appreciated the treat.

AT THE HOTELS.

The landlords of the various hotels did not forget the "stranger and pilgrim," the travelling public that keep on the go forever, [illegible] Star rules the hour. The well-filled boards smoked and groaned with generous purveying, and all the arrangements smacked largely of home comforts. The two leading hotels, the Oriental and Grand Central, made especial preparations, their dining halls being beautifully and seasonably decorated. Beautiful illuminated bills of fare were provided, so artistic and seasonable that they were generally kept by guests as souvenirs of Christmas time in Peterborough. The following was the

ON THE STREETS

there was during the forenoon the greatest quiet, but in the afternoon the livery stables were subjected to a general delivery and every available horse and equipage impressed into the pleasure seeking service. There was general sobriety, and any special alcoholic observances of the day was tempered with the hilarity of the season.

ON THE RAILWAYS

there was considerable incoming and out going travel on both roads—persons coming to town and going out to spend the day. One of the hotel registers bore the names of an English family arrived in town from home on Christmas day. The stokers and drivers though on duty, managed to give their toil a holiday trim. In recognition of the day their engines were decorated with evergreens, etc.

AT THE BARNARDO HOME.

Among the little inhabitants of Hazel Brae Christmas day was a high holiday. The little sleepers woke bright and early to find their warm woollen stockings stuffed with candies, Christmas cards, texts and all the little reminders that Santa Claus, whether in a domestic or corporate capacity, usually affects. At eleven all the children attended service at the George street Methodist church. At two o'clock the Christmas dinner was served. It consisted of steaming and juicy roasts, beef pies, plum pudding, etc., etc. It was a delightful experience to many whose only recollection of former Christmastides was of hunger, cold, squalor and suffering. In the afternoon all who chose had a few hours to themselves. These were spent in coasting, sleigh-riding, skating and other out-door sports, and walks in the country. The evening brought a sumptuous tea, with all the "delicacies of the season"—candies, cakes, nuts, oranges, etc., etc. Numerous jolly games were indulged, and a lad from Port Hope, who is employed in the Bank of Montreal there, a former member of the Home, gave exhibitions of acrobatic feats, reminescent of the days when he plied under a hard task-master, the trade of an acrobat on the streets of London. The day was splendidly enjoyed by the little folks at Hazel Brae.

It would have been useless and hopeless to try to tell him that his invitation home was limited to dinner. He could not have understood it. Besides, John Keller, the matron and all his sympathizing friends at the poorhouse naturally hoped that when he was once at home the difficulty of sending him away again would settle the question in his favor.

By evening he was so much imbued with hope that he sat in the big sitting room without tears in his eyes and rocked Lizzie Ann an hour or more. His face, which a fortnight ago had been round and rosy, was white and haggard; his eyes, which had danced with babyish pleasure the day he arrived, were now dim and hollow, and his once chubby hands were thin and nervous. He was like Davy's wan and weary ghost, and not like the real Davy at all.

Poor old imbecile Isaac, who had been one of the county's children for half a dozen years, noticed the change in the boy's demeanor. He looked at his white face and remembered that it had been round and glowing a short time before and understood that he suffered. He was too old and imbecile to have the cause of it all straight in his mind; but sorrow has its own language more eloquent than words, and this he understood.

"Poor Davy! Poor Davy!" he muttered, as he patted the boy's head. Then as his sympathies overwhelmed him he bent and kissed the shiny face of Davy's doll, leaving its painted cheek stained with the tears that rolled from his withered ones.

They all gathered around Davy—surprised and pleased at his silence and patience. They were a strange company of consolers—crazed, crippled, woe begone, clad in mean garments and owning nothing but their imperishable souls and their battered bodies. Yet all that they had—kindness—they gave. Each one forgot his own grief, whatever it was, in the presence of the boy's more unbearable one.

Davy said nothing to all their kind words. He only held Lizzie Ann close to his breast, as though there was comfort in her companionship, and rocked the harder.

The next morning he rose with dry eyes and made a heroic effort to be hopeful. "Is it to-day I go home?" was his first question. His lips trembled when told that it was not, but he shed no tears. John Keller appeared early on the scene and removed one of the black beans from the string, which now ornamented Davy's person as a necklace.

Yet the boy did not seem hopeful. He was only quiet. His tears fell no more, but his silent patience was even sadder than his rebellious lamentations. Not being a creature of stout will, his spirit was as wretched in woe as it had been buoyant in happiness. He seemed to have suffered beyond the point where a ray of hope brings strength. He had changed his wail, "I want to go home," to "I'm going home," but he said it without spirit and apparently without hope; and it was, if possible, more heartrending than his first wail.

His spirit was broken and so was his physical health. He had grown so weak he could not sit up long at a time, and so would lie hours of every day on his cot, staring at the wall, though seeing it not. His eyes were looking into some realm outside of all material things, for they had changed strangely. Instead of the simple, vacant look of his pleasant days, they had grown deep and luminous, with that wonderful beauty which is seen in the eyes of those who have suffered great anguish of spirit.

And so the days went on until all the beans were gone from the string but one, and the next day would be Christmas.

John Keller had counted the hours of the long week with even greater impatience than Davy. He had grown into the thought that he would rather set that homesick boy down on the doorstep of his old home than to come in for a princely inheritance. Before he started to town in his wagon that morning he had said to Davy when arranging the bean necklace, "To-morrow you go, my boy; to-morrow;" and Davy had repeated his usual refrain, "I'm going home."

Keller brought letters home with him that evening, which was nothing unusual; but among them was one that took all the life out of his face when he heard its contents. It was from Davy's brother and countermanded the order to bring Davy into town on Christmas. They had decided not to have him come until New Year's. "Unforeseen circumstances made the delay necessary." To atone for the delay he should "stay a day or two when he did come," etc.

Some tears were shed over the cruel news, but not by Davy. Hours before the letter arrived he had been lying in his cot, his sad eyes staring through the walls that imprisoned him into the land of his dreams. When they went to tell him they found him asleep, the now crumpled but comforting doll clutched in one hand and held close to his woe-begone face.

Christmas dawned, white and wintry. Snow covered the earth and clung to the bare trees like garments of white fur. The air was full of whirling crystalets and the earth was full of music. It was the kind of Christmas which nature intends shall be "merry"; when every sound clinks through the air, when the horses' feet are heard grinding the gritty snow half a mile away; when bells ring out crisp and clear; when laughter is heard far out upon the hills; when joy is spontaneous and sorrow forgotten; when the north wind brings courage and the day brings peace on earth and good will to men.

Davy was brighter than usual that morning. The hope which had not before been strong enough to lighten his heavy heart beamed over his wan face like sunshine. His eyes were very bright and very eager.

"I'm going home," were his first words, spoken with something like gladness in his voice. At sight of John Keller he jumped from his chair with his old-time alacrity and handed him the last black bean of the seven which had stood between him and paradise.

He gathered together his small possessions—a few glass buttons, a lame top, the fox that had not barked since it became an inmate of the poorhouse, a whittled wooden monkey with hollow eyes, and similar gifts of the sympathizing but impoverished friends who surrounded him, and placed them in a row on the window sill. Sitting down beside them, with Lizzie Ann in his arms, he announced that he was ready.

How could they tell him that he was not to go; that all his patient waiting had been useless, that he had been cheated with lies; that the house he longed for had shut its doors against him!

At last they told him. At first he could not understand and answered everything with the decisive assertion, "I'm going home," as though that were the sum of all wisdom, solved all problems, straightened all misunderstandings and settled all difficulties. But when the truth was made plain to him and he understood, he raised his arms to his head in sudden agony and, with a cry that had in it all the despair of his cheated soul, slipped from his chair to the floor.

When his eyes opened after he had been lifted upon his bed they seemed to have lost all recollection of his disappointment, and were strangely bright and glad. A smiling soul looked out from them in peace before it started on its noiseless journey. Those eyes saw something others could not see, for Davy's sick face became radiant, transfigured, expressive, beautiful. His lips moved and he whispered joyfully, "I'm going home." [illegible] home he had pined for and which had shut him out; but to that better one, which is away from all selfishness and above all cruelty.

Like many wiser mortals his spirit had gone into its new life, loving and trusting those who had done him to death.

As the Carson family was sitting down to dinner with the friends for whose sake Davy had been excluded, John Keller rattled up to the gate in the almshouse wagon. He delivered this message with uncovered head at the door:

"Your brother Davy is dead. When we told him this morning that he couldn't come home to-day, as he had expected to, his heart broke. He was weakened and worn with homesickness and the disappointment killed him."

He spoke with calm simplicity and without reproach in his voice. He knew that the punishment which had overtaken them would be sufficient of itself.

And it was. They had never contemplated such retribution as this. They had measured out Davy's needs by the requirements of the body, taking no account of the hungry and loving soul.

"Your brother Davy is dead"

They had sent him away because he interfered with their success, and now that he was out of their way forever they were filled with unavailing regret. What would they not have given to go back and undo their dreadful work, now beyond recall!

Of what avail was it that they wept bitter tears over Davy's body, when they had let him die for a sight of familiar faces! Nor could they extinguish the remorse in their hearts by clothing his dead flesh with fine garments and covering his coffin with flowers. They looked on his saddened and wasted face with sharp self-reproach and remembered that they had been false to a mother's trust. And that memory lingered with them always.

With freedom of action than a man chained to a seat in a galley boat, or a supply house, dumb to the keen glory of competition, without the power of bursting its bond. The Lock Works.

The lock works are at present in a state of suspended animation to admit of additions being made to the mechanical department. The new engine has been placed in position, and it is thought she will be started up to-day. The works are expected to start in full running order on Monday next, with a full complement of hands.

Timely Charity.

The President of the Sons of England reports that the Smith family, whose sad case was before the Council at its last meeting, are comfortably housed and fairly provided with household effects and comforts. The Lodge has to acknowledge the efficient assistance given by Mrs. Geo. A. Cox and Mrs. Yelland.

Big Nights at the Opera House.

The Harry Lindley Comedy Company presented East Lynne to a full house at yesterday afternoon's matinee, and in the evening the house was packed like a box of figs to witness the first presentation in Canada of the new and charming drama, "Green Hills of the West." It was splendidly put on and the leading roles were capitally filled by Harry Lindley, Maximilian and Miss Addie Flint, with a first-class support by the full strength of the Company—14. The house was not only one of the largest ever got together, but the best pleased that ever filled the hall with its applause. Harry is an old friend here, but he is the "best-fixed" as to company and repertoire of any visit. To-night Bartley Campbell's great play, "Divorce," will hold the boards. Admission 15 and 25 cents. Reserved seats at Menzies', 10 cents extra.

Prof. Reid's Gymnasium.

A good gymnasium has been a long felt want in Peterborough. At the request of a number of young men of the town, who are desirous of having a place for exercise and physical training, Prof. Ried, has equipped a room in the Oriental, which will supply the want. The room is large, the only fault being the height of it. It is not high enough to allow of a trapeze, which is considered an unnecessary. The gymnasium is equipped with all the requirements necessary, such as Indian clubs of all sizes, dumbbells, parallel, bars, gloves, pounding bags, single sticks, swords with foils, muskets and bayonets, etc., capable of engaging the attention of a large class of young men for hours. The room is richly decorated with sporting pictures, and the arrangements of articles of combat. The gymnasium deserves to be well patronized. A fee of one dollars is charged for the season, while a thorough course of training and instruction from Prof. Reid is extra. For further particulars apply to Prof. Reid at the Oriental.

Social Ball.

The postponed Ball of the Social Club will be held in the Parlor Roller Skating Rink, Water street, on New Year's Eve.

They All Do It.

They are all going to Salisbury Bros. for Xmas cards; but next week they will go there for plush goods, fine art books, poets, annuals, toy books and fancy goods.

George Street Church.

Rev. F. H. Wallace, B.D., will occupy the pulpit of the George street Methodist church to-morrow morning at eleven o'clock, and Rev. I Tovell at 7 o'clock. In the Charlotte street Methodist church Rev. Mr. Tovell will take the morning service and Rev. Mr. Wallace the evening service.

Repairs and Stock Taking.

The stove works have shut down to admit of stock taking, in order that the fiscal year may be made to correspond with the calendar year. It is also necessary to do some fitting around the buildings. Work was started so promptly that stoves were shipped before the roof was on some parts of the building. Work will probably be resumed the first Monday in January.

A Choice Christmas Box.

We have to heartily thank Messrs. S Davis & Sons the celebrated cigar manufacturers for a splendid Christmas box, not a mere formality but a genuine A 1 cigar, "mellow, rich and ripe." The quality is of the highest order and is only a type of all the brands turned out by this firm. Many thanks Messrs. Davis, we burn incense to your magnificent specimen of Xmas cigars The reader should not fail to peruse the advertisement of S Davis & Sons in another column.

Another lot of those Low-Priced Photograph Frames just received. A. L. Davis & Co.

Only a Mistake.

An Ottawa telegram to a western paper states that Messrs. Geo. A. Cox and Geo. Hilliard, M.P., were at Ottawa on the 24th to ask the Government to make a grant for continuation of work on the Trent Valley canal. This is wrong. Both gentlemen were at home that day. Besides, Mr. Hilliard would waste no time on what would be a hopeless errand. He knows well enough that nothing but the approach of an election can move the Government to make a little dab of an appropriation, just for the sake of keeping up appearances and duping the electors.

St. John's Church.

The following will be the order of devine service in St. John's church to-morrow—the first Sunday after Christmas: In the morning, Venite, Gregorian; Te Deum, Oakley, F.; Jubilate, Gregorian; solo, "Awake, Arise," Millard; anthem, "While Shepherds Watched," Best; Kyrie, Hampshire, D flat; carol, "Sleep, Holy Babe," Dykes. In the evening: Psalms, Gregorian; Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, Tour's service in F.; solo, Cantique Noel, Adame; anthem, "O, Come, all ye Faithful," Novello; carol, "'Twas on a Cold and Winter's Night," Stainer.

Worldly Feasting—Spiritual Famine.

A well-known citizen, referring to the Christmas feast spread before the prisoners at the jail yesterday, said it was to be deplored that not one of the many ministers of the town was present to impress the spiritual lessons the day teaches. The prisoners, it is said, are altogether without spiritual advice, except such as is provided by lady readers. The fact of a man being a prisoner does not debar him of the right of receiving orthodox ministrations. Besides, a minister would have the advantage of preaching to a congregation that could not slip out if the sermon were a little too long.

Go and see "Divorce" to-night—a great play.

"Queen's Own."

The Nicholls Hospital.

There are at present only four patients at the Nicholls hospital and they were doing so well that Dr. Fife, whose name is on the duty roster the current month, did not think it necessary to pay them a visit yesterday. The matron, however, made amends and gave the patients reason to know that Xmas day found its way even to the wards of an hospital.

"Divorce" to-night. Cast with the full strength of Lindley's superb company.

Market Items.

The market to-day was something after the manner of Pharaoh's lean kine. There was a small attendance and the offerings were very scanty. There were no potatoes, no fresh butter, (tub butter sold at 11 cents) one pair of chickens, held at 50 cents. Beef was the only abundant commodity and there were loads of it at $4.00 and $5.50. Pork was held at $5.00 and $5.75. Apples $2.60 per barrel. Mr. Doherty won't have much small change in his pocket to-night on the head of to-day's market.

A Gratifying Decision.

Rev. W. C. Bradshaw Remains Rector of St. Luke's.

At the conclusion of the sermon at St. Luke's on Christmas day, the rector, Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, preached an excellent sermon preached from the 10th verse of the second chapter of St. Luke's gospel, as follows:

Suffer dear brethren, one passing personal allusion ere I close. You are aware that for a few weeks past I have been in a somewhat unsettled state. A position of no small importance was offered me most unexpectedly, and under circumstances which made a decision extremely difficult. This congregation was good enough to pass a resolution at a special vestry, when they heard I had been invited to St. George's Montreal, asking me to decline the offer, while at the same time they rejoiced that my services in the church were so highly appreciated abroad.

If the offer was gratifying to me, (which I do not deny,) the manner in which you expressed your confidence in me and desired me to remain and continue the work, I began here, was no less so, especially when I reflect that for more than nine years we have been closely connected together as priest and people.

I cannot express here the difficulties under which I have laboured in coming to a right decision. God alone knows what it has cost me to discover His will concerning the course I should pursue. I trust and pray that I have been guided aright, and that my future efforts as a minister of God may indeed bring greater glory to God and better advance the interests of His church.

I have declined the offer made to me and shall remain in my present sphere of duty.

I need scarcely ask for a continuance of your prayers, your sympathy and cordial assistance in my work. These, I hope and believe, will be extended to me gladly and readily, in the future as in the past. May the great head of the church bless all our endeavours for the spread of His Kingdom and the welfare of immortal souls.

In these words, dear brethern, I once more wish you a holy and happy Christmas.

The parish of St. Luke's, as well as the general public, will be pleased to know that Rev. Mr. Bradshaw is to remain in the position he has filled with so much good result for the last ten years.

Dr. Ramsay, of Orillia, fell on a slippery sidewalk on Yonge street, Toronto, Friday night and broke his leg. Owen Cosgrove, contractor, also slipped and fell on King st. yest and met with a similar misfortune. This will likely result in two suits for damages against that city.

Auburn Amenities.

Presentation and Address.

On Tuesday evening at the close of the term of the Auburn school, of which Miss Maggie Chrow has been teacher for four years, the pupils took advantage of her severing her connection with the school, by presenting her with a beautiful writing desk and lady's companion, and the following address:—

Miss Maggie Chrow:—

DEAR TEACHER,—Your little pupils' hearts are full of gratitude at the recollection of the great good you have done as as teacher, of the kindness you have shown us from day to day and the patience you extended to our faults. We cannot repay you but we can thank you, and in earnest of our thankfulness, please accept this writing desk and stand, with our prayers that, now you are going from us, you may be entering upon a life of greater happiness. From the bottom of our hearts we wish you a merry Christmas and a happy new year.

Miss Chrow was deeply affected by this evidence of her popularity and of the esteem in which she was held by the pupils and replied in suitable and feeling terms.

They Do Do It.

'Tis funny how they do it, but they do keep the best selected stock of fancy goods and writing desks at Salisbury Bros.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable," or "El Padre" brand of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pay them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby.

Don't be Deceived.

MUNICIPAL NOMINATIONS.

James Stevenson, Esq., Mayor by Acclamation.

The Ward Nominations.

This morning at ten o'clock, the nomination for Mayor was held at the Council Chamber. There was a large attendance of electors, and considerable interest was shown in the proceedings.

Geo. A. Cox, Esq., seconded by W. H. Wrighton, Esq., nominated James Stevenson, Esq., for the position of Mayor. There were no other nominations, and it was decided that addresses were to be made, and that if in the meantime any other nominations were to be made, an opportunity would be allowed.

Mr. Cox, addressing the audience, was glad to see that there would be no opposition to the nomination just made; it was in the interests of the town that a gentleman so well qualified in every way should be elected by acclamation. It was in the interests of the town that the matter should be decided in this manner. He referred to Mr. Stevenson as one of the largest property holders and taxpayers in town, as one whose personal interest could not be disassociated from the interests of the town at large. He referred to the prosperous condition of the town during the two years in which he had had the honor of filling the Mayor's chair as the most prosperous and progressive years the town had ever enjoyed. While he did not take special credit to himself for this condition of things, he felt that the manner in which the town's affairs had been managed had some share in so gratifying a result. He knew of no reason why the town should not prosper. It had unusually excellent railway communication, it was the centre of a district rich both in population and material resources. If the capital at command were utilized, there was no reason why Peterborough should not rapidly assume the status of a city. The financial affairs of the town had been carefully managed, and much credit for this condition of affairs was due to the Treasurer, Mr. McDonald, and to the "Finance Minister," Mr. Davidson Reference was also made to the Dickson estate property. The speaker did not object to those honestly opposed to the views he held, enjoying their opinions, but he wished it to be understood that he was not influenced by personal motives in dealing with the matter. It was absurd to suppose that with only a one-seventh interest in the property, he could be influenced by personal motives. What he had done, the position he had assumed was done and taken in the interests of the town. It was pointed out that the development of the unlimited resources of this property was one of the most important questions affecting the interests of the town, which the in-coming Council would have to deal with. The utilization of the Dickson race water powers was a very important matter; it was a reflection on the capitalists of Peterborough that the vast quantities of logs and timber passing our doors should not be manufactured here instead of at Deseronto. A closing reference was made to the fortunate selection that had been made for Mayor. Mr. Stevenson was and had been practically identified with the most important industrial institutions that had been recently established in Peterborough, especially had his exertions and business aptitude contributed to the establishment in Peterborough of the stove works and lock works. The town was to be congratulated in securing the services of Mr. Stevenson as Mayor for 1886.

At the conclusion of Mr. Cox's remarks, Mr. Stevenson addressed the electors. He thanked the electors for the honor done him in his nomination, and expressed a general assent to the remarks made by Mr. Cox. He did not intend to make a set speech, but would refer to some matters concerning the financial interests of the town from his standpoint as chairman of the Town Trust Commission. It would be seen that this body had been exceedingly careful of the interests of the town. In 1865 Mr. Stevenson, who has been a member of the Commission for some 25 years, fourteen of which he has been chairman, entered the council and secured the passing of a by-law to put the funds accuring from the investment with the railway in the hands of the commissioners, to be applied to the indebtedness of the town. These funds had previously been applied to the purpose of meeting the current expenses. The result, The speaker pointed out that the entire indebtedness of the town was something like $180,000 and to meet this were the $57,000 owing by the Midland Railway, bearing interest at 6 per cent. So carefully had this source of income been dealt with that it sufficed to keep paid up the interest of the Municipal Loan Fund debt of $72,000, due in 1892. There was in hand in the bank cash to the amount of $46.797. and debentures to the amount of $22,000. The income derived from these sources would suffice to wipe out, principal and interest, the Municipal Loan debt of $72,000 due in 1892, and still leave the Midland Railway investment of $57,200 intact. That amount, with the Municipal Loan debt paid, would still be left to the town to produce an annual revenue of something like $3,200 to be applied to the extinction of other debentures. It would thus be seen that the finances of the town were in a very satisfactory condition and it would be his aim, as Mayor, to see that the same watchfulness and care would be applied during his term. Reference was also made to the South Ward Land Reserve. All the funds derived from this source had been applied by the commissioners to town purposes. The south ward didn't owe the town anything. If Spalding's Bay were filled up, it would be carrying out the agreement with the Government, with funds derived from this ward. He made these statements to correct the impression that the filling up of Spalding's Bay would be done at the expense of the other wards. The speaker advised the capitalists of the town to be united and take a broad and liberal course of action as would result in building up the town and promoting its prosperity and growth. Peterborough, if its citizens were true to it, had nothing to fear from the competition of Toronto. The C.P.R. had, contrary to the fears of many, proved an advantage to the town instead of a detriment. He hoped people of the town with money to invest would see that it was a much more patriotic as well as profitable course to invest their money in Peterborough than in Manitoba and Dakota, where they could not watch their investments, many of which were never seen or heard of again. It was pointed out that manufactories would call in population. This would require new houses, and these houses would be a source of revenue by way of the taxes they would pay. Mr. Stevenson closed a capital address by urging a continuance of the policy of encouraging manufactories, and thereby building up the town of Peterborough.

The hour of eleven o'clock having arrived, and no other nominations having been made, Mr. Stevenson was duly declared Mayor-elect of the town of Peterborough for the year 1886.

Mr. Stevenson thanked the electors for the honour conferred on him, and the meeting separated.

Is the Scott Act Valid?

Its Author Declares that there is no Doubt About It.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 26.—Hon. R. W. Scott, author of the Canada Temperance Act, or "Scott Act," as it is commonly called, in a conversation stated that the Act in question was in no way effected by the recent decision of the Privy Council on the Liquor License Acts. The case of Russell vs. the Queen, decided by the Privy Council, three or four years ago was a test case under which the constitutionality of the Canada Temperance Act was clearly established. In drafting the Act of 1878 the powers conferred, under the 92nd section of the British North America Act, upon the Provincial Legislatures, were kept prominently in view, as will be seen by reference to subsection 4 of section 99 of the Temperance Act, wherein provision is made that the druggists and other vendors who were to be permitted to sell liquors for medicinal and other purposes are to be specially licensed by the Lieut.-Governors of the various provinces. By section 24 of the liquor license act of 1884, the issuing of these licenses was attempted to be withdrawn from the provincial authorities, and was vested in the board of license commissioners. Under the recent decisions these venders, who are now selling in what are usually called Scott act counties under licenses granted by the board, are selling illegally, and they subject themselves to all penalties contained in the act of 1878.

Mr. Justice Henry, of the Supreme Court, however, does not subscribe to this view of the case, and contends that the British North America act never intended that Parliament should have the power it has exercised in the passage of the Scott act. He maintains that the recent decision in the liquor act, which has justified his contentions regarding the powers of the provincial authorities, is such as to make it clear that the Scott act is ultra vires. He thinks that if the licensed victuallers carry out their threat of testing the constitutionality of the Scott act, they will destroy it.

A Remarkable Series of Deals.

(From the Globe.)

The Dominion Government started out to erect public buildings in Peterborough at a cost of $15,000.

Dozens of Tories were promptly seized with a desire to sell sites for the purpose.

The struggle finally became one between a Roman Catholic and a semi-Orange Syndicate.

Offices worth six thousand dollars were distributed among the members and supporters of the latter in order to reconcile them to the purchase of the former's lot.

Still the former were not allowed to possess in peace.

The happy device of buying both lots was hit upon and carried out.

Yet they were not happy.

Each party wanted the postoffice as well as the money.

Sir John promised the representative of the Roman Catholic syndicate that the postoffice should be on their lot.

Sir Hector said so too.

A statement to that effect was put in the deed.

The rival parties "Pringled" money on the result.

After all, the postoffice is to be on the semi-Orange site.

The sites have cost $9,900.

The offices squandered in the negotiations are worth $6,000 a year.

The new buildings, instead of being erected for $15,000, as originally contemplated, will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000.

There is a "clerk of works" yet to be provided for.

"Extras" to be allowed.

A deceived and disappointed claimant to be compensated.

And a probability that a hundred thousand dollars will not finish the jobs.

Of such is Toryism.

Lakefield.

LAKEFIELD CHEESE FACTORY—SEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Knowing that you take an active interest in everything that pertains to the social and material welfare of your agricultural friends, I send you the following:—The patrons of the Lakefield Cheese Factory held their seventh annual meeting on Wednesday evening, the 23rd inst., in the new and commodious factory built in the early part of the year on the estate of the late Dr. Mann about one half mile west of the village. This factory commenced its existence under the management and proprietorship of Mr. J. W. Moore in A. D., 1879, in the village of Lakefield, in a building owned by R. C. Strickland, Esq. Mr. Moore's lease having expired with the year 1884, it was then thought desirable by a majority of the patrons to remove the factory to the west side of the village, and the success of the present season's operations prove the wisdom of the choice.

At 7.30 p. m. the large gathering of over seventy-five sat down to an oyster supper provided by Mr. Moore. Fully half this number were of the fair sex. There were also quite a few visitors present, prominent among whom were Mr. Thurston of Verulam, and Mr. Robertson, of Ops. Full justice having been done to the feast of good things, Mr. H. C. Garbutt was called to the chair. After dwelling for some time on the excellency of the spread and the circumstances which brought them, as farmers, together, the chairman called on the secretary to give a statement of the season's operations. The secretary read quite a lengthy report, also the auditors' report, which was very satisfactory. Amongst the items given I select the following: Average price per pound of cheese for the season, 7.32 cents; average number pounds of milk to a pound of cheese, 10.05: amount per standard cow received by patrons, $19.30. Speeches and friendly chat were then the order of the evening. Mr. Galvin dwelt at some length on the rapid progress the cheese industry had made within the last few years. He stated that seven years ago there was not a single factory in the township of Douro, and only two in the township of Smith, but at the present time there are five live factories in the former township and six in the latter. Mr. Thurston complimented the patrons on the good management of their factory from its inception, also on its advantageous position, being so near a railway station. He also complimented them on their social status, and concluded a nice speech by wishing them continued success. Mr. A. Fairbairn, as auditor, said that he found the books and accounts of the factory in such good order that his duties were comparatively light. But, sir, I must pass on, although I have not reported all the speeches and done but scant justice to those who did speak.

The following officers were elected:

Secretary.—J. W. Moore.

Salesman and Treasurer,—G. J. Galvin.

Auditors.—H. M. Davidson and Andrew Fairbairn.

Committee.—A. Fitzgerald, Geo Johnston and A. Fairbairn.

But Mr. Editor, because I called it an oyster supper, you must not conclude that we had oysters only, for we had sandwiches, jelly cake, fruit cake, and cakes and crackers innumerable.

Mr. Moore still continues the manager and proprietor of the Lakefield Cheese Factory, and has it fully equipped with all the best appliances of the age, and from its advantageous position, this factory is likely to occupy a front place among the most successful factories in this county.

Yours, respectfully,
ONE WHO WAS PRESENT.

WHAT IT COSTS.

Not only has Sir John made presistant attempts to destroy Confederation and weaken the provinces, but he has done so entirely at the public expense. To accomplish his own personal and political ends, he has spent money with a lavish hand. To show how far he has gone in this direction, the Globe says:—

When Parliament meets, some member should move for a statement showing how much Sir John Macdonald's persistent attacks upon Provincial Rights, and his efforts to centralise power at Ottawa, have cost the taxpayers of the Dominion. The people of Ontario had to bear the cost of defending the Province's rights to escheat. Then the Boundary dispute arose, and in addition to the millions of dollars worth of timber belonging to Ontario that was given away by the Ottawa Government to political favorites, the cost of litigation respecting the Boundary has already amounted to over fifty thousand dollars, and Sir John is still setting up claims to the minerals and timber, thus putting the Province to still greater expense in defending its rights. Ontario taxpayers have not only to bear the costs of upholding the rights of the Province, but are also taxed to defray at least half the expense incurred by the Ottawa Ministers in their efforts to rob Ontario. The cost of the License dispute to the country can scarcely be overestimated. In addition to the $150,000 or so collected for Dominion licenses, which will have to be refunded, large amounts of money have been granted from the Dominion Exchequer to pay inspectors and other officers appointed under the bogus "Macdonald Act," and the country has also to pay the enormous expense incurred in proving that the Act in question was "not worth the paper it was written on." There is the time wasted by Parliament in debating and amending the Bill, and the general annoyance and loss to those engaged in the liquor business. Altogether Sir John Macdonald's assaults upon Provincial Rights have cost the country at least two millions of dollars about double the amount that will be required to erect new Legislative buildings in Toronto. And what value have the people received in return for this two millions?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson and most of the tretotallers were defeated at the late English elections. On the other hand many brewers were returned.

The Liberals of Centre Wellington will meet at Fergus on January 14th, 1886, to nominate a candidate for the House of Commons.

It is said that the imperial government intends to prosecute one of the recently-elected Irish members for seditious language used at the recent meeting of the National league in Dublin.

The assessed value of the city of Winnipeg is nearly twenty millions, the rate of taxation two cents in the dollar, and the total city debt two million five hundred thousand dollars. The population is 25,000.

The last time Sir John Macdonald went to England he got the mystic letters G.C.B. attached to his name; this time, says the Globe, he gets the interpretation thereof—Grand Constitutional Blunderer.

The London Times liberally suggests that the Irish difficulty could be solved in three months by the exclusion of the Parnellites from the House of Commons and the proclamation of martial law in Ireland.

It is noted that British electors, whether Whig or Tory, view with a kindly eye a candidate who keeps a pack of hounds for the pleasure of his neighbors. More than one man really owes his return as an M.P. to being an M.F.H. (master of fox hounds.)

The governor general has bestowed upon Dr. J. George Hodgins, deputy minister of education, one of the Confederation medals, to mark his excellency's appreciation of Dr. Hodgins' "valued services both as a public officer and a man of letters."

The election of Mr. Arch the great leader of the agricultural labourers—for the North-western Division of Norfolk, by a majority of 640 against Lord H. Bentinck, is, says the London Telegraph, a critical event in the history of our Constitution. We believe that there will be eleven members who may be said to represent directly the interests of labor, in the new Parliament, and that every one of them is a man of high character. This will be a guarantee that the interests of labor will be advocated in the new House of Commons, not merely by a very powerful party, but by a party with spokesmen who have themselves experienced the hardships of the lot they wish to alleviate. And of these, Mr. Arch will be, doubtless, the most distinguished and the most generally respected. No one can deny that his career has been from the first an honorable, a conscientious, and a disinterested one.

Dairyman's Association.

The Dairyman's Association of Eastern Ontario will hold their annual meeting and convention at Belleville, Ontario, on Wednesday and Thursday, January 6th and 7th, 1886, when the following gentlemen are expected to be present to deliver addresses on Dairy Farming, Breeds of Cattle, Cheese and Butter making. Ample time for discussion. Prof. J. B. Roberts, of Agricultural Farm, Ithaca, N.Y.; Prof. E. A. Bernard, Director of Agricultural, Province of Quebec; Prof. J. B. Harris, on Cheese Making; Prof. Brown or Mills, of Agricultural College, Guelph, Ont; Profs. Witten and Bissell, who have been engaged through the last two sessions by the Association giving instructions in the manufacture of fine cheese; Thos. Ballantyne, M.P.P., Stratford, Ont., one of the most successful manufacturers and operators in cheese in Western Ontario; Thos. Watkin, Esq., of Belleville, Ont., a retired exporter of cheese the last thirty years or more; Hon. Harris Lewis, of Frankfort, N.Y., practical farmer and butter maker; Prof. J. T. Bell, of Albert College, Belleville, and several other speakers, will address the meeting. Certificates of membership can be had of the secretary at Belleville, D. Derbyshire, Brockville, P. CLOSING ENTERTAINMENT.

On Wednesday evening, at the close of the school in school section No. 4, Smith, an entertainment was held in the school, in which a large number of school children took part. The programme consisted of readings, recitations, dialogues and tableau. The occasion being the closing of Miss Beccie Fair's connection with the school, she being about to enter upon a higher course of study at the Normal School, Ottawa, it was taken advantage of to present Miss Fair with an address and a beautiful writing desk and hand satchel. The presentation was made by Teenie Fitzgerald and the address was read by W. Davidson. The following is

THE ADDRESS.

To Miss Beccie Fair, Teacher of s. s. No. 4, Smith:

DEAR TEACHER,—Our schooldays have been brought to a close for another year. We have been informed that you are about to prepare yourself for a higher position in your calling. May you have the desired success is our best wish.

We are well aware that we have made good progress under your instruction, and the basis of a sound education has been instilled into our minds.

We cannot fail to acknowledge that you have endeavored to guide us morally and intellectually for our benefit, and we shall always think of our schooldays and hold you in remembrance when we take our positions in the cares of the world.

We present this writing-desk and hand-satchel to you, not for their intrinsic value, but to show the sincere regard engraved upon our hearts, which we will never forget.

May He who reigns over all guide, direct and protect you in whatever sphere of life you may be placed, and in conclusion we wish you a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Signed on behalf of the school.

ROBERT W. DAVIDSON.
TEENIE FITZGERALD.

Miss Fair was most delightfully surprised and made the following

REPLY:

You have taken me by surprise, I thank you very much for this handsome writing desk and hand satchel, which I indeed prize for their worth, but, more especially as a mark of esteem from you.

During my stay among you for the last three years, I have received nothing but the kindest from your parents and friends; and it is with regret I now leave you.

Best assued, my dear pupils, I shall always be interested in you welfare, and shall be pleased to hear of increased diligence in your studies.

I now commend to you my successor, whom I hope, will leave you feeling as I do, that the co-operation and sympathy of your parents and friends have done much to encourage her and lighten her labor.

I must again thank you for these beautiful presents, but, before saying good bye, I wish you in return a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, and my earnest desire is, that we may all meet in Heaven where farewells are unknown.

The entertainment was a great success, and great credit is due Miss Fair, not only for its success, but for the solid state of progress in which she leaves the school. The chair was occupied by Mr. T. E. Fitzgerald, Deputy-Reeve of Smith.

MONTREAL'S MATERIAL PROGRESS.

Astonishing Advance in Cigar Manufacturing.

THE TWO UNRIVALLED BRANDS.

(From the Mail.)

MONTREAL, Dec. 11.—The material progress which this commercial city has made during the present year is massive buildings for manufactories and warehouses cannot be very well reconciled with the complaints which are so often heard regarding business being dull and unprofitable. In no commercial centre probably on the whole continent of America, of its size, has there been so many great structures erected within the past twelve months for the hum of industry to be carried on as in Montreal. Go where one will throughout the city he finds some gigantic building raising its massive walls up into the clouds almost, or receiving the finishing touches of the painter's art, to make them ready for their hundreds of toiling hands that will be so soon busily employed within. Among the very largest and most substantial buildings, in fact a modern palace it might be justly termed, that is on the eve of receiving its five or six hundred operatives, is that of situated on Cote street, almost in the centre of the city. This huge block, towering up seven storeys, is not surpassed, or probably equalled, by any erection of the kind in America. The front is adorned with two picturesque towers, surmounting the apex, massive in their proportions, and from the blending of the body of brick with finished stone trimmings, are ornamental in a remarkably striking degree. The exterior is outrivalled by the interior, which has drawn out the superior talent of the architect in making it the most complete and tasteful business structure in all its various departments probably in Canada. The factory covers an area of 9,328 square feet, being 88 feet front and 106 feet deep. The staircases are built in the towers outside the building, and are separated from the interior by wrought iron doors. The water closets and steam elevators are built in detached towers, thereby leaving the capacious flats completely clear. The furnace and Brush boilers are in a separate building in the rear, and the steam is conveyed to the engine and throughout the building by iron pipes. All the doors are of iron, and the factory is designed in every respect to be impervious to fire.

S. DAVIS AND SONS' CIGAR FACTORY,

The basement or first flat will be used for tobacco steaming process.

The second flat will be devoted to the general and shipping offices.

Third flat will be utilised for manufacturing and preparing leaf.

Fourth flat for males engaged in rolling cigars.

Fifth flat for females engaged in same process.

Sixth flat for employes engaged in packing and sorting cigars

Seventh flat for drying leaf.

Each flat has an office for the superintendent, situated in the front, the windows being of coloured glass. Wardrobes, washing and other conveniences for the operatives are fitted up in a complete style on each flat. The building throughout will be illuminated with incandescent electric light, for which Messrs. Davis & Sons are now negotiating. The interior is at present in progress of being tinted all over in the finest taste, and will add materially to the beautiful ensemble of its appearance. Vaults, special storage rooms, and separate departments have been introduced, and next summer an extensive two-storey warehouse for storing stock will be erected adjoining the factory. The business that will be carried on in this monster pile of buildings had a comparatively small beginning, but after nearly a quarter of a century of successful running under the sole management of Mr. S. Davis, at first, but of late with the assistance of his three sons in the supervision, it has developed into a huge traffic, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, and to Europe, the brands of cigars which are turned out having become known and appreciated the world over, for they are shipped to all points of the globe. The leading brands are Cable and El Padre, the former being the most popular 5 cent, and the latter 10 cent, cigar in the market. A specialty with the firm is the fine quality of the tobacco used in the manufacture of all classes of cigars. The trade done by the firm has been rapidly increasing from year to year, and the greatest volume of progress yet was during the past twelve months. It surely proves when people go on expending more and more in what is a harmless luxury, that the country is not retrogressing in prosperity, at least such is the opinion of the head of this prominent manufacturing firm. It only remains to state that the architect of the building is Mr. A. F. Dunlop, and it reflects high credit on his abilities and designing talent. The masonry has been executed by Mr. Lyall, the carpenter work by Mr. McIntyre, and the plumbing by Mr. J. Thibeaut.

The total cost will be from $75,000 to $100,000, including the site.

The Writer and the Writing.

It has before now been intimated, we believe, that literature, like the rest of the professions, is getting somewhat overcrowded, and that literary men are having rather a hard time in consequence. Even those who are reasonable enough to admit that as compared with the condition of the members of the quill abroad, American wielders of the pen have reason to be tolerably well content, are prepared to take a pessimistic view of the present state of things, and still more to lament the obvious tendency of the times. The general stringency of the season is allowed to have some influence, and some stress is also laid upon its being presidential year; but far more effective causes than either of these are supposed to be the flood of foreign reprints, the abundance of cheap pirated editions, and the increasing difficulty of making a reputation.

The last of these objections may be dismissed at once as arrant nonsense. It never was easier to make a reputation than it is to-day, or on more slender capital, as witness Mr. F. Marion Crawford. For another, it is to be noted that cheap editions are not wholly devastating the land. The Seaside Library has come utterly to grief and been discontinued; and while it is undoubtedly true that pirated editions injure immensely the sale of American books, the fact remains that magazine prices in this country are still the best in the world, and New York has just witnessed the establishment of a series of American novels and one of American short stories, both of which are understood to be doing well. As for business depression, it is to be expected that literature should take its chance with the rest of the professions, and while it feels dull times more than some, it is, on the contrary, less affected than others.

The simple fact of the whole matter is that public attention is absorbed by the newspaper; and it is to the periodical press that the literary man owes both his salvation and his ruin. The large class of people who read simply to kill time satisfy all literary cravings by drinking at the streams, clear or muddy, as the case may be, of their pet newspapers; and even the lighter class of stories appeal to them but seldom unless served up in long columns and sent through the post office. It is emphatically the age of the newspaper, and both author and preacher are rapidly finding themselves reduced to the choice between working for the periodical press and abandoning the field altogether. Of course, there are striking exceptions, but in the main this seems to us to be about the sense and substance of the whole matter. Literary men are as well off as ever, but they must adapt their methods of work to the times in which they live.—Boston Courier.

A King of the Cowboys.

The presiding genius of this town is Tucker, who runs a combination saloon and gambling-house. When any of the cowboys get hard up they go to see Tucker. He gives his money liberally and freely to his friends. Tucker is a tall, fine-looking man, with an intelligent countenance. He affects long hair, a la Buffalo Bill, and prides himself on his fighting abilities. If a drunken cowboy is disposed to have a shooting matinee or rough-and-tumble exercise he can always be accommodated by applying to Tucker, who guarantees to do up the anxious individual in short order. When any disturber of the peace tries to invade the sacred precincts of the Cowboy's Rest, as Tucker's saloon is affectionately called, the gentlemanly proprietor gives him his advice to either fight or leave drink. The festive and belligerent cowboy adores Tucker on account of his generosity and grit, and he would stand by this popular border gambler through thick and thin. Any other man than Tucker would be liable to have his saloon completely demolished two or three times a week, but he always remembered his friends; no hungry man was ever turned from his door, and the cowboys, who have had substantial evidences of his good-will, never forgot the kindness. Tucker has many imitators, but he is the typical border paradox of gentleman and ruffian, and no man can compete with him in shrewdness or popularity. —Opelika (Ala.) Letter.

A Degree of Intimacy.

Mrs Richesse, whose money enables her to live in a swell suburban neighborhood, but does not give her the entree to the best society, was away for the summer, and met several persons who knew all the best people. One day a lady said to Mrs. R.:

"Mrs. Richesse, do you know the Browns?"

"They are our next door neighbors."

"Indeed! Then you know them intimately?"

"Well, no, not exactly. Our families can hardly be said to be very intimate, and Mrs. B. has never called, but their coachman is engaged to our hired girl, and the degree of intimacy existing is sufficient to permit his coming over to our house seven nights in the week and wearing all the paint off the back steps. I suppose, though, Mrs. Brown will call after the wedding and thank us for our assistance."—Cincinnati Traveler.

But for a Lawyer.

A certain cashier, having large responsibilities at the head of a great city bank, was tempted, no matter how, to indulge in private speculations with the bank's funds. Before he realized it he had misappropriated and lost $50,000. In desperation and to retrieve his fortunes he went still deeper, with the result that instead of extracting himself he shortly found the amount of his loss increased to $100,000. The time of the annual examination of his accounts and the affairs of the bank being close at hand, he was unable to contrive a method of concealing his stealings, and the day before the official examination he went to his lawyer, a wealthy man, and made a clean breast. The lawyer, after some reflection, asked: "Do the directors still retain their confidence in you?" "They do not even suspect," was the answer. "Will you promise to be governed by my advice?" "I will." "Sit down and write a complete confession of your guilt." The cashier wrote and signed the required confession.

"Now," said the lawyer, "go to the bank before 10 o'clock to-morrow morning and take negotiable securities from the safe, to the amount of $100,000 Bring them to me as early as possible.'

The cashier did as he was directed and brought government and state bonds to the required amount and gave them to his lawyer. "Now I will go with you," said the lawyer, "and plead your case with the bank directors at the regular meeting." They went together. The cashier read his confession in a voice convulsed with sobs. He told how the theft had been committed, avowed his remorse, and in the same breath confessed his inability to make good the amount. "What is the amount?" asked the president. "It is $200,000" answered the cashier.

There was a decided sensation in the board, and exclamations of astonishment at the extent of the loss went from mouth to mouth, in the midst of which the lawyer rose and addressed them He begged them to consider the confidence, which was in itself a temptation, they had reposed in their cashier, his long service, and other things calculated to mitigate their feelings toward his client. He then showed them that the publication of this deficit at that time would cripple the bank and probably compel it to close its doors, and ended by saying that he himself had such confidence in the future of his client, in his remorse and repentance, that he would engage to collect among his other friends and from various sources $100,000, and bring it to them before 3 o'clock on that day, provided they would give his client a written guarantee against a criminal prosecution. "If not," he added, "his client would surrender himself into their hands and meet the penalty of his misdeeds, but the bank would lose the whole amount." Well, the directors deliberated, but they accepted the lawyer's terms, gave the cashier the release on the condition named, and took his resignation at the same time. The lawyer easily made a loan upon the securities and kept his word, "and," said my informant gravely, "that very cashier is a broker in the New York Stock Exchange to-day. He has paid up his liabilities to the bank, and is highly respected by all who do not know him as well as I do."—Chicago Inter-Ocean

A Rival of Quinine.

German medical journals discuss a new medical agent lately discovered by Prof. Fischer, of Munich. In the course of a long series of investigations concerning the nature and action of quinine, he found that by means of a series of chemical transformations a substance can be obtained, in the form of a white crystalline powder, from coal tar, which greatly resembles quinine in its action on the human organism. Fischer has given it the name of "kairin." The chief effect produced by it, as yet observed, is the rapid diminution of fever heat, and its efficiency in this respect is described as remarkable. It is believed that it will render the use of ice in fever cases unnecessary, and that its skillful employment will enable the physician to moderate the temperature of the patient. Kairin is also reported to have less inconvenience for the stomach than quinine. But observation does not show—as yet, at least—that it possesses that tonic and restorative influence for which quinine is so frequently administered. Perhaps, from a chemical and physiological point of view, the most valuable thing about the new discovery is that it seems to bring us nearer to finding out the chemical nature of quinine itself and the true character of its agency. The discovery has been patented and a manufactory of kairin established, under the direction of Prof. Lautenheimer, of Giessen. But, as it is said that the cost of producing a kilogramme (about 35¼ ounces) of the new agent is £15, it will be some time before its patrons can hope to see it take the place of quinine in practical pharmacy.

Where Money Falls Like Chestnuts.

"How do you sell your brandy?" I asked of a Charleston, N. C., "moonshiner."

"We don't sell it now at all. Hed to wait till hits gauged," he answered.

"Look 'ere, Elder," said Buck, my companion, motioning to the distiller to step around the hogshead with him. After a minute's confab they returned. I think the conversation was to assure the fire-water man that I was all straight.

Buck went to the saddle-bags strung across one of our mules and returned with two quart bottles. These he handed to the distiller, who in turn gave them to one of the lazy-looking loungers, who appeared to be in his employ. The fellow put the bottles in the great pockets of his homespun coat, and immediately disappeared into the shade of the woods. He was gone possibly fifteen minutes. Upon his return he delivered the bottles, filled to the corks, directly to Buck.

"These two quarts," said Buck, looking at me, "are seventy-five cents."

I took the money from my pocket and extended it toward the distiller. He shook his head and replied with this mysterious sentence:

"Chestnuts fall to the ground."

I took the cue, dropped the money at my feet, then turned and went to my mules. The money was still lying on the ground when the trees shut out the still and its crowd from our sight.—Correspondence Cleveland Herald

CONCERNING

Christmas and New Year!

SENSIBLE AND SEASONABLE!

This is particularly the season of giving. Everybody has, or should have, a present to make to somebody else. The question of the hour is

WHAT SHALL I GIVE?

Come to our FANCY GOODS DEPARTMENT and you will have a hundred answers. The more useful the article the more appreciated it will be by the receiver. Now, in looking after Christmas presents, it should be the aim of everyone to select something that will be useful as well as ornamental.

Nothing can be more acceptable or appropriate than a nice WOOL HOOD or JACKET for a little girl; a warm, comfortable CLOUD or KNITTED SQUARE for a lady; a pair of handsome fur-top lined KID MITTS or GAUNTLETS for either lady or gentleman; or a nice SCARF or SILK HANDKERCHIEF for each and everybody.

We have in addition many nice things cheap, fresh and inviting, and as the busy season is drawing to a close, all can be satisfied that they will receive a most courteous attention at

For the Colborne Races.

The races at Colborne on Tuesday and Wednesday will be livened by the presence of Peterborough horse flesh. Fanny B. and the Connors mare leave to-day and will make lively events of the races they enter for.

A Liberal Congregation.

During the services at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday Rev. Father Conway stated that this year's Christmas collection amounted to $735, a sum in excess of the contributions of any previous year.

Christmas Cheer at the "Golden Lion."

The Pantomime Pig.

now a member of the Lindley Comedy Company, will be presented to the party occupying the lucky seat at the close of the Tuesday evening performance. The favored gentleman, lady or child drawing it will be expected to come forward and receive it from the hands of the stage manager, who will make a presentation speech such as the occasion may require.

"At Home."

The Ladies' Aid Society of the George Street Methodist Church intend holding another of their delightful "At Homes" on New Year's night in the Lecture room of the church. A splendid programme is being provided. Those who enjoyed the last entertainment of the above kind, given by the ladies, know what a great treat is in store for them and others who may attend.

"Daniel."

Referring to the remarks of the "EXAMINER" as to the probability of Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows presenting the Cantata Daniel in Lindsay, the Post says:—"We are sure that our Peterborough friends, if they carry out their intentions to give the cantata at Lindsay will be very heartily supported, and the local lodge of Oddfellows may be relied on to give their best assistance."

Crowded Houses.

No better evidence of the high character of the Lindley Comedy Company, and of the excellence of the plays they present could be afforded than the crowded houses that night after night enjoy themselves in Bradburn's Opera House. On Saturday evening "Divorce" was presented to an overflowing house, which by frequent applauses testified the pleasure which this drama, put on in first-rate style, gave them. To-night a Christmas pantomime, the "Sleeping Beauty" will be presented in a manner hitherto not attained in this town. Persons wanting seats will have to go early, as this delightful play is sure to pack the Opera House. Seats 15 and 25 cents; 10 cents extra for reserved seats, at Menzies.

A Speaking Tribute.

On Christmas eve the congregation of the Baptist church resolved itself into a corporate Santa Claus and made a descent upon the residence of the pastor, Rev. A. H. Munro. A handsome clock, a decorated china cup and saucer and plaque, a handsome dressing gown and a rich, warm pair of fur gauntlets were left on his study table. Accompanying these were addresses brimful of sentiments of respect and esteem, and of appreciation of the work which the pastor has so faithfully performed. One part of the above mementos was the gift of the pastor's Bible class, and the other that of the congregation. The inner consciousness of having done one's duty is pleasant, and it is greatly intensified when the objects of one's labors practically testify to their appreciation of efforts in their behalf. Since Rev. Mr. Munro's assumption of the pastorate of the Baptist Church, he has found a warm place in the hearts of his congregation, and every day and week add to the loving respect and esteem which he has earned. The EXAMINER would add its own to the wishes of his congregation that he may be long spared to do his Master's work.

Christmas Festival.

St. Luke's Church Sunday School Christmas Festival will be held this evening in the new school room at 7.30. There will be a concert, distribution of prizes and gifts from a Christmas tree.

St. Andrew's Sunday School.

The annual entertainment in connection with the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Sunday School, will be held to-morrow, Tuesday evening, to commence at half-past seven. Admission 10 cents.

Enterprise.

Seldom has a Theatrical Company visits our city of sufficient strength and resources to enable it to present in full and complete detail a Pantomime of the character which will be presented by the Lindley Company to-night. A full house should greet them. It is a treat which no one should miss. An entertainment of this character is seldom given in some of our larger cities.

Sunday School Review

Yesterday was review Sunday in the Charlotte street Methodist church Sunday school. The children in large numbers assembled in the auditorium of the church, and were addressed pertinently and briefly by Rev. Mr. Wallace, pastor, and Rev. G. H. Davis. This Sunday school, under the superintendency of Mr. A. L. Davis, with a staff of zealous and devoted teachers, is in a very flourishing condition.

For the Holidays.

Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie have in stock for the Xmas trade, a very fine line of slippers of all kinds, specially suited for presents, and at prices much below the ordinary. Call in and see the stock, it is really handsome and cannot be surpassed in town. In every department they carry full lines, but make a specialty of fine hand-sewed work for ladies and gentlemen.

A Shake-Up in China.

China Hall had a streak of business on Saturday night almost as lively as its holiday trade. The delivery horse got control of the ribbons and dashed off at a great pace. He collided with a hitching post near Baptie's grocery, Charlotte street, and partially smashed the vehicle and several deliveries of crockery. Even the dumb beasts connected with China Hall take an interest in making the business lively.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The Rev. A. H. Munro will conduct a consecration meeting in the young men's rooms on New Year's morning from 9:45 to 10:45 o'clock. The lady friends of the Y.M.C.A. are making preparations for the reception to be given on New Year's afternoon to the young men. The rooms are to be decorated and made attractive in other ways, and music and refreshments are to be provided throughout the afternoon. As an invitation is given to all young men, they expect a large number of callers.

The following letter from a Belleville subscriber speaks for itself:

"WEEKLY EXAMINER" Peterborough.

DEAR SIR,—Enclosed please find one $1, to pay for one copy of "WEEKLY EXAMINER" for the year 1886, which you will continue to send to my address. Your paper suits me admirably, it has the right ring about it, and I wish it continued success.

Successful Peterborough Men.

The list of successful candidates at the recent examinations of the Ontario College of Pharmacy has been published. At the top of the list appear the names of Geo. A. Scofield, lately with Mr. John McKee, and George A. Wood, lately with Mr. J. D. Tully, of Peterborough. Walter S. Galbraith, of Guelph, secured the gold medal, and C. C. Mitchell, of Kingston, the silver medal. Mr. Scofield, in order of merit, was next the silver medalist, and Mr. Wood fourth. The examinations are said to have been unusually severe, and Messrs. Scofield and Wood are to be congratulated on the success that has attended their efforts.

Prefers his own People.

The following appears in this morning's Toronto Mail:—"The Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, rector of St. Luke's, Ashburnham, has declined the offer made to him of the position of assistant minister at St. George's church, Montreal. The reverend gentleman announced his decision to his congregation on Christmas day, who were very much pleased at the announcement. The position at St. George's was more lucrative and presented a wider sphere of usefulness, but Mr. Bradshaw prefers to labour in his present field, where he has many known, tried, and valued friends."

Wallace Point Bridge.

Last Wednesday the joint committee of the counties of Peterborough and Northumberland and Durham, met at Wallace Point to inspect the new bridge. Everything was found right, the draw working perfectly, and the bills of the contractor for the stonework, Mr. Charles Wynne, Mr. W. H. Law for the iron work, and the engineer, Mr. J. E. Belcher, amounting to $3,455, were ordered paid. The following complimentary resolution was adopted:—

Moved by Mr. Strickland, seconded by Mr. Campbell: That the joint committee of the above counties having examined the iron swing bridge, built by W. H. Law, at Wallace Point, hereby wish to express their approval of the satisfactory manner in which the bridge has been constructed and consider that this work ought to ensure him any work of the kind to be done in the future in these counties, and that this resolution be published with the minutes. Signed,

A. FERGUSON,
Chairman.

St. John's Church.

The Xmas services at this church were continued yesterday. The music was very fine and was rendered by a full choir. In the morning the anthem "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night," with base solo by Mr. Hammond, and the solo, "Awake, Arise," Miss A. Errett, were effectively rendered. In the evening Tours service in F was given. The anthem "O, Come All Ye Faithful," the solos being taken by Miss A. Errett, Miss Rush, Mr. A. P. Poussette and Mr. Hammond, was splendidly done. During the offertory the carol, "Sleep Holy Babe," was sung very excellently. Mr. Hampshire, the organist, played, as a closing voluntary, "For Unto Us a Child is Born," 'Handel.' The congregations were large, especially in the evening, when the sacred edifice was crowded. Mr. Hampshire is to be congratulated on the excellence of the musical services rendered during the day.

Curling Contest.

Two rinks of the Lindsay Curling Club arrived in town by the noon train to play the return match with the Peterborough rinks. They were met at the depot by representatives of the Peterborough Club, who escorted them to the Grand Central, where they were entertained at dinner. The rinks were composed as follows:—Lindsay.—Messrs. A. McDonnell, J. B. Smith, S. Hughes and J. D. Flavelle, skip; J. Cooper, Wm. McLennan, J. G. Edwards and T. E. Bradburn, skip. Peterborough—John McClelland, C. McGill, W. H. Budden and G. Dunsford, skip; C. A. Weller, R. S. Davidson, M. Millar and T. P. Attrill, skip. Cardinal Manning's Opinions.

He Opposes the Support of Catholics to Parnell.

LONDON, Dec. 26.—An article on the Irish question, supposed to have been written by Cardinal Manning, appears in this week's issue of the Tablet, the Catholic organ of England. The writer objects to the request of the Rev. Thos. Nulty, Catholic bishop of Meath, that the English Catholics continue to support Parnell's followers on the ground that Parnell's party desires separation, which might result in the banishment of Catholics from the English Parliament.

The patriotic union has issued a manifesto enlarging the scope of the organization so as to include loyalists of all creeds who desire to preserve the unity of the empire. A guarantee fund has been opened by the union, and is well supported.

St. Luke's School Room.

The Building Almost Completed—Christmas Festival, Concert, Distribution of Prizes and Gifts.

A Christmas festival was held in the almost completed new school rooms of St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, yesterday evening. The building, though not finished, was with considerable trouble prepared for the event. It is sufficiently advanced to give an idea of what it will be when completed. In size and appearance it resembles the church, and is very pretty and artistic. The chancel of the church will be extended next spring and the two buildings connected. The windows of the school room are all of rolled cathedral glass, and of artistic design. The walls have not yet been tinted nor is the wainscotting completed. The ceiling is arched, and is composed of pannelled basswood, oiled and varnished. The floor slopes from the south to the north end, where a platform is raised. At the southern end of the building A room for the intants' class will be divided from the main room by folding doors, and libraries will be partitioned off from the northern end, at each side of the platform. The work will be completed in about three weeks. Mr. H. Carveth has the contract of building the school, and Mr. Blackwell is architect. Workmen were engaged all day at the building and considerable trouble was experienced in preparing the room for the reception of the large audience which assembled. The infant class room containing benches, lumber, etc., was screened off and the large room was prepared as the audience room. Two large pine trees stood on the platform, loaded with gifts for the children of the Sunday School. At half-past seven the room was crowded with the Sunday School children, accompanied by parents and friends, who came with the intention of having a good time, and were not disappointed. Rev. Mr. Bradshaw presided, and in a pleasing address welcomed the large audience assembled and announced that a series of entertainments would be given in the school later on. He then called upon the children of the sunday school, who opened the evening's programme with a carol, "Ring the Bells." During the evening several other carols were given by the children in excellent style. Miss Revell and Mr. Cooper contributed two charming instrumental duets, piano and violin. Mr. Tytler sang the "Tar's Farewell," and "The Diver," in his usual good form. Miss Emma Strickland, contributed two excellent songs, "Summer Showers" and "Tit for Tat." Messrs. Geale and Carter each gave a capital song. Mr. Carter also gave a recitation. Miss Grundy contributed a laughable reading, and the concert part of the programme was concluded by an appropriate carol. Miss Revell accompanied the soloists and Miss McNabb the children. Great credit is due Miss McNabb and Miss Eva Tivey for the efficient manner in which they trained the children who sang the carols. Mr. Bradshaw then read a list of the pupils who had won prizes for attendance during the last year, and the prizes, valuable books, were presented to the winners. An attendance of at least 50 Sundays was required for first prize, 46 Sundays for second prize, and 43 for third prize. The following is the list:

FIRST PRIZES.

GIRLS.—Katie Payne, Mary J. McAnaren, Louisa Friend, Florence Tivey, Martha Beattie, Louisa Butcher, Susie Young, Katie Phillips, Carrie Bridgwater, Jennie Lissett, Maggie McWha and Alice Tivey.

BOYS.—John Crowe, Geo. Crowe, Geo. Phillips, James Star, Charles Young, Fred. Long, C. McFadden and Albert Hall.

SECOND PRIZES.

GIRLS.—Carrie Young, Clara Shuter, Fanny Packenham, Gerty Denne.

BOYS.—James Tighe, Albert Tivey, Alex. Bridgwater, Albert Roberts, Tommy Cathcart, E. Armstrong, Harry Phillips.

THIRD PRIZES.

GIRLS.—Eva Denne, Mary McFadden, Maude Packenham, Maude Deacon, Lizzie Long, Lizzie Tighe and Ada Curtis.

BOYS.—Geo. Overton, Merk Burnham, Samuel Adams and David Curtis.

After the distribution of prizes was completed, Santa Claus, who was well represented by Mr. R. B. Rogers, made his appearance and distributed gifts from off the Christmas trees to all the children of the school, causing much joy and considerable amusement. The festival ended by singing the National Anthem. An entertainment will be given in the school next Tuesday, when the room will be more comfortable and nearer completion.

Woodstock's Waterworks.

Some five weeks ago an agent in New York built a system of waterworks at Woodstock and leased them to the town for a term of five years. One of the provisions in the lease was that on one year's notice the corporation could elect to take over the waterworks at a valuation to be determined by two arbitrators being appointed, one by each of the respective parties and they to appoint a third. The town of Woodstock elected to take over these waterworks, and arbitrators have been appointed to determine a valuation. The Messrs. Hay, of Woodstock, have become the owners of the works. They have appointed Mr. Wallace Nesbitt, barrister, of Toronto, as their arbitrator, and Mr. Morrison, of Woodstock, has been appointed by the corporation of that town. These two have appointed Judge Sinclair as the third arbitrator in pursuance of the contract. The amount involved is about the sum of $26,000.

Premier Mowat Among His Constituents.

The Drumbo correspondent of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review says: "Hon. O. Mowat has been among his constituents this week. On Tuesday evening he attended a soiree given in the Presbyterian church, Drumbo. The Premier met with a most cordial reception, not the less enthusiastic owing to the fact that his constitutional victory in the license case was fresh in the minds of his constituents. Rev. Mr. Little and his congregation feel proud that Mr. Mowat should have left his onerous duties at this season of the year, at their request, to visit the village. The soiree was in all respects a grand success."

Ten persons have been drowned at Rouen by a collision between two boats.

A Peep at Venus.

Anybody who wishes to take a peep at another world than ours has only to look at the planet Venus, which now shines brilliantly in the south-west after sundown. Venus is of nearly the same size as the earth, and astronomers think it may possibly bear life not altogether unlike that upon the surface of our own planet. Yet at the distance of some 80,000,000 miles its huge bulk appears reduced to the dimensions of a star, reflecting the sunlight to us like a pellicle of silver. We inhabit a wonderful world, but our world belongs to a still more wonderful family of worlds.

Millbrook.

(From a Correspondent.)

[illegible] a young man named Bert Grayson took a friend, a Miss Moran, out driving with a spirited team of young horses. On the road, some distance north of here, a dog ran out and frightened the steeds, which ran away. Both were thrown out and knocked insensible, he striking his head on a stone and cutting it severely. She recovered first, and when found was holding his head, which was bleeding profusely. The horses, a short distance off, were so entangled in the harness and broken rig that they could not get away. He is now lying at Mr. A. Armstrong's, where Miss Moran is employed as a domestic, and is recovering slowly.

Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Dec. 28.—Stipendary Magistrate Rouleau and Sheriff Chapleau, of the North-west Territory, arrived here this morning from Regina. The Government will use these officials in endeavoring to conciliate the Bleu bolters.

J. C. Gough, who was the Tory candidate at the late election in Algoma, is here looking for his reward. Mr. Dawson, M.P., is also here urging that work on the Thunder Bay Colonization railway be pressed forward.

Mr. Peter White, M.P. for North Renfrew, does not hesitate to pronounce the appointments of Foster and McLelan to Cabinet positions as disgraceful. He says two weaker or more incompetent men could not be found in the whole Conservative party.

Mr. P. H. Bryce, Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, has issued a circular to the members of municipal councils, boards of health and the medical profession throughout the Province, soliciting information on the subject of legislation affecting the appointment of local boards of health. At present the appointment of these boards is made compulsory by Ontario statute, and the appointments being annual, these organizations necessarily lack that feature of permanency, that should, it seems, characterize the composition of such important bodies. To elicit information which may be a guide to possible legislative action, the answers are requested to the following questions:

1. Do you consider that the appointment of local boards of health should rest with the municipal councils?
2. Do you think it desirable that members of local boards of health should be elected by the people, in the same manner as municipal councillors?
3. Do you consider it advisable that persons should be at the same time members both of the municipal council and of the local board of health?
4. Do you think it desirable that members of local boards should serve for a term of years, a certain number of them retiring annually in rotation?
5. In England local sanitary authorities are elected for three years from amongst the ratepayers, one-third retiring each year. Do you think this system a desirable one to be adopted in Ontario?
6. What, in your opinion, is the best way of providing funds for municipal health work (a) By an annual grant of the council? (b) By accounts of local boards for expenditures being presented to the council for payment from time to time? (c) By a separate annual tax, such as the school tax?

It is to be hoped the parties receiving these circulars will give them the attention their importance deserves. Next to the public health itself, the means to be employed to preserve and protect it, is the most important question that can engage public attention. The result has largely justified the wisdom of the Government of Ontario in procuring the legislation embraced in the Public Health Act. In our own town we have felt the beneficial effects of the existence of boards of health appointed under that statute. What might have been a disastrous epidemic of smallpox was confined to one solitary case. In the adjoining county last year the efforts of the Provincial boards of health were successful in minimizing to the utmost the scourge of smallpox that prevailed. And the energetic action of the same body almost entirely deserves the credit of the recent precautions that prevented the scourge which almost decimated the population of Montreal, from making frightful inroads into the Province of Ontario. It is not within probability that, wanting the existence of the Provincial Board of Health and the local boards, congratulations on these points and scores of others which might be mentioned, would have been possible. It is no wonder, then, that the Provincial authorities are so desirous of making, as thoroughly effective as possible, legislation on sanitary matters, and it is hoped that the parties from whom they have solicited advice will fulfil the request to the fullest extent of their powers. It is only by such means that a measure, that has, for a merely tentative one, been proved to work so admirably, can be made perfect.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Vanderbilt just before he died paid a high tribute to the protection which does not protect in the United States, by ordering 30,000 tons of steel rails in England.

Agents of the Government who have been operating among the recalcitrant Bleus of Quebec with a view of inducing them to return to the Tory fold, report that the Mail's threat of an immediate dissolution of Parliament has almost spoiled their game, as no Quebec member can face a constituency now without pledging himself to turn the Government out. One vacant Senatorship has been promised to no less than four different members on condition that they vote with the Government next session.

To show what damage the Mail has done Toronto, not to mention the country at large it is stated that a Montreal wholesale house who were arranging to move their business to Toronto and were about to take a large warehouse, have written to their agent in that city to say that they have decided not to come to Toronto because owing to political disturbances and the anti-French feeling manifested by the Toronto papers, it will not do at this time for an English house to bring itself prominently before the business men by removing from Montreal to Toronto. The hope of carrying their eastern connection with them would not be realised, as they expected, owing to this bitter feeling fostered by certain newspapers.

Lindsay.

A sudden and melancholy event occurred in the death of Mr. S. Fee, at Sadler, Dundas & Co.'s mill on Monday last at noon. Mr. Fee accompanied two of his grandchildren, little boys, who were carrying dinner to their father, W. Fee, the mill engineer. He sat down on the steps leading to the engine-house, and presently fell back on the step on which he had been sitting. His son ran to his assistance and raised him, when he gave a few gasps and expired. Mr. Fee was seventy-five years of age, and was one of the early settlers of Lindsay.

On Tuesday last Mr. Hunter, of Inglis & Hunter, Toronto, manufacturing machinists, was in town, and went over the paper mill premises. The firm have received an order from the new proprietors of the mill to build a first-class 150 horse power Corliss condensing engine, and to have it ready as soon as possible. It is the intention of the proprietors to manufacture roofing and building felts and rough paper, and large quantities of rags will be required.—Post.

A Revolting Crime Record.

Terrible Texas Outrages.

GALVESTON, Tex., Dec. 27.—A special from Austin says two terrible crimes were committed here early on Thursday morning, which will result in three deaths and a number of lynchings. During the past year Austin has been horrified every few weeks by some dastardly attack on servant women, both white and colored. Fully a dozen servants have been outraged and eight murdered within this period. The crimes all bore the evidence of being perpetrated by the same persons. Every effort has been made to apprehend them, unusually skilled detectives being employed. Many negroes were arrested and put through a rigid examination, but nothing came of the efforts. Many citizens and some officials held to the theory that the crimes were perpetrated by some insane person, who cunningly devised how he could shed the women's blood without apprehension. About midnight on Tuesday W. H. Hancock, a well-to-do carpenter, residing at 203 Water St., was awakened by groans. Entering his wife's chamber he found a vacant bed covered with blood spots. He followed the trail out of the front door, around the house, and into the back yard, where he found his wife weltering in a pool of blood. She had been struck twice across the head and face with a blunt axe, and her skull was fractured. Although still alive the physicians say she will surely die from her wounds. Mrs. Hancock is 40 years of age and still a handsome woman. She bears an unblemished character. In the midst of the great excitement, produced by this outrage, the citizens were appalled at learning of a still greater crime that had been prepetrated about the same hour several squares distant. At 1 o'clock Mrs. Phillips, residing at 308 Hickory street, as awakened by the cries of her grand son. Entering the room of her son, James Phillips, she found the infant on the bed covered with blood, and Phillips lying senseless from a terrible blow across the head. The affrighted neighbors followed the bloody trail and found her body lying in the back yard of the adjoining premises. Death had resulted from a blow on the forehead with an axe, and across her body lay heavy rails. Her person had been outraged There is no clue in either case. The excitement on the streets yesterday was very great. Christmas was forgotten. The mayor called a meeting of citizens. Nearly a thousand responded to the call A committee on public safety was organized. The feeling over these last outrages is intense. A house to house search for the bloody-handed murderers will probably be made.

Lindley Last Night.

Last evening as predicted Bradburn's Opera House was packed to witness the presentation of the spectacular fairy extravaganza, the "Sleeping Beauty" and the grand transformation pantomime. The former play owing to it being the first presentation, did not run as smoothly as it will to-night, when it will be repeated. It abounded in exceedingly laughable situations, and of course Harry Lindley filled his role, and the whole piece with uproarious fun. The pantomime was immense fun, and peals of laughter greeted its presentations from beginning to end. The bill will be repeated to-night with new songs, etc.

Peterborough Curlers Victorious.

The Peterborough curlers were victorious at the return match between the two rinks of the Lindsay and town clubs, played in the rink here yesterday. The ice was in good condition, though sticky in some places, and a lively game was played throughout. A large number of spectators witnessed the game. The following are the rinks and the scores made:—

The game was well contested to the last shot. The Lindsay rinks left for home by the 5.15 train.

Police Court.

There was a full docket before Police Magistrate Dumble this morning.

R. S. Kelly, was charged by S. Wier with assault. The charge was proven and the prisoner was fined $5 or fifteen days.

Thos. Richie charged by Thos. Beavis with using profane language was dismissed, the charge not being proven.

Wm. Noble was charged by Thos. Beavis, with profane swearing and assault. Noble was found guilty of the offence. He was intoxicated at the time of offence. The Magistrate imposed on him a fine of $10 or twenty days.

Sidney Phillips, charged by Constable Adams with obstructing the public streets, at George and Simcoe streets, admitted that he had committed the offence, but pleaded that he could not help it, as he had fallen a little while before, hurting his leg, and was unable to proceed. Constable Adams on oath said that Phillips was intoxicated, refused to move on, and offered no excuse. He could not make fish of one and flesh of the other. The magistrate said this was too common an offence and must be stopped. He imposed a fine of $2 or ten days. Phillips accepted jail.

Outside Pleasure Resort.

The work of erecting the artificial toboggan slide at the Riverside park is progressing rapidly. The slide has reached a hight of 26 feet, and will be increased 10 feet more. When completed it will be 36 feet high, and 150 feet long, with a run of about 200 yards. The rink has been well patronized during the last week. It will be enlarged to double its size when weather will permit. Frost and snow is what is wanted to make the riverside rink and toboggan slide favorite winter pleasure resorts.

For the Holidays.

Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie have in stock for the Xmas trade, a very fine line of slippers of all kinds, specially suited for presents, and at prices much below the ordinary. Call in and see the stock, it is really handsome and cannot be surpassed in town. In every department they carry full lines, but make a specialty of fine hand-sewed work for ladies and gentlemen.

Business Change.

Mr. Geo. A. Schofield, who, at a recent examination of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, passed at the head of the list, has purchased the flourishing drug store of Mr. Geo. W. Morgan, and will, it is understood, take possession the 1st day of January. Mr. Schofield has had a large experience with Mr. John McKee, and he will doubtless do a thriving trade in the business he has assumed. The EXAMINER, while commending him to the confidence of the public, takes pleasure in wishing him the success his business ability deserves.

New Telephone Directory.

Telephone subscribers are notified that the new lists are ready for distribution and that there will be a change in the company's trunk line rates on 1st January next. The new book is accompanied by a map, showing the immense additions made to the system in Ontario during the year, and there is also a list of connected places, giving the names of 17 cities and 150 towns and villages and including almost every place of importance between Windsor and Sarnia in the west, and Montreal and the eastern townships in the east. The tariff changes are principally in favor of the public; the distances for which it is possible to speak for 25 and 50 cents being increased by 15 and 30 miles respectively, and the 50 cent rate formerly payable by non-subscribers being reduced to 40 cents. Messages by the word have been done away with except that any subscriber or non-subscriber is always at liberty to send a twenty-word message to his correspondent instead of having a conversation with him, paying the same as he would for the conversation, and he is also entitled to an answer the same day free of charge.

Haultian, several presents for children; Mrs. T. G. Hazlitt, oranges; Mrs. R. Rubidge, quantity of cake; Miss Mary Sanderson, woollen jackets and dolls; Miss Martha Dickson, cake; Miss Brown, (Ashburnham) hats for several girls; Mr. Braden, large parcel cream candy; Mr. Stock, large fruit cake. Mrs. Duff wishes also to take this opportunity of thanking Mrs. Wallis, the President of the "Hazel Brae" Working Committee, and through Mrs. Wallis, the ladies who have so kindly met from time to time at the Home and have given such valuable assistance in replenishing the children's outfits. The materials contributed by these ladies and the amount of sewing done would of themselves make a goodly list.

Special Meeting—Important.

At the regular Board meeting held to-day, composed of the following Directors, viz., the Hon. John Hamilton, John Hope, Esq., A. Murray, Esq., and Robt. Simms, Esq., Montreal, it was unanimously resolved to hold a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the British Empire Mutual Life Insurance Company at the Company's offices (formerly the Exchange Bank, Montreal,) on the 5th proximo, to report on all applications received on or before that date, entitling the assured to this year's bonus. This is a very liberal offer and is in keeping with the honorable and liberal dealings of the British Empire Mutual Life Insurance Co., which was established in 1847. Applications received by the General Agent, E. E. Henderson, Peterborough, up to the 4th proximo, inclusive, will share in this year's bonus (1885).

Water Works Company.

A Record of Operations.

The past year has been a most favorable one, as far as weather in concerned, for the work of the Company, and persons who were accustomed to see pipe-laying operations on the different streets will be interested in knowing what the Company has been doing the past season.

As is generally known, the Company commenced operations in the spring of 1882. In the fall of that year they were pumping, having only one main on George street. Since that time there have been laid over 14,000 feet, or nearly three miles, of main pipe on different streets, and now their mains reach to Park street on the west and Water street on the east. This year the Company has laid over a mile and a half of mains, and it is proposed during the coming year to lay about two miles to comply with the contract with the town.

NEXT YEAR'S PROGRAMME.

The company has contracted for necessary material, and it is now being delivered in their yards. It estimates that its expenditure next year will be in the neighborhood of $15,000. The company expends a large sum yearly in wages, the pay sheet this year averaging $500 per month.

The number of services laid in the early days was few, owing, no doubt, to a large extent, to the fact that the company charged for laying the service from the main. Since 1884, however, the company has adopted the same rules as in Toronto and Ottawa, where the works are owned by the corporation and the services are laid free to the street line. Since the time mentioned, the number of water-takers has largely increased, and they now represent a total of about 200. The directors of the company are Messrs. John Burnham, Wm. Cluxton, R. A. Morrow, Charles Stapleton, and R. P. Boucher, Mr. John Burnham being president. Mr. W. Henderson is superintendent, and Mr. R. B. Martin pipe-layer.

"El Padre" Cigars.

Universally acknowledged to be the finest 10c cigar manufactured. Don't be persuaded to take other brands. No chemicals or artificial flavoring used.

The virtue of Carbolic Acid for healing, cleansing and purifying is well known; but from the many modes of applying it, the public is uncertain how best to use it. To meet that want, McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate is prepared, and may be used with confidence. Do not be misled. Take only McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate. Sold at J. McKee's Drug Store. d177eodw52

My horse was lame for eighteen months the cords from the knee down were swollen and hard, a bony deposit around the hoof similar to a ringbone. I used eleven $1 bottles of Spavin Cure and one 50 cent bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia. Obtained more benefit from the one bottle than from all the others. Continued the use of the Giles' Liniment—horse is now well. JAMES J. GITTY, Rondout, Ulster Co, N Y. Sold by J. McKee. d177eodw52

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable," or "El Padre" brand of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pay them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby.

What We May Expect.

The Fire Brigade band out again to-night,
And that they won't make another three mile trip that won't "draw."

All candidates to begin their election cards as follows: "Ladies and gentlemen."

Young men to think about "turning over a new leaf."

The coming rain to spoil the skating and no end of fun, on Little Lake.

A good many of the new candidates to be "drawn" before the day of the race.

The Wm. English canoe factory to be soon running a gas engine.

The junior curlers to put on airs after their scoring yesterday.

And the veterans to say, patronizingly, "Verra guid for raw chiels."

Moderate to fresh winds; cloudy, mild weather, with rain.

"Queen's Own."

REGISTERED.

The trade are respectfully requested to send in their orders without delay, if they desire to have them filled promptly. S. DAVIS & SONS, Factories, Cote St., Montreal. Toronto Branch:—34 Church St.

British Politics.

Plans of Rival Leaders for the Future Government of Ireland—A Huge Struggle in Prospect.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—Several leading newspapers are advocating what would have seemed a preposterous thing a few months ago, but which the revolutionary propositions for Home Rule and practical Irish separation have prepared the public to receive with comparative patience. This is no less than that the Queen, in other words the Conservative Ministry, shall dissolve Parliament and order a new election, the pretext being afforded by the submission of such measures as shall force the campaign upon the question of the secession of Ireland. Thus, for the first time, is introduced in English politics a word which aroused such passions in American politics twenty-five years ago, and which stands for so important a part of American history. Secession is likely to be as hateful a cry in the mouths of Englishmen using it to arouse the suspicion of Parnellites' purposes as it was when uttered by the politicians of the North in condemnation of the threatened blow at the constitution. Probably no rallying cry could be stronger in arousing prejudices and the unalterable opposition of every Briton, be he Tory, Whig or Radical, and Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Parnell would be a bold statesman, indeed, if they were to face it without modifying their supposed alliance in some way, so as to rob the battle-cry (secession) of its plausibility. The provisions of the measure to be proposed by Lord Salisbury's Government for the amendment of the laws affecting Ireland were formally submitted to Her Majesty yesterday for approval. They have been pretty thoroughly ventilated in the press, having become known unofficially but with substantial accuracy in a sub rosa manner which defies the long keeping of state secrets. The measure falls so far short of the Irish demands and the Liberal's willingness to concede, that public attention will naturally be diverted from it to the measure which will be brought forward by Mr. Gladstone and over which will take place one of the greatest contests known to parliamentary history.

St. Andrew's S. S. Entertainment.

The Annual Sunday School Tea and Musical and Literary Entertainment—A Capital Programme by the School Pupils—Distribution of Prizes.

The annual entertainment in connection with St. Andrew's Presbyterian Sunday School was held in the school room yesterday evening. The occasion was a source of pleasure and profit to the children of the school. Tea was served in the school room by the ladies of the church from six o'clock until after seven. At seven o'clock the doors were thrown open for the admission of the parents and friends of the children, who assembled in large numbers to enjoy the musical and literary entertainment which followed the tea. A lengthy and choice programme was rendered in a creditable and pleasing manner by the children, assisted by Miss Edmison, as organ accompanist. Rev. Mr. Bell acted as chairman, and performed the functions of that office in his usual pleasant manner, controlling the small fry perfectly. The entertainment was opened by singing the hymn "Brightly Gleams Our Banner," followed by an address of welcome by Geo. Edmison. Short, spicy and select recitations and dialogues, interspersed with appropriate songs and carols, followed in quick succession. A novel feature of the entertainment was an acrostic, by eighteen little children, all lettered so as to read "Jesus is our Shepherd." Each one repeated a verse beginning with the letter with which he or she was labelled. A sailor song by Herbert King, in sailor costume, given in excellent style and voice, was deservedly applauded, as was also a song by little Terrot Glover, a boy of about four years of age. Misses Ella and Hattie White also contributed songs. Misses Ella Glover, Aggie Paterson, Ethel Urquhart and Louisa Karr, and Masters Rolly Glover and Kenneth McClelland gave recitations. During the evening prizes were awarded for attendance and committing the shorter chatechism to memory. May McFarlane, Martha Huff and Albert Martin were awarded first prizes for attending Sunday school every Sunday during the year, and Eliza Martin and John King, second prizes for attending fifty-one Sundays during the year. Each was presented with a beautiful Bible. John VanEvery received a large and well-bound book of adventures for repeating without a mistake the first half of the shorter chatechism. In concluding the programme, Master John VanEvery gave a short address, thanking the audience for their kind attention and wishing all a happy New Year. "A Happy New Year" was then sung, and the entertainment concluded by Rev. Mr. Bell pronouncing the benediction.

W. H. Vanderbilt's will was admitted to probate yesterday by the Surrogate.

Nibbling at Home Rule.

A Committee of the Cabinet to Draft a Measure.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer and leader of the house of commons; Sir Richard Cross, home secretary; Edward Stanhope, vice-president of the council, and Arthur Balfour, president of the local government board, have been appointed a committee of the cabinet to draft a measure of local government for the whole kingdom.

The Telegraph, commenting to-day on the question of Home Rule for Ireland, says: "The Government will resist to its utmost ability any scheme giving an Irish parliament control of the police force in Ireland."

Lord Randolph Churchill is in Ireland. It is thought his visit is for the purpose of obtaining information bearing on the Irish queston to be used at a Cabinet council to be held shortly.

A Cabinet council will be held on Saturday next for the purpose of discussing drafts of the bills which the Government intend to lay before Parliament in the coming session.

"The Serenade Season."

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—We crave permission in the columns of your paper to inform the citizens generally, and Messrs. Rutherford and Craig and the Fire Brigade Band in particular, that the City Band is not defunct; no, not by a large majority. They propose, as in former years, to do themselves the honor of calling upon the citizens, and will leave it to them to decide as to whether or not they are deserving of recognition at their hands. We would respectfully remind them that on the occasion of the welcome to the returned volunteers it was the "old reliable," the City Band who were on hand, while the regimental band, the band with the red coats on, were not to be had. As for carrying away instruments, we would ask by what authority certain former members of the City Band carried away certain instruments? The Fire Brigade Band received these men with open arms, but the citizens need not imagine that the instruments thus carried away will become the property of the town because the players became the property of the Fire Brigade Band. In conclusion we desire to state that if the citizens are generously disposed towards maintaining a separate and independent band, and a purely city band, they may rest assured that the funds will be applied to the credit of the band, and not go into the pockets of individual members. As for the foreign talent, none will take part in the serenade but old and bona fide members of the City Band.

Yours,
CITY BAND.

The Brandon District.

A favorable view of the progress and prospects of settlers throughout Manitoba generally, and in the Brandon district in particular, is given by Mr. Donald McEwen to the Toronto World. He was formerly a resident of Toronto, but has shown his faith in the new country by purchasing a section (640 acres) about four miles from Brandon, and removing his family thither. He has 200 acres odd broken up, the greater part of which was ploughed last fall, and is ready for seeding when the time comes. The closing season of this year was a remarkably fine one, and highly favorable for fall ploughing and other outdoor operations. In his neighborhood the ploughs were kept going up to about the middle of November. It is not as difficult as some people in the East imagine to keep cattle there through the winter. The prairie grass is fine, nourishing food, and puts them in such heart that they come out in good condition in the spring. Fowls can be kept through the winter with little trouble, and to any farmer with a fair show of a number of acres under crop their feed costs practically nothing. From Mr. McEwen's remarks, and information to the same effect from other sources, we judge that the days are over for Manitoba getting her supplies of butter and eggs from Ontario. The new country, it is shown, can produce several other things besides wheat. Barley has already become a crop of some importance, and in the Brandon districts loads of oats weighing 40 to 46 pounds to the bushel are frequently brought to market. The first week in November one grain firm in Brandon bought 6000 bushels of barley and 6000 bushels of oats. Already it can be seen that out there the rule is to be—cheap living for the people, in the shape of flour, meal, potatoes, meat, eggs and dairy products, with abundance of food for live stock of all kinds. And, as if to supply what would otherwise have been a much felt want, it is now certain that there is abundance of coal, with easy conditions of mining and transportation.

It may startle the most of us to hear of its being claimed for Brandon that it is already the largest farmers' delivery grain market in Canada. Grain delivery commenced there about the middle of October, and by the 31st the total of wheat received by buyers footed up to 140,218 bushels. The first week of November the receipts from farmer's wagons were 99,610 bushels; and during the rest of the month they ranged from 12,000 to 16,000 bushels per day. All grain offered there—frosted wheat included, though there was not very much of it—found ready market, and at prices satisfactory to the farmers.

It is said that E. H. Goff and his New York friends will have the Montreal people who go there to proceed against him, arrested on their arrival.

DEATH OF HON. ADAM CROOKS

In a brief telegraphic despatch in yesterday's impression, the death of Hon. Adam Crooks, formerly Minister of Education for Ontario, was noted. He died on Monday at the institution in New York State, where he has been for the last two years. Mr. Crooks was born in West Flamboro' in 1827, and was educated at Upper Canada College and Toronto University. He was elected to the Legislature for West Toronto in 1871, taking the office of Attorney-General. He was transferred to the Provincial Treasurership and afterwards to the Department of Education. More than two years ago his reason failed, and his seat had to be declared vacant. He was removed to a private asylum and well cared for until his death. Mr. Crooks was an accomplished scholar and a staunch Liberal, and there was general sorrow throughout the Province at his great affliction, from which death has now released him.

The Poets and Poetry of Canada.

[No. 24.]

Rev. William Wye Smith.

"Poetry is the blossom and the fragrance of all human knowledge, human thoughts, human passions, emotion, language."
COLERIDGE. Biographia Literaria.

The subject of this sketch, although born in the land of heather, has resided so many eventful years in this country, and has so closely identified himself with its interests, that he is much more of a Canadian than hundreds that are "to the manor born." He is a native of Jedburgh, Scotland, and was born there on the 18th of March, 1827. He is now a resident of Newmarket, and has been in the active ministry of the Congregational Church since 1865, a period of twenty years.

When quite young he came with his parents to America, and resided for a time in New York, where he attended school. When young Smith was ten years of age, the family removed to Canada and here subsequently he taught school. With the savings from his meagre salary as teacher at St. George, Smith went back to New York and studied in the University Grammar School there, his main object being to acquire a knowledge of classics and modern languages. There he first gave evidence of a love for poetry and he contributed short pieces to the poets' corner in the Saturday Emporium. From that time until the present his pen has rarely been idle, and in the lapse of years he has developed a style and force of expression which has gained him applause from a discerning and thoughtful public.

Having completed his education, Mr. Smith returned to Canada in 1849 and again tried school teaching as a profession.

Shortly after he bade adieu to the ferule and the desk and commenced business at St. George. In 1855 he removed to Owen Sound, and here he cultivated his literary powers assiduously, acting as paid contributor to the Times. On the retirement of the proprietor of the Owen Sound Times, Mr. Smith assumed the control of the paper, but this position he soon after relinquished. From 1860 to 1864 he edited the Sunday School Dial, the first illustrated children's paper in the province. He also compiled a gazetteer of the County of Grey, which issued from the press in 1865. It was a carefully prepared work and contained much of interest, embracing over 300 pages.

He has been intimately connected with the press for a lengthened period. For over a decade he was the Canadian correspondent of the Edinburgh Daily Review and he acted as special commissioner for the same journal at the Centennial Exhibition in 1876. In this paper many of his poetical productions have appeared at various times, and he has also written for the Anglo-American and British American Magazines. In 1865 he accepted an invitation to become the pastor of the Congregational Church at Listowel, and from thence he removed to act in a similar capacity at Newmarket, where, as we have said, he still resides.

In 1850 he published a work entitled "Alason and other poems," which the press favorably criticized, and which had a characteristic preface, also written by the author. Here he said, "As I began rhyming, not to please the public, but to please myself, and as I have so far succeeded as to have got considerably into my own good graces—if the public should think anything I have written worthy of hearing I should be highly pleased with the multiplication of my audiences, and may be so far encouraged as to come forward with something better at a future time. But if, on the other hand, I be deemed an intruder, I shall reduce my audiences to the original unit, and go on piping as usual!"

There is a charming naivete about such a statement. It showed the author's determination to succeed and his indifference both to praise and blame. We are sure he never had cause to complain of lack of sympathy and encouragement, and his experience is a lesson to all young authors to persevere.

The Montreal Pilot said of his little volume: "It exemplifies correct taste, elegant diction and true genius"; while the Toronto Globe asserted that "many of the stanzas have a beauty and richness of imagination that well sustain the characters."

In 1854 Mr. Smith competed for a prize of $100, which was offered by the Sons of Temperance for the best essay on the question, "Shall we have a prohibitory liquor law?" There were twenty-two competitors, but Mr. Smith, with a clever pamphlet of eight pages, carried off the reward. The Gospel Tribune said of his treatise: "The author carries his readers as irresistibly to his conclusions as the demonstration of a problem in Euclid."

As a hymn writer Mr. Smith has achieved an enviable reputation. His sacred songs are tender and sympathetic in tone, scriptural in ideas, plain and simple in style, evangelic and holy in their teaching and eminently calculated to lead people to worship the Eternal in spirit and in truth.

His poems, with which we are now mainly concerned, are both simple and natural, replete with feeling, full of fire and unction, while his songs are musical and graceful, giving no slight proof of the marks of true genius as a poet and versifier. We trust he may long be spared to give our Dominion the benefit of his productions, and to reap an ample reward for his exertions as a literary man.

We can only produce here a few examples of Mr. Smith's poetry, but enough, we trust, to make our readers thirst for more.

As an example of his Scottish pieces we select

WEE JEANIE.

Jeanie's no the noble woman
Wait the years that yet are comin'—
Jeanie's but a bairn and human,
Trippin o'er the lea;

Yet for e'en, the deepest, bluest
Yet for heart, the sweetest, truest
Graces maist, and faults the fewest
First and fairest she.

Bonnie Jeanie, sweet wee Jeanie,
Trippin' ower the lea;
As the past, sae yet the future,
Blessings only see.

If some angel, downward pressing,
"Shook his wings" and breathed a blessing,
Thou hast caught his sweet caressing,
On lip, and brow, and e'e.

Gowd on every tress reposes,
Love's ain hue thy cheek discloses,
And like lintie 'mang the roses
Is thy voice to me.

Bonnie Jeanie etc

Happy he wha wins thy favour,
Blossom o' the mountain heather!
While the rolling years may gather
Sober thought to me.

But my youth, could I begin it,
Love and life, had I to win it,
Life wi' my sweet Jeanie in it,
Happy could I be.

Bonnie Jeanie, etc.

There is a great many excellent poems we should like to quote, but we close with one of his patriotic pieces, not so tender and attractive as the foregoing, yet evincing love of country, without which no one can aspire to be a true poet. The piece we have reference to is entitled.—

LAKE ERIE.

I looked upon Lake Erie
Before I looked on thee.
And I'll not leave it for the gold
That lies beyond the sea:—
Its waves come leaping to my hand,
As if they feared I'd go
I look upon Lake Erie,
And my heart gives answer "no!"

Upon the shores of Erie,
My cradle-song was sung;
And round its caves, and o'er its deeps,
My childish shoutings rung;
Nor think my heart can e'er forget
The old love and the true
Upon the shores of Erie
That round its magic threw.

Thou bid'st me seek some other land
Away beyond the Line,
Where gold is like the river sands
And spice grows like the pine
I've heard it all—yet Canada
Has earned so well my love,
That when I seek some other land
'Twill be the land above!

Hale and Hearty Yet.

Mr. Gladstone Celebrates His 76th Birthday Anniversary.

HAWARDEN, Dec. 29.—To-day is the 76th anniversary of the birth of the Hon. William Ewart Gladstone. During the morning he was the recipient of 400 letters, congratulating him on having attained his 76th year. Mr. Gladstone left his residence at daybreak and walked to the village church where services were held. Notwithstanding the sleet and snow falling, the walk did not seem to fatigue Mr. Gladstone as he appeared quite hearty when returning home after the service.

Poor Port Hope.

The ratepayers of Port Hope, says the Guide, have now to face the results of two years of Tory municipal rule. We say "Tory municipal rule," because the majorities in the Council during the last two years were selected by local Tory wire-pullers, on account of their willingness to be managed by the "machine." The proceedings of the Council have therefore been one of unusual character, viz., an utter disregard for the interests of the town and an incomprehensible indifference as to the day of reckoning that would have to be reached, sooner or later. The same municipal cranks that have been running the Council have managed to manipulate the affairs of the Harbor Board, so that trade has been driven from the harbor, and the receipts will not meet the ordinary expenditure. To distract public attention from the unenviable mess thus created by the doings of the Town Councillors and Harbor Commissioners, the wire-pullers ask the School Board to lower the salaries of all the teachers in the municipality. That red herring trick, though, will not prove successful. Mayor-elect Clemes would have the ratepayers believe that matters are not as bad as they seem. Well, we have only to say that in the darkest days of the Municipal Loan Fund indebtedness, a financial outlook was not more discouraging for Port Hope than it is at this moment. Had the leading Tory wire-pullers of the town not bowled themselves hoarse in opposition to the sale of the Harbour to the Midland Railway a few years ago, $17,000 in cash would have been received by the town from that corporation, and Port Hope Harbor would now be crowded with lake marine, instead of being deserted by almost every shipper on the lakes. But these men who could not manage their own business successfully, have thrust themselves into municipal management, only to succeed in muddling the affairs of the town so as to place unheard of burdens upon us. The taxpayers will now have to face the music; and we very much mistake the state of affairs, if the general public will not take a greater interest in municipal matters a year from now than they did a year or two years ago. Tory wire-pulling has brought things to their present deplorable state, and it is just as well for those who have been so free in rolling up the large floating indebtedness should have the pleasure of collecting the taxes necessary to pay it off. By the time that is done the ratepayers will be better able to judge these men by their fruit. The entire municipal machinery has been run for years to suit local Tory wire-pullers, and now we must pay handsomely for the privilege that was conferred upon these local parasites.

MONTREAL'S MATERIAL PROGRESS.

Astonishing Advance in Cigar Manufacturing.

THE TWO UNRIVALLED BRANDS.

(From the Mail.)

MONTREAL, Dec. 11.—The material progress which this commercial city has made during the present year is massive buildings for manufactories and warehouses cannot be very well reconciled with the complaints which are so often heard regarding business being dull and unprofitable. In no commercial centre probably on the whole continent of America, of its size, has there been so many great structures erected within the past twelve months for the hum of industry to be carried on as in Montreal. Go where one will throughout the city he finds some gigantic building raising its massive walls up into the clouds almost, or receiving the finishing touches of the painter's art, to make them ready for their hundreds of toiling hands that will be so soon busily employed within. Among the very largest and most substantial buildings, in fact a modern palace it might be justly termed, that is on the eve of receiving its five or six hundred operatives, is that of situated on Cote street, almost in the centre of the city. This huge block, towering up seven storeys, is not surpassed, or probably equalled, by any erection of the kind in America. The front is adorned with two picturesque towers, surmounting the apex, massive in their proportions, and from the blending of the body of brick with finished stone trimmings, are ornamental in a remarkably striking degree. The exterior is outrivalled by the interior, which has drawn out the superior talent of the architect in making it the most complete and tasteful business structure in all its various departments probably in Canada. The factory covers an area of 9,328 square feet, being 88 feet front and 106 feet deep. The staircases are built in the towers outside the building, and are separated from the interior by wrought iron doors. The water closets and steam elevators are built in detached towers, thereby leaving the capacious flats completely clear. The furnace and Brush boilers are in a separate building in the rear, and the steam is conveyed to the engine and throughout the building by iron pipes. All the doors are of iron, and the factory is designed in every respect to be impervious to fire.

S. DAVIS AND SONS' CIGAR FACTORY,

The basement or first flat will be used for tobacco steaming process.

The second flat will be devoted to the general and shipping offices.

Third flat will be utilized for manufacturing and preparing leaf.

Fourth flat for males engaged in rolling cigars.

Fifth flat for females engaged in same process.

Sixth flat for employes engaged in packing and sorting cigars.

Seventh flat for drying leaf.

Each flat has an office for the superintendent, situated in the front, the windows being of coloured glass. Wardrobes, washing and other conveniences for the operatives are fitted up in a complete style on each flat. The building throughout will be illuminated with incandescent electric light, for which Messrs. Davis & Sons are now negotiating. The interior is at present in progress of being tinted all over in the finest taste, and will add materially to the beautiful ensemble of its appearance. Vaults, special storage rooms, and separate departments have been introduced, and next summer an extensive two-storey warehouse for storing stock will be erected adjoining the factory. The business that will be carried on in this monster pile of buildings had a comparatively small beginning, but after nearly a quarter of a century of successful business management of Mr. S. Davis, at first, but of late with the assistance of his three sons in the supervision, it has developed into a huge traffic, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, and to Europe, the brands of cigars which are turned out having become known and appreciated the world over, for they are shipped to all points of the globe. The leading brands are Cable and El Padre, the former being the most popular 5 cent, and the latter 10 cent, cigar in the market. A specialty with the firm is the fine quality of the tobacco used in the manufacture of all classes of cigars. The trade done by the firm has been rapidly increasing from year to year, and the greatest volume of progress yet was during the past twelve months. It surely proves when people go on expending more and more in what is a harmless luxury, that the country is not retrogressing in prosperity, at least such is the opinion of the head of this prominent manufacturing firm. It only remains to state that the architect of the building is Mr. A. F. Dunlop, and it reflects high credit on his abilities and designing talent. The masonry has been executed by Mr. Lyall, the carpenter work by Mr. McIntyre, and the plumbing by Mr. J. Thibeaut.

The total cost will be from $75,000 to $100,000, including the site.

CONCERNING

Christmas and New Year!

SENSIBLE AND SEASONABLE!

This is particularly the season of giving. Everybody has, or should have, a present to make to somebody else. The question of the hour is

WHAT SHALL I GIVE?

Come to our FANCY GOODS DEPARTMENT and you will have a hundred answers. The more useful the article the more appreciated it will be by the receiver. Now, in looking after Christmas presents, it should be the aim of everyone to select something that will be useful as well as ornamental.

Nothing can be more acceptable or appropriate than a nice WOOL HOOD or JACKET for a little girl; a warm, comfortable CLOUD or KNITTED SQUARE for a lady; a pair of handsome fur-top lined KID MITTS or GAUNTLETS for either lady or gentleman; or a nice SCARF or SILK HANDKERCHIEF for each and everybody.

We have in addition many nice things cheap, fresh and inviting, and as the busy season is drawing to a close, all can be satisfied that they

Consecration Meeting.

The Rev. A. H. Munro will conduct a consecration meeting in the Y.M.C.A. rooms on New Year's day, from 9.45 to 10.45 a.m., to which all are invited.

New Year's Reception.

Young men are reminded that they have an invitation to "call" on New Year's afternoon, at the Y.M.C.A. rooms, where a pleasant reception will be held.

Fire Brigade Band.

The Fire Brigade band will not give any more evening serenades nor play in public till New Year's day, when they will have the pleasure of paying their respects to their old friends.

The New Town Offices.

The town officials are gradually moving into their new premises, Mr. C.D. McDonald, Town Clerk and Treasurer, has transferred the most of his effects to his handsome new offices, and Mr. Wm. Cumming, Collector, is on the move to-day. The Collectors large safe gave a number of men, assisted by tackle, etc., considerable trouble in taking it down stairs. It is not probable that the new council chamber will be ready for the new council. The butter market is spoken of as their first place of meeting.

The Hospital.

The patients in the Nicholls Hospital had a pleasant time on Christmas day. As Santa Claus did not forget to bring the sick, books and useful and pretty articles. They also had an excellent dinner of turkey, vegetables, pudding and fruits. The following ladies are heartily thanked for their Christmas gifts to the hospital:—Mrs. General Haultain, books, pictures and texts; Mrs. Smith, spiced loaf; Mrs. Vernon, oranges; Mrs. Dr. Halliday, turkey; Miss Semple, cards and neckties.

Obituary.

Yesterday there passed away to her rest, at the residence of her son, Mr. T. G. Gillespie, Jane White, relict of the late Richard Gillespie, in the 78th year of her age. Deceased was a native of Scotland and came to Canada in 1849, and settled in Peterborough. After living here some seven years she removed with her husband to Otonabee, on the farm now occupied by Mr. Peter Gillespie, who still follows the business of miller. The family was a large one, for though seven children have died, Mrs. Gillespie leaves behind her four sons, Peter, John, Alexander and T.G., and one daughter, Mrs. A. Thompson, of Otonabee. The father died 26 years ago, and in 1869 Mrs. Gillespie came to town to live with her son, Mr. T. G. Gillespie, where she remained till the day of her death. In religion Mrs. Gillespie was a devoted Presbyterian. She was widely known and respected and no doubt her funeral, which takes place on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, will be largely attended.

Solemnchely's Soliloquy.

Mr. Solemnoholy sat in his fathers hall, hugging the coal stove to keep himself warm, and to himself soliloquized thusly: "Christmas is past and gone and the new year is fast approaching. Contrary to my earnest desire and in the face of my fame and fortune I am still a miserable bachelor. My fortune have I squandered in presents for the angelic object of my affections. Towards me her heart is yet so cold that whem I go near her my blood chills in my viens, and my hearts beats as slow as the tread of a policeman. My eyelids cease to wink and my tongue freezes to my teeth with very awe. My smile is far, far away and will not come again. Is there no hope for the bashful, the nerveless, the victimized me. Is there no wife—" Just then the door bell rang the door opened as if by magic and a paper came skidding over the floor. It was the EXAMINER. Glad to change the subject he pondered o'er its pages. His attention was caught by D. Belleghem's local squib. His eyes reflected the coal stove like magic lanterns. He clapped his hands and hugged himself, exclaiming, "Now I have it! I'll buy a nice little house and get Mr. Belleghem to furnish it throughout. She certainly cannot refuse me then. I will see her at the reception at the Y.M.C.A. rooms on New Year's day and propose, and get married in time to attend the "At Home" at George street church in the evening. If the furniture does not win her for me she'll never be won, and we'll never be one."

Fine Art.

There is now on exhibition in the window of Messrs. Ormond and Walsh, a bust life-size portrait in oil of Mr. Wm. Loch. The portrait is an excellent one, and is the production of a Toronto artist.

Greenwich Snow Shovels, the best and strongest, 35c. each, or three for $1.00.—GEO. STETHEM.

The creek immediately above Patterson's dam is being used as a skating rink by the boys and girls of the neighborhood. It is well lighted at night by an adjacent gas lamp and is quite popular.

Migratory Movements.

Mr. D. L. Sanderson, P. L. S., of Port Perry, and Mr. R. S. Latimer, town, left today for Winnipeg, their ultimate destination being Whitemouth, about fifty miles beyond that city. They go to enter upon a surveying expedition. Mr. Alex. Elliott, of the C. P. R. up-town agency, supplied the tick-

Christmas Cheer at the "Golden Lion."

Every department full of choice new goods with many specialties for the festive season. Every intending purchaser should visit the establishment to be convinced of the variety and bargains now being offered by Fair, Van-Every & Co'y.

Market Mems.

There was a very slim market this morning owing to the state of the weather and the poor roads. It being a good day for weighing hay, there were a number of loads on the market. Quotations were:—Butter, in prints, 16c. to 18c.; eggs, 18c. to 22c.; geese, 60c.; turkeys, 75c. to $1.00; beef per cwt., $4.00 to $5.50; pork, $4.50 to $5.50; hay per ton, $11.00 to $14.00.

For the Holidays.

Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie have in stock for the Xmas trade, a very fine line of slippers of all kinds, specially suited for presents, and at prices much below the ordinary. Call in and see the stock, it is really handsome and cannot be surpassed in town. In every department they carry full lines, but make a specialty of fine hand-sewed work for ladies and gentlemen.

Royal Black Knights.

Since Monday last, Mr. W. H. Smith, Grand Lecturer, for British North America, of the Royal Black Knights of Ireland, has been in town, giving to the members of Preceptory No. 261 of the Black Knights, instructions in the afternoon and holding degree meetings in the evenings, and the Knights of the order have received great benefit from their association with so expert a workman. Mr. Smith leaves to-morrow for Chicago, the United States, as far as the Royal Black Knights are concerned, being within his jurisdiction.

What They are Saying.

I've been in harness for twenty-one years. —Councillor Rutherford.

True for you, and many a happy collgiue we've had together round the council board. —Councillor McNaughton.

And I was never defeated but once.—Councillor Rutherford.

But that's not saying that you won't be defeated once—Moore.

I want a new sidewalk in front of my property. —The average ratepayer.

You shall have it.—The candidates.

And a boulevard too.—The new candidates.

The candidates had better employ us to canvass; well [run 'em all in.—The police force.

What We May Expect.

The new Town Council to meet in the butter market.

Treasurer Macdonald and Collector Cumming to be installed in their new quarters by New Year's day.

The "no skating" sign to be hung out at the rink if this weather lasts.

The reserved seat plan for the Rock Harmonican concert to fill up rapidly.

Not much betting on the elections.

Every voter's health to be diligently inquired after.

Every lady voter to be told how young she looks.

No excursions to Pontypool at present.

East and south winds; cloudy to rainy weather.

Attained His Majority.

Mr. A. Rutherford, member of the Council for No. 3 Ward, is the veteran of the Council. This year he has reached his majority—is of age—having completed his twenty-first year as member of the Council. He has not, however, been continuously a member, having been out of the Council in '72-'73. He claims that he has only been defeated once, in 1876, when, however, the gentleman who replaced him resigned at the end of six months, and Mr. Rutherford was elected for the balance of the year by acclamation. There are few municipal politicians that have for so long a time enjoyed the confidence of the ratepayers of a Ward, and though Mr. Rutherford feels sanguine of being returned, he would have no ground for complaint if the decision of the electors should place him in the ranks of ordinary citizens, after keeping him a score and one years in harness.

Runaway Accident.

A very lively runaway occurred last night about 12 o'clock, by which Mr. John Moloney, reeve of Douro, was severely shaken up. It seems he was leaving Cavanagh's hotel about midnight, when getting into his waggon the horses started to run. He succeeded in getting in, but could not control the horses. They ran down Water street, until they passed the market, where they turned and ran up George street. In front of Mr. John Garvey's they made for the walk striking a hydrant at that point, breaking it badly, and also breaking some bricks from the side of Mr. Garvey's window, narrowly escaping the plate glass. They continued up the sidewalk as far as the Grand Central door, when they turned off, managing to break a post in front of the hotel. Mr. Moloney was pulled over the dashboard and thrown off at this point. He was picked up insensible, and taken into the hotel. Dr. Kincaid was sent for, but his services were not required, as Mr. Moloney came to before the doctor arrived. The horses proceeded up George street to Simcoe, where they were stopped in turning the corner. They were taken back to Cavanagh's, where Mr. Moloney stopped over night. He received no other injuries than a shaking.

Bible Class.

Mr. Munro's Bible class will meet to-morrow afternoon at 3.30. Subject: "Anti-Christ."

Worldly Feasting—Spiritual Famine.

To the Editor of THE DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Our attention has been called to the paragraph in Saturday's issue, under the above heading, stating that the prisoners in the county jail are altogether without spiritual advice, except such as provided by lay readers. Your informant does not rightly understand the case, as there are services held there every Sunday from 3 to 4 p.m., by the Peterborough Layman's Evangelistic Association, for the past eighteen months, and the services have not been without good results, but we will gladly welcome any minister to help, or to stand aside for him to conduct the service, as we are all workers together for Him, who "made Himself of no reputation, and took upon Him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men: and being found in fashion as a man, He humbled Himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross."

We remain, on behalf of the P. L. E. A.,
R. HOLLAND, President. H. ROSNITER, Sec.-Treas.

[The publisher of THE EXAMINER does not hold himself responsible for the facts asserted, nor the opinions expressed by correspondents.]

A Nut for Grammarians.

To the Editor of THE DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—My attention has been called to the following sentence, occurring in print: "There is a great many mechanics," and its grammatical correctness has been challenged. I contend that it is correct. Will some of our grammarians through your columns, give their opinion on the subject?

Yours truly,
STUDENT.
Peterborough, Dec. 31st, 1885.

[Since the settlement of this important question would be a literary boon, our columns are open to correspondents to express their opinions on the subject in a brief manner.]—Ed. EXAMINER.

The "Serenade Season."

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—I observe in last evening's EXAMINER a letter signed "City Band," drawing the attention of the citizens, Messrs. Rutherford and Craig and the Brigade Band in particular, to the non-defunct condition of the said City Band. I may say I have not troubled or heard any of the members of the Fire Brigade band give the least utterance to the present standing of the City Band, but as there are one or two utterances referring directly to myself, I cannot let it pass without saying something in my own behalf. The writer, when referring to the return of the volunteers, wants to claim all renown to the "old reliables" of the City Band. True, there were "old reliables," but not from the City Band, and as I myself got the band together for that occasion, perhaps it might be of some benefit to the writer to explain to him what the band on that occasion consisted of. The band was fifteen strong; five belonged to the Fire Brigade Band, two were retired members of the Fire Brigade Band, and myself, at that time one of the City Band, but at present a member of the Fire Brigade Band, so the citizens will see that the Fire Brigade Band actually had the majority of that "great band" that is supposed to bring the "City Band" safely and triumphantly through their serenading tour. I may ask the writer how many members of their present City Band took part in that day's playing? Will he be surprised when I tell him there were only three? The writer wishes to know on what authority certain former members of the City Band carried away the instruments. I should like to know on what authority he asks such a question. If he was afraid to ask the question over his own name, I am not afraid to answer over the top of mine. If he was one of the first members in the organization of the band he will remember the motion that was passed by the members to the effect that any member that assisted in its organization and remaining in the band over twelve months and leaving was to receive his full share from the band fund. I think if he looks in the secretary's book he will find in the present secretary's book, who was secretary at that time, and by his own figures, that a great deal more is due to me than the value of the instrument and $5.00 I hold, and until they come up like men, pay me what I deem I am justly entitled to, I can assure them the instrument, &c., will never become the property of either the City Band or any other man that strikes the town and tries to gain a few dollars on his musical ability.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space,

I remain yours truly,
J. T. BRYDON.

A Victory in the Soudan.

The Arabs Completely Routed and Pursued.

CAIRO, Dec. 30.—A despatch from Kosseh says Gen. Stevenson, commander of the British forces in Egypt, who recently arrived here with large reinforcements, attacked the rebels who had been menacing the garrison for several weeks. A three hours' fight ensued, resulting in the British troops capturing Ginisa, a village near Kosseh. The rebels were completely routed. The cavalry is pursuing the enemy. Two guns and twenty banners were captured. The English lost one officer killed and twenty-one men wounded. The Egyptian allies of the British lost six killed and thirteen wounded. A recent report stated that the Arabs at Giniss Abal numbered 7000, of whom 1100 were riflemen. They had six guns and plenty of ammunition.

[illegible] were killed. Twenty dead Arabs were found in one house.

The rout of the rebels were so complete that Gen. Stevenson is hopeful that it will obviate the necessity for further operations.

British men of war have been ordered to blockade the coast of Egypt from Massowah to Suez, in order to prevent the importation into the Soudan of arms and ammunition for the Arabs.

The Cost.

The St. Thomas Journal has been footing up what the enforcement of Sir John Macdonald's unconstitutional liquor law has cost the Province. The total amount collected for licenses under the Dominion License Act, up to the 23rd June last, was as follows:

Ontario	$37,431 33
Quebec	26,906 00
Nova Scotia	3,940 00
New Brunswick	4,925 00
Prince Edward Island	400 00
Manitoba	2,665 00
British Columbia	1,090 00
Total	$77,336 33

The local license inspectors and commissioners absorbed the whole of the abovesum, and on the date named it was estimated that the country was in their debt about sixty thousand dollars more. The cost of the Act is approximately:

Voted in 1884 to put law in operation	$10,000 00
Voted in 1885 to put law in operation	20,000 00
Collected for licenses in 1884-5	77,336 33
Estimate of amount which $77,336.33 is short of meeting salaries of commissioners and inspectors	60,000 00
	$167,336 33

And all because Sir John Macdonald promised to punish "that little tyrant "Mowat" for presuming to hold that the provinces have any rights that are not subordinate to his own personal and political ends! It is a high price. Do the people think the services of Macdonald worth the expenditure.

The Reign of the People in England.

At a recent election meeting in Suffolk, Sir William Harcourt pointed out how great had been the Liberal victory in that county and how the influence of the Tory aristocrats, who hitherto had controlled so many "pocket constituencies," had been shattered by the operation of the Liberal Franchise Act. The hon. gentleman said he had asked a well-informed gentleman how long it was previous to this election since the country of Suffolk had returned a Liberal, and he was told that it must be about fifty years ago. For other divisions of the country the aristocratic families who formerly ruled had found their influence diminished and their candidates defeated, as in the case of the Fitzwilliams in Yorkshire, the heir of the Duke of Northumberland defeated in his own county, the Earl of Pembroke's brother defeated in Wiltshire. And so with Lord Bath in the same county, the Duke of Beaufort in his county, two out of the three Lowthers gone to the bad, the Duke of Buccleuch in Scotland, Lord Wemyss in the Lothians, Lord Mount Edgecombe in Cornwall, Lord Sandwich in Huntingdonshire, Lord Rendlesham in Suffolk, Sir Watkyn W. Wynn in Wales, and so with many others. What had become of the Tory magnates throughout the land? Why their reign has passed away with the emancipation of the people. The Tory organs are lamenting the constitution of the new House, and some of them profess alarm because the interests of labor will be better looked after, while the influence of the landed gentry will be correspondingly decreased. The St. James' Gazette—an organ of the so-called "blue-bloods"—has even gone the length of traducing the representatives who have been returned to support a radical change in the land laws. But these reforms will come—perhaps not in the present Parliament, but certainly at no distant day, despite the alarmist contentions and blackguard epithets of the Tory defenders of class legislation.

THURSDAY. DECEMBER 31, 1885.

THE OLD YEAR AND THE NEW.

With this issue of THE EXAMINER the year 1885 draws to its close, and ere its successor dawns we most cordially wish all our readers the customary salutations and compliments of the season.

Such an occasion naturally produces serious thought and reflection. Of course the dividing line which marks the passage of the year is but an arbitrary division. Still, it is a season of interest. Humanity feels the necessity of having such landmarks by which to measure the movement of events. And that heart is indeed a dull one that is not turned to seriousness at such a time as this. A new departure is always pleasing to our restless and unsatisfied minds.

Doubtless many know that the new year will not probably bring them much that is different from the old one. Yet to the last the wish of a "Happy New Year" is grateful, as if it would surely bring avoidance of the old mistakes, freedom from the old follies, days unvexed with carking cares and nights of calm slumbers. There is, at any rate, in such a salutation a sense of progress, a feeling that it is possible to lead better and more useful lives, and to aim after higher things. And it is this hope after goodness still unattained which prompts the helpful resolutions so often made with earnestness and sincerity on New Year's day.

We believe the past year has been one of material progress and advancement throughout the Dominion. So far as our own community is concerned, we have seen new enterprises and industries established in Peterborough, and have witnessed, with pleasure, the numerous fine buildings and dwelling houses which have been erected, thus causing our progressive town to make another stride in its onward march to the dignity of a city. Business has been fairly brisk, and merchants, although not quite satisfied, have perhaps more reason to blame the mild weather and the N. P. for the present lull, than to charge it to any other cause.

For Canada the year 1885 has been a very eventful one, and its doings will occupy no meagre or uninteresting niche in the annals of our history. The outburst and speedy suppression of the rebellion in the North-west, with its attendant circumstances, is a matter both for regret and rejoicing. Regret, because through the lawlessness of wicked men, many valuable lives and much treasure had been lost; rejoicing, since in its suppression our citizen soldiers have shown that they possess true patriotism, prowess and skill in arms, indomitable energy and perseverance—qualities which must make the Dominion to a large extent the peaceful, prosperous and happy land we all hope and desire it to be. The valorous deeds of our brave volunteers on the Saskatchewan have drawn forth many a well-merited tribute, and must elevate the Dominion in the minds of those who look on her doings from afar, and who value this Canada of ours as the noblest heritage of our noble Empire.

During the year now almost gone, many a famous man has joined the great majority. In literary, religious and military circles particularly, the missing are very numerous, and every civilized country of the world has suffered sadly through the advent of the last stern enemy of mankind.

We have lost in literature such men as Hugo, the novelist, Gachard, the historian, About, Warne, Lord Houghton, Josh Billings and Grant White. In religious circles we mourn the loss of the venerable Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of Ireland, Cardinal McCloskey, the only Prince of the Roman church on this continent, Bishop Jackson of London, Wordsworth of Lincoln, Moberly of Salisbury, Fraser of Manchester, and Woodford of Ely. To these must be added the names of Dean Howson, also known to all readers as the talented author of the Life and Epistles of St. Paul. Among those who followed their country's call to arms, there have fallen the noble-hearted Gordon of Khartoum, Generals Grant, McLellan, Earle and Stewart, Prince Frederick Charles, of Prussia, and Admiral Courbet.

Canada has also suffered greatly. The list of the dead during 1885 includes Sir Francis Hincks, Hon. Isaac Burpee, Colonel Williams, Judge Morrison, the Hon. Adam Crooks and Archbishop Bourget—names all famous and renowned in their particular vocations. Then in addition to the names already mentioned, the republic to the south of us has lost Secretary Frelinghuysen, Vice-President Colfax, Emery Storrs, Vice-President Hendricks, and three very wealthy men, viz: Cornelius Garrison, Senator Sharon and Vanderbilt, thus proving how powerless are riches and fame when the dread enemy of mankind appears.

Another event calls for passing mention, viz. the virulent epidemic which for a time arrested the progress of Montreal, and which is now almost at an end. Then there have been changes in the ministry, both in England and France and a new administration has been formed in the neighbouring Republic. The war in Bulgaria and the overthrow of Thebaw, the Burmese tyrant, are matters still fresh in the minds of our readers. Our space forbids a further extended notice. And now we look forward with confident hope. We believe a bright future is before this wide Dominion, and we anticipate success and prosperity, in a national, commercial and material point of view, for our Province and nation, and also for our town and readers generally.

In the hope that all our friends and patrons may find in the coming days the blessings of peace and prosperity, we wish them one and all

—:A HAPPY NEW YEAR:—

Lakehurst.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

On Christmas morning the pupils of S. S. No. 3, Harvey, assembled in the school house and presented their teacher, Mr. W. J. Stone, with a beautiful photo album and accompanied it with an address of which the following is a copy:—

Dear Teacher and Friend:

We, the pupils of S. S. No. 3, Harvey, having a just appreciation of the energy displayed by yourself in all that pertains to our advancement in knowledge, cannot allow you to take your departure from amongst us without showing in some manner the regard in which you are held by us. We therefore unite in wishing you a "Merry Christmas and a happy New Year," and beg your acceptance of this album as a slight token of the esteem in which you are held by us. That the blessing of Him who "Maketh rich and addeth no sorrow thereto" may be yours, is the earnest desire of your pupils.

Signed on behalf of the school.

JAMES WEIR.
FRED JOHNSTON.

Mr. Stone made a suitable reply, thanking the pupils for the memento.

Wanton Mutilation of the Interior of a Sacred Building at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—Unknown persons entered St. Elizabeth's Roman Catholic church, corner of State and Thirty-first streets, Saturday night, tore down and completely mutilated sixteen oil paintings which had been on the walls, tore down all the figures in the niches, went into the sanctuary and threw the vestments round and spilled the wine found there over them. Passing into the schoolroom, the desks were overturned, books strewn around and the walls bespattered with ink. No cause is assigned for the vandalism and no arrests have been made.

A Pertinent Query.

It is pertinent to ask at this stage, says the Hamilton Times, how would Mr. Meredith have acted when Provincial rights were assailed, had he succeeded by the conspiracy in ousting Mr. Mowat? Past experience has shown that Meredith would have succumbed to Macdonald in the liquor license question and would have consented to hand over to the Dominion Tory leader and the horde of speculators who follow in his train the whole of the Northwestern division of Ontario,. Between the two leaders—the one aggressive, determined and unscrupulous, provided he could maintain himself in power; the other vacillating and easily wheedled round to take any position that his more wily adviser suggested—Ontario would have had her territory despoiled of many millions of dollars' worth of property and her right to control her local affairs filched from her. Mr. Mowat has kept at the helm. We have our territory, and we have our right to govern ourselves. But no thanks to the member for London.

ASTONISHING INCREASE IN BUSINESS

Three Hundred Skilled Workmen Imported From Europe.

THE DODGES OF DISHONEST COMPETITORS.

The Home of the Most Popular Cigars in the Dominion.

(From the Mail.)

A few months ago we published a description of the magnificent structure erected and about to be occupied by Messrs. S. Davis & Sons, Montreal. Since that time the premises described have been occupied by them, and a large addition made thereto, the colossal premises being too small. Owing to the wonderful increase in their business, which assumed such extraordinary and vast proportions within this past year, they were compelled to look to foreign markets to increase their staff, as it was found, after months of advertising for first-class cigar makers, impossible to obtain the required help in this country, thereby necessitating the importation of foreign labor. With their usual enterprise Messrs. Davis & Sons sent one of their junior members of the firm Mr. M. E. Davis—to Europe to obtain the necessary help, which he has been successful in doing, about 300 skilled workmen having arrived a few weeks ago. Notwithstanding this large additional increase they are as yet behind orders, but hope soon to be able to fill all orders promptly. In justice to Messrs. Davis & Sons we should inform the public through our columns of a wrong impression that was created, attributable to an error in the Associated Press despatches, which stated that a strike had taken place amongst their imported workmen, owing to Messrs. Davis & Sons not carrying out the agreement made with them. The cause of this report was owing to two of the men having obtained access to the workroom while in an intoxicated condition and creating a disturbance which was promptly quelled by having them arrested. Certain interested parties have been trying to make capital out of the same, and have also diligently circulated reports to the effect that all the old workmen were discharged or were about to be. The following testimonial, which is signed by the old employee only, speaks for itself:—

"At a meeting of the Canadian operatives employed by Messrs. Davis & Sons, held on on the 11th November, it was resolved that inasmuch as there have been rmours circulated which would convey the idea to the general public that we are dissatisfied with the introduction of some new arrivals amongst us, we most positively state that such is not the case, as we are perfectly contented, and think it is of very considerable benefit to the community that these people should have come here in order to enable the above mentioned firm to manufacture a sufficient number of cigars to supply the demand. We are fully aware of the fact that this firm have been unable to fill their orders for the past six months, and that had they not taken this step, German, Mexican, and Havana cigars would be imported in much larger quantities to meet the requirements of the trade. We therefore think it proper that this firm should have taken the course they have. We also certify that the new staff are mostly union men, and they are all getting the regular factory price, as we are ourselves; and further, that there will necessarily be employment given to a number of new beginners to prepare the stock for the increased force, such as stemmers, banders, etc. At the same time we are cognizant of the fact that it does not interfere with us in any way, shape or form; but we are fully aware that these people being here will be of considerable benefit, more especially to the city of Montreal, as they will circulate their earnings, amounting to thousands of dollars weekly, amongst the bakers, butchers, dry goods merchants, tailors, etc., etc. We also fully recognize the fact that Messrs. S. Davis & Sons do not, and would not, show any partiality to any person or persons. This is the experience we have had in the past and present, and are satisfied it will be so in the future, and take much pleasure in endorsing same with our signatures:

We congratulate Messrs. Davis & Son on the magnificent proportions the business has attained, a result mainly due to the superior class of goods manufactured by them, and the enterprise they have shown in various ways. They have had to contend not alone with legitimate business opposition, but with imitators of their brands, and also with unscrupulous parties, who, prior to using the bands on their cigars, placed inferior goods in their boxes, thereby injuring their brands and imposing upon the public. Messrs. Davis & Sons are the only cigar manufacturers in Canada who manufacture their own cigar boxes and packing cases, which industry gives employment to about 75 hands. The total number of people employed by them at the present time is close upon 1,000; enough, taking the families of the same into consideration, to make a town of about 3,500 people. We would not be at all surprised if this enterprising firm should build a town of their own.

CONCERNING

Christmas and New Year!

SENSIBLE AND SEASONABLE!

This is particularly the season of giving. Everybody has, or should have, a present to make to somebody else. The question of the hour is

WHAT SHALL I GIVE?

Come to our FANCY GOODS DEPARTMENT and you will have a hundred answers. The more useful the article the more appreciated it will be by the receiver. Now, in looking after Christmas presents, it should be the aim of everyone to select something that will be useful as well as ornamental.

Nothing can be more acceptable or appropriate than a nice WOOL HOOD or JACKET for a little girl; a warm, comfortable CLOUD or KNITTED SQUARE for a lady; a pair of handsome fur-top lined KID MITTS or GAUNTLETS for either lady or gentleman; or a nice SCARF or SILK HANDKERCHIEF for each and everybody.

We have in addition many nice things cheap, fresh and inviting, and as the busy season is drawing to a close, all can be satisfied that they will receive a most generous money's worth.

JAMES ALEXANDER.

The Daily Examiner.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1885.

Consecration Meeting.

A consecration meeting will be held on New Year's morning at 9.45 o'clock, to be conducted by the Rev. A. H. Munro All wishing to attend this meeting will be cordially welcomed. Ladies are invited.

The Popular Pastime.

For the last few days widow cleaning appears to be the favorite pastime of the junior clerks employed in the many places of business along the principal streets. The weather is favorable and the press of business does not interfere.

Midnight Service.

The usual midnight service at the opening of the New Year will be held in St. Luke's Ashburnham, commencing at 11:30 p.m. A short address will be given by the rector, and cards bearing a motto for 1886 will be distributed to all who are present. "Watch and pray, for ye know not when the time is."

Christmas Cheer at the "Golden Lion."

Every department full of choice new goods with many specialties for the festive season. Every intending purchaser should visit the establishment to be convinced of the variety and bargains now being offered by Fair, Van-Every & Co'y.

"Worldly Feasting Spiritual Famine."

This morning we have received another communication on the above subject. The whole correspondence arises from a misconception. In the original item it was written "lay" readers, but the compositor with a laudable desire to correct the error of the scribe brought it out "lady" readers. This was corrected in the proof to "lay" readers, but the obliging comp. could not allow so palpable an error (to him) to pass, and "lady" readers it remained.

The Lindley Company.

There was a large attendance at the Opera House last night to witness "The Factory Girl; or, all that Glitters is not Gold," as presented by the Harry Lindley Company. The play is a popular one and the company's presentation is exceptionally fine. Applause was frequent. Harry Lindley as Toby Twinkle was very amusing and provoked considerable laughter. Miss Ida Burgess in her recitation maintained her reputation as a superior elocutionist. "Our City Labor and Our City Poor," and "An Artful Dodger," will be placed on the boards to-night.

Our Satin Mounted Xmas Cards are Exquisite. A. L. Davis & Co.

Reception to Young Men.

The New Year's reception to the young men in the Y.M.C.A. rooms, bids fair to be even more successful than was last year's. Ladies will be present from one to six o'clock to receive those who call, assisted by the officers and committee of the Association. They will also serve refreshments all afternoon. Music and other entertainment will be given from time to time, and the rooms will be made as attractive as possible in various ways. An invitation is freely given to all our young men, and strangers in town will be specially welcomed.

A Watery Grave—Almost.

Yesterday afternoon between three and four o'clock, a son of Mr. Michael Bolton, of No. 1 Ward, while skating near the mouth of Whitlaw's creek, broke through the ice and would have been drowned had it not been for the assistance of Mr. Reid, who fished him out on the point of a pike pole. He had been skating all over the lake and took a spin up the creek, where the ice was apparently good. On returning, when near the mouth of the creek, opposite where Sperry's mill once stood, the ice gave way and down he went. He swam round and tried to get out but could not. Mr. Reid, who was driving past, took in the situation. He ran across the locks bridge to Mr. Karr's and got a pike pole, returning in time to rescue young Bolton as he was about to give up. He said he thought he was called and was just going to go. He was taken to Mr. Reid's house where he was cared for, provided with warm clothes, etc. This is not the first case of the kind this week. Many have broken through and wet their feet, and had the starch taken out of their collars, too; but none have had such a close call as Bolton. The ice is very treacherous and should be avoided.

A Call to Norwood.

Rev. Alex. Bell, of St. Andrew's Church, town, has received a call to Norwood—to deliver his lecture, "A Wise Man and His Sayings," in the Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening.

The Tax Test for Voters.

In Montreal, electors whose taxes are unpaid by the last day of December, are not entitled to vote at the municipal elections. If such a rule were applied here, there would be about 100 electors cut out of a vote.

A Card.

The ladies of the George street Methodist Church will be "At Home" in the lecture room of the church, to receive all other friends on New Year's night. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

New Year's Amusements.

Two grand performances, New Year's day, by the Eindley Company. The beautiful domestic drama of "Hazel Kirk" at the afternoon matinee, 2.30 p.m. Double bill in the evening, "Ben Bolt"—"Don't you remember sweet Alice, Ben Bolt?"—concluding with the great London attraction, "A Poor Girl's Temptation."

For the Holidays.

Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie have in stock for the Xmas trade, a very fine line of slippers of all kinds, specially suited for presents, and at prices much below the ordinary. Call in and see the stock, it is really handsome and cannot be surpassed in town. In every department they carry full lines, but make a specialty of fine hand-sewed work for ladies and gentlemen.

Police Court.

Joshua Tremble, a Rama Indian, was brought before Magistrate Dumble, charged by C. Pigeon with having been drunk in a public place last night. Joshua, in the original Wakechoocekakeby, admitted that he had been drunk, but could not remember much about it. He got the liquor "along the road." He was on his way to Mud Lake, and was dismissed on promising to proceed on his journey immediately.

Dusky Serenaders.

The Rama Indian Brass Band was in town last night on a serenading expedition. The sweet strains of their music was at times blended with the war whoop of some of their tribe who had imbibed too much fire-water or good cheer. They were well received and entertained by the citizens whom they honored. The party was on its way to Mud Lake where the natives will have a festival and pow-wow on New Year's day. Plum pudding, roast beef, plus turkey, etc., will take the place of roast dog, etc., of days gone by.

What We May Expect.

Watch-night services in St. Luke's, Ashburnham, George street and Charlotte street Methodist Churches to-night.

The school vote in No. 2 Ward next Wednesday to be polled in the old music hall.

Harry Lindley to give a big double bill at the Opera House to-night.

The band question to be thoroughly blown out New Year's day.

And the business men not feel hurt or slighted.

Strong winds and moderate gales, veering to the west and north, generally cloudy; mild, with occasional rains, followed by colder weather to-night and to-morrow, and a few snow flurries.

What They are Saying.

A Happy New Year to everybody.—THE EXAMINER.

It's a mighty easy thing to canvass; everybody promises me a vote.—The new candidate.

Wait till five o'clock polling day, and see how you'll get left—I've been there myself.—The old stager.

This is my last glass—I'm going to swear off.—The young man of good intentions.

Since that's the last, let's have another.—Another young man of good intentions.

Le'sh treat the resh'lushun.—Still another.

Come lan'lor' fill er flow'n bowl.—Chorus.

Ho! Ho! I'm onto yer shape! what'd'you break that winder for—Been swearin' off, have yer? Come along o' me.—The peeler.

O boys, this makes me tired, I saw it all when I was very young.—The old year.

Ah me! I never thought I'd live to see the new post-office.—1885.

"El Padre" Cigars.

Universally acknowledged to be the finest 10c cigar manufactured. Don't be persuaded to take other brands. No chemicals or artificial flavoring used.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable," or "El Padre" brand of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pay them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby.

My horse was lame for eighteen months the cords from the knee down were swollen and hard, a bony deposit around the hoof similar to a ringbone. I desire to return my hearty thanks for the patronage received since commencing business, and would respectfully direct attention to our intended method of conducting the same for the future.

Cash, or Short Credit, is a system rapidly gaining favor in our country. Merchants of our cities and towns have almost universally adopted it, and in a progressive town like this there can be no reason why we should not follow the same rule.

After the First Day of January next my terms will be Cash, unless otherwise specially agreed.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

Mr. R. C. Strickland has written to the press urging that a meeting of representatives from the different municipalities along the line of this canal, should be held at once, in order to press upon the government the necessity of placing in the estimates a sufficient amount, to put another section under contract.

Coming at a time when the Mail is urging the Tory party to prepare for an immediate appeal to the people by the Dominion Government, this letter is one of the last acts in a farce which has been played so long and so miserably before a Peterborough audience, that it is high time the play should be kicked off the electoral stage.

The Town and County of Peterborough have squandered enough money in defraying the expenses of political wire-pullers to Ottawa. The Tory coterie of the last delegation there, interested themselves, not in the projection and completion of the Trent Valley Canal, but in lobbying for the post-office, and if Mr. Strickland has now any spare time, he can impress upon Sir John the deep "necessity" of building the Peterborough Postoffice, and thus consummating the object for which the Town and County actually paid the expenses of the last delegation to Ottawa.

Sir John A. Macdonald must now be fully aware of the vast importance of the Trent Valley Canal to the country. Deputation after deputation has already waited upon him in reference to the work. Sir Charles Tupper personally visited this county to make himself acquainted with the matter. We have elected representatives to look diligently to the completion of the undertaking. Our Tory friends in Peterborough and elsewhere have the ear of Sir John whenever they wish, and it is absurd to suppose that a mere mixed deputation is going to accomplish what the whole forces of the Tory party in the four counties cannot bring about.

The fact is, if we are informed correctly, that the plans for the locks over the Big Chute have not yet been received; the contractors are being intentionally hampered in their operations by petty intermeddlesomeness in details in order to delay the work, and the Dominion Government have no more intention of building this work than Mr. Carnegie has of resigning his seat in West Peterborough in favor of Mr. Strickland.

We venture to say that until a Reform government is put into office in Ottawa, we will have the Trent Valley Canal project dangled before the eyes of the electors as a catch-vote question, and we call upon all those who earnestly wish for the building of the Trent Valley Canal to vote for the party whose intentions will be known by deeds, not words.

New Year's Day.

How It was Observed in Town—A Day of Worship, Amusement and Festivity.

With the departing of the old year and the dawning of the new, an acceptable change in the weather occurred, a brisk frost setting in, invigorating the atmosphere, giving nature a sterner aspect, in keeping with the season.

WATCH MEETINGS

were held in the George and Charlotte street churches, and in St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, to welcome in the new year. All the services were well attended. The watchers returned home after wishing each other a happy new year, hopeful and more satisfied with themselves and the world.

THE SOCIAL BALL.

A gay throng of admirers of the dance assembled in the Parlor rink and danced in the new year to the sweet strains of music by the Fire Brigade orchestra. The assembly broke up at an early hour in the morning.

There were also several private parties, at which representatives of the youth and beauty of the town assembled to welcome in the New Year with mirth and pleasure.

The morning dawned bright, clear and smiling, as if to invite the many weary slumberers from their well-earned rest. Early rising was not popular, and the first part of the morning was of almost Sunday quiet.

Service was held in St. Peter's Cathedral during the forenoon. There was also a consecration meeting in the Y.M.C.A. rooms, commencing at 9:45 a.m. and lasting one hour.

As far as can be ascertained the New Year's dinners were of the usual sumptuous character.

In the afternoon the Little Lake was the centre of attraction, and upwards of a thousand enjoyed themselves by skating on its icy surface. Shinny was the popular game, and was heartily engaged in by everyone who could get a stick of any sort.

"Hazel Kirke" was presented in the Opera House in the afternoon by the Harry Lindley Company. The play is one of the company's best, and drew a large [illegible] the evening this company gave a double bill, "Ben Bolt" and "A Poor Girl's Temptations," to a full house.

The Fire Brigade and City bands serenaded a number of prominent citizens and friends of the band in particular, and everybody in general. The town was full of music all day. The serenaders were handsomely entertained and received liberal donations.

The New Year's reception was given in the Y.M.C.A. rooms, by the association, assisted by a number of lady friends. Refreshments consisting of cake and coffee, were served. Excellent music was rendered during the afternoon and other attractions provided. The reception continued from 1 p.m. until after 6 o'clock, and a large number of young men called and enjoyed the hospitality of the association.

New Year's calls were probably less numerous than of late years. The very best order was maintained during the whole day, and drunks were few and far between. Driving was very popular, and almost every serviceable wheeled vehicle was pressed into service.

The usual Friday evening service was held in St. John's church.

The "At Home" in the lecture room of the George Street Methodist Church, given by the ladies of the congregation, was the principal attraction of the evening. The room was well filled and an enjoyable evening's entertainment was provided.

The residents of the town collectively spent a very happy New Year's day, and it is to be hoped the remainder of the year will be as prosperous as the first day would indicate.

MASONIC INSTALLATION.

Sunday, being the 27th, the festival of St. John, the Evangelist, Norwood Masonic Lodge, A. F. & A. M., No. 223, met in their hall here on the Monday following and duly celebrated this time honored event, when the following brethren were duly installed into office for the ensuing Masonic year:

W Bro W E Roxburgh	I P M.
" W H Stephenson	W. M.
" A McWilliam	S. W.
" John Harper,	Jun W.
" Daniel Wigmore	Chap.
" Thos Burke	Secretary
" W. E. Roxburgh	Treas
" Thos Rork	S D.
" J A Harper	J D.
" F H Birt	D of C.
" Thos Fraser	S S.
" W H Minaker	J S.
" John Powell	I G.
" Geo Powell	Tyler.

After the installation the members of the Lodge sat down to a well laden table of delicious luxuries provided with such taste and abundance as is always characteristic of the brethren of this lodge on occasions of this kind, and to which ample justice was done in truly Masonic style. A very pleasant evening was spent, "Happy to meet, sorry to part, and happy to meet again."

TRUSTEE NOMINATIONS.

On Wednesday afternoon a meeting of the Norwood School Section was held to select two trustees to fill the vacancies on the school board. The trustees were handled without mercy on account of the recklessness of expenditure in connection with the school, but as there were none present to refute the statements made by the ratepayers, the latter had it all their own way. The following gentlemen were nominated: Messrs. R. W. Reynolds, Thos. Fraser, Jas. Raddon and John Harper.

MUNICIPAL.

Though there are quite a large crop of candidates for municipal honors, very little interest is manifested in the election. The contest between Mr. Stephenson, the present Reeve, and Mr. Robt. Wilson, is likely to be a hot one for the reeveship, while for the councillors there is not much anxiety who may be elected. Far more interest indeed is manifested in the results after than before the election.

OBITUARY.

Great sympathy is felt for Mr. Joseph Jory, of this village, in the death of his estimable wife, after a protracted and painful illness which the deceased endured without a murmur and with true christian fortitude. It will be remembered that about two months ago Mrs. Jorey underwent a severe operation by Dr. Aikins, of Toronto, for the removal of a cancer from her tongue. The operation apparently, and it was hoped, was a successful one. But a few weeks had elapsed after it was performed when indication of the disease again appeared. The best medical skill was again consulted, when slight hopes were given of her recovery. For weeks since she endured terrible agony from the reappearing cancer, and life was only sustained by partaking of diluted food conveyed by a pipe to the throat. Death on Tuesday evening last put an end to her sufferings, she expiring peacefully. Her funeral took place on Thursday afternoon, and was attended by a large number of sorrowing relations and sympathizing friends.

No. 3 Ward Election.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—As there appears to be a great deal of double-dealing in the municipal election in No. 3 Ward, I thought better to let the electors know what card the Sawers clique are playing for the purpose of electing their brother-in-law, Mr Moore. Not satisfied with running the election on questions which might be of interest to the ratepayers, namely, economy, tax-exemption and Scott Act, they are introducing a question of religion, and when canvassing Presbyterians, they represent that Methodists have too much power, both in the Council and School board, and when canvassing Methodists, they claim that Roman Catholics have too much power in the council. By these means they are trying to raise an anti-Methodist and anti-Catholic feeling, in a Ward where the electors have always chosen the best men, independent of religion or politics. Under these circumstances, would it not be better to re-elect the three old Councillors, and show these would-be disturbers, that the electors of No. 3 Ward are not to be led by bigotted and designing wire-pullers?

ELECTOR OF No. 3 WARD.
Peterborough, Jan. 2d, 1886.

"True Christianity."

The following letter has been sent to us with a request that it be published. It is a reply to a paragraph in the Morning Times of Thursday:

To the Editor of the Times:

SIR,—Under the above heading your issue of Thursday contained a paragraph full of inaccuracies, which, I presume, refers to me and my family. You will doubtless allow space for a reply.

First. In my household at present there are two members affected by sickness, not seven or eight, as you put it. Had it not been for the complicated disease from which my wife is suffering, she would have been sent to the hospital, and as I earn good wages and have a good paymaster, H. Calcutt, Esq., I could easily have met the expense.

Second. I am glad to say I have found many kind hearted christian people in our community here. They have sent, and are still sending daily, comforts, necessaries and delicacies for my wife and little girl, ever since they heard of their sickness. It is unnecessary to mention individuals, but I may name Mrs. J. Burnham, Mrs. J. Z. Rogers, Mrs. Hamilton, Mr. Bradshaw, the Misses Peck, Mr. R. B. Rogers, Mrs. Bennet and Mr. H. Calcutt's family, as particularly kind.

Third. When I require more assistance, I know where to apply, and can assure you, that while thankful for your expression of sympathy, I am not neglected either by my clergyman or the members of his congregation.

Yours, &c.,
JOSEPH STARR.
Ashburnham, Dec. 21st, 1885.

P.S.—Since writing the above my little girl has entered the hospital.

A Home-Made Nemesis.

"I see by the papers, father, that all the candidates on the other side have got a Nemesis," said a South End schoolboy to his pa. "What is a Nemesis, father? Is it anything like a bicycle?"

"No, my son, a Nemesis is not like a bicycle. A man rides a bicycle, when he knows how, and a Nemesis reverses the operation and rides the man."

"What is it, then?"

"H'm! what is it. Let me see; it is a sort of a moral ghost, as it were, an ethical independent, a kicking conscience, a—a—well, a sort of Nemesis as near as anything."

"But what is it like, father? I want to see one.

"If you want to see one real bad, just you drink four cups of strong coffee, eat half a dozen links of store sausage, and top off with a cold mince pie. Do this at 9 p. m., and then go to bed at 9:15, and you'll see Nemesises enough before morning to last a lifetime. Now run away and don't bother me while I am reading the paper."
Boston Globe.

A controversy as to why women button their clothes from right to left, and men from left to right, has led to an elaborate display of learning and wit. One writer declares that men have buttoned from left to right since the earliest Assyrian dynasties. Another asserts that the mode of buttoning distinguishes the Mussulman and the Hindoo in India, while a third says that the writer need not go as far as India for an illustration, as the women of America are recognicable by the male system of buttoning from left to right. The ladies of New Orleans, who held to the other fashion to a recent period, did so because of the French colonization of Louisiana. A lady insists that her sex button from right to left because the dressmakers so fix their dresses, and denies that man has any right to draw invidious inferences; while a sardonic and sarcastic enemy of female rights declares that the placing of the right thumb over the left is positive proof of a ruling mind.

BANQUET TO HON. MR. BLAKE.

A London, Ont., telegram announces that it has been decided to give a banquet to Hon. Mr. Blake on Jan. 14th. It is certain that the demonstration will be an unqualified success; so much is this certain, that the chief difficulty of the committee having charge of the affair, is to find a hall large enough to accommodate immense numbers of Mr. Blake's friends and admirers who have signified an intention of being present. While a personal compliment to the great Liberal leader is exceedingly apropos, the gathering will derive its greatest importance from the fact that Hon. Mr. Blake will then deliver his first public utterances since his European tour. As is his wont, he will handle the great questions that agitate the public mind in a dignified and statesmanlike manner and the reading public of both political parties will await the publication of his deliverance on these subjects with the greatest interest.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A despatch from St. John, N. B., announces that "Prof." Foster has been re-elected for Kings by a majority of 242, though there are still four places to hear from.

All classes, except the professional politicians, of course, are greatly pleased with the decision of the Privy Council, giving the provinces control of the liquor traffic, to which it rightly belongs.

Some of the Tory organs are trying to paralyze Liberal journals, by submitting the question, "Was the rebellion justifiable?" The organs had better be employed in discussing the question, Was the rebellion preventable?

It is now announced that Parliament will not meet till early in March. Let's see, wasn't it in March that the Northwest rebellion broke out? Do Sir John's supporters propose to make the next session an anniversary celebration?

Justice Henry, of the Supreme Court, contends that should the Licensed Victuallers carry out their threat of testing the constitutionality of the Scott Act, they will destroy it. While Justice Henry has not a monopoly of his opinion, there are other high authorities which hold that the Scott Act is perfectly valid.

An Edinburgh, Scotland, paper states that steamers laden with hæmatite iron leave that city daily for the United States. This is something singular when one reflects that the highest possible duty is placed on iron to prevent the United States being made a "slaughter market." Meantime the monopolists thrive and the consumer has to suffer.

The long and the short of the Tory excitement over the Riel situation, says the Orillia Times, seems to be this: If Sir John is defeated an end will be put to their bogus printing. This will knock a big hole in their receipts: indeed, in some cases there will be nothing but the hole left. Who can wonder, under these circumstances, that they are so devoted?

The full text of the judgment of the Privy Council on the license question, sets at rest once and for all the silly story that the Council were divided on the point—a story set on foot only to deceive those who did not know the process by which judgment is reached in the Privy Council. It also disposes most effectually of any lingering claim Sir John might have had to being called a constitutional lawyer.

The Hamilton Spectator, a staunch and well-paid supporter of the Government, says:—"It would not have cost more than "ten or fifteen cents to have righted all the "wrongs the halfbreeds were suffering." The Mail admits the grievances which the Spectator belittles in the following words: "It has never been denied by the Mail that "the Metis had good grounds for grievances." However the taxpayers will have to put their hands into their pockets and pay several millions for what, according to both organs, might have been settled at the outset.

It is announced that Mr. Thomas White will "address the Liberal Conservative Association" of Victoria, on Tuesday, January, 12th. The Warder in making the announcement gives the following startling piece of news to Peterborough people. "His address at Peterborough has thrown much new light on Northwest affairs," and the advice is solemnly given to all those who are anxious to learn the truth, to attend Bradburn's Opera House, on January 12th, to hear Hon. Mr. White on the issues of the day. The idea of "hearing the truth" on political subjects from the Hon. Thos. White is a champion specimen of fine irony.

DANGERS OF WINTER.

Perils of the Long Nights.

A Sermon Delivered at Brooklyn Tabernacle by the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D., on Sunday, Dec. 20th, 1885.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Dec. 20.—After preaching and lecturing in fifteen cities of the Union, Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D., has returned to Brooklyn. He occupied the pulpit to-day, when Brooklyn tabernacle was crowded, many being unable to find seats. The subject of Dr. Talmage's sermon was, "The Winter, and How to Meet it." His text was taken from Matthew xxiv, 20: "Pray ye that your flight be not in the winter." Following is the sermon in full:—

The inhabitants of the old cities were here told that they would have to fly for their lives. Such flight would be painful, even in the flush of spring time, but superlatively aggravating if in cold weather; therefore, they were told to pray that their flight be [illegible] the winter season that not only tests our physical endurance, but especially in the city, tries our moral character. It is the winter months that ruin morally and forever many of our young men. We sit in the house on a winter's night and hear the storm raging on the outside, and imagine the helpless crafts driven on the coast; but if our ears were only good enough we could on any winter night hear the crash of a hundred moral shipwrecks.

Many who came last September to town by the 1st of March will have been blasted. It only takes one winter to ruin a young man. When the long winter evenings have come many of our young men will improve them in forming a more intimate acquaintance with books, contracting higher social friendships and strengthening and ennobling characters. But not so with all. I will show you before I get through that this season of the year temptations are especially rampant, and my counsel is, look out how you spend your winter nights.

ALLUREMENTS.

I remark first that there is no season of the year in which viscious allurements are so active. In warm weather places of dissipation win their tamest triumphs. People do not feel like going in the hot nights of summer among the blazing gaslights or breathing the fetid air of assemblages. The receipts of most grog shops in a December night are three times what they are in July or August. I doubt not there are larger audiences in the casinos in winter than in the summer weather. Iniquity plies a more profitable trade. December, January and Febuary are harvest months for the devil. The playbills of the low entertainments then are more charming, the acting is more eqquisite, the enthusiasm of the spectators more bewitching. Many a young man who makes out to keep right the rest of the year capsizes now. When he came to town in autumn his eye was bright, his cheek rosy, his step elastic; but before spring as you pass him you will say to your friend: "What is the matter with that young man?" The fact is that one winter of dissipation has done the work of ruin.

This is the season for parties, and if they are of the right kind our social nature is improved and our spirits are cheered up. But many of them are not of the right kind, and our young people night after night are kept in the whirl of unhealthy excitement until their strength fails and their spirits are broken down, and their taste for ordinary life corrupted; and by the time the spring weather comes they are in the doctor's hands or sleeping in the cemetery. The certificate of their death is made out, and the physician, out of regard for the family, calls the disease by some Latin name, when the truth is they died of too many parties.

Away with these wine-drinking convivialities! How dare you, the father of a household, trifle with the appetites of our young people? Perhaps, out of regard for the minister or some other weak temperance man, you have the decanter in a side room, where, after refreshments, only a select few are invited; and you come back with a glare in your eye and a stench in your breath that show that you have been out serving the devil.

The excuse which Christian men often give is that it is necessary, after such late eating, by some sort of stimulant to help digestion. My opinion is that if a man has no more control over his appetite than to stuff himself until his digestive organs refuse to do their office he ought not to call himself a man, but rather to class himself among the beasts that perish. I take words of the Lord Almighty and cry: "Woe to him that putteth the bottle to his neighbor's lips!"

Young men, take it as the counsel of a friend when I bid you be cautious where you spend your winter evenings. Thank God that you have lived to see the glad winter days, in which your childhood was made cheerful by the faces of father and mother, brothers and sisters, some of whom, alas! will never again wish you a "Happy New Year" or a "Merry Christmas."

NEW YEAR'S DAY.

Let no one tempt you out of your sobriety. I have seen respectable young men of the best families drunk on New Year's day. The excuse they gave for the inebriation was that the ladies insisted on their taking it. There have been instances where the delicate hand of woman hath kindled a young man's taste for strong drink, who, after many years, when the attractions of that holiday scene were all forgotten, crouched in her rags and her desolation and her woe under the uplifted hand of the drunken monster who, on that Christmas morning so long ago, took the glass from her hand. And so the woman stands on the abutment of the bridge on the moonlight night, wondering if down under the water there is not some quiet place for a broken heart. She takes the one wild leap, and all is over!

Oh, mingle not with the harmless beverage of our festive scene this poison of adders! Mix not with the white sugar of the cup the snow of this awful leprosy! Mar not the clatter of cutlery at the holiday feast with the clink of a madman's chain!

Stop and look into the window of that pawnbroker's shop—elegant furs, elegant watches, elegant scarfs, elegant flutes. People stand with a pleased look gazing at these things, but I look with a shudder, as though I had seen into a window of hell. Whose elegant watch was that? It was a drunkard's. Whose furs? They belonged to a drunkard's wife. Whose flute? Whose shoes? Whose scarf? They belonged to a drunkard's wife. If I could I would take the three brazen balls hanging at the doorway and clang them together until they tolled the awful knell of the drunkard's soul. The pawnbroker's shop is only one eddy of the great stream of municipal drunkenness.

INFLUENCE.

Stand back, young man! Take not the first step in the path that leads here. Let not the flame of strong drink ever scorch your tongue. You may tamper with these things and escape, but your influence will be wrong. Can you not make a sacrifice for the good of others? When the good ship

DANGERS OF WINTER.

London went down the captain was told that there was a way of escape, in one of the life-boats. He said: "No, I will go down with the passengers." All the world acknowledged that heroism.

Can you deny yourself insignificant indulgences for the good of others? Be not allured by the fact that you drink only the moderate beverages. You drink only ale, and a man has to drink a large amount of it to become intoxicated. Yes; but there is not in all the city to-day an inebriate that did not begin with ale. "XXX," what does that mark mean? "XXX" on the beer barrels; "XXX" on the brewer's dray; "XXX" on the door of the gin-shop; "XXX" on the side of the bottle. Not being able to find anyone who could tell me what this mark means, I have had to guess that the whole thing was an allegory: "XXX," that is thirty heart breaks, thirty agonies, thirty desolated homes, thirty chances for a drunkard's grave, thirty ways to perdition. "XXX!" If I were to write a story the first chapter would be "XXX;" the last the pawnbroker's shop. Be watchful! At this season all the allurements to dissipation will be especially busy. Let not your flight to hell be in the winter.

I also remark that the winter evenings, through their very length, allow great swing for indulgences. Few young men would have the taste to go to their rooms at seven o'clock and sit until eleven, reading Motley's Dutch Republic or John Foster's Essays. The young men who have been confined to the store all day want fresh air and sight-seeing, and they must go somewhere. The most of them have, of a winter's evening, three or four hours of leisure. After the evening repast the young man puts on his hat and coat and goes out. "Come in here," cries one form of allurement. "Come in here!" cries another. "Go," says Satan; "you ought to see for yourself." "Why don't you go?" says a comrade. "It is a shame for a young man to be as green as you are. By this time you ought to have seen everything."

DULL TIMES.

Especially is temptation strong when business is dull. I have noticed that men spend more money when they have little to spend. The tremendous question to be settled by our great populace, day by day, is how to get a livelihood. Many of our young men just starting for themselves are very much discouraged. They had hoped before this to have set up a household of their own. But their gains have been slow, their discouragements many. The young man can hardly take care of himself. How can he take care of another? And, to the curse of modern society, before a young man is able to set up a home of his own he is expected to have enough to support in idleness somebody else, when God intended that they should begin together and jointly earn a livelihood. So many of our young men are utterly discouraged and utterly unfit to resist temptation.

The time when the pirate bore down upon the ship was when its sails were down and it was making no headway. People wish they had more time to think. The trouble is, in dull times, that people have too much time to think. Give to many of our commercial men the four hours of these winter nights, with nothing to divert them, and before spring they will have lodgings in an insane asylum.

DON'T WHINE.

I remark further that the winter is especially trying to the moral character of our young men, because some of their homes in winter are especially unattractive. In summer they can sit on the steps or have a bouquet in the vase on the mantle, and the evenings are so short that soon after gaslight they feel like retiring. Parents do not take enough pains to make these long winter nights attractive.

It is strange that old people know so little about young people. One would think that they had never been young themselves, but had been born with their spectacles on. It is dolorous for young people to spend the three or four hours of a winter's evening with parents who sit talking over their own ailments and misfortunes and the nothingness of this world. How dare you talk such blasphemy? God was busy six days in making the world, and has allowed it to hang six thousand years on his holy heart; and that world hath fed you and clothed you and shone on you for fifty years, and yet you talk about the nothingness of this world? Do you expect the young people of your family will sit a whole evening and hear you groan about this magnificent, star-lighted, sun-warmed, shower-baptised, flower-strewn, angel-watched, God-inhabited planet? From such homes young men make a wild plunge into dissipation. Many of you have the means—why do you not buy them a violin or a picture? Or have your daughter cultured in music until she can help to make home attractive? There are ten thousand ways of lighting up the home circle. It requires no large income, no big house, no rich wardrobe, no chased silver, no gorgeous upholstery; but a parental heart awake to its duty. Have a doleful home and your children will not stay in it, though you block up the door with Bibles, and tie fast to them a million catechisms. I said to a man: "This is a beautiful tree in front of your house." He answered, with a whine: "Yes, but it will fade." I said to him: "You have a beautiful garden." He replied: "Yes, but it will perish." I found out afterward that his son was a vagabond, and I was not surprised at it. You cannot groan men into decency, but you can groan them out of it.

ARM YOURSELF.

"Pray ye that your fight be not in the winter." Arm yourself against especial temptations of this season. Poets and painters have represented Satan as horned and hoofed. If I were a poet I should describe him with manners polished to the last perfection; hair flowing in graceful ringlets; eye a little bloodshot, but floating in bewitching langor; hands soft and diamonded; step light and artistic; voice mellow as a flute; boot elegant shaped; conversation facile, carefully toned, and Frenchy; breath perfumed until it would seem that nothing had ever touched his lips save balm and myrrh. But his heart I would picture with the scales of a monster, there fill with pride, with beastliness of desire, with recklessness, with hypocrisy, with death. Then I would have him touched with some rod of disenchantment, until his two eyes would become the cold orbs of the adder, and on his lip would come the foam of raging intoxication, and to his feet the spring of the panther, and his soft hand would become the clammy hand of a wasted skeleton, while suddenly from his heart would burst, in crackling and all-devouring fury, the unquenchable flame; and on the affected lisp of his tongue would come the hiss of the worm that never dies. But, until disenchanted, nothing but myrrh, and balm, and ringlet, and diamond, and flute-like voice and conversation, accurate, facile and Frenchy.

CONTRAST.

O, it is beautiful to see a young man living a life of purity, standing upright where thousands of other young men fall. You will move in honorable circles all your days, and some old friend of your father's will meet you and say: "My son, how glad I am to see you look so well. Just like your father, for all the world. I thought you would turn out well when I used to hold you on my knee."

But here is the young man who takes the other route. The voices of sin charm him away. He reads bad books, lives in vicious circles, loses the glow from his cheek, the sparkle from his eye, and the purity from his soul. The good shun him. Down he goes, little by little. They who knew him when he came to town, while yet lingering on his head was a pure mother's blessing, and on his lips the dew of a pure sister's kiss, now pass him and say: "What an awful wreck!" His eyes bleared with frequent carousals, his cheek bruised in the grog shop fight, his lip swollen with evil indulgences. Look out what you say to him; for a trifle he will take your life. Lower down and lower down, until, outcast of God and man, he lies in the alms-house, a blotch of loathsomeness and pain. Sometimes he calls out for God, and then for more drink. Now he prays, now curses, now laughs as fiends laugh. Then bites his nails to the quick. Then runs both hands through the shock of hair that hangs about his head like the mane of a wild beast. Then shivers until the cot shakes with unutterable terror. Then, with uplifted fist, fights back the devils or clutches the serpents that seem winding him in their coil. Then asks for water, which is instantly consumed by his parched lips. Going his round some morning the surgeon finds him dead. Straighten the limbs. You need not try to comb out or shove back the matted locks. Wrap him in a sheet. Put him in a box. Two men will carry it to the waggon at the door. With chalk write on the top of the box the name of the destroyed.

Do you know who it is?

That is you, O man, if, yielding to the temptations of a disappointed life, you go out and perish.

DO NOT WASTE THIS WINTER.

There is a way that seemeth bright and fair and beautiful, but the end thereof is death.

Devote these December, January and February evenings to high pursuits, innocent amusements, intelligent socialities and Christian attainments. Do not waste this winter. We shall soon have seen the last snow-shoers, and have passed up into the companionship of Him whose raiment is exceeding white as snow—as no fuller on earth can whiten it. To the right-hearted the winter night of earth will soon end in the June morning of heaven.

The river of God from under the throne never freezes over. The foliage of life's fair tree is never frost-bitten. The festivals and hilarities and family gatherings of Christmas times on earth will give way to the larger reunions and the brighter lights and the gladder scenes and the sweeter garlands and the richer feastings of the greater holiday of heaven.

An Extraordinary Offer.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, on its MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every householder, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its saleability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $800 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed; and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and those we wish to send to everyone out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

CONCERNING

Christmas and New Year!

SENSIBLE AND SEASONABLE!

This is particularly the season of giving. Everybody has, or should have, a present to make to somebody else. The question of the hour is

WHAT SHALL I GIVE?

Come to our FANCY GOODS DEPARTMENT and you will have a hundred answers. The more useful the article the more appreciated it will be by the receiver. Now, in looking after Christmas presents, it should be the aim of everyone to select something that will be useful as well as ornamental.

Nothing can be more acceptable or appropriate than a nice WOOL HOOD or JACKET for a little girl; a warm, comfortable CLOUD or KNITTED SQUARE for a lady; a pair of handsome fur-top lined KID MITTS or GAUNTLETS for either lady or gentleman; or a nice SCARF or SILK HANDKERCHIEF for each and everybody.

We have in addition many nice things cheap, fresh and inviting, and as the busy season is drawing to a close, all can be satisfied that they Queer Instrument.

Ocarina, zither, steich zither, musical nails, musical glasses, xylophone, Fairy bells are among the instruments played by the Rock Band Concert Company. See advertisement in another column.

Market Items.

The market this morning was on the dull side. Prices remain almost unchanged. Quotations were: butter in prints, 14c. to 18.; eggs, 18c. to 20c.; chickens, 30c. to 40c. per pair; turkeys, 70c. to $1; geese, 60c. to 75c.; beef, per cwt. $7.50 to $5.00; pork, $5.00 to $5.50.

The Social Ball.

The Ball given in the Parlor Roller Rink on New Year's eve by the Social Club was well patronized, there being present about seventy-five couples. The Fire Brigade Orchestra furnished excellent music on the occasion. Shortly after twelve o'clock an adjournment was made to Cavanagh's Hotel where an excellent supper was furnished. After supper dancing was resumed and continued until an early hour in the morning.

Harry Lindley's Company.

The success of the Lindley Company during the past few evenings has been very marked. The audiences of New Year's eve, New Year's day and night, were exceptionally large and everyone seemed delighted. "Hazel Kirke," "Ben Bolt," and "A Poor Girl's Temptations" were the plays given. A double bill was given on Friday night and to-night the Company will make its last appearance, again giving two complete plays. "Our Boys," one of the finest modern comedies, will be presented first, to conclude with "Buffalo Bill," which is given by special request. Miss Burgess, who becomes more popular every day, will give one of her charming recitations between the plays. No doubt there will be a full house to-night.

What They are Saying.

The Peterborough postoffice site is twins.—The Globe.

And Sir Hector hasn't been "doing as well as could be expected."—The South Ward Section.

What's a paltry postoffice matter when our merits are at stake?—The candidates.

We'll snuff out twelve of twenty-four of you with our little ballot.—The electors.

A couple of inches of snow holiday week would have made thousands of dollars difference in our trade.—The merchants.

The evil-doers gave us a holiday yesterday—we made no arrests.—The police.

Send down your Trent Valley Canal deputations, we'll promise anything, in view of an election.—Minister of Canals.

What We May Expect.

Rev. Mr. Elby at the Methodist Churches to-morrow, morning and evening.

The ladies not to be too bashful to vote on Monday.

The "1885" habit to stick to letter-writers for some days.

The electors to choose the best candidates and mark their ballots accordingly.

Insurance men to sow calendars that they may reap risks.

"Our Boys" and "Buffalo Bill" at the Opera House to-night.

And Harry Lindley's farewell speech.

Everybody to now settle down to business.

And our merchants to pray for some business to settle down, to.

The wire-pullers and political heelers to boom the T. V. C.

Easterly winds; cloudy, mild weather, followed by some sleet or rain, becoming colder to-morrow.

C. P. R. Time Table.

A new time table will go into effect on the Canadian Pacific railway (Eastern and Ontario Divisions) on Monday next, the 4th of January. All the trains on the Ontario and Quebec section will run as heretofore, with the exception of the Winnipeg express, which will arrive at 12:31 p.m. instead of 11:48 a.m. It will cross the express going East at Peterborough.

Card of Thanks.

The carrier boys of the EXAMINER wish to thank their patrons for the liberal donations which they received yesterday in delivering their annual calendar and address. The boys report that they were well received and that their patrons accepted the calendar as an appropriate and valuable reminder of the occasion.

Migratory Movements.

Mr. H. LeBrun left town yesterday for Montreal, where he will remain a week or so visiting friends. He will also combine business with pleasure.

Mr. Charles Legros left town this morning for Quebec, by the C.P.R.

Mr. Alex. Elliott, of the C.P.R. agency, supplied the above gentlemen with tickets.

For the Holidays.

Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie have in stock for the Xmas trade, a very fine line of slippers of all kinds, specially suited for presents, and at prices much below the ordinary. Call in and see the stock, it is really handsome and cannot be surpassed in town. In every department they carry full lines, but make a specialty of fine hand-sewed work for ladies and gentlemen.

Painful Accident.

An accident of a serious nature occurred to David Flemming when attempting to gain admittance to the Little Windsor Hotel last night. In some mysterious, unexplained way he broke one of the front windows, cutting his wrist very severely. He immediately proceeded to Dr. Kincaid's office, leaving a trail of blood behind him which can yet be traced all along the route. The doctor dressed the wound and succeeded in stopping the hæmorrhage. Several veins of the arm were severed and he would have bled to death in a short time had surgical aid not been secured and the flow of blood speedily staunched.

Another Severe Accident.

Mr. Derry, saddler with Mr. B. Shortly, had the misfortune to break his thumb. When returning home yesterday afternoon, and when near the west-ward school he stepped aside to allow a lady with a baby carriage to pass. In doing so he slipped on the ice, falling heavily with the result of breaking the bone of one of his thumbs at the second joint and lacerating it severe ly. Dr. Kincaid dressed the wound and set the broken bone. The break is so complicated that it is feared the thumb will have to be amputated.

Important to Remember.

Don't forget that British-American surgeons representing Dr. J. D. Kergan and his far-famed International Medical Council, of Detroit, Mich., will be at the Grand Central hotel for two days only, on Monday and Tuesday, January 11th and 12th, 1886. Young, middle-aged and old men or women suffering from any disease peculiar to their age or sex, should not fail to call. Consultation free to all. Charges for treatment remarkably low, considering the experience and success of these wonderful specialists in treating chronic, lingering and obscure diseases and deformities of every name and nature. Mild and effective treatment given children who inherit some dreaded disease or who are sickly and feeble from causes unknown. Copies of Dr. Kergan's valuable publications and testimonials from persons cured, may be had by calling on his surgeons or writing to him at Detroit.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Lech have returned to Peterborough to reside permanently.

Dr. O'Shea, of Campbellford, was in town on New Year's.

Mr. John Jenkins, of Toronto, spent New Year's in town.

A large number of former Peterboroughonians were in town yesterday to spend New Year's day.

G. W. Crowell, Esq., manager of Harry Lindley's Company, was in town, says the Lindsay Warder, Tuesday and Wednesday making ready for the visit of the company all next week. He seems a live energetic Yankee, who knows exactly how to run a successful concern.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable," or "El Padre" brand of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pay them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby.

The virtue of Carbolic Acid for healing, cleansing and purifying is well known; but from the many modes of applying it, the public is uncertain how best to use it. CARD OF THANKS.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 2d, 1886.

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my best thanks and convey the same to the officers of the Equitable Life Assurance Society for the satisfactory payment of the $2,000 for which my late husband's life was insured. I feel the more grateful because evil disposed persons, filled with envy and malice, did all in their power to prevent the payment of the claim. But the action of the Equitable illustrates the justice of the claim and proves to the world that the Society is not only equitable in name but in practice. I have therefore great pleasure in recommending both yourself and your Company to all who desire reliable insurance, Missionary Meetings.

The Annual Missionary Services in the Charlotte and George Street Churches held Yesterday—Addresses by Rev. Charles S. Eby, M. A., lately a Missionary in Japan.

The annual missionary services were held in the Methodist churches here yesterday. The Rev. Charles S. Eby, M.A., for the last ten years an eminent missionary in Japan, delivered addresses in the Charlotte street church in the morning, and in the George street church in the evening. Mr. Eby is an eminent linguist, speaking equally well in English, French, German and Japanese, and is a very earnest and successful missionary. Previous to Mr. Eby's address in the Charlotte street church, the Rev. F. H. Wallace read a report of the Methodist Board of Missions, showing the work done by the Methodist church in Canada in home and foreign missions, and what was required to carry it on successfully.

SYNOPSIS OF MR. EBY'S ADDRESS.

The Rev. Mr. Eby, in commencing his address, gave an outline of the foreign mission work of the church. He said it would be difficult to give in the time at his disposal any adequate idea of the work to be done, it was so large. It could not be left to the church as abstract or as a whole, but to individuals. We are all debtors to God, and should bring the grace of God to those who have not got it. Christ said, "Go and conquer the world, and make disciples of every creature." The missionaries did this and men were lifted from darkness into light.

THE CONQUEST OF THE WORLD was a great work. The victory would be won not with the sword, the battle-axe and the cannon, but by the power of the Eternal One, to overcome the most potent powers and principalities of darkness. A few years ago the Anglo-Saxons were heathen, but had now the power to give the light of the Gospel to all. Christians had been praying for open doors and there were now hundreds of millions ready to receive Christianity. The churches were only playing with their privileges. There were the North American Indians, the cannibals of the South Sea Islands, the Africans, and most of the Asiatics to be Christianized He would speak especially of

JAPAN.

This empire of the east had 37,000,000, more than all Great Britain, all speaking one language, and ready to receive the Gospel. Japan is the gateway to the whole Orient, the Islands of Siam, Borneo, and China, with its teeming millions. The vastness of the opportunity brings upon us a stupendous responsibility, and Christians are called upon to do more than ever before. These but are situated much as the Greeks and Romans were at the time of Christ. They are well educated and are one of the most progressive people of the age. If Christianized they would become an inestimable power for good in evangelizing the eastern world. The Orientals have everything we have excepting Christ. A conservative force has held them together, but a great revolution has occurred, and Japan will go to destruction as the Grecian empire did, if not rescued by the Christian church. The moral rottenness of the empire is indescribable and which will surely damn it if not prevented by the churches. Aid depends on Christians. The revolution which has taken place has changed the whole political economy of the empire. Not long ago the Japanese looked to China for everything. All is now changed. The western world now influences it. They have now railways, telegraphy, a school system the same as Canada, an army and navy, newspapers, the latest inventions in machinery, and even police.

JAPANESE ARE NOT SAVAGES,

THERE WERE MANY DIFFICULTIES

in the way of Christianizing Japan. The Japanese would like to have the fruits and benefits of Christianity without Christianity itself. The speaker gave a brief history of Empire from the time of Luther. The Catholic church, when looking for fresh converts, located a mission in Japan. The Spaniards and Portugese were scouring the seas in quest of possessions, and landed in Japan, and commenced to trade with the island. The Japanese, who had thirty-five religions, were prevailed upon to add Christianity and make the even thirty six. The missionaries worked so hard that in sixty years they had two millions of converts who professed Christianity. They began to fight among themselves, however, and to persecute the Japanese, selling them for slaves. They also tried to subdue the Island and bring it under the rule of the Pope. The Government, seeing this, commenced a wholesale butchery of the Christians. Many gave up their lives and many gave up their religion. A small band of Catholics made a stand at Arama. The Japanese contracted with German Protestants who had settled on some of the neighboring islands, to bring their cannon and dislodge the remaining Christians of Japan, and they did so. For years the Germans continued to trade with Japan, but were compelled to trample the cross under their feet to show that they were not Christians. The Christians were hunted from the country till not a vestige remained. Rewards were given for the killing of a Christian, and the name of Christ was only spoken of in derision.

THE OPENING OF THE WAY.

Thirty years ago Pierre made a treaty with the Japanese, and trade between Japan and the western world was secured. The old feudal system passed away and a new Government brought in western customs. A missionary was taken as an adviser in educational matters. Japan has now a school system similar to ours, with primary schools, high schools, normal schools, and in the city of Tokio an immense university governed by professors of the highest standing in their several departments. Over twelve hundred students attended the university. Tokio in-ity all the professional men receive a liberal training. All the newspaper writers are educated at Tokio University. Japan has more newspapers than either Austria or Spain. The school master is also abroad. Formerly the heathen ministers were the highest state officers, but are now banished entirely, and church and state are divided. The Japanese are now as free as we, and Christianity is as free as any religion.

A FAIR FIELD AND NO FAVOR

was what the Christians wanted and this they have in Japan. There is a certain amount of good in Budahism and Confucianism, but they are now things of their past, and the Japanese are looking for a moral power as a basis of government. They wish for Christian civilization without Christianity. The other nations of the world are not using Japan as they should and the Japanese know this, and cannot see how Christianity is the base of such governments. According to treaties made with the Japanese foreigners are free from the law of Japan. Accordingly there is no law or order and no way of controlling foreigners. In Yokahama there are infamous places conducted by foreigners which are the worst this side of hell. The Japs judge by what they see. With western learning the infidelity of Bob Ingersol, Huxley, Spencer, Tyndall and Darwin have been introduced and many of the young men are becoming infidels.

THE BRIGHT SIDE.

There was a bright side to all this. For instance the Minister of Foreign Affairs for Japan, a man at the helm of the empire, said that he knew that the introduction of Christianity was the best thing that was ever done for Japan. This minister had informed a General in the army, who was the principal of a Christianity-persecuting society, that he would have to either give up persecuting Christians or lose his commission in the army. The general gave up persecuting. The government of Japan has proclaimed that all religions are free and equal. A Japan Count, who had travelled extensively, on retiring to his native land, said in a public speech that he had enquired how Great Britain, Germany and the United States were so prosperous, and was informed that an open Bible and the Christian religion was the

SOURCE OF ALL THEIR SUCCESS,

and he therefore advised the adoption of Christianity. Schools had been established and were doing good works. Holy lives were doing much good also. One of the most learned and influential men in Japan for a long while had published articles against Christianity. He also had a school where about 60 young men were educated.

This great man, however, soon changed his mind when he had considered the matter well and became one of the strongest supporters of Christianity. In an article published in a daily paper edited and published by him he said, "If we are ever going to stand we must have Christianity." The article was reprinted all over Japan and had a WONDERFUL EFFECT FOR GOOD.

A large hall was built as a school of infidelity by the opposers of the Christian religion. Nothing in favor of the cause would be heard within its walls. The speaker had attended several meetings in this building where two thousand persons assembled, and heard tyrades against the Gospel and himself. After a while a quarrel took place among the supporters of this place, and he secured from the management the seavices of the hall to deliver lectures in defence of Christianity. From that time forward it was used more for Christion work than it had been against it before.

The question, "Why do you not make more converts?" would naturally be asked. The answer is for the work. They have only five missionaries in the whole Empire of Japan, two of whom can preach well. This was an average of one preacher to look after 500,000 of a congregation. There is not a hamlet in Japan which is not willing to receive them and hear the word explained. The old influences are yet rampant, and the bad influences of the western world are to be contended with. What the speaker proposed to do was something on a grand scale. The city of Topio was the key of the empire and if a church capable of accommodating two or three thousand people could be built the whole city could be moved and moulded, and by it the whole empire. It would not do to stand idly by when all the bad influences were at work; $20,000 was wanted to build a church at Tokio. He was not losing faith. If the Christians of to-day do not do it some others will and will also receive the blessing. He concluded by making an eloquent appeal for aid in the great work and asked God's blessing for it.

THE LABORERS ARE TOO FEW

In the George Street Church.

Mr. Eby, in addressing the George street congregation on Sunday evening, said he was pleased to see that the Methodists of Peterborough were so prosperous and had two such fine churches, but was sorry they did not contribute more to the mission funds. He hoped their sympathies would be aroused. He spoke of Japan as the only field where the Methodists had engaged in the work the Lord commanded them to when He said: "Go out and preach the Gospel to every creature."

What was wanted in Japan was that the mind of man be brought under the influence of the mind of God. An intellectual barrier and moral rottenness had to be overcome. He then gave a description of

THE PRINCIPAL RELIGIONS OF JAPAN.

Shintooism, which had 800 millions of gods; it consisted in the worship of deceased ancestors, who were thanked for past favors and asked for blessings. The Buddist religion was much more gross and superstitious. Images were worshipped. The worship of Confucius was more rationalistic and accepted by the learned people, who accepted the classics of China as the classics of Japan. The old superstitions were all being destroyed. Western infidels are representing to the Japanese that Christianity is as superstitious as their old doctrines. It is now a nation Christian in outward things and infidel to the core. The people believe Christianity is good for their wives, daughters, neighbors, etc., but is not a personal matter. He again referred to the city of Tokio as the mover of the empire. It was the point at which to stem the tide of infidelity. Japanese will listen anything new, anything which gives more light on a subject. They want light,

THEY WILL LISTEN TO LECTURES

all day and sometimes all night, too. The speaker gave a description of how he had secured a large hall used for infidel meetings after much trouble. He was assisted by the American and British representatives in Japan. The Government gave him the hall for nothing, and Sir Harry Parkes, British Ambassador, paid for the publishing of a course of lectures he had delivered in the hall in defence of Christianity. The newspapers of the land also assisted in spreading the Gospel. The natives were asking for schools where they might study Christianity. He described the eagerness with which the people listened to the Gospel. Wherever he went, the largest theatres were hired, and the audience would listen attentively for five or six hours at a time, and then not be satisfied. At the request of the Evangelical alliance he had given a second course of lectures, and again the city of Tokio was stirred to its circumference. This was the state of the country when he left. His plan of addressing large audiences instead of the small ones their churches held was

A STUPENDOUS SUCCESS.

Broader platforms was what was wanted in Japan. Their school for training young men was blocked and had to be enlarged. It was yet far too small. Thus, they also needed larger schools. They had men in Japan, eminent English scholars, who could take prominent positions here. All they wanted was a few leaders and in ten or fifteen years Japan would be a Christian nation. The speaker then gave some of the experiences of his converts, showing the good works which was being done, and how readily the natives entered into the work. The Presbyterians and Methodists were much the same there and had a grand fellowship meeting last year, resulting in a great good. He found the Japanese very inquisitive as they searched the Scriptures daily to see if these things were so. One young native missionary had evangelized a whole village. His church was self-sustaining. It had 400 members. He also concluded this address by soliciting aid and asking God's blessing on the givers.

Collections and subscriptions were taken up after each service in aid of the mission fund.

The British Political Deadlock.

All the returns in the recent Imperial general elections have been received, and the result as to division of parties in the House is a tie. The returns are: Liberals, 335; Tories and Parnellites, 335, divided as follows: Tories, 249; Parnellites, 86. Grand total, 670, the full strength of the House of Commons.

A Druggist's Fatal Mistake.

HAMILTON, Jan. 1.—A little son of Arthur J. Mills, of this city, formerly of Belleville, died last night from the effects of a dose of poison, given in mistake for an emetic by Mark Munday, a druggist. The child was suffering from croup, and the druggist advised the use of ipecac, but put up by mistake a compound of ipecac and opium. The county crown attorney ordered an inquest, which will be held on Monday.

British Politics.

A Union of Conservatives and Liberals to Oppose Home Rule.

LONDON, Jan 2.—The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon says that it is able to announce that Mr. Gladstone is ready to entertain a feasible proposal from the Marquis of Salisbury to jointly concert for a settlement of the home rule question. The Gazette urges a coalition of the Liberals and Conservatives to deal with the subject of home rule.

A Cabinet Council was held to-day, which lasted one hour and 40 minutes. It is believed the ministry decided to adhere to the local government scheme for Ireland; also, in the case of the Government being defeated on the question to dissolve Parliament and to appeal to the country on the "dismemberment of the empire" cry. The question of conceding a portion of Upper Burmah to China was discussed, and it was agreed to make such a concession.

It is understood that the radicals will raise a question concerning the operations in the Soundan when the address in reply to the queen's speech at the opening of parliament is discussed. Failing to obtain distinct guarantees from the Marquis of Salisbury that no policy involving the conquest of the Soundan will be adopted, the radicals will force a division on the question.

LORD CHURCHILL'S LATEST IRISH SCHEME.

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Lord Churchill has submitted to the cabinet a proposition for the reform of the administration of the government in Ireland. The scheme is supported by Earl Carnarvon and Baron Ashbourne. The project involves the abolition of viceroyalty and castle executive and the placing of Ireland on the same footing as Scotland, having a secretary in the cabinet. If the cabinet adopts the measure it will be presented to parliament with the scheme for local governmen already decided upon.

Ben: Perley Poore, who always writes a colon(:) after the Ben in his name, defends its use on the ground that Washington and Jefferson invariably used the colon after an abbreviation of a Christian name, thus: Geo: Washington, Thos: Jefferson. In fact, use of the colon is one of the good old customs which Mr. Poore, himself a rare old-timer, religiously clings to.

German technical papers recommend the following mixture for the staining of wood in imitation of cedar: Two hundred parts of catechu, 100 parts of caustic potash, and 10,000 parts of water, all by weight. The longer the wood remains in this solution the better the stain penetrates its fibres, and thick veneers can in this way be stained right through the whole thickness, which permits a refinishing without injury to the color.

It is said that Chinamen in California are marrying young Irish girls. The Irish girls seemed to have a grudge against China.

FEARFUL OF THE CONSEQUENCES.

The official organ of the party announces that Parliament has further been prorogued till February 18th. The Dominion Government is bound to postpone the evil day as long as possible. The continual postponements of the date of the opening of Parliament shows that the Government is afraid to meet the people's representatives. That they have reason to be fearful of the result of being put on trial is not to be wondered at. With an enormous increase in the expenditure for public purposes; with surface indications of the most shameless corruption of administration and of the most regardless recklessness of expenditure, which parliamentary investigation will confirm; with an enormous deficit for the past year and with an even larger one in prospect for the coming year; with the guilt of responsibility for the recent rebellion to be answered for; with the incompetent, careless, corrupt and imbicile management of Northwest matters to answer for, it is not surprising that Sir John should be afraid to face the music. He is at his old expedient of delay in the hope that some fortunate concurrence of circumstances may release him from the dilemma in which his tortuous course in public matters has involved him. He wants time to perfect his defence, time to operate on such members of Parliament as have shown signs of dissatisfaction with his course, and the arguments he will employ will be, the public must know from past experience, not merely sentimental appeals to the members' sense of loyalty, but it may be asserted that more substantial arguments will be employed, and it is equally certain that the people's own money, or money's worth, will be used to induce the people's representatives to sacrifice their interests to support the most corrupt and incapable administration that ever controlled and misdirected the affairs of the country. It is as plain as daylight that the reason the meeting of Parliament is so long postponed, is because the Government is afraid to meet the representatives of a misgoverned people.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The great Tory re-action in England increased the Liberal representation in the counties from 50 to 134 members.

The annual meeting of the South Ontario Dominion Reform Association will be held in the Town Hall, Brooklin, on Wednesday the 13th January next, at 1 o'clock p.m., for the election of officers and for other business.

A careful analysis shows that the number of Liberals returned to the present Imperial Parliament, who are favorable to the disestablishment of the state church, is more than double that of those so favorable in the last Parliament.

Under the Mackenzie Government the annual expenditure was increased by $200,000, or at a rate of about $50,000 a year. The present Government have increased the expenditure from $24,455,000 in 1878-'79, to $35,327,060 in 1884-'85, or at the rate of $1,700,000 per annum. The rate of increase has therefore been about thirty-four times greater under Sir John Macdonald than under Mr. Mackenzie.

The organs indulge in much jubilation over the election of Prof. Foster, for King's County, New Brunswick. It is only Mr. Foster's personal victory. His opponent was a Tory, Mr. Domville, and it is no matter of surprise, with two candidates on a political equality, that the candidate who controlled the patronage, and had charge of the distribution of the loaves and fishes, should be successful.

About two-thirds of the new English Parliament is composed of what in English would be called the educated "middle classes." They include 112 barristers, 22 solicitors, 23 civil servants, 18 doctors, 34 newspaper men, 9 professors, 6 engineers, 2 preachers, 6 builders, 9 professional men not defined, 25 bakers, 24 brewers and distillers, 16 colliery owners, 4 estate agents, 69 manufacturers, 42 merchants, 9 drinters, 21 shipowwners, and 6 stockbrokers.

"What say you to a Piece of Roast Beef and Mustard?"

Well, there is much to be said. The question being asked of the banqueter at the average boarding house, calls up reminiscences of close contiguity to the horns, and beefsteak three cuts south thereof. He, of course, will pass, unless it occurs to him that he needs a hinge for his trunk. Should there be any suffering, the effects of an indulgence in such sinuous fare, use McGregor's Speedy Cure, a sure and effectual remedy for Dyspepsia, Constipation and all affections of the stomach and liver. Tory Corruption.

In Lennox county it was "cats," but down in King's, N.B., it was "turkeys." When an independent elector received a letter like this, accompanied by a cheque from one of Mr. Foster's committee-men, paying for goods which he had never sold, it certainly looks as if Mr. Foster's friends were capable of "ways that are dark and of tricks that are vain," like any other "Heathen Toree."

This interesting correspondence, showing how Prof. Foster's committee hoped to carry his election, was handed to the St. John Telegraph by Mr. L. Price, of Sussex, for publication. He says it was received by him through the mail on the day following the political meeting in Sussex, referred to in the letter. Mr. James A. Sinnot is said to be chairman of Hon. Mr. Foster's central committee:

Apo., Dec. 15, 1885.

Edward L. Price, Esq.

Dear Sir:—I enclose to you cheque $23.16,-100 and take out goods, &c. you got when here.

I thought to have seen you at the political meeting last night. I hope you will do for Hon. G. E. Foster in this campaign what you did for Prof. Foster in former ones.

I am, sir, yours, etc.,
JAMES A. SINNOTT.

No. 2375. Sussex, N.B., Dec. 15, 1885.
The Bank of Nova Scotia.

Pay Edward L. Price, Esq., or order, the sum of twenty-three 16-100 dollars.
$23.16. JAMES A. SINNOTT.

Mr. Edward L. Price, however, was not that kind of a man, and he handed the damning proof of Tory corruption and guilt over to an influential newspaper for publication. Mr. Foster charges $10 a night for lecturing, but his friends think that $23.16—note the preciseness of the cents—is the precise price for a vote. How many turkeys were purchased, we wonder, for Mr. Foster's New Year's dinner?—Ottawa Free Press.

To the Editor of THE DAILY EXAMINER:

SIR,—We are very thankful to you for correcting the error in your issue of the 31st ult., but as it has opened another difficulty that may lead some astray, I crave a favor to explain, very briefly, that we are not lay readers; as that is generally understood to be parties appointed to read a part of a religious service, in connection with some church or other. But we are an association to hold religious services and to speak as the Holy Spirit gives us utterance; each member must belong to a Christian church of some denomination, and so is orthodox according to the rules of the church that he belongs to. Hoping that this explanation will be sufficient to all interested, I am

Yours truly,

FIRST TOUR OF 1886.

It is hardly necessary to announce in detail to the invalids of this vicinity that each year has added greatly to our unequalled experience and facilities in the treatment of every form of chronic ailment, whether of a medical or surgical nature. The past year has been one of marked and unusual success, not only have the number of cases cured exceeded by hundreds that of any preceding year, but during the same time we have made many valuable scientific discoveries regarding the medical and surgical treatment and cure of several hitherto supposed incurable diseases and deformities. With the New Year comes most encouraging reports from patients in all parts of the United States and Canada, and we feel certain that ere long we shall be obliged to enlarge our consulting and operating staff to meet the demands of our fast increasing business. We do not profess to cure diseases in every stage, nor even to treat every case presented, frequently refusing to treat those who would gladly engage our services would we but hold out hopes which our past experience and honest judgment would not warrant.

The treatment of any case is undertaken only after a most careful and mature investigation of the entire facts regarding it, combined with a certainty of rendering aid to the sufferer and thereby adding to our reputation.

To all who honor us with their confidence and the care of their cases we promise honest and experienced treatment.

The extended reputation of our Dr. J. D. Kergan and the Surgeons composing his International Medical Council is a sufficient guarantee that all seeking their opinion or services will be entirely satisfied. No matter whether your disease be of the Head, Throat, Lungs, Nasal Passages Heart, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels' Bladder, Blood, Bones, Nerves, Skin, Joints, Glands, Spine, Muscles, Eye, Ear, Urinary Tract, Reproductive Organs, or any Diseases peculiar to your age or sex.

Campbellford.

A young man in Campbellford is likely to come into possession of a big fortune amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars. His relations recently learned that they are heirs to a vast estate in New York State, and they are now proving a clear title thereto. Many of the claiments met at Pitsburg, Penn., a few weeks a ago, to get a knowledge of their future wealth, and to take steps to ensure its distribution. The property is said to be worth many millions of dolla·s. We hope our young friend in Campbellford who is now working for his daily bread, may be fortunate in securing the prize he is led to believe will be his in a short time.—Herald.

Pontypool's Pestilence.

The Bethany correspondent of the Lindsay Post says: "Smallpox has broken out near Pontypool, about ten miles from here. There are already several cases and others showing symptoms of the dread disease. The contagion is supposed to have been carried by two Frenchmen who came from the east on the C. P. R., some weeks ago and lingered around Pontypool looking for work and provisions. The township board of health are acting promptly in the matter. On receiving notice they immediately put guard on the infested houses to prevent ingress or egress, also to furnish such supplies as are requisite. The board met on Wednesday of this week and decided to build an hospital near Pontypool which is to be finished Thursday evening. In fact every possible means to confine the disease to its present quarters are being used."

Percy.

Last Monday forenoon Jas. Barry, youngest son of Mr. P. Barry, Percy, met with a singular accident. As he was driving a load of hay out of the barn, a pitchfork was sticking with the top of the handle inclining towards the front of the load, and he happened to be sitting behind the fork, and as the wagon passed under the barn doorway the handle of the fork struck, and drove a tine into each of the young man's legs a few inches below the groin. The escape from fatal injuries was simply miraculous, for had the wounds been higher up they would have penetrated a vital part. So great was the pressure, the handle of the fork was broken. Dr. R. Coughlan was called in, and there is every hope that the young man will be around again in a few days.—Hastings Star.

ASTONISHING INCREASE IN BUSINESS

Three Hundred Skilled Workmen Imported From Europe.

THE DODGES OF DISHONEST COMPETITORS.

The Home of the Most Popular Cigars in the Dominion.

(From the Mail.)

A few months ago we published a description of the magnificent structure erected and about to be occupied by Messrs. S. Davis & Sons, Montreal. Since that time the premises described have been occupied by them, and a large addition made thereto, the colossal premises being too small. Owing to the wonderful increase in their business, which assumed such extraordinary and vast proportions within this past year, they were compelled to look to foreign markets to increase their staff, as it was found, after months of advertising for first-class cigar makers, impossible to obtain the required help in this country, thereby necessitating the importation of foreign labor. With their usual enterprise Messrs. Davis & Sons sent one of their junior members of the firm—Mr. M. E. Davis—to Europe to obtain the necessary help, which he has been successful in doing, about 300 skilled workmen having arrived a few weeks ago. Notwithstanding this large additional increase they are as yet behind orders, but hope soon to be able to fill all orders promptly. In justice to Messrs. Davis & Sons we should inform the public through our columns of a wrong impression that was created, attributable to an error in the Associated Press despatches, which stated that a strike had taken place amongst their imported workmen, owing to Messrs. Davis & Sons not carrying out the agreement made with them. The cause of this report was owing to two of the men having obtained access to the workroom while in an intoxicated condition and creating a disturbance which was promptly quelled by having them arrested. Certain interested parties have been trying to make capital out of the same, and have also diligently circulated reports to the effect that all the old workmen were discharged or were about to be. The following testimonial, which is signed by the old employes only, speaks for itself:—

"At a meeting of the Canadian operatives employed by Messrs. Davis & Sons, held on the 11th November, it was resolved that inasmuch as there have been rmours circulated which would convey the idea to the general public that we are dissatisfied with the introduction of some new arrivals amongst us, we most positively state that such is not the case, as we are perfectly contented, and think it is of very considerable benefit to the community that these people should have come here in order to enable the above mentioned firm to manufacture a sufficient number of cigars to supply the demand. We are fully aware of the fact that this firm have been unable to fill their orders for the past six months, and that had they not taken this step, German, Mexican, and Havana cigars would be imported in much larger quantities to meet the requirements of the trade. We therefore think it proper that this firm should have taken the course they have. We also certify that the new staff are mostly union men, and they are all getting the regular factory price, as we are ourselves; and further, that there will necessarily be employment given to a number of new beginners to prepare the stock for the increased force, such as stemmers, banders, etc. At the same time we are cognizant of the fact that it does not interfere with us in any way, shape or form; but we are fully aware that these people being here will be of considerable benefit, more especially to the city of Montreal, as they will circulate their earnings, amounting to thousands of dollars weekly, amongst the bakers, butchers, dry goods merchants, tailors, etc., etc. We also fully recognize the fact that Messrs. S. Davis & Sons do not, and would not, show any partiality to any person or persons. This is the experience we have had in the past and present, and are satisfied it will be so in the future, and take much pleasure in endorsing same with our signatures:

We congratulate Messrs. Davis & Son on the magnificent proportions the business has attained, a result mainly due to the superior class of goods manufactured by them, and the enterprise they have shown in various ways. They have had to contend not alone with legitimate business opposition, but with imitators of their brands, and also with unscrupulous parties, who, prior to using the bands on their cigars, placed inferior goods in their boxes, thereby injuring their brands and imposing upon the public. Messrs. Davis & Sons are the only cigar manufacturers in Canada who manufacture their own cigar boxes and packing cases, which industry gives employment to about 75 hands. The total number of people employed by them at the present time is close upon 1,000; enough, taking the families of the same into consideration, to make a town of about 3,500 people. We would not be at all surprised if this enterprising firm should build a town of their own.

An Extraordinary Offer.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every householder, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its saleability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $600 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through subagents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed; and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to everyone out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this papre who reads this offer to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

VALEDICTORY!

Good-bye! Good-bye, old year!

Another milestone has slipped behind us.

Another leaf in the Book of Life has closed forever.

The past is able to take care of itself. The future is in our own hands and may be what we chose to make of it.

We have again reached the Merchants' reckoning season, or stock-taking time, when we purpose balancing accounts and bringing all things into line for opening a new year.

Previous to our taking stock we will Clear Out all our winter goods at Cost, and will try to carry over as little as possible into another season.

During this month we will make an extra effort to close out the small balance of Winter Goods to make room for New Spring Goods, expected in early in February.

Your Influence Solicited.

The Clegg Case.

In the proceedings at Osgoode Hall, Common Pleas Division, the following decision was arrived at. It will be remembered that Clegg, a brakeman, in the employ of the G. T. R., was killed at the Charlotte street crossing. His relatives brought suit at the assizes and secured a verdict giving damages of $1,000. This judgment was appealed from and on Saturday the following judgment was given:—CLEGG v. GRAND TRUNK RY.—Motion absolute setting aside the plaintiff's verdict and dismissing the action with costs. W. Nesbitt for the defendants. G. T. Blackstock for plaintiff.

Deserving of Thanks.

The Mr. and Mrs. Gow mentioned in the following paragraph from the Fenelon Falls Gazette, were at one time residents of Ashburnham. The Gazette says: "We are pleased to be able to state that the Rev. C. W. Watch was deservedly the recipient of a purse of $20.40 as a Christmas gift, the above amount being the proceeds of a social held at the residence of Mr. J. F. Gow, Fenelon, for that purpose. Both Mr. and Mrs. Gow deserve the thanks of the Methodist body of this district for their efforts in making the social a success."

Life, Love and Death.

The registrations of births marriages and deaths, as made with the town clerk during the month of December, were as follows:—

Births	20
Marriages	20
Deaths	12

The following is a comparison of the registrations for the last two years:

	1884	1885
Births	178	160
Marriages	96	115
Deaths	110	102

It will be seen that there have been fewer births and deaths this year than last year, while marriages are in advance of last year's record by 17. The probs. are that next year's birth list will compare favorably with last year's.

Weights and Measures.

The practice of bringing meat, butter, &c. to the market already weighed is a common one, and in the hurry of a market day, the weight which the seller alleges the article to weigh is accepted. Several complaints having reached the District Inspector of Weights and Measures,—Mr. Wm Johnston of Belleville, of the incorrectness of the weighing, and consequent loss to the buyers, he visited the market in Peterborough, in October, and saw enough when there to convince him that there was cause for complaint. He accordingly detailed an officer to visit the market each Saturday since, to notify all persons who brought produce to the market ready weighed, that they must bring the weighing machines with which they weighed the produce to be inspected; of the thirty-nine thus notified, the great majority have complied with the notification, but the result of the testing shows how incorrect the weighing machines were, and how necessary the action taken by the District Inspector, for two thirds of them were incorrect, quite a number being so much so, that they were seized and broken. Several of the persons notified have refused to produce their weighing machines, and Mr. Johnston is in town to-day, laying information against them "for refusing to produce for inspection, when required so to do, the weighing machine or weighing machines used by them for purposes of trade." Mr. Johnston's advice is to all buyers on the market is, to insist on its being weighed on the market scales by the market clerk.

A Disappointment.

A large number of public school pupils suffered a heart-breaking disappointment this morning. Armed with their book-bags, they trudged to school, only to learn that the schools do not open till Thursday, Jan. 7th. It is confidently expected that most of them will survive the disappointment.

A Fire at Nicholls's Grocery.

A fire occurred in the grocery store of Mr. Nicholls, George street, north, about two o'clock Saturday mornipg. Fortunately the fire was observed before it had made much headway, and was speedly extinguised. h The damage was slight. The building belongs to Mr. Geo. Hilliard, and was insured in the National Insurance Company of Ireland.

Shoulder Dislocated.

On Sunday evening as Mrs. Fleury, housekeeper for Mr. J. G. Macklin, was leaving the George street Methodist Church, she tripped at the gate leading to the sidewalk and fell, partially dislocating her shoulder. She was immediately assisted to her feet by friends. A bystander, on hearing what had happened, reduced the dislocation by pulling the arm and allowing it to settle in its proper place. The suffering lady was then assisted to a doctor's office, where she fainted from pain. The doctor did all in his power to aid Mrs. Fleury's sufferings. She is doing as well as could be expected.

Advertising Stray Cattle.

If every farmer advertised every strange animal that came upon his premises and every farmer read the notices of the same there would not be a missing horse, cow, sheep or pig in the country. Don't give them a first-class boarding house for months, till the cost exceeds their worth, but advertise them immediately after they arrive. If animals are kept several weeks before any notice of them is given in the newspapers the owner is not bound to pay the costs for all that period. Farmers should bear this in mind. It also saves much trouble and loss of time, as farmers can apply direct for their strayed cattle.

Week of Prayer.

To-night the opening services in connection with the week of prayer is being held, beginning at 4 p.m., in St. Paul's Church school room. The subject is Praise and Thanksgiving. To-morrow, Tuesday evening, the services will be held in the Murray Street Baptist Church. Subject, "Humilation and Confession." Leader, Rev. Mr. Munro, speakers, Rev. Messrs Wallace and Torrance. On Sunday morning next, January 10th, the following will be the manner in which the several pulpits will be occupied: St. Paul's by the Rev. Mr. McAmmond. Murray Street by Rev. Mr. Wallace. George Street, by Rev. Mr. Bell. Charlotte Street, by Rev. Mr. Munro, St. Andrew's, by Rev, Mr. Tovell. Ashburnham Methodist Church, Rev. Mr. Torrance.

What We May Expect.

To be told that this is the January thaw,
And that it was caused by the heat of the contest in number four Ward.

The "left" candidates, however, to think it's a rather cold day,
And to wonder how in the world it happened with all the promises they received.

A tie or two in number one and four Wards.

All the bibulists, in spite of the rain, to vote that it was a very dry day.

The full returns about six o'clock.

Rev. Mr. Eby to give his views (stereopticon and otherwise) of Japan, in the George street Methodist church to-night.

Easterly to southerly winds, cloudy to rainy, mild weather, followed to-night by colder west and northwest winds and light sleet or snow.

What They are Saying.

The only way to settle the Chinese question is to Christianize the heathen Chinee.—Rev. Mr. Wallace.

Land sakes! I wish the schools would open again.—Matres familias.

The electors of my ward are gentlemen of their word.—The successful candidate.

And a good many of those in mine are double-dyed liars.—The defeated.

I wouldn't belong to a council that has to meet in a greasy old butter market.—One of the "left" candidates.

Yes, it is getting things down rather fine when our city fathers are brought down to a grease spot.—A jocose voter.

We wouldn't vote because there were no handsome bachelor candidates.—Lady electors.

I wouldn't spoil my feather for the whole batch.—The spinster elector.

I was the most unconcerned citizen in town to-day.—The Mayor-elect (by acclamtion.)

CARD OF THANKS.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 2d, 1886.
DEAR SIR,—Please accept my best thanks and convey the same to the officers of the Equitable Life Assurance Society for the satisfactory payment of the $2,000 for which my late husband's life was insured. I feel the more grateful because evil disposed persons, filled with envy and malice, did all in their power to prevent the payment of the claim. But the action of the Equitable illustrates the justice of the claim and proves to the world that the Society is not only equitable in name but in practice. I have therefore great pleasure in recommending both yourself and your Company to all who desire reliable insurance,

Opening of the New Church of St. Thomas', Millbrook.

Wednesday last, the 16th ult., was a day to be remembered in the history of the parish of Cavan, being the occasion of the opening of the new St. Thomas' Church. The day had long been looked forward to, and although unavoidably postponed from time to time, came at last, and brought with it all the favorable circumstances which were desired to crown the event. There was snow enough to make good sleighing, the cold was not so intense as to prevent even delicate persons turning out, the sky was bright, in fact it was a perfect winter's day. As was to be expected the people from the various country churches, St. John's, Trinity and Christ's church and, with the addition of many from other denominations, made three congregations, as large, if not larger than ever before were gathered within the walls of St. Thomas' Church. As was expressed by the Bishop in his address of congratulation; it was a proud day for both Rector and people. The Rector had a special reason for gratification for the handsome edifice opened on that day, was the fifth church and the sixth church building erected during his incumbency. The people of St. Thomas' congregation felt a reasonable pride in the successful completion of the work in which they evinced a special interest from the time it was first entered upon, and to which they liberally and cheerfully contributed. The result of the harmonious co-operation of the members of the church, both clerical and lay is a handsome, church-like structure of white brick, Gothic in its style of architecture, with spacious nave and chancel, vestry and organ chamber, and is capable of seating 400 persons. The windows are of colored glass, two of which are worthy of remark, the one at the chancel end of the church being relieved by the

CAME IN LARGE NUMBERS,

the other, east of the entrance door having the inscription, "Suffer the little children to come unto Me," is the gift of the children of the Sunday school. The frontal and super-frontal of the altar, as well as the hangings of pulpit and reading desk are handsomely embroidered, and are the gift of kind friends in the parish of Shenley, Herts., England. The silver bowl for the font is presented by Miss McClellan, and the Bible for the reading desk, by Mrs. Lisnecar. The church is the design of Mr. John Belcher, architect. Special services appropriate to the occasion of the opening, in which the clergy from a distance took part, had been arranged and were heartily joined in by those present. The choir deserves a word of congratulation upon the real help they tendered to the heartiness and devotion of the services.

EARNEST AND ELOQUENT SERMONS

were preached by the Lord Bishop of the Diocese, the Rev. Dr. O'Meara of Port Hope, and the Rev. Canon Dumoulin, of Toronto. In addition to the clergy of the parish and those above mentioned there were present the Ven. Archdeacon Pinkham, the Rev. Dr. Carry and Smithett, the Rev. Messrs. Beck, Burgess, Chafee, Farncomb and Jones. In the afternoon a special service was held when about forty candidates were admitted to confirmation. A lunch was provided for the clergy and others present from a distance by the ladies of the congregation. During the progress of this part of the proceedings it was remarked that in the same room the late lamented Col. Williams was present when he laid the foundation stone of the new building, and added his name to the subscription list. The collections at the services amounted to about $100. The solemnities of the day proceeded and were brought to a close free from any occurrence to mar their beauty and enjoyment, and the new church began its services under the 'most propitious circumstances.

All the inmates of the Longue Pointe lunatic asylum have been vaccinated.

Planting Trees in Winter.

Port Hope.

William Alfred Hobbs, oldest son of Mr. Fred Hobbs, of this town, was murdered in a Toronto barbers' shop on Saturday night. The people in the barber shop where the murder took place seem to have acted in a most callous-hearted manner, and to have been disposed to shield the perpetrator of the crime, his getting shaved being evidently the preliminary to an attempt to escape. The deceased was a steady, quiet, inoffensive young man, and one of the best earners in Toronto. He learned the business with Mr. James Williams, of this town, but had resided for the past two years in Toronto, where he was highly esteemed by all who knew him. Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs and family, will have the sympathy of our entire population in their sad affliction.

A Distinct Denial.

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—There appeared in the Saturday EVENING EXAMINER a letter from an anonymous scribbler insinuating, if not plainly stating, I had urged to the electors of No. 3 Ward, that there were too many Catholics in the Town Council and too many Methodists on the School Board. I would distinctly say that it is untrue, that I did either one or the other, and the result of the election satisfies me that mean dodges like the above work little advantage to the man who pens them, or harm to the one they are intended to injure.

Your obedient servant,
W. H. MOORE.

Toronto Mayoralty.

Toronto has just passed through one of the most exciting municipal contests in the history of the city. The interest in the result was not confined to Toronto for the telegraph office here was thronged in the evening with citizens anxious to hear who was elected. A local clergyman, when he heard that Howland was returned by a majority of 1,665, was devoutly thankful and said it was a "grand triumph for morality.' The Toronto News, which had worked tooth and nail for Howland, broke in to ecstacies over the event. Its headings, which perhaps accurately indicate the issues, read as follows:—

Victory!—Howland to be our next Mayor.—The whiskey ring knocked to Smithereens.—The typos defeat the Mail's Candidate.—The beer mob whipped out of Sight.—Victory perches on the banners of the Ladies.—The Johnson Lane hero Squelched,—And his ardent supporters shut Out—Howland's majority, 1,665.

The New House to Convene January 21—A Forecast of the Irish Bill Which is to be Introduced.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Parliament will meet on the 21st instant.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—A special despatch from London states that it is settled that the Queen's speech will announce the introduction of the Irish bill resolved on by the cabinet on Saturday. The decision met with strong opposition, the landed element in the ministry being solid in favor of restricting the bill to an enlargement of the authority of the existing local board. The bill is being drafted and will be ready for presenting early next week. The Queen has approved of the principles of the measure. The legislative chambers are to have exclusive authority over the revenue and expenditures of the country. The chambers will have power to undertake public works, such as the construction of harbors. There is no authority over the police, militia, tariffs or external relations in any shape. Provision is made against the threatened creation of a national volunteer army through the establishment of rifle clubs by the retention of the punitive statutes, and imperial control over all moneys raised, whether by rates or loans.

A Strange Experience.

"I had a strange experience on Saturday," said a young man who is connected with one of the largest tobacco establishments in the city to a reporter of the American recently. "I was struck by lightning, and didn't know it—struck by a piece of thunderbolt, and never knew what hit me. I was at my desk at the store working like a Turk, getting the books in shape. You remember how the rain came down, and how bright the lightning was for a few minutes. The back door was open, and there was quite a draft in the room, as the cool air felt very pleasant. All of a sudden that unusually sharp flash of lightning came. I felt a sharp smack just over my right eye, as if something had hit me, or, perhaps better, as if a bee or wasp had lit there for a second and stung me. It naturally scared me, and I jumped from my seat and looked around in rather a dazed manner, trying to think what had happened. One of the members of the firm, who had been partially blinded by the flash, saw me start, and called out to me to know what was the matter. I could give no explanation at first, but finally explained to him that I had felt a sharp smack upon the forehead. He looked, and, sure enough, there he found a bright red mark, which appeared as if it had been made by a sharp rap with the end of a ruler. He then told me that he had felt a shock himself, and, more than that, he had seen the lightning playing in the store, making, as it were, a passage from the front door through the back. I examined the mark on my forehead afterward, but could discover nothing peculiar about it. There was a slight pain for a while, but it soon passed away, and an hour afterward there was not a sign of the mark left. I am confident I was struck by lightning, but I believe I am probably the luckiest man who ever had that misfortune. I believe in the adage that lightning never strikes twice in the same place, and shall occupy that seat at my desk with a greater sense of security than I ever possessed before."

"And there was no noise about it—nothing like a smash?"

Not a "smash."—Baltimore American.

Old and Faithful.

There are real love matches in Russia, judging from the story that two people had loved and been constant to each other for forty-two years, the man being then 25 and the woman sweet 16. Fortune, however, in their case was cruel. The couple knew that to marry and be penniless would be madness. So for forty-two years they have waited. The man now, by industry, owns a two-story wooden house, and the woman has saved, by thrift and care, 500 rubles, and their patience and perseverance are at last rewarded by a happy marriage. An eye-witness declares that it is impossible to relate the happiness which shone in the eyes of these old and faithful lovers as they were made one by the priestly blessing.

THE BRITISH POLITICAL SITUATION.

The political imperial situation has become more complicated as the full result of the voting is known. The result of the delayed Scotch elections produces a complete deadlock. The Liberal strength in Parliament exactly ties the combined Tory and Parnellite strength. The following table gives a view of the relative strength of the two parties in the several divisions of the United Kingdom:—

	L	C	N	Total
Scotland	62	10	—	72
England—
Boroughs and Universities	95	84	1	180
Counties	149	109	—	258
Metropolis	25	37	—	62
Ireland	—	18	85	103
	335	249	86	670

With this state of things it is impossible to see how Lord Salisbury can carry out any legislation. He has not even the confidence of the House. But, since he was anxious enough to gain power by coalition with the Irish party, it cannot be expected that he will resign now, even with a practically adverse feeling in the House against him. The opinion is held that he will dissolve the House and make an appeal to the country, on the cry of unity of the Empire, suggested by the demands of the National Irish party for practical independence for Ireland. The Irish question of course overshadows all others. Although Parnell holds the balance of power apparently, he is, it seems, not able to force either party to assume the responsibility of framing a measure dealing with the subject. The Imperial Cabinet has been coquetting with the Home Rule question, but has been able to only agree on what the Parnellites will regard as very milk and water compared to their demands. Now the doughty Lord Randolph Churchill comes forward as the champion of the Irish, and is intrusted with the preparation of a scheme, which, notwithstanding the difficulties that environ the question, he seems to think he will be able to carry into effect. Almost as able men as he have wrestled with the question. As a contemporary puts it, "men like Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, James Lowther, W. E. Forster, G. O. Trevelyan and Lord Spencer have given their undivided attention to Ireland, and have failed to conciliate its people or to win credit for themselves. Under Sir Michael Hicks-Beach the trouble became acute, and he gave it up, Mr. James Lowther is discredited entirely, Mr. Forster it almost ruined politically, Mr. Trevelyan, by dint of firmness and perseverance, held his own, and he quieted the country greatly; Earl Spencer mastered but failed to conciliate the people; Earl Carnarvon has simply allowed discontents to rule; his administration has been the weakest since that of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach." So it will be seen that the Tory party has a very tough question to settle, and, besides its intrinsic difficulties, the very ideas involved in the Parnellites' demands are based on principles of legislative reform repugnant to every Tory instinct. Of course Mr. Gladstone is not now in a position to speak, and his utterances when the proper time shall come, will be looked for with intense interest. It is not his place to formulate any scheme before that of the Government is submitted. There has, of course, been considerable uncertainty as to the course he shall decide to pursue on the re-assembling of Parliament. The conjectures on the subject are now disposed of by the announcement that the Liberal chief has definitely decided to make no proposal to Parliament on the Irish Home Rule question until the Irish policy of the ministry has been unfolded.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The rumoured retirement of Hon. John Bright, the People's Tribune, from Parliament on its reopening is flatly contradicted. John Bright is scarcely the sort of man to put a constituency to the trouble of returning him for mere glorification. He will in all probability give his leader good aid in perfecting the very important legislation which the new Parliament will bring forth, whether it is in the shape of Home Rule for Ireland or Land Law Reform for Scotland.

A company will apply to Parliament next session for a charter to build a railway from Portage La Prairie to Lake of the Woods. Sir Charles Tupper promised that as soon as the railway north of Lake Superior was completed no opposition would be offered to the construction of competing lines into Manitoba and the Northwest. Mr. Pope will be asked to fulfil the pledge made by Sir Charles, but the influence of the Syndicate will no doubt prove all-powerful. The members of the Syndicate pretend that the granting of a charter for a competing line into Manitoba would reduce the value of their stock.

How Political Support is Purchased.

At Brucefield, Mr. C. Cameron opened a telling speech thus:—

"I desire here and now, and in the face of the people of this country, to charge the present Administration with extravagance in the management of public affairs—extravagance such as no country, and especially a country situated as Canada is, can justify—with corruption so open and so plain, that one is astounded at the bare contemplation of it. I desire to charge and I do here charge them with having prostituted the high trust reposed in them by the people of this country to the lowest and basest purposes; with having so corrupted the Tory press by direct money bribes that no utterance of the Tory press can receive at the hands of thinking men the slightest consideration; with having so debased, degraded, and corrupted the whole public service of this country that fraud and misconduct, peculation and thieving ride rampant in every department of the public service. (Cheers.)

In the course of his speech he gave the present Tory government reward their political supporters at the public expense. Mr. Cameron said:—

"The following are the names of Sir John's favourites who hope to fatten on the spoils stolen from Ontario. You will readily recognise them as unswerving supporters of the present Tory Government:—

1. The St. Catharines Milling & Lumbering Company, President of the Co., Capt. Murray of St. Catharines, who is also President of the Conservative Association for the County of Lincoln; P. H. Chabot, an Ottawa Tory heeler; J. C. Gouin, the Tory Postmaster at Ottawa, and H. A. Costigan, a son of the Minister of Inland Revenue, are all corporaters of this Company which obtained of Ontario timber limits, 32,000 acres.

2. C. J. Campbell, of Toronto, the Tory brother of the Tory Postmaster at Ottawa, 32,000 acres.

3. Hugh Macdonald, a Toronto Tory, 32,000 acres.

"What say you to a Piece of Roast Beef and Mustard?"

Well, there is much to be said. The question being asked of the banqueter at the average boarding house, calls up reminiscences of close contiguity to the horns, and beefsteak three cuts south thereof. He, of course, will pass, unless it occurs to him that he needs a hinge for his trunk. Should there be any suffering, the effects of an indulgence in such sinuous fare, use McGregor's Speedy Cure, a sure and effectual remedy for Dyspepsia, Constipation and all affections of the stomach and liver. FIRST TOUR OF 1886.

It is hardly necessary to annou[nce] detail to the invalids of this vicinity that each year has added greatly to our unequalled experience and facilities in the treatment of every form of chronic ailment, whether of a medical or surgical nature. The past year has been one of marked and unusual success, not only have the number of cases cured exceeded by hundreds that of any preceding year, but during the same time we have made many valuable scientific discoveries regarding the medical and surgical treatment and cure of several hitherto supposed incurable diseases and deformities. With the New Year comes most encouraging reports from patients in all parts of the United States and Canada, and we feel certain that ere long we shall be obliged to enlarge our consulting and operating staff to meet the demands of our fast increasing business. We do not profess to cure diseases in every stage, nor even to treat every case presented, frequently refusing to treat those who would gladly engage our services would we but hold out hopes which our past experience and honest judgment would not warrant.

The treatment of any case is undertaken only after a most careful and mature investigation of the entire facts regarding it, combined with a certainty of rendering aid to the sufferer and thereby adding to our reputation.

To all who honor us with their confidence and the care of their cases we promise honest and experienced treatment.

The extended reputation of our Dr. J. D. Kergan and the Surgeons composing his International Medical Council is a sufficient guarantee that all seeking their opinion or services will be entirely satisfied. No matter whether your disease be of the Head, Throat, Lungs, Nasal Passages Heart, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels' Bladder, Blood, Bones, Nerves, Skin, Joints, Glands, Spine, Muscles, Eye, Ear, Urinary Tract, Reproductive Organs, or any Diseases peculiar to your age or sex.

You are invited to call on day and date mentioned, or write to Dr. J. D. KERGAN, Corner Woodward and Grattiot Avenues, Detroit, Mich.

An Unsatisfactory Meeting.

A little man, in walking down the dusty open way,
Met a little woman traveling afoot the other way;
And, laying down his big valise, he bowed in handsome style,
While she returned his greeting with a courtesy and a smile.
"Can you inform me where, ma'am, I can find a wife?" said he.
"If was on my tongue to ask about a husband, sir," said she.
"I'm weary of my single state, and many miles I've gone
For one who'll cook and wash for me, and sew my buttons on;
Who'll wait on me when I am well and tend me when I'm ill,
And never give me cause to grumble at a foolish bill.
Do you know any one, ma'am, you can recommend?" said he.
"I'm looking for precisely such a husband, sir," said she.
He puckered up his lips and whistled thoughtfully and low,—
Then slowly reached for his valise, regretfully to go;
While, with a pensive little smile, she gazed up at the sky
And watched the fleecy cloudlets as they lazily passed by.
"'Tis plain I'm not the husband you're after, ma'am!" said he.
"'Tis evident I'm not the wife you're seeking, sir!" said she.

Taking All the Christmas Fun Out of His Wife.

It was coolly planned and deliberately executed in cold blood. They sat by the fire, and as he perused his paper she was busy with thoughts of Christmas. By and by he waked up and asked:

"Did any parcels for me come up to-day?"

"No, dear," she replied, as her face grew white as snow. "Have you been buying anything?"

"No, nothing much. I happened in at Blank's this afternoon, and, as he was selling out his slippers at cost, I bought me three pairs. Guess I'll be fixed for the next ten years to come."

"You—bought—slippers?" she gasped as she pressed her hands upon her heart.

"Yes, and Dash came to the door as I was going past, and asked me in to look at his stock of dressing-gowns."

"And—and—"

"And I bought me a couple. Rather handy garments you know, and these are something extra nice."

"Do you mean to tell me that you went and—"

"Why, dear, how you tremble," he interrupted. "Yes, I bought two of 'em, and when Dash happened to mention that I ought to have a smoking cap, some new shirts and a smoking set and a cane, I told him to go ahead and send 'em up. I'll order a new silk hat, wristlets, gloves, sleeve-buttons and neckties to-morrow, and then I guess I'll be provided for. Come and kiss your dear old hubby."

But she didn't. She rose up and clawed and gasped and rushed out of the room with tearful eyes and clenched teeth. All her Christmas surprise was handicapped.—Detroit Post.

Terrorism in Ireland.

Poor People Suffering by the National League's Action.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The Dublin executive report to the Government, concerning the growth of outrages in Ireland concurs with letters published in the newspapers showing the disastrous extent of terrorism excited by the National League. It penetrates to the humblest homes of the peasantry, and assumes phases of brutality which go far to disgust the friends of Ireland with the behavior of the organization. One case is reported of a midwife being prevented from attending a suffering woman because her husband was under the ban of the League. Another is that of an old woman who is starving from her illness and inability to provide for herself. Her neighbors, under pressure, brought to hear on them by the League, refused to afford her any relief because she had once worked for a farmer who had been boycotted. Relays of police guard all the great landlord's mansions The situation is becoming simply intolerable, and a general strike against paying rents prevails everywhere. Occupiers of cottages and land practically possess them, without having purchased them, by an organized system of downright robbery. Process servers decline to serve processes from fear of the Leaguers. These lawless people march and drill openly in the face of the police and virtually govern the country without regard to English authorities. Lord Ch[illegible] is said to have been so impressed by what he saw in Ireland during his recent visit that he will urge a modified renewal of the Crimes' Act.

Another Jewel in Her Crown.

The British Empire has begun the New Year by celebrating in Rangoon the formal annexation of Burmah. There can be no doubt that British rule will be a blessing not only to the Burmese themselves but to all their neighbors, and the year will be a happier one for all concerned owing to the event which occured on its first day. If China's friendship for Great Britain has been strengthened as well as her acquiescence gained by the cession of one of the northern provinces of Burmah to her empire, the trifling cost is not worth consideration. A defensive alliance between China and Great Britain would check the aggression of Russia, assure peace to Asia, and would probably result in the commercial development of China by English-speaking people.

Japan.

Stereopticon Views of the Land of the Rising Sun—And Description of It by Mr. Eby, Japanese Missionary.

Notwithstanding the inclement state of the weather last evening a large audience assembled in the George street Methodist Church to have a peep at the interesting land of the rising sun and to hear what Mr. Eby had to say about it. The stereopticon views shown by Mr. Eby are allowed to have been the best ever shown in Peterborough and the lecture was [illegible] highly interesting. Mr. Eby [illegible] the capital Japan [illegible] Orient the Great Britain of the East. [illegible] views were prepared by [illegible] mainly from photographs and drawings. The first view presented was that of a ship, with Yokahama in the distance. Yokahama, Tokio and other cities of prominence, and places of interest in and around them were shown, accompanied by a running description of each by the lecturer. The articles of conveyance of Japan were represented on canvas, and caused considerable amusement. Beautiful mountain scenery which it would be difficult to imagine, far less describe, was made [illegible] Japanese understand the art of beautifying a beautiful spot. Numbers of castles of the most grotesque architecture, after the Chinese style, were shown, also temples of the heathen gods, all of the most artistic design, with delightful surroundings. The pleasure grounds, vividly portrayed, were were wonderful specimens of artificial beauty, each presenting the appearance of a little paradise. Every plot of ground is beautified with artificial lakes, dwarf blossoming trees, small castles, towers, and temples arranged in unique and artistic order and in perpetual variety. A Japanese house, with sliding paper partitions and destitute of furniture, was shown and the manners of the natives described. In Japan they use no chairs, but cross their feet under them and sit on the soles. The dress and customs of the people were illustrated and explained. Western fashions are being rapidly adopted. The ladies cut their hair short. Instead of a bustle they wear an immense sash tied at the back, which answers the same purpose. The manners and customs were fully described by Mr. Eby and were very interesting and amusing. A number of the prominent personages of the empire, among whom were the Emperor and Empress, were shewn in the ancient and modern garments of Japan. A number of beautiful ornaments in bronze, wood and porcelain, and gems in pictorial art, which gave an idea of the ability of the Japanese, were shewn. The edict against Christians and the Lord's Prayer were shewn on the canvass in Japanese letters. Views of the Methodist chapel of Tokio and the Shidinoka, once an infidel school and now the Exeter Hall of Japan, brought to a close the delightful panorama.

On motion of Dr. Fife, seconded by Mr. Geo. A. Cox, a vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Eby, and the assembly separated after singing the doxology.

An Extraordinary Offer.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every householder, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its saleability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $800 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through subagents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed; and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to every one out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

VALEDICTORY!

Good-bye! Good-bye, old year!

Another milestone has slipped behind us.

Another leaf in the Book of Life has closed forever.

The past is able to take care of itself. The future is in our own hands and may be what we chose to make of it.

We have again reached the Merchants' reckoning season, or stock-taking time, when we purpose balancing accounts and bringing all things into line for opening a new year.

Previous to our taking stock we will Clear Out all our winter goods at Cost, and will try to carry over as little as possible into another season.

During this month we will make an extra effort to close out the small balance of Winter Goods to make room for New Spring Goods, expected in early in February.

Your Influence Solicited.

JAMES ALEXANDER.

Meeting To-Night.

Tha union missionary meeting in the Charlotte Street Church to-night promises to be an unusually interesting one. Rev. Mr. Green of British Columbia, who will address the meeting, is said to be an exceedingly effective and enthusiastic speaker. Collections in aid of the mission fund of the Methodist Church.

A Disappointed Host.

Mr. R. N. Roddy of the C. P. R, Hotel, who was serenaded by the Fire Brigade Band on New Years night, invited the band to a supper on any night Mr. Millar, bandmaster, might name. Monday night was appointed. Mr. Roddy prepared a magnificent supper for the band and their friends, and waited expectantly for his guests until after ten o'clock, not one member of the band putting in an appearance. He then went to the band room, and there ascertained that Mr. Millar had forgotten the appointment. Both Mr. Roddy and the boys are losers to a considerable extent.

A Veteran Returned.

Yesterday one of the heroes of Batoche and an old Peterborough boy, arrived by the C. P. R., in the person of Mr. R. S. Cook. The readers of the EXAMINER will perhaps remember that he was shot in the leg in action at Batoche. He is now convalescent and his medical attendants have hopes of saving his leg. His injury was aggravated by the horses, which drew the ambulance carrying him from the field, running away and galloping over some rifle pits. Many of his old friends yesterday, called on him and tendered their congratulations on his return to town.

The Municipal Elections.

They are Quietly Contested Ten Members of the old Council Returned Little Demonstration in the Evening.

The Municipal Elections passed off very quietly yesterday. Mr. Steveuson having been elected Mayor by acclamation, there was no contest for the civic chair, and the contests for Councillorship were not very keen. The usual speechifying in the evening was dispensed with. The Fire Brigade Band serenaded the Council members elect, but found few of them at home. The following is the result of the days' polling, the first named three in each ward being elected:—

WARD NO. 1.

Davidson, R. S	210
Cahill, Thos	187
McNaughton, John	164

Kendry, James	123
Hartley, J. J	103
Menzies, Thos	100
Mason, Frank	95
Baptie, John D	60

It will be seen that the old Councillors for Wards Nos. 1 and 4 have been re-elected, and in No. 2 Ward Mr. McNeil takes the place of Mr. Green, who did not present himself as a candidate this year; and in No. 3 Ward Mr. Moore takes the place of Mr. Douglas. Out of eleven of last year's Councillors who were candidates for re-election, ten were elected.

ENNISMORE.

The following is the Municipal Council for 1886, with figures:

For Councillors.—John Donoghue 102, Jeremiah McCarthy 100, John G. Graves 100, John Young 64, John Nurse 61. The first four consequently being elected.

One feature of the new Franchise Bill was the number of female voters, who all, without exception, gave their support to the popular Reeve.

WEATHER NOTES.

The last month of the year has come to a close with many thrilling events to chronicle since the close of '84 both in our Dominion and foreign lands. The month commenced with a mild temperature for five days, when a cold dip was apparent and on the morning of the 7th the thermometer stood at 10° below zero, and only on two other mornings did it fall below. On the 20th it fell to 2° below and on the 26th only 1°, the latter end of the month being unusually mild, the year of '85 in its last throbs, passing into oblivion with the mercury at 36° above zero, with an average for the month of 21° 1-31. Rain fell on 7 days to the depth of 1 inch and 1-100 of an inch. Snow fell on 11 days to the depth of 18 inches, the heaviest fall being 8 inches between 7 a. m. of the 4th and 7 a. m. of the 5th, after which we had pretty good sleighing for about two weeks; and fog on 4 days. Yellow birds have been seen on several occasions during the month, which I believe is a very uncommon thing for Canada. During the month the wind was blowing at sunrise from the different points respectively, viz.: Southeast 7 days, southwest 8 days, east 3 days, north 3 days, northwest 5 days, south 3 days, northeast 1 day, and west 1 day.

A gang of burglars on New Year's morning while entering the premises of Edward Calis, Bellevue avenue, Toronto, accidentally set fire to the curtain and fled. Near by they entered another house and got off with considerable booty.

CARD OF THANKS.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 2d, 1886.

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my best thanks and convey the same to the officers of the Equitable Life Assurance Society for the satisfactory payment of the $2,000 for which my late husband's life was insured. I feel the more grateful because evil disposed persons, filled with envy and malice, did all in their power to prevent the payment of the claim. But the action of the Equitable illustrates the justice of the claim and proves to the world that the Society is not only equitable in name but in practice. I have therefore great pleasure in recommending both yourself and your Company to all who desire reliable insurance,

The Grange Trust.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR.—Will you give the following open letter an insertion in the columns of your Daily and Weekly EXAMINER and oblige

yours truly,
THOS JOHNSTON.

To the Members of the Grange Trust, (limited.)

GENTLEMEN,—Mr. R. J. Doyle, Secretary of this trust, has sent to the stockholders a circular and post card. The circular has a long history of the efforts of the managers to float bonds, which on the face of it, is the strongest condemnation of the management, and proves that in action in insisting on the obligations of the company to hold its annual meeting of stockholders at the time and in manner fixed by its by-laws, is fully justified

The feeling of uncertainty and fear resulting from the peculiar conduct of the managers warrants me and all stock-holders in demanding such a meeting as will enable us to know with certainty where we stand, what has been done, and what is best to be done in the future. Without going into details I simply ask you not to sign the post card sent you, but to unite with me in insisting that there shall be no more prevarication or unnecessary delay, but that the directors shall do as all well conducted companies do—namely, send out a full audited annual report, and call a meeting where it and all other matters concerning the company can be ventilated.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your ob'd't serv't,
THOMAS JOHNSTON.

Otonabee, Jan. 6th, 1886.

Keene.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

There has been a great number of social gatherings since we last wrote you. Sometimes they would amount to four or five on a single evening, and at all points of the compass. And still they come. Witness the social next Friday evening, 8th inst., to be held at Dr. Harrison's. The admission fee is 15 cts., which covers the tea and eatables as well as the feast of reason and flow of song, which will follow. Proceeds go to the Ladies' Aid Fund of the C. M. Church here. Be sure and come—they invite all the country—as the doctor's house is capacious, and there is plenty of room—all the stoves are gone, and a fine hot air furnace supplies warmth and comfort throughout the mansion. And yet another! There is to be an "Open Temple" entertainment in the Allandale hall on Friday evening, 15th inst., where the public will be treated to songs, readings and recitations and all the customary good things of a temperance literary gathering, without money or price. We bespeak a full house.

The last day of school here the scholars of both upper and lower rooms surprised their respective teachers with neat and serviceable presents. Mr. Mark receiving a handsome plush dressing case, and Miss Baptie a pretty enamelled work-box inlaid with pearl. They expressed their gratitude in suitable and earnest terms, and the school closed with hearty good wishes and general content. Both teachers are re-engaged for the coming year.

The curling and skating rink was opened to the public for a few days, up to New Year's and the day after. As we are writing (Tuesday evening) the rink surface is a small pond of clear water, and many anxious hearts are hoping for frost and snow. The admission fee is to be ten cents each for spectators, and fifteen cents for the use of the ice (when it forms) in curling or skating. Season tickets, exclusive of carnivals, two dollars for each gentleman, a dollar and a-half for each lady, and one dollar each for child under fourteen. Success to the enterprise—the Keene rink would be a credit to any town within fifty miles.

There is no change in our municipal cabinet. The Reeve and all the old members are elected by acclamation.

Rev. Mr. Andrews occupied the pulpit of the new Presbyterian church last Sabbath, for the first time since the fire. Mr. Muir had the contract for repairs, and completed the job in a satisfactory and reliable manner for less than $30, much cheaper than was expected by nearly all who saw the damaged condition of affairs.

Peter McFarlane, on the Peterboro' road, had a serious accident last week. He fell a distance of over 10 feet, from the top of a ladder he was climbing to reach a high mow or loft in his barn, and came near breaking both legs. As it was he was laid up almost helpless for some days, but is recovering, we are glad to say.

Also Mr. Alex. Gillespie, of Villiers, is able to be up again, and Mr. John Neish has nearly recovered his usual health.

We are sorry to have to say that Mr. Donald Anderson, of this village, whose illness we mentioned before, is not likely to recover, his disease being of a malignant and incurable type.

The Mystic Plant.

(Written for THE EXAMINER by an Occasional Contributor.)

There's a plant that loves in the heart to cling.
In its inmost recesses to hide;
It is loved no less by the beggar than king,
For of all 'tis their glory and pride.

'Tis nothing more in the princely hall
Than in cottage of humble clay;
It blooms as bright by the lowly wall

Support from another 'twill take and give,
For in this its virtue lies;
Thus bound together, 'twill flourish and live;
If single, it withers and dies.

Its roots are more secure than the rock
'Gainst which the huge waves sever;
Earthquakes may rage, it feels not the shock.
It hath promise of life forever.

But once to despise it or harshly to chide.
The bloom of its life is o'er;
No earthly power, when thus destroyed,
Can its former beauty restore.

If a scion you find of this noble vine,
Pray give it your heart for its soil;
Cultivate it and tend it,—the gift is divine—
'Twill amply repay you the toil.

In the Garden of Eden was grown the first slip,
Ere the world knew sorrow or care;
Philosophers call it the Plant of Friendship—
To find and retain it is rare.

THE SITUATION.

To any cool, dispassionate onlooker, the situation, as it appears at present, is far from being reassuring. We have not only been leading the life of a spendthrift for some years, but also that of a speculator, as we have been borrowing immense sums, and making investments of a nature that we cannot yet say whether they will be profitable or not. It would seem that since the advent of the New Policy in 1879 we cast all caution, all forethought, and consideration of consequences to one side, and with the gaiety and carlessness of youth, combined with the recklessness of dissipation, entered upon the down grade which has landed us where we are now. Will anyone to-day assert that our country is prosperous? Ask the manufacturer whether the protection he obtained has been the benefit to him he expected. Will the farmer now declare that placing a duty on American grain has enhanced the value of his produce? Has protection been a boon to mechanics? Interview any merchant, with a view of getting, not his political opinion, but what he thinks of the working of the present tarriff, and whether it has been a benefit or not. The answer will be invariably the same.

Then our public debt has increased enormously in recent years mainly by money borrowed to build a railway to our new territory in the Northwest. Have our trustees at Ottawa shown any administrative or business capacity in opening up this wide country for settlement? Let history answer—we have had two rebellions there. Can it be said that settlers are flocking in, encouraged by liberal treatment and wise regulations In place of this we have been obliged to send up our young men with arms in their hands to put down the second rebellion caused by misgovernment and greed. Instead of encouraging actual settlers, we have turned the country into a speculators' paradise; so bad has it become in this respect that it must in time work its own cure. Cultivators, not speculators, are wanted in the Northwest.

With a population increasing slowly, our burdens have increased rapidly. To meet the views of some manufacturers, our tariff was nearly doubled, and for a few years the cry was: "See how prosperous we are!" "What large surpluses we are rolling up!" And then the Finance Minister went about the country congratulating and being congratulated on the prosperity he had produced. How is it now? In place of prosperity we have adversity. Surpluses have been changed for deficits, and our late Finance Minister has disappeared from the scene, taking refuge in that same comfortable and honorable position from which he emerged in 1878. It must be admitted that the present situation has been intensified, if not actually produced by our rulers at Ottawa, who have been more intent on strengthening their hold of office, than in governing the country, and the time of Parliament has been taken up devising Franchise Acts and Gerrymander Bills, all with one purpose in view, that of perpetuating the present rule. Will it last? What do the people think about the situation? If it is not satisfactory let the remedy be applied.

Union Missionary Meeting.

A Successful Meeting in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church—Interesting Address by Rev. A. E. Green. British Columbia Missionary.

A meeting of the united congregations of the Charlotte and George Street Methodist Churches, was held in the former church on Tuesday evening. There was a good attendance, and Rev. F. H. Wallace, pastor, occupying the chair, announced Bishop Heber's familiar and imperishable missionary hymn, "From Greenlands' Icy Mountains," in the singing of which the congregation, led by Miss Stephens, heartily engaged. After prayer, by Rev. I. Tovel, the speaker of the evening, Rev. A. E. Green, was introduced, and was received with warm applause.

The speaker said that he was glad to be present, especially in view of the experience of the past 13 years in British Columbia, and especially of his nine years experience on the Nass River, close to the Alaska frontier. The country where he was labouring presents a mountainous monoton, with here and there, small spots of arable land. On Vancouver Island and in other parts of the country, however, there are large tracts of rich arable land. But in the Nass district the chief wealth is derived from the fisheries—for the river is full of fish—and abundance of mineral deposits just being developed.

THE NASS INDIANS

when visited were found sunken in degraded heathenism. When the speaker first went among them, some were willing to receive him, and some were afraid and hid from him. God speedily blessed the preaching of his word, though to human thinking, there were hopless obstacles, to the reception of the gospel. The medicine men were the great difficulty, those of some of the tribes holding the people in slavish subjection. The ceremonial of making a medicine man consisted of eating the flesh of live dogs, and of dead human bodies and other disgusting practices. The medicine man's professional treatment consisted of shaking a rattle over the sick person, till the evil spirit is found, and then after some mummery, pretending to drive out the evil spirit. The worst feature of the medicine man's craft, was the practice of putting evil spells upon whom he chose, and depriving them of their souls which, he assumes to retain till they are redeemed with some property, and such is the superstitious dread of the natives, that many of them die of sheer fright. Scores of natives die every year through dread of these medicine men, who array themselves with all their strength against the gospel. Another obstacle to

THE PROGRESS OF THE GOSPEL

was the practice of polygamy. If an Indian dies his nephew, instead of the son, inherits the uncle's property as well as his wives. But a famous chieftian, becoming converted, and renouncing polygamy, established a precedent, and since then trouble from this source. There were many other degrading practices that had to be overcome. But after nine year's Gospel work a wonderful change which only the resistless power of the Gospel could have effected, had takes place. As an example the Hudson Bay post was at first a strongly fortified place, requiring some thirty guards, but now the post was as open and undefended as a shop in any street of a civilized town, because the natives had come under the influence of the Gospel of peace. The speaker went into details as to the effect the Gospel had in improving the personal and social condition of the people who had adopted the usages of Christian civilization. Striking instances of signal conversion were given, exemplifying in a remarkable way the MARVELLOUS POWER OF THE GOSPEL.

The genuineness of many of these conversions was shown by the terrible temptations and trials from the opposition and persuasions of relatives, which these converts were proof against. In one village of which the speaker's own house was the first, there were three hundred and fifty Christian individuals. This little colony had its own by-laws and summary justice is done. An amusing incident was related of fines being imposed on the spot on young men and girls for flirting in church.

The people were reverent and had great respect for religious services. It was to be hoped that Canadian laws would soon be introduced, although, the people had great loyalty to the Canadian government and to the person of the Queen. It was a gratifying fact, that while other missioners in the west have needed to have men-of-war and soldiers sent to restore peace, of the kind had occurred in the Methodist mission fields in British Columbia, because the converted Indians were loyal to the government and the Queen. (Cheers.) The gospel light had opened the way for secular education There were already many of the young men who were able to interpret any speech, and there were many others who were able to read essay chapters in the Bible.

NOT A SINGLE INSTANCE

The speaker related a thrilling incident which happened to himself on the forks of the Skeena river. In that district a white man had been killed. The murderer could not be reached by the local government on account of the hostility of the Indians, who refused to pilot a white man up the river, navigable only to the Indians themselves. At this juncture several converted Indians were supplied as pilots from Rev. Mr. Green's mission, and the journey was accomplished and the man arrested. Subsequently, Rev. Mr. Green, in the interests of the peace, endangered by the hostility of the Indians over the arrest of one of their number, and visited the Indians who had threatened to kill the first white man they saw, but he trusted, not in carnal weapons but in God, and was able to perform his mission in safety.

TOOK HIS LIFE IN HIS HAND

The speaker continuing said that God had blessed his word wherever it had been preached, and from the British Columbia missions, a missionary had been sent to Alaska, and a flourishing work had been established. The example of the American Government in Alaska, which last year made a grant of $60,000 for mission school work, and appointed a superintendent of education, was cited as a worthy one for the Dominion Government to follow, and a powerful appeal was made to the congregation to aid by their contributions the work in British Columbia, which has accomplished, and is accomplishing so much good.

A vote of thanks moved by Rev. Mr. I. Tovell, seconded by Mr. W. A. Mirrow, was enthusiastically tendered the speaker, who supplemented his admirable address, by exhibiting a large number of Indian curiosities, costumes, idols, stone dishes, charms, drinking vessels, cooking utensils, etc, etc. Rev. Mr. Wallace read a portion of scripture, and Rev. Mr. Green, translated it, giving the interpretation in the vernacular of the British Columbia Indians.

The meeting was a most successful and interesting one, and the collection taken was most liberal. In fact the recent series of Methodist mission services were exceedingly encouraging in their result. The sum total represented by collections and subscription cards, amounted to an addition of over $700 to the mission fund.

Young' Point.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The new lock gates are completed. Mr. Ross has made a good job of them.

The congregation of St. Mary's R. C. church presented Rev. Father O'Brien with a handsome pair of fur gauntlets and cap on Christmas day as a slight token of their appreciation of his efforts in their behalf.

Quite a few teams are engaged at Burleigh Falls hauling dressed stone for the locks.

The annual school meeting of S. S. No. 8 was held in the school-house on Wednesday, the 30th ult. Very little interest was manifested, Mr. W. J. Young was elected trustee in place of Mr. S. Nugent, who's term had expired.

The public school opened on Tuesday with Mr. Lee as teacher.

FIRST TOUR OF 1886.

It is hardly necessary to announce in detail to the invalids of this vicinity that each year has added greatly to our unequalled experience and facilities in the treatment of every form of chronic ailment, whether of a medical or surgical nature. The past year has been one of marked and unusual success, not only have the number of cases cured exceeded by hundreds that of any preceding year, but during the same time we have made many valuable scientific discoveries regarding the medical and surgical treatment and cure of several hitherto supposed incurable diseases and deformities. With the New Year comes most encouraging reports from patients in all parts of the United States and Canada, and we feel certain that ere long we shall be obliged to enlarge our consulting and operating staff to meet the demands of our fast increasing business We do not profess to cure diseases in every stage, nor even to treat every case presented, frequently refusing to treat those who would gladly engage our services would we but hold out hopes which our past experience and honest judgment would not warrant.

The treatment of any case is undertaken only after a most careful and mature investigation of the entire facts regarding it, combined with a certainty of rendering aid to the sufferer and thereby adding to our reputation.

To all who honor us with their confidence and the care of their cases we promise honest and experienced treatment.

The extended reputation of our Dr. J. D. Kergan and the Surgeons composing his International Medical Council is a sufficient guarantee that all seeking their opinion or services will be entirely satisfied. No matter whether your disease be of the Head, Throat, Lungs, Nasal Passages Heart, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels' Bladder, Blood, Bones, Nerves, Skin, Joints, Glands, Spine, Muscles, Eye, Ear, Urinary Tract, Reproductive Organs, or any Diseases peculiar to your age or sex.

You are invited to call on day and date mentioned, or write to Dr. J. D. KERGAN, Corner Woodward and Gratiot Avenues, Detroit, Mich.

Families at Billiards.

Billiard tables are becoming a matter of household furniture instead of a wicked luxury to be sought after in some hidden saloon. The use of them has spread widely to private families, and nine-tenths of the houses with any pretensions to modern conveniences that have been built in the past few years have a room for a billiard table just large enough to allow free swing for a cue over the nine feet by four and a half table that is usually bought.

One thing that private tables is effecting is that ladies are beginning to learn to play, not so much with their brothers or gentlemen friends as with each other. Women often have a rather lonely time of it during the day, and a billiard table is a novelty to which they take naturally. Few of them grow expert at it, though now and then one may develop into a player who surprises her brother, or whoever it may be, when a bet happens to be played off.

In some houses it is a regular mania and extends down to the servants, who peep through the open door or linger excusingly on the staircase to see how the shots are made. The mistress of an Orange street family was astonished when she returned from a series of afternoon calls, which she had finished sooner than she expected, and ran up stairs to her dressing-room without ringing. On the landing she heard murmurs and smothered applause in the billiard-room. The door was opened and she waited and looked in. The cook, a ruddy Irish girl, and the chambermaid, a stout German who could hardly speak English, were wrapped up in the cues and balls, while the colored gentleman, who waited on the table, attended the door bell, and blacked shoes, acted as scorer. Bridget was slightly ahead, 29 to 27, but Gretchen was at the bat, and from the intense expression on the colored score-keeper's face, she was going up ahead. After a run of four she stopped and the mistress stepped in. It then came out how the servants had been employing their leisure time.

The chief trouble with keeping a private table, especially when beginners do most of the playing, is the liability to have the cloth torn and the cues and balls damaged. Repairing torn cloth is a mean and costly job, and a table with many patches and sewings on is hurt. If there are young children in the house and they have access to the billiard-room the balls and cues won't last long. Ivory or any other kind of balls can't stand being rolled around the floor, and the leather of the cues is not near proof enough not to play out when used for a shinny-stick.

Few pool tables are sound in private houses. Billiard tables only abound, and pool for drinks is not known, though pool without drinks is perhaps as rare. The whole change from playing in a public saloon is in keeping with the tendencies of the present time to be exclusive.—New Haven News.

Pretty Riders in Pink.

Now, in place of foxes, these gallant knights of the pink coats, knee breeches, whips, 'ounds, etc., had—what do you suppose? Nothing more nor less than an old bag of aniseseed, which they caused to be dragged around over a few miles of easy cross country. Let one "hunt" serve as a sample. Lem, a farmer's man, from Schuylerville way, was hired to hitch up his old mare to the bag of aniseseed and perfume the line of march. He was told to avoid stumpy, stony country, ravines, water over a foot deep, brush that would tear the "pink," etc., and to otherwise do as a live fox fleeing for his life would not do. Lem obeyed to the letter. He picked out broad, smooth fields, and when he came to a fence would let down the bars or take off the top rails. After dragging the old rag-bag around and around, in plain sight of some favored spot where the "kerridges" would be subsequently located, Lem would hide the fox in a little clump of bushes in a big field, to be caught at the finish.

At a proper time away would go the horses and dogs, who were to be pitied for being in such silly company, and after disporting themselves in sight of some ladies and gentlemen—always very few—for half an hour, the dogs would sniff out the seed-bag, and up would rush one of the huntsmen and capture the "brush"—which would be in a real fox—the animal's tail, and another would capture the "mask," or face, and the dandy cocksparrow warriors, spattered a little, perhaps, with mud, would move along Broadway prouder than peacocks.—Troy Times.

Expecting Too Much.

"Did you notice what a boor that man was who sat next to you?" asked one lady of another as the pair stepped off a Woodward avenue car the other day.

"How?"

"Why he refused to pass up the fare for the lady in lavender silk."

"Oh, well, you see they were divorced only two weeks ago, and it couldn't be expected that he would recover his composure this soon. It is a mean trick in any divorced woman to expect her ex-husband to pass alimony up to the fare box."—Detroit Free Press.

Gigantic Establishment of Messrs. S. Davis & Sons.

ASTONISHING INCREASE IN BUSINESS

Three Hundred Skilled Workmen Imported From Europe.

THE DODGES OF DISHONEST COMPETITORS.

The Home of the Most Popular Cigars in the Dominion.

(From the Mail.)

A few months ago we published a description of the magnificent structure erected and about to be occupied by Messrs. S. Davis & Sons, Montreal. Since that time the premises described have been occupied by them, and a large additions made thereto, the old premises being too small. Owing to the wonderful increase in their business, which assumed such extraordinary and vast proportions within this past year, they were compelled to look to foreign markets to increase their [illegible] tising for first-class cigar makers, impossible to obtain the required help in this country, thereby necessitating the importation of foreign labor. With their usual enterprise Messrs. Davis & Sons sent one of their junior members of the firm—Mr. M. E. Davis—to Europe to obtain the necessary help, which he has been successful in doing, about 300 skilled workmen having arrived a few weeks ago. Notwithstanding this large additional increase they are as yet behind orders, but hope soon to be able to fill all orders promptly. In justice to Messrs. Davis & Sons we should inform the public through our columns of a wrong impression that was created, attributable to an error in the Associated Press despatches, which stated that a strike had taken place amongst their imported workmen, owing to Messrs. Davis & Sons not carrying out the agreement made with them. The cause of this report was owing to two of the men having obtained access to the workroom while in an intoxicated condition and creating a disturbance which was promptly quelled by having them arrested. Certain interested parties have been trying to make capital out of the same, and have also diligently circulated reports to the effect that all the old workmen were discharged or were about to be. The following testimonial, which is signed by the old employees only, speaks for itself:—

"At a meeting of the Canadian operatives employed by Messrs. Davis & Sons, held on the 11th November, it was resolved that inasmuch as there have been rmours circulated which would convey the idea to the general public that we are dissatisfied with the introduction of some new arrivals amongst us, we most positively state that such is not the case, as we are perfectly contented, and think it is of very considerable benefit to the community that these people should have come here in order to enable the above mentioned firm to manufacture a sufficient number of cigars to supply the demand. We are fully aware of the fact that this firm have been unable to fill their orders for the past six months, and that had they not taken this step, German, Mexican, and Havana cigars would be imported in much larger quantities to meet the requirements of the trade. We therefore think it proper that this firm should have taken the course they have. We also certify that the new staff are mostly union men, and they are all getting the regular factory price, as we are ourselves; and further, that there will necessarily be employment given to a number of new beginners to prepare the stock for the increased force, such as stemmers, banders, etc. At the same time we are cognizant of the fact that it does not interfere with us in any way, shape or form; but we are fully aware that these people being here will be of considerable benefit, more especially to the city of Montreal, as they will circulate their earnings, amounting to thousands of dollars weekly, amongst the bakers, butchers, dry goods merchants, tailors, etc., etc. We also fully recognize the fact that Messrs. S. Davis & Sons do not, and would not, show any partiality to any person or persons. This is the experience we have had in the past and present, and are satisfied it will be so in the future, and take much pleasure in endorsing same with our signatures:

We congratulate Messrs. Davis & Son on the magnificent proportions the business has attained, a result mainly due to the superior class of goods manufactured by them, and the enterprise they have shown in various ways. They have had to contend not alone with legitimate business opposition, but with imitators of their brands, and also with unscrupulous parties, who, prior to using the bands on their cigars, placed inferior goods in their boxes, thereby injuring their brands and imposing upon the public. Messrs. Davis & Sons are the only cigar manufacturers in Canada who manufacture their own cigar boxes and packing cases, which industry gives employment to about 75 hands. The total number of people employed by them at the present time is close upon 1,000; enough, taking the families of the same into consideration, to make a town of 5,000 inhabitants. We would not be at all surprised if this enterprising firm should build a town of their own.

An Extraordinary Offer.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every householder, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its saleability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $300 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through subagents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed; and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $123 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to everyone out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this papre who reads this offer to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

VALEDICTORY!

Good-bye! Good-bye, old year!

Another milestone has slipped behind us.

Another leaf in the Book of Life has closed forever.

The past is able to take care of itself. The future is in our own hands and may be what we chose to make of it.

We have again reached the Merchants' rock-ending season, or stock-taking time, when we purpose balancing accounts and bringing all things into line for opening a new year.

Previous to our taking stock we will Clear Out all our winter goods at Cost, and will try to carry over as little as possible into another season.

During this month we will make an extra effort to close out the small balance of Winter Goods to make room for New Spring Goods, expected in early in February.

Your Influence Solicited.

"Cable."

The oldest and most reliable brand of cigars in the market. Free from all chemicals and artificial flavorings.

Market Items.

The market this morning was almost a blank. There was no perceptible change in prices. The roads are in a miserable condition and farmers do not care to come to market in such weather.

To-Night's Pray Meeting.

In connection with the week of prayer, a meeting will be held in the George Street Methodist Church this evening, at 8 a.m. The subject will be Home and Foreign Missions. Rev. Mr. Tovell is appointed leader, and Rev. Mr. Bell speaker.

Passed a Creditable Examination.

Another Peterborough boy distinguishes himself. We congratulate our young townman, James Fitzgerald, son of G. W. Fitzgerald, P. L. S., on his having successfully passed a searching examination this week, before the Board of Examiners of Provincial Land Surveyors, at Toronto.

Police Court.

The first case of 1886 was disposed of by Police Magistrate Dumble this morning. John Fry, charged with being drunk and disorderly in a public place, admitted the charge and was given his choice of paying a $2 fine or ten days in jail. He accepted jail.

A charge of non-payment of wages was preferred against R. N. Roddy by William Morgan, and by request was enlarged until to-morrow.

Change of Date.

The date of the concert to be given in St. Luke's school room next week has been changed from Tuesday, 11th, to Monday, the 10th. inst. St. Andrew's Church announces a concert for Tuesday, and the management of St. Luke's concert, not wishing to interfere with the success of either entertainments, changed the date of their concert, although they decided on and announced Tuesday as the date, previous to the St. Andrew's Church committee. It is to be hoped both will be successes.

The Fire Brigade.

The annual meeting of the Fire Brigade took place last night at which the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—Captain and assistant chief, J. D. Craig; first lieutenant, H. Evans; second lieutenant, J. Haggart; secretary, R. Clegg; treasurer, C. Rutherford; finance committee, T. Wilson and S. Clegg; R. Stevenson, chairman. The brigade and band also indulged in an oyster supper at Chamberlain's restaurant, after business was dispensed with.

A Bold Abduction.

Yesterday Mr. Thos. Bradburn laid an information with Police Magistrate Dumble against John Lasher, stating that on the night previous, about midnight, Lasher followed him up from the town to near his home, constantly intimidating him and making use of threatening language. Yesterday Lasher was arrested and required to give bail for the keeping of the peace. Not being ready with the bail the Magistrate indulgently allowed him until this morning to pay. This morning Lasher appeared at court. After waiting half an hour Mr. Bradburn steamed into the Court room and apologized to the court for the delay he had caused, alleging that at midnight of last night while on his way home he was overtaken by Lasher, who abducted him, forcing him to go to his father's house where he locked him up all night in a room and kept guard over him. That he (Mr. Bradburn) had just now escaped and made his way to the Court. That during the night Lasher had intimidated him with threats of personal injury. The case was laid over for to-morrow, to enable the parties to produce witnesses. Meanwhile Mr. Lasher was remanded to prison to await trial.

To-Night

"Beauty and the Beast."

The second of a series of social entertainments was given in St. Luke's school room, Ashburnham, yesterday evening to a large audience. The programme, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, and a representation of the fairy tale, "Beauty and the Beast," was capitally rendered, and in point of excellence exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the management or the audience. Rev. Mr. Bradshaw presided over the entertainment. The programme opened with a well-executed piano solo by Miss Revell. Mr. Gaele followed with a capital song, "When the roses close their petals," and later on in the evening gave another pretty song. Mr. Carter also contributed two excellent songs. Messrs. H. Denne, jr., Mr. Tivey, and W. Packenham each gave interesting recitations. Rev. W. C. Bradshaw gave a comic reading, "Taking the Census." The concert part of the programme concluded with a charming vocal duet, "Wedding Bells," by Miss E. Tivey and Miss Brundrette, which was deservedly encored. The ladies acknowledged the encore by giving another pretty duet. "Beauty and the Beast" was then proceeded with, the platform being screened off to form a stage. Each of the participants in the play acquitted themselves admirably and special mention is unnecessary. The following is the cast of characters:—

A Merchant	Harry Nell
Chimpanzo, a Prince transformed in a black bear	Harry Denne, jr.
Goblin Page	Geo. Phillips
Merchant's eldest daughter	Miss Eva Tivey
Merchant's second daughter	Miss M. Calcutt
Beauty	Miss Ludgate
The Fairy Aunt of Chimpanzo	Louie Butcher
Little Fairy	Miss Kathleen Mead

The costumes were very perfect, and Mr. Denne, as the beast—a large black bear—could not have been better represented. It was found impossible to have a rehearsal in the school room and the success of the play was a pleasant surprise to all. The entertainment concluded by singing the National Anthem.

The Rock Band Concert Co.

will give their only performance in Peterborough to-night. Don't miss it. See advertisement.

Tonic-Sol-Fa Singing Class.

This class for children will be resumed on Friday evening next, commencing at 7:30, at the Murray street school room.

A Leg Broken.

Yesterday while Mr. James Lillico, of North Monaghan, was engaged in drawing logs at Stony Lake, he got his leg caught between a log and a stump, breaking the limb below the knee. Dr. King was sent for and adjusted the fractured bones, and the patient was removed home to-day and is doing as well as could be expected.

Beauty and the Ballot.

The lady voters of Peterborough do not seem to appreciate the privilege of voting. During the voting on Monday, of the two hundred and fifty odd ladies, "entitled to vote at municipal elections only," there were only some twenty marked their names. Out of the 120 lady voters in No. three and four wards not one voted. No. 2 furnished 17 and No. 1 3.

St. Andrew's Ball.

Mr. Wm. Telford, of Smith, the bard of St. Andrew's Society, this morning went to Toronto, where he will submit to an operation at the hands of Dr. Burnham for the removal of a cataract. Some nine months ago Mr. Telford had the operation performed but the re-appearance of the growth makes another operation necessary. It is to be hoped that the means employed to preserve the sight of Mr. Telford's remaining eye will be successful.

Shooting Accident.

Warren Darcy, son of Mr. T. H. Darcy, was accidentally shot this afternoon by a companion, Wm. Chamberlain, fortunately with little injury. Young Darcy and Chamberlain were loading their revolvers in an upstairs room in Darcy's saloon, preparatory to having a shooting match down at the river, when Chamberlain's revolver was accidentally discharged, the bullet striking Darcy above the heart, penetrating a brace buckle, which so flattened it and spent the force that it only entered the skin. A doctor was called, but his assistance was not required.

The Lakefield Carnival.

Owing to the unfavourable nature of the weather, the grand masquerade carnival announced to take place on the Lakefield Skating Rink, on Tuesday last, has been postponed till Friday, January 8th. The great preparation that had been made for the date first fixed, will be made perfect by the few days posponement, and the result will be a carnival that has never been equalled in Lakefield. Handsome prizes will be offered for the best costumes for gentlemen and ladies' and boys and girls. The most complete preparations have been made to ensure the success of the carnival. A band will be in attendance. Admission 25c. children 15c. Be sure and take advantage of the chance.

"What say you to a Piece of Roast Beef and Mustard?"

Well, there is much to be said. The question being asked of the banqueter at the average boarding house, calls up reminiscences of close contiguity to the horns, and beefsteak three cuts south thereof. He, of course, will pass, unless it occurs to him that he needs a hinge for his trunk. Should there be any suffering, the effects of an indulgence in such sinuous fare, use McGregor's Speedy Cure, a sure and effectual remedy for Dyspepsia, Constipation and all affections of the stomach and liver. I desire to return my hearty thanks for the patronage received since commencing business, and would respectfully direct attention to our intended method of conducting the same for the future.

Cash, or Short Credit, is a system rapidly gaining favor in our country. Merchants of our cities and towns have almost universally adopted it, and in a progressive town like this there can be no reason why we should not follow the same rule.

After the First Day of January next my terms will be Cash, unless otherwise specially agreed.

CARD OF THANKS.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 2d, 1886.

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my best thanks and convey the same to the officers of the Equitable Life Assurance Society for the satisfactory payment of the $2,000 for which my late husband's life was insured. I feel the more grateful because evil disposed persons, filled with envy and malice, did all in their power to prevent the payment of the claim. But the action of the Equitable illustrates the justice of the claim and proves to the world that the Society is not only equitable in name but in practice. I have therefore great pleasure in recommending both yourself and your Company to all who desire reliable insurance,

SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

But few understand the constitution of the School Board of this town and the mode of election of the members thereof and we therefore give a slight resume of the existing state of affairs and objections thereto.

The Trustees of any Collegiate Institute or Public School are a corporate body. In Peterborough there is a union of both these corporations and all the members of both bodies constitute a joint Board under the name of "The Board of Education for the Town of Peterborough," and such Board has all the powers of the Trustees of both the Public Schools and Collegiate Institute.

Of this joint Board, eight are Public School Trustees, two for each ward in the town who hold office for two years, and the election of these officers is so arranged that four are elected each alternate year. They are elected by the public voting of the people and are thus directly responsible for all their acts.

The remainder of this joint Board consists of the High School trustees, six in number, two of which retire each year, and the Town Council, at their first meeting each year, and not the people, appoints the trustees to fill the vacancies so caused by the annual retirement, and thus this part of the joint Board is primarily responsible to the Town Council and only indirectly and through that body, responsible to the ratepayers.

It seems to us that the High School trustees, who in the case of a joint Board, wield the same powers and authorities, and are liable to the same mistakes and misdemeanors as the Public School Boards, should not be an almost irresponsible body, but should hold office subject to the voice and control and popular will of the electors.

Many grave and serious anomalies arise under the present constitution of affairs. The Town Council unfortunately appoint members of their own body as High School trustees, and then there arises the farce of trustees who are councillors, returning to themselves as councillors in order to give an account of their stewardship as trustees.

This is placing a premium on neglect of duty, and indifference, either to the will or well-being of the people, and should be stamped out as being thoroughly bad in principle and as pernicious in actual practice.

This practice is not forbidden by the exact letter of the statute law, but is certainly antagonistic to its spirit, and it is high time that the legislature saw fit to enact that no town councillor should be eligible for the office of High School trustee. It is absurd that the court before which a misdemeanant is to be tried, should consist of the misdemeanant himself and others and when we, as journalists, object to the practice, we certainly guage well the popular will.

At the first meeting of the new Council, it will be their duty to appoint two new trustees and we hope they will appoint as new trustees, men who do not belong to their own body. It has heretofore been unfortunately the case that several members of the Town Council have been parties to electing themselves as members of the School Board, and we think it would now be both wise and judicious to choose outsiders who will be equally capable of filling the offices with both credit to themselves and benefit to the town, and uproot a custom which, in principle, is so bad that it must be, in its operation, detrimental to the best interests of the town.

Imperial M. P's, and "Local Option."

To the Editor of the DAILY EXAMINER:

SIR,—Your issue of yesterday contains a statement that most of the teetotalers were defeated at the late English elections. Perhaps so, but yet I believe it to be a fact that in the face of all the other questions before the people a majority of the members of the new House are pledged in favor of "local option." However, Sir Wilfred Lawson was not defeated by the publicans, his opponent being one of the Liberal contributors and indefatigable voters in the Alliance for the total and immediate suppression of the Liquor [illegible] mouth contest was fought, could not have been "local option."

Orillia, Jan. 1st.

An Explanation.

To the Editor of THE DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—Kindly allow me a small space in your paper to make explanation concerning an issue raised in the recent contest for school trustee.

It has been alleged that I was brought out by persons who were anxious for the removal of Dr. Tassie from the position of Principal of the High School. In reply, I can only say I never knew there were such persons; I did not know of any desire for the removal of Dr. Tassie. I was never approached directly or indirectly on the matter, and am entirely ignorant of the whole affair.

I do not desire to explain away my defeat, but I do desire to set myself right by utterly repudiating any support of the principle, so repugnant to all good citizens, that sympathy for a church will interfere with a man's righteousness in public duty.

A warm friend of the Principal's assures me that to no one will this question be more painful than to Dr. Tassie himself, and I very much regret, for his sake, being compelled to notice it in the public press.

The License Case.

Full Text of the Privy Council's Judgment—The Dominion License Act not Within the Legislative Authority of the Parliament of Canada—The Licensing Power Wholly a Provincial Right—All Concerned to Govern Themselves Accordingly.

The following is the full text of the judgment of the judicial Committee of the Privy Council in the license case.

At the Court at Windsor Castle the 12th day of December, 1886.

Present, the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty, Lord President, Lord Geo. Hamilton, Mr. Plunket.

Whereas there was this day read at the Board a report from the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, dated the 21st November last past, in the words following, namely:

"Your majesty having been pleased by your Order in Council of the 19th of May last past, to refer unto this Committee the humble petition of the Most Hon. Henry Charles Keith Petty Fitzmaurice, Marquis of Lansdowne, Governor-General of the Dominion of Canada, humbly praying that a special case, and the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada upon the same, with reference to the competence of the Canadian Parliament to pass the Acts 46 Vic., Cap 30, and 47 Vic., Cap 32, in whole or in part, viz., be referred by Your Majesty to this committee to report thereon. The Lords of the Committee, in obedience to Your Majesty's

SPECIAL ORDER OF REFERENCE,

have taken the same humble petition into consideration, and having heard counsel thereon for the Dominion of Canada, and likewise for the lieutenant-Governors of the respective Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and having been attended by the agents of the Province of British Columbia, their Lordships do this day agree humbly to report to Your Majesty as their opinion, in reply to the two questions which have been referred them by Your Majesty, that the Liquor License Act, of 1883, and the Act of 1884 amending the same, are

NOT WITHIN THE LEGISLATIVE AUTHORITY OF THE PARLIAMENT OF CANADA.

The provisions relating to the adulteration, if separated in their operation from the rest of the Acts, would be within the authority of Parliament, but, as in their Lordships' opinion, they cannot be so separated, their Lordships are not prepared to report to Your Majesty that any part of these Acts is within such authority."

Her Majesty, having taken the said report into consideration, was pleased by and with the advice of her Privy Council to approve thereof and

TO ORDER ACCORDINGLY.

Whereof the Governor-General of the Dominion of Canada, the Commander-in-Chief and the Lieutenant Governors of the repective provinces of the Dominion for the time being, and all other persons whom it may concern, are to take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

The Collegiate Institute.

Inspector Hodgson's Favorable Report.

Owing to lack of space yesterday, the EXAMINER was not able to present the report of Mr. J. E. Hodgson, Inspector of High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, of his visit made on October 29th and 30th. The following extracts will be interesting. In reference to the nature of the work done, the Inspector reports as follows:—

Excellent in the higher classes, under Mr. Earl; poor in the lower classes, English, Mathematics—Very fairly taught. Science—Not yet taken up (see general remarks). Classics—The work is not yet of an advanced character, but is done with great thoroughness. Modern languages—Excellent.—Commercial subjects—The writing is fair and is closely looked after. Other subjects—The drawing is indifferently taught.

"The organization and discipline" are pronounced "good. The subdivision of forms and classes is fair; the proportion of time to each department, just; division of duties among the staff, satisfactory; and the order and discipline, excellent" in all the departments except one.

Inspector Hodgson concludes his report as follows:—This Institute does not in all respects comply with the requirements of the statute (48 Vic., chap. 50, sec. 13). 1. The grounds are limited in extent, and there is no gymnasium or other appliances for physical training. (2) The library of reference is meagre and requires supplementing. (3) The supply of chemical and physical apparatus is defective, (see sec. 50, page 113 of the regulations). Unless the deficiencies are supplied within a reasonable time the Institute will be in danger of being reduced to a status of a high school. (See regulations, sec. 51, p. 114.)

With one exception the members of the staff are well qualified to teach the subjects in which they were engaged. When I visited the school, thoroughness characterized the work in all the departments.

I was surprised, however, to find that the study of science had been postponed until next term. Though Mr. Horning explained the circumstances in which he had adopted this plan, I am inclined to think it rather dangerous to the interests of those going up for examination.

I think that, on the whole, Dr. Tassie and the Board of Trustees are to be congratulated on the healthy state of the Institute.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 7, 1886.

WHAT HE WOULD HAVE DONE.

In a recent issue we published an extract from the able speech of Mr. M. Cameron, delivered at Brucefield, which showed that to reward his political supporters with gifts of land, filched from Ontario's territory, Sir John portioned out among them, over a million acres of land belonging to this Province. So much for Sir John's good will towards this Province; but fortunately Hon. Mr. Mowat stands in the way. The latter, by a gallant resistance to Sir John's attempt to rob this Province of the sixty-five millions of acres of the valuable domain, in what was formerly known as the "Disputed Territory," in which the Chieftain was aided and abetted by Mr. Meredith, the Provincial leader of the Conservative party (under Sir John), secured to this Province the rights of which there was no doubt till Sir John raised the issue for political purposes. What would have been the result, if, instead of by Mr. Mowat, the destinies of the Province had been presided over by Mr. Meredith? When Sir John's monstrous claim was first made, Mr. Meredith, no doubt prompted by the sentiment of resentment which any citizen of the Province would feel against so ambitious a trespasser, stoutly maintained the right of the Province to the territory in question. But no sooner were the party screws applied than he turned traitor to Ontario, and allied himself to the sworn enemy of the Province Sir John, and, from that time forth, expended his energies in working for the robbery of the Province, to which he should have been true. If such were Mr. Meredith's attitude on the major question, could it be expected that, on the minor question, involved in Sir John's distribution of plunder among his supporters, his attitude would be anything different? Mr. Mowat is already contesting in the courts on behalf of the Province, the right of Sir John to make the grants of Ontario territory he has made, and there is no doubt that he will in this, make as gallant a fight as he did in the matter of the Boundary Award and that he will meet with the same brilliant success. If Mr. Meredith had been, last session, say, put in Mr. Mowat's place, does any one suppose, for a moment, that he would have moved a finger to prevent Sir John pursuing his plundering to the limit of his will? If he helped Sir John to the full extent of his little power to rob this province of 65 million acres of land, is it reasonable to suppose that he would have had the courage to try to make him disgorge the spoil bestowed on political supporters and party heelers? By no means. Mr. Meredith in the past has shown that he is loyal to the party, no matter how the Province suffers; that he is willing to help the Ottawa Oligarchy to bind Ontario hand and foot that the will of Sir John might be worked upon her; and, as he has shown no signs of preferring country before faction, it is not probable that the nimble political leopard has changed his spots. Sir John, the open foe of Ontario, is no to be so much feared as a traitor in the ranks.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Balkan conference at Constantinople has been abandoned, Russia refusing to guarantee the independence of the union of Bulgaria and Eastern Roumelia.

The Mail indignantly denies that it does Government job printing. If this is true, so much the better for the Mail, for the Mail undoubtedly gets paid roundly by the thousands of dollars, too, for such work.

The iniquity of the Government must be, indeed, great when it can resurrect members of the Senate. The Ottawa Free Pree says that more than a dozen Senators who have hitherto supported the Administration will be found in the ranks of the Opposition when Parliament again assembles.

The Orillia News Letter has succeeded in getting two decisions from the Postmaster-General's office within one month, each being in direct conflict with the other. On the 25th of November it was notified that sample copies could be sent free through the mail, and on the 23rd of December came a notification that the reverse was the case. There seems to be stupidity and blundering in every department of the Government.

The latest advices state that the French are feeling bad over the fact that as France loses prestige in Asia, England continues to gain influence in that direction. The feeling is so intense that France is in communication with the Imperial authorities. No doubt French traders who obtained concessions from Thebaw will have their rights protected. But British interests must be consulted, and if the building of an Indo-Burmese railway hurts the French traders, they will have to put up with the fact with the best possible grace.

Parnell already talks in the strain of a Prime Minister. In thanking Eugene Kelly of New York for remittances to the Parliamentary fund, Mr. Parnell says: "The remittances which you sent were most timely, and a source of the utmost gratitude to my colleagues and myself."

The rebellion losses are being gradually footed up. By the time they are all ascertained the country will stand aghast over the cost of a Government's procrastination. The commission has already passed claims for damages to private property and for "contingent expenses" to the amount of $3,250,000 in Winnipeg alone, and one-third of the claims are yet to be considered.

Sir John has been writing in the North American Review on the future of Canada, but there seems to be a general opinion, says the London Advertiser, that the present of Canada is giving him more trouble about now. The Tiser might have added that with the terrible misrule which Sir John has been giving Canada—especially during the past few years—with the unexampled extravagance of expenditure, with the enormous and rapidly accumulating burden of debt that is being heaped upon the country, Canada won't have a future to write about very long.

Mr. Cameron, in his Brucefield speech, pointed out that last year $191,164 was expended to pay a lot of broken-down political hacks, Canadian and English dudes, besides $275,000 paid to the permanent staff as extra allowance. The Government paid for legal advice outside of the Department of Justice last year, $66,934; Mr. Christie, of Ottawa, received $1,350; Mr. Ferguson, of Ottawa, $3,240; Mr, Crossly, young Tupper's partner, $4.159; J. H. McDonnell, of Toronto, $3,155; D. O'Connor, of Ottawa, $8,943, Mr. McCallum, the member for Monck, received for damages to an old schooner, $8,000. No one who has examined into the question believes that Mr. McCallum was entitled to anything. At this rate it is not at all surprising that there is a terrible deficit.

It seems that in addition to the usual travelling fees paid to members of Parliament going to and returning from their Parliamentary duties at Ottawa, the Government intend to send to each of their supporters a pass entitling them to travel free over the Intercolonial and all the Canadian Pacific Company's lines. Having accepted a free pass from the Pacific Company, no Tory M. P. will be free to vote against any demands that the Company may make at the coming session. The British Columbia members, for instance save about $150 each by the "free pass" arrangement, but will draw travelling expenses at so much per mile. Can these offers of free passes to members be regarded as anything less than bribes or attempts at bribey?

It appears that the general result of the attempt of the Conservative, to run the municipal elections is not of the most satisfactory nature. For instance, in Kingston, the Liberals swept the board. In Toronto where the Conservatives have, with a big majority, ruled with a high hand, the latter have a bare majority of one, with a Liberal Mayor. In Galt, though Sir John's most eminent wire-puller, Mr. T. Cowan, manipulated the wires to oust a Liberal Mayor, Mr. R. Scott, he was unable to succeed. It is gratifying to know that attempts to run municipal contests on party lines are unsuccessful. Hardly a greater evil can come to any municipality than the introduction of party politics into its municipal affairs. Whenever this has been done, it has ended disastriously, and in municipalities that have suffered from the evil, great harm has been done before the people have awakened to the situation, and as in Toronto, crushed the ring which party rule engenders.

Women at the Polls.

The Toronto papers furnish the following notes respecting the part the ladies took in the Howland-Manning election:

The ladies of Toronto are to be congratulated on the noble manner in which they responded to the call of duty. The rain could not frighten them away from the polls

One young lady in St. David's Ward brought out eleven good votes for Howland, and she wasn't down on the list either.

An old lady in the East End remarked yesterday:—"I am 80 years old; I have been steeped up to my neck in taxes for a long time, but I thank God I have lived to get a vote."

"Ten thousand married women in this city," said an enthusiastic Howland supporter yesterday, "are saying if we were widows for half an hour there would be no doubt about Manning's defeat."

In one polling place a lady was required to swear as to her right to vote, and indignantly walked out.

A lady who approached the curtain in one of the St. Paul's ward polling booths yesterday to record her vote was challenged by the liquor interest scrutineer, and the following dialogue ensued:—

Scrutineer—My dear madame, I must request that you be sworn.

Lady—Me sworn? What must I be sworn for?

Scrutineer—No offence, ma'am, is meant at all; you know it is our business to swear any person who we think is not qualified to vote.

Lady—I never swore in my life and won't swear now; but what must I say at any rate?

Scrutineer—(Handing up the Bible)—All you have to do is to kiss this Holy Book.

Lady—Do you think I would kiss that dirty thing after you, you blackguard, mauling it all over with your greasy fingers! If I can have nothing better than that to kiss I will not vote at all. And she left.

In Hamilton the lady voters, too, made their share of mistakes. One wrote the name "Flora" on her ballot. Another made an amusing mistake, which, however, was discovered and rectified by the returning officer before she left her booth. When she lady came in she took the paper and went into the compartment to mark it. Coming out she started for the door, and was asked ed where her ballot was. "Oh, I've got it in my satchel," she replied.

"But aren't you going to mark it?"

"I have marked it," she said, and taking the officer into the compartment she showed him that she had marked the poster for the guidance of voters which contained a number of fictitious names in the form of the ballot.

FIRST TOUR OF 1886.
It is hardly necessary to announce in detail to the invalids of this vicinity that each year has added greatly to our unequalled experience and facilities in the treatment of every form of chronic ailment, whether of a medical or surgical nature. The past year has been one of marked and unusual success, not only have the number of cases cured exceeded by hundreds that of any preceding year, but during the same time we have made many valuable scientific discoveries regarding the medical and surgical treatment and cure of several hitherto supposed incurable diseases and deformities. With the New Year comes most encouraging reports from patients in all parts of the United States and Canada, and we feel certain that ere long we shall be obliged to enlarge our consulting and operating staff to meet the demands of our fast increasing business. We do not profess to cure diseases in every stage, nor even to treat every case presented, frequently refusing to treat those who would gladly engage our services would we but hold out hopes which our past experience and honest judgment would not warrant.
The treatment of any case is undertaken only after a most careful and mature investigation of the entire facts regarding it, combined with a certainty of rendering aid to the sufferer and thereby adding to our reputation.
To all who honor us with their confidence and the care of their cases we promise honest and experienced treatment.
The extended reputation of our Dr. J. D. Kergan and the Surgeons composing his International Medical Council is a sufficient guarantee that all seeking their opinion or services will be entirely satisfied. No matter whether your disease be of the Head, Throat, Lungs, Nasal Passages, Heart, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, Bladder, Blood, Bones, Nerves, Skin, Joints, Glands, Spine, Muscles, Eye, Ear, Urinary Tract, Reproductive Organs, or any Diseases peculiar to your age or sex.
You are invited to call on day and date mentioned, or write to Dr. J. D. KERGAN, Corner Woodward and Gratiot Avenues, Detroit, Mich.

How To Be Beautiful.

We are utterly opposed to the deleterious compounds with which the market is flooded, composed of acids, arsenic, and white lead, in which "the remedy is worse than the disease." We would remind you that no object is attained without some effort, and frequently considerable self denial, and will now give you a simple, yet admirable, recipe for a cosmetic with directions as to its proper application. Take equal parts of lamb suet and glycerine; melt thoroughly in a porcelain receiver; stir rapidly until almost cold, and finish by adding a few drops of attar of rose.

Now, as "cleanliness is next to godliness," we advise a thorough bath before retiring each night, and, as the process of bathing seems misunderstood, we would explain that it is not necessary to be submerged in a large tank of water, but that a basin full of this liquid, with olive oil soap, applied with sponge or flannel from the crown of the head to the sole of the feet, will answer every purpose. Regulate the temperature to suit your individual taste, remembering always to avoid a shock. The bath should be followed by brisk but gentle friction, and now that the pores are open and the subject glowing and cleanly, let us apply to the face and visible portion of the neck a medicum of this salve, the same to be systematically and thoroughly rubbed in, bearing in mind that in every case the friction must suit the skin. In some subjects this is attained by gently rubbing up or down with the palm of the hand, while again the surface absorbs more readily from a circling movement, the object being always not to grease, but simply to mollify and soften the cuticle. We give you these directions for the face, but will add that the entire body, treated in the same manner, would respond most genially and healthfully. It is well known that unction was the regular accompaniment of the bath with the ancients, and it would be well were it revived with us, since it adds suppleness to the body, removes superfluous skin scales, rendering the cuticle soft and pliable as in early youth, in place of the harshness and dryness so frequently complained of in advancing years.

Next in order we would advise careful handling of the hair, which should be combed out with patience and gentleness in place of tearing it out hastily and violently by the roots, resulting in breakage, injury, and unevenness of fibre. It should be briskly and persistently brushed every night before retiring, then loosely braided and coiled softly under a silk nightcap. The very best preparation to insure a luxuriant growth of glossy hair is to be obtained by going into the woods where the wild grape vines grow luxuriantly, and, at the season of the year in which the sap commences to flow, tap the canes with a penknife, collect the profuse discharge in bottles. After bathing the hair in a mixture of ammonia and warm water, this natural invigorator is to be thoroughly rubbed into the scalp once daily. I have seen the most luxuriant, thick, glossy, waving hirsute crop from this simple inocuous application. Dr. Hen tells Dey.

Repeal of the Scott Act.

Sir John Tired of the Liquor Interests—The Whole Matter to be Shuffled off on to the Local Legislatures.

An Ottawa despatch to the Toronto World says:—"The liquor question has been the cause of much trouble in dominion politics. Now that the McCarthy act has been declared unconstitutional, and even the Scott Act is doubted, there is a desire among members of the federal parliament to get rid of this troublesome matter—in other words to unload the whole business on the provincial legislatures. A cabinet minister hinted today that Sir John would probably introduce a bill repealing the Scott Act and not only repeal it, but put a clause in the bill declaring that in view of the recent decisions in England, the whole subject be and is within the jurisdiction of the provinces. That would then leave the way open to the local legislatures to pass prohibitory measures, each for itself as it saw fit.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

TEMPERANCE.

The feeling in favor of temperance in Bridgenorth does not seem to have died out with the passing of the Scott Act in the county. At present we have two plans in operation for the furtherance of the good cause. In the first place the old Oak Leaf Temple is being reorganized for the adult populace; and in the second place Band of Hope cards are being largely signed by the little folks.

A LIVELY SCENE.

The principal street of this place was the scene of a lively occurrence on Wednesday last. It seems that a young man of the "transiant" kind, and also of a valorous disposition, managed, during his short stay here to get into complications with one of our worthy and equally valorous citizens. After a wordy warfare and considerable bombast, each of the twain seemed to consider discretion the better part of valor, and in utter contrast to their stormy interviews silently withdrew.

TEA MEETING.—Quite a number of our young folks took advantage of the good ice on New Year's day to skate up to the Indian Village to attend the tea meeting held there. They were hospitably entertained during their short stay by their red brethren, and returned early in the evening well pleased with their kind reception and afternoon's fun.

HYMENIAL.—It is expected that a triple wedding will soon come off "down the line." Matters have advanced so far that we are all on the tiptoe of expectation and eager to extend our congratulations to the parties interested when the happy event takes place.

PERSONAL.—Misses Lilly Way and Minnie Dean are home enjoying their Xmas holidays, after a term of teaching. Both were looking well, as though teaching agreed with them.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

(From a Correspondent.)

On the evening of Dec. 29th a number of our citizens wended their way towards the residence of Mr. Alex. Kidd ostensibly to pay that worthy gentleman a visit, but subsequent visits proved that other thoughts than those of making a holiday call were coursing through their craniums, for upon arriving at the above mentioned gentleman's domicile they, with an apparent lack of courtesy, made anxious enquiry for Miss Eliza Becket, who, for the last two years, has wielded the teachers' sceptre in this school section. That lady, without any perceptible alarm at the formidable array of visitors or the abruptness of the call, at once ushered her guests into the parlor, where, after a few mystifying words and whispers among the guests, one of their number stepped forward and read the two following addresses, when Miss Annie Cameron presented the gifts mentioned therein:—

Miss E. Becket:

DEAR FRIEND,—Our respective positions in life are about to be changed, and, although the place you are going to is not very remote, still we will be denied that close relationship which it has been our privilege to enjoy for the last number of years. As a teacher, you have always applied yourself most zealously to the duties incurred, evincing a cheerfulness in so doing which showed that your heart was in your work. But, apart from this, there is one trait in your character that specially commends you to our love and respect; you have always endeavored to implant moral and spiritual lessons in the minds of your pupils, ever seeking to engender in their hearts a love for their Saviour; thus you are sowing seed, the full benefits of which eternity alone will reveal. As a warm ally of the temperance cause, you have always given your aid in that direction and in this line we will feel your loss very much. We all feel that we could not let you depart without giving you some tangible proof of our respect and friendship. We want you to know that your work among us has been fully appreciated, and, as a proof of our words, we present you with this ring and blotter, and as this ring is complete without end, so may your future be without care. Our warmest wishes for success accompany you to your new field of labors and we feel certain that your many endearing qualities will soon win you many friends there.

{ YOUR FRIENDS OF UNION S.S. No. 2, ASPHODEL AND OTONABEE.

DEAR TEACHER,—Your pupils of this section, fully appreciating the valuable services you have rendered as a teacher, as well as your society as a friend, desire upon the eve of your departure from among us to tender some mark of the esteem and respect we have for you. To say that we regret parting with you is but a mild expression of our feelings to-night. As it has ever been your desire to sow good seed in the hearts of the young, let us hope that ere long it may bear fruit abundantly and as you are about assuming the charge of another school it is our sincere wish that you will have the same success in winning the confidence of your pupils and their parents as you have had here. May your desire to do good unto others still increase and may our Heavenly Father, who has ever been your guide through life still lead and guide you and that the light of His love may shine upon your pathway directing your footsteps to the golden gates of an eternal home, is the earnest wish of your friends and pupils here. We now join with your other friends in the section in presenting you with those gifts, hoping the one may be of use to you and requesting that the other may be worn by you as a remembrance of the happy days spent among us.

Hoping that you may live long to enjoy our gifts we bid you an affectionate farewell.

{ YOUR PUPILS OF S.S. No. 2, ASPHODEL AND OTONABEE.

Miss Becket replied, thanking her friends and pupils for their kindness, remarking that this reminder of respect and friendship from them, conveying to her as it did their appreciation of her work among them, would renew her courage and strengthen her to go on and work ever with the object in view of doing her best to take advantage of every opportunity in life to increase the happiness of others. The next proceeding was the partaking of a sumptuous repast prepared by Mrs. Alex. Kidd, which both in quality and quantity was amply sufficient to supply the most fastidious epicureans present, after which they adjourned to the parlor, where after appointing Mr. Thomas Eason to preside over the meeting, some of the members contributed in the way of readings, songs, stump speeches, etc., to the pleasures of the evening. The chairman then made a very eloquent address, at the close of which all joined in singing the sweet bye-and-by, and this commingling of kindred spirits came to an end.

An Extraordinary Offer.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every householder, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its saleability by any agent that will handle it with energy, that agents now at work are making from $150 to $300 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through subagents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guarantee; and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to everyone out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this papre who reads this offer to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

VALEDICTORY!

Good-bye! Good-bye, old year!

Another milestone has slipped behind us.

Another leaf in the Book of Life has closed forever.

The past is able to take care of itself. The future is in our own hands and may be what we chose to make of it.

We have again reached the Merchants' rock ending season, or stock-taking time, when we purpose balancing accounts and bringing all things into line for opening a new year.

In Furtherance to our taking stock we will Clear Out all our winter goods at Cost, and will try to carry over as little as possible into another season.

During this month we will make an extra effort to close out the small balance of Winter Goods to make room for New Spring Goods, expected in early in February.

Your Influence Solicited.

JAMES ALEXANDER.

Opening of the Schools.

The Public Schools and the Collegiate Institute opened to-day. Notwithstanding the severity of the weather there was a fair attendance. Mr. Stevenson, chairman of School Board, was in attendance and initiated and placed the new teachers.

Prayer Meeting.

The daily prayer meeting in connection with the week of prayer, will be held in St. Andrew's church school room this evening, at 8 p.m. Subject: "The church and family." Leader Rev. Mr. Bell, speaker Rev. Mr. Tovell.

The Gas Lamps.

A number of complaints have reached us lately in respect to the time at which some of the gas lamps are lighted on the streets. In the vicinity of St. Peter's Cathedral and Mr. Cox's Terrace, Rubidge street, are the points most strongly spoken of. We hope that our new Mayor will not be backward in reprimanding the President of the gas company for any further neglect of duty. Mr. Stavenson will no doubt give it to him hard, and threaten him with a cancellation of the contract if further neglected.

Police Court.

The case of Morgan vs. Roddy, held over from yesterday, an action for recovery of wages, was heard by Police Magistrate Dumble this morning. Wm. Morgan, late bar-tender at Roddy's Hotel, claimed that Mr. Roddy owed him $40. He stated that he had been hired by Mr. Roddy at $7 a week, the same wages as his predecessor had received. He had worked for 7 weeks. John Carr, who tended bar for two weeks while Morgan was indisposed, gave evidence stating that he had received $7 a week. Morgan admitted that Mr. Roddy had an account against him for board, previous to his engagement as bar-tender. He and wife and family had boarded in the hotel for 4 weeks at $7 per week, and he had boarded for one week more at $3.50. He also claimed that he had a contra account against Mr. Roddy for livery hire amounting to $25.50. Mr. Roddy in his evidence stated that he did not remember making an agreement with Morgan as to wages. He was not worth as much as Kelly, his predecessor, who received $7 a week. He had offered to pay him $6 a week. Mr. Roddy claimed nine weeks board for Morgan's family, and said Morgan's livery account, as rendered, was only $16. Morgan owed him. The Magistrate thought the matter could be easily and amicably settled. The case was enlarged until to-morrow to allow the parties to produce accounts.

Mr. John Lasher was charged with using threatening language and assaulting Thos. Bradburn. Lasher laid an information against Mr. Bradburn to the effect that Mr. Bradburn had threatened his life and had assaulted him.

The Magistrate did not think it necessary to bind Mr. Bradburn to keep the peace, as he would take action and give judgment according to the evidence adduced.

Mr. Bradburn was sworn. He said, on his way home on Monday night, when going up George street, he was followed by Lasher, whom he did not recognise at first. Lasher caught him by the coat and turned him round, at the same time making himself known. Lasher threatened to lay him out, saying if he did not do it then he would some other time. At this juncture in the proceedings the stovepipes in the court room fell down, and there being a fierce fire on, the room soon became filled with smoke. The windows were opened and one fell in and was partially smashed. The court adjourned to meet at 3 o'clock. Mr. Edmison appeared for the complainant and Mr. G. M. Rogers for the defendant.

Weather Changes.

The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. Geo. A. Schofield, druggist:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
9 o'clock	10	28.20
1 "	6	28.28
3 "	6	28.25

Another lot of those Low-Priced Photograph Frames just received. A. L. Davis & Co.

Auburn Mills Accident.

One of the picking machines in the Auburn Woolen Mills fell to pieces from old age and long usage. There was a new picker on the premises, but the time could not be spared to take the old machine down. The workmen were saved the trouble, however. The gasometer for holding the supply of gas for the mills fell off its perch and caused a little inconvenience.

Change of Date.

An error occurred in our issue of yesterday, concerning the date of the St. Luke's church concert. It is definitly fixed for [illegible] programme has been provided, and all who attend will, we are sure, be well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

For the Holidays.

Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie have in stock for the Xmas trade, a very fine line of slippers of all kinds, specially suited for presents, and at prices much below the ordinary. Call in and see the stock, it is really handsome and cannot be surpassed in town. In every department they carry full lines, but make a specialty of fine hand-sewed work for ladies and gentlemen.

The Rink.

Wednesday's breeze has had the result of putting the Peterborough Staking and Curling rink in good condition for patrons. The rink has attracted large numbers since, and the season may be said to have commenced in earnest. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance at the rink to-night and to-morrow night, and as the ice is in excellent condition, skatists may look forward to a good time.

The Trustee Election.

The contest yesterday between Messrs. Errett and Flavelle for the office of school trustee was very keen throughout the campaign. The total number of votes polled this year was much in excess of last year's, 235 votes being polled, to 135 last year. Thirteen ladies voted. At the close of the poll the vote stood:

Mr. Errett	130
Mr. Flavelle	105
Majority for Mr. Errett	25

Good for the Girls.

If intelligence and application are any tests there is no reason why women should not have votes at Parliamentary as well as at municipal elections. A little arithmetical analysis of the marks obtained by the successful candidates at the entrance examinations, shows that the average of the marks obtained by the girls was 447⅞, while the average of the "stronger and more intellectual sex" was only 421⅛. In the intellectual contest, petticoat v. pantaloons, the undivided garment seems to be gaining the lead. If things continue to go on at this rate the lords of creation will soon find that their claim to the right of lighting the kitchen fire on frosty mornings will be contested.

The Rock Band Concert.

The celebrated Till family, the Rock Band Concert Company, gave one of their delightful entertainments, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., in Bradburn's Opera House last night. There was a large, orderly and appreciative audience. The entertainment was a very meritorious one and deserved the highest commendation. The variety of agreeable music, produced from different instruments, was wonderful. The performers manipulated the rock harmonicon in clever style, producing rich and harmonious music. Miss Ida M. Brown, elocutionist, contrary to expectation, delighted the audience with her efforts. She was encored after each selection and was made to appear five times instead of twice, receiving and responding to a double encore. The programme will give an idea of the variety of the music produced and the wonderful ability of the performers:—

Operatic Airs, (Weber) / Fantasia—Scotch	Rock Players
Solo on Tumbleronicon	Mr. W. Till
Vocal Duet	Misses Till
Musical Box	Rock Players
Solo on the Streich Zither	Mr. W. Till
Reading—Selected	Miss Ida M. Brown
Selection of Popular Airs	Rock Players
Westminister Chimes on the Fairy Bells	Mr. D. Till

PART II.

Trio of Ocarinas—Welsh Melodies	Till Family
Quartett	Till Family
Air, with Variations, Harmonious Blacksmith, (Handel)	Rock Players
Duet on the Xylophone and Zither	Messrs. Till
Reading	Miss Brown
Boot-Jack Solo	Mr. W. Till
Fairy Bells, Duet	Messrs Till

Besides this programme there were numerous encores. Mr. Till gave a description of the rock harmonicon and invited the audience to inspect the instrument after the entertainment was over, and a large number availed themselves of the privilege. It is composed of about sixty pieces of rock varying in size from six inches to four feet long, from two to four inches wide, arranged on the same plan as the key board of a piano. The rocks are placed on straw bands to allow as much vibration as possible. It consisted of five octaves. The operators struck the stones with small wooden hammers. The instrument is very simple in construction. The tumbleronicon, made of tumblers, and the boot-jack, that useful article, with nails driven in it, was made to produce the "Last Rose of Summer" in good style. The operator drew a violin bow over the nails. The singing of the Till family was also much admired. The expenses of the concert were large and it is to be hoped the Y. M. C. A will not lose, but will be rewarded for their trouble and expense in bringing the company to town.

National League Meeting.

The Irish National League held a meeting in their rooms last night. There was a large attendance. The collecting committee reported and deposited with the treasurer the amount collected.

What We May Expect.

A full school of skaters at the rink to-night.

The Fire Brigade band to play its prettiest.

And the curlers to "Soup her up Sandy."

The front seats to be well filled at the Opera House to-night.

A light fall of snow to-night—enough to make the Riverside toboggan slide open for traffic.

The coal dealers to say that "this is fine bracing weather."

The butter market parliament to be further prerogued unless, the stove pipes are fixed.

A good audience at the week of prayer meeting to-night in St. Andrew's.

Fresh north and northwest winds; partly cloudy, continued cold weather, with light [illegible] of snow.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable," or "El Padre" brand of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pay them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby.

"What say you to a Piece of Roast Beef and Mustard?"

Well, there is much to be said. The question being asked of the banqueter at the average boarding house, calls up reminiscences of close contiguity to the horns, and beefsteak three cuts south thereof. He, of course, will pass, unless it occurs to him that he needs a hinge for his trunk. Should there be any suffering, the effects of an indulgence in such sinuous fare, use McGregor's Speedy Cure, a sure and effectual remedy for Dyspepsia, Constipation and all affections of the stomach and liver. CARD OF THANKS.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 2d, 1886.
DEAR SIR,—Please accept my best thanks and convey the same to the officers of the Equitable Life Assurance Society for the satisfactory payment of the $2,000 for which my late husband's life was insured. I feel the more grateful because evil disposed persons, filled with envy and malice, did all in their power to prevent the payment of the claim. But the action of the Equitable illustrates the justice of the claim and proves to the world that the Society is not only equitable in name but in practice. I have therefore great pleasure in recommending both yourself and your Company to all who desire reliable insurance,

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

In a letter which appears in another part of our columns, Mr. R. C. Strickland, referring to an editorial which appeared in the EXAMINER several days ago, writes that "there is a tendency on the part of our editorial to draw this great and popular undertaking into a party question," and in the same letter he deprecates the introduction of this question into the realms of politics.

Unfortunately for Mr. Strickland, the evil which he mourns and seeks to allay was first brought into existence by his Conservative friends, and was thrust upon us without an alternative.

From the very moment this question sprang into being, it has been fostered as of Tory offspring and on every possible occasion, has been dangled before the electorate as of purely Tory parentage, and its beauty and capability lauded loudly, if not heartily and sincerely.

During the election of 1882, in his address to the electors and throughout the country, Mr. Hilliard brought it openly into the political arena, and in his address says:

"In conjunction with the other representatives from this section of Ontario, I have done all in my power to secure the early construction of the Trent Valley Canal, and the large measure of success which has attended our past efforts should assure the electorate of this district that if their present representatives are re-elected and the present government sustained, this great and long-looked-for work will be brought to an early completion."

During the same campaign, by the same means, Mr. Burnham placed himself on the same level as his Tory confrere and sought election on the strength of his belief in the future growth and advancement of this worldling, so unhappy in its protectors, and the Peterborough Review, in order to emphasize the platform of these candidates, in its issue of June 16th, 1882, boldly states that "those who wish to see the Trent Valley Canal, will do well to vote for Messrs. Hilliard and Burnham and the present Government."

During that election, we do not remember that Mr. Strickland took any public measures by which this great question might be rescued from its wretched duty, but quietly allowed his political associates to reap any accruing advantage they might gain in the then political market. At the present time, when another general election is imminent, we see the same spectacle exhibited, only less sprightly and tangible in its effect on the public and we think that in future as a drawing figure in a Tory sideshow, its usefulness is utterly gone.

The position of the EXAMINER on this question has always been uniform. We strongly urged the early completion of the project, and we have continually regretted the electioneering dodges to which the Tories have submitted the same. As a great public undertaking of national benefit, we hold the present government responsible for their unwarrantable delay and indifference to this public work, and we claim that it was only by our persistent demands on the government, we brought about the letting of the contracts at Lovesick and Burleigh referred to by Mr. Strickland.

We believe that the present government is only utilizing the Trent Valley Canal in order to dupe the people, and that until we have a change of government no permanent or substantial work will ever be undertaken, looking towards the completion of this national project.

Trent Valley Canal.

To the Editor of THE DAILY EXAMINER:

SIR,—Allow me to thank you for giving such a large portion of your valuable space to the subject of my letter to the Daily Evening Review, "suggesting the propriety "of calling a meeting of delegates along the "line of the Trent Valley Canal, to be held "in Peterborough at an early date."

The object I had in view was that the people interested in this work might be united in what they were going to ask the government. As a delegate from the county, on the last deputation to Ottawa, I saw that one of the greatest drawbacks to the success of the deputation, was that they went there without any united understanding as to what they wanted. At a meeting such as I suggest, a vote of the majority of the delegates could decide what section the Government should put under contract next, and the wishes of this committee would have more weight with the present Government, or with the Reform Government which you shortly expect at Ottawa.

There is a tendency on the part of your editorial to draw this great and popular undertaking into a party question, which, on second thoughts I am sure you will regret, as I am safe in saying that nine-tenths of the ratepayers in central Ontario want the Trent Valley Canal built, and will not consent to its being made a party question. I believe Peterborough's future, as a great commercial centre, largely depends on this great national work going on and I hope you will think twice before you use the powerful influence of your paper against it. The Post Office and Customs House are matters purely local, belonging to Peterborough alone, and I know nothing about them, nor are they matters of any interest to outsiders, therefore I cannot see any necessity or sense in bringing them into the question.

You speak of the great cost the county and town have been put to in sending deputations to Ottawa. I have not the figures before me, but I may venture to say that the total cost has not exceeded $300. This is a small amount when you consider what has been accomplished and the difficulties that have been overcome. First, the friends of this undertaking found that this great system of inland navigation had been handed over by the Mackenzie Government to the Province of Ontario; it required a deputation to get this rescinded. If this had not been done it meant either that the canal would never be built, or that this Province would have to build it and would not be receiving any more or as much benefit as the Provinces of Quebec, Manitoba or the Northwest. Having accomplished this the various deputations have succeeded in getting locks built at Fenelon and Buckhorn and works at Burleigh and Lovesick well advanced, and it would actually have been now completed if the contractors had not been hampered (as you say) in their operations by petty interneddling in details on the part of the officials, but this is no fault of the Government or of the deputations appointed by the county and town, and I am satisfied that our two worthy representatives, Messrs. Hilliard and Burnham, at the proper time will enquire into the cause of these delays.

In closing this rather too long letter let me assure you that I have no intention of asking Mr. Carnegie to resign his seat for West Peterborough so that I might have the opportunity of contesting that riding with such an able opponent as yourself, and that I am (thanking you at the same time for the compliment) as likely to put myself in that position as you are to use the influence of your valuable paper in support of Sir John Macdonald's Government.

I remain, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
R. C. STRICKLAND.

Fears of an emeute are felt, owing to the great reduction of the British forces at Mandalay by the withdrawal of troops for the expedition to Bhamo.

Convention of Eastern Dairymen Discussing Cheese and Butter Affairs.

BELLEVILLE, Jan 6.—The ninth annual Convention of the Dairymen's Association of Eastern Ontario opened here to-day. The attendance was large, including several well-known Provincial dairymen. D. Derbyshire of Brockville, President, occupied the chair, and delivered an address referring to the work done by the Association in advancing the standard of Ontario cheese. Prof. Barre, of the Guelph Agricultural College, delivered an address on the Dairy Law, and Mr. Cheeseman read a paper on "The Milk Register." Prof. Roberts, of Utica, N. Y., spoke on the subject of proper dairy houses. The Convention will adjourn till to-morrow night.

Starving to Death.

Causes of the Terrible Destitution in the West of Ireland.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Bishop Carr, the recently promoted Catholic bishop of Galway diocese, who is deeply interested in the condition of the poor in his diocese, says that all sorts of labor in Galway has practically ceased. Between 400 and 500 laborers and artizans are absolutely destitute, and they are only kept alive by charity or by pawning their few personal effects.

Mr. Brady, government inspector of fisheries, is trying to fit out two sea-worthy boats to obtain cheap food for the Western Islanders, by fishing in deep water. He has been assisted by Lady Carnarvon and other philanthropic persons. Large quantities of fish were taken from fishing banks off the west coast of Ireland during the past Autumn by boats owned and manned by Frenchmen. The deficient gear of the Irish fishermen prevented them from competing with the Frenchmen, and the failure of the herring catch has caused terrible suffering. Mr. Brady reports $15,000 necessary to equip the boats. The jute works have been obliged to close owing to the importation of American bags, and milling, which was once one of the chief industries of Galway, has fallen off in consequence of the importation of American flour instead of grain. Many good workmen have gone in the workhouses for food and shelter. Many others prefer to starve at home.

Whitby.

Sudden Death of a Three Thousand Dollar Horse.

WHITBY, Jan. 5.—Messrs. Jeffrey, of the Coldstream Farm, have had a great loss in Baumore, the prize stallion which they travelled last season. He was four year old and died very suddenly while playing in his lot. He was a $3,000 horse, and it will be much regretted in this district as he was in great repute.

A Church Burned.

Bridge St. Methodist Church, Bellyville Succumbs to the Flames.

BELLEVILLE, Jan 7.—The Bridge St. Methodist church here was destroyed by fire yesterday morning, [illegible] 000, of which $10,000 is in the Commercial Union and $8,000 in the Lancashire. The building was dedicated in 1865, on May 14, by Rev. E. Ryerson, D. D., LL.D., Rev. Lachlan Taylor, D. D., and Rev. George Douglass. It was 74 x 110 in size, and with the gallery, which extended along three sides of the church, had a seating capacity of 1500 persons. The present pastor is the Rev. J. B. Clarkson. There was a debt of $11,500 on the Church. Pending the erection of a new structure the congregation will worship in the Belleville Opera House, which has been offered for six months free of rent. The Sunday School room, which was also consumed, was built at a cost of $3000 and was particularly handsome.

U. S. Commercial Relations.

Measures Introduced Looking to Reciprocity with Canada.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 6.—Two joint resolutions calling upon the President to enter into negotiations with the Government of Great Britain for a reciprocal commercial treaty between the U. S. and the Dominion of Canada have already been introduced in the Lower House. Both have been referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, when that committee shall be appointed. The indications are to-night that the chairman of that committee will be the Hon. Perry Belmont, of New York, whose tilt with Blaine in the forty-sixth Congress made him famous. Mr. Belmont has an all absorbing idea, and that is to distinguish himself as the father of legislation looking to better commercial relations with foreign nations. He said to the Globe correspondent yesterday, that he favors a Reciprocity Treaty with Canada, and that he shall do all he can to bring it about. With a favorably disposed chairman a great deal can be done, and it is very likely that one of the resolutions will be favorably reported at least early in the session.

WOMEN IN MUNICIPAL MATTERS.

The idea of women enjoying and exercising the privilege of the franchise has long been a subject of fruitful jest, but it is that no longer. In the recent municipal contest the part played by the ladies was no insignificant one. In Toronto they seemed to be alive to the importance of the privilege of having a voice in the affairs of the city. In the mayoralty contest over seven hundred ballots were marked by females; in Kingthey were exceedingly active, and had a large share in deciding the result, and though in Peterborough, less than a tenth of the number entitled to vote, took advantage of their privilege, the result all around shows that the female element in future municipal contests is one that will have to be taken into account. No right thinking man will deny that, on principle, a woman who has the necessary property qualifications, has a right to a voice in selecting the trustees, who are to guard her material interests in common with those of the general public. Women are, as a rule, as capable as most men of forming sound and independent opinions; they are not liable to be corrupted by contact with self-seeking ward politicians, so that we may always expect the woman vote to be arrayed against all rings and corrupt schemes. They will form the great moral counterpoise in all municipal matters, and the wily schemer who has an axe to grind at the public expense, will know that he cannot depend on the female vote to assist him in turning the grindstone. It is rightly held that woman's proper place is at home; but that fact is not inconsistent with her going out one day in the year, to give expression by the ballot to opinions soundly matured by prolonged cogitation over her sewing or knitting. The woman who takes an interest in her husband's business is able to give sound advice, and very few men, with wives worth having, have reason to regret that, in some crisis of their life, they have been guided by the advice of their helpmeet. So in municipal matters, women, occupying the position of onlookers, who see most of the game, are in a position to form a more independent opinion than the male voter, who is subject to electioneering influences; and often before he realizes his position, his pledge is given in favor of some sharp candidate, whose course and character his cooler after judgment repudiates, but he cannot go past his word, and he forces himself, contrary to to his conscience to vote for a man who he feels and knows is unfit for the position he seeks. Hereafter, it may be safely assumed, the female vote will be an important factor in the decision of municipal contests, and whether, the position taken will be unbecoming or otherwise to the sex, the fact remains.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Mail denies that either the Mail or Mr. Bunting received a single dollar's worth of printing from the Dominion Government or any other Government. The public accounts must lie, or the Mail—is mistaken.

Mr. Donald McMaster, Q. C., has returned from England, and states that Sir John is very popular in England. But it is in Canada, not in England, that Sir John would like to be popular. His popularity in the old country cannot be turned to political account in Canada.

There, we know the Prince of Wales has been calling the Premier, "Sir Thomas Macdonald" again. The Mail is authority for the statement that Sir John is "as well known" (as Sir Thomas), "and esteemed in London as any prominent English statesman of the present day."

The Huron Signal professes to know of 37 farmers, Conservatives, in West Huron, who have pledged themselves to vote against the Dominion Government. There are equally encouraging returns from many other constituencies. Liberals must take care, however, that the Revising-officers are not allowed to make up those losses and ensure Macdonaldism another lease of power.

The chief Tory organ says:—"Mr. Gibson, the celebrated New Brunswick capitalist, entertained his cotton mill employees and their families, to the number of one thousand, on Christmas day. The dinner was the largest ever given in Canada. How hard-hearted and cruel the iron-sealed monopolist manufacturers are!" The explanation may be that the monopoly Mr. Gibson enjoys has resulted in a surplus of cash, which, in the present depressed condition of the country, he is unable to invest profitably, or he may be looking forward to becoming a candidate in the Government interest at the next election.

Bishop Grandin is engaging, in Montreal, teachers speaking French and English for service among the Indians in the Northwest. The troubled condition of the country, however, keeps the applications down to a very low ebb.

The Mail puts down seven Conservatives elected in seven Constrvatives constituencies as the net result of the by-elections. If the organ had added the net cost of the retention of each seat, the information would have been complete

Police Court.

Bradburn vs. Lasher—The Evidence and the Sentance of the Court.

The examination in the Bradburn vs. Lasher case, held over from yesterday morning, was resumed yesterday afternoon before Police Magistrate Dumble. Mr. Bradburn continued the evidence given by him in the morning, regarding the threats made against him by John Lasher on Monday night or Tuesday morning. He said they ran and succeeded in getting away from Lasher after parrying with him for about an hour, Lasher threatening him to the last. Mr. Bradburn also testified, that on Tuesday evening, he met Lasher at Darcy's saloon, where he upbraided him for what he had done on the following evening, telling him it was a shame for a young man like he was to attack an old man. Lasher came towards him, and touched or struck him several times on the nose with his finger, threatening to break his neck. Mr. Darcy interfered. Mr. Bradburn remained at Darcy's till after four o'clock in the morning, as he was afraid of Lasher, who he was told, was in the next stall waiting for him. He started on his way home at that early hour in the morning alone. When a little past Howden's butcher shop on George street, a man, whom he afterwards found to be Lasher, came running across the road towards him, and caught him by the collar of the coat and vest, cursing him and saying he had him now, at the same time threatening to do dreadful things if he squealed. Mr. Bradburn remonstrated with Lasher and tried to get away, but Lasher threatened him so that he submitted. Lasher forced him to go to his father's house locking the door as they entered. Lasher escorted Mr. Bradburn to a room and made him sit down in a chair, threatening to knock his brains out if he left the room, and making other threats. Mr. Bradburn, fearing Lasher, remained meek and mild. After a while Lasher's father and mother came down stairs and enquired what was the matter. Mr. Bradburn remonstrated with Mr. Lasher and asked to get out. Young Lasher then said he was going home with Mr. Bradburn, but he, (Mr. B.) would not hear of it. About 6 o'clock young Lasher went up stairs and Mr. Bradburn was allowed to go. Mr. Wm. Lasher, fearing his son might follow Mr. Bradburn, went after him and induced him to go home by a round about way. He reached home between 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. G. M. Roger cross examined Mr. Bradburn, who adhered to his former statements. When asked by Mr. Roger if he had not aggravated young Lasher by telling him that his father had stolen lumber from him, he admitted that he said Lasher's father had taken lumber he had not accounted for. He was perfectly sober on both nights.

Mr. Forbes gave evidence testifying that Mr. Bradburn was sober on Monday night when he left Darcy's hotel.

W. Bradburn gave evidence with regard to the altercation in Darcy's on Tuesday night, confirming that of his brother and adding that Mr. Thos. Bradburn had invited Lasher to strike him on the nose by saying, "do it again." He had seen his brother take a glass of beer that evening.

Mr. Bowman also gave evidence of the same nature.

John Woods testified that Mr. Bradburn had called Lasher two or three times on Tuesday night, and began the altercation.

John Lasher was sworn and testified that he met Mr. Bradburn on Monday night. Mr. Bradburn said good night to him. He swore at Mr. Bradburn, telling him he had a good cheek to speak to him, and that if he did right he would knock the —— out of him, for the way he had insulted him by making remarks about his father, and told him if he did not stop speaking of his father he would lay him out. They walked up home together quarrelling all the way. He did not prevent Mr. Bradburn from going home. He did not strike him, but warned him on, parting that if he continued to speak of his father as he had been doing he would hurt him.

On Tuesday night he went into Darcy's with Mr. W. Bolleghem. Mr. Bradburn, who was at the saloon, pointed at him and said there was the man who assaulted him last night, that he would get even with him yet and would shove him through for it. Mr. Bradburn was in the habit of tantalizing him every time he saw him, and insulted his father to his face. He tried to get a settlement of the difficulty between himself and Mr. Bradburn. He left Darcy's after four o'clock in the morning. He caught up to Mr. Bradburn in front of Yellands yard, he again tried to make a settlement with Mr. Bradburn, who refused, swearing and making insinuations about Lasher's father. Lasher asked Bradburn if he would repeat what he had been saying to his father's face, and he said he would. He kept Mr. Bradburn to his word and made him go home with him. Mr. Bradburn's age was the only thing that prevented him from thrashing him. On being cross-examined by Mr. Edmison he said. Mr. Bradburn threatened on Wednesday morning to put a ball through him yet. He locked the door when he took Mr. Bradburn to his father's house but left the key in the door. He told his father to come down and see Mr. Bradburn and when he came down stairs charged Bradburn to repeat what he had said. Mr. Bradburn complained he was a prisoner, and young Lasher told him he might go but he would see him home. He denied threatening. He admitted both were the worse of liquor but said Mr. Bradburn was the worst. When he went up stairs to light a fire Mr. Bradburn left the house, being told to do so by Lasher's father. The reason why he wanted to accompany Mr. B. home was that he thought he could make a settlement with him about the case he had entered against him.

Mr. Wm. Lasher was sworn. He said he was awakened by the noise made by his son and Mr. Bradburn entering his house on Wednesday morning. Mr. Bradburn was not forced to stay. His son told him Mr. Bradburn had come to say something to his face. He saw that both were intoxicated. His son and Mr. Bradburn had some words and were quarrelling with each other. He assured Mr. Bradburn he would not be hurt in his presence. Shortly after Mr. Bradburn left his house he went after him, as he thought his son might follow him and might quarrel with him. He saw Mr. Bradburn to his gate by a round-about way so as to avoid his son should he follow. His son used no threatening language in his presence. Bradburn when parting at his gate threatened to put a ball through his son. He did not like the appearance of the whole affair and did not want any trouble.

Chas. Robinson and Wm. Bellechem gave evidence concerning the row in Darcy's. It was much the same as that of the other witnesses on the same point. They thought Mr. Bradburd was the more agressive of the two

The magistrate said there was no reason for the altercation in Darcy's, and they might have known it would lead to trouble. It would have been easy for Lasher to have gone away. He waited there for improper purposes. He had met and threatened Mr. Bradburn outside at a time when it was in his power to intimidate him, which was cowardly bullying and blackguard. Mr. Bradburn's evidence was unshaken. Although undoubtedly drunk at the time of assault he was level-headed and had remembered the circumstances. At McDonald street and London street, Lasher had laid hold of Mr. Bradburn in an unmanly way and contrary to law, forced him to go to his father's house. He had also previously followed him home and used threatening language towards him and was bound over to keep the peace, and arrested on a charge of assault. He was then in the custody of the law and should be on his good behavior. He had met Mr. Bradburn in the saloon. Mr. Bradburn was in liquor and had acted indiscretely and foolishly by bringing up the matter of the previous evening he invited trouble. Lasher was the younger and more safer of the two. He had laid hands on Mr. Bradburn and intimidated him, and Mr. Bradburn had thought it safer to do as he was told. The older Mr. Lasher had self-respect and had done what a respectable man would do. by going home with Mr. Bradburn and seeing that no evil befel him. The conduct of John Lasher was very bad and might have led to murder. Such proceedings should be put down and must be put down. With all Mrs. Bradburn's indiscretion, Lasher could have avoided him by leaving the saloon. There was no assault made on Mr. Lasher by Mr. Bradburn. There was only a drunken row, and it was difficult to say who was to blame, and Mr. Bradburn would be justified in threatening to shoot Lasher, as his life was in danger. He therefore dismissed the charge made against Mr. Bradburn with costs.

Lasher had committed an assault which might have led to serious results. Young Lasher had done that which he would not have done if sober. It was a great pity, as Mr. and Mrs. Lasher were both very respectable. Mr. Roger pleaded that the circumstances of the case be well weighed by the Magistrate.

The Magistrate adjudged that John Lasher be imprisoned for two weeks, but subsequently substituted a fine of $20 and costs instead of imprisonment, and in addition requiring him to give bail to keep the peace for one year, himself $500 and two sureties of $250 each.

An Extraordinary Offer.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every householder, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure so many agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $300 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in that time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return the goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through subagents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed; and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $175 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to every one out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all thrashers, sewing machine sellers and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer to send us at once the name and address of all such to us know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

FIRST TOUR OF 1833.

It is hardly necessary to announce in detail to the invalids of this country that each year has added greatly to our unrivalled experience and facilities in the treatment of every form of chronic ailment, whether of a medical or surgical nature. This past year has been one of marked and unusual success, not only have the numbers of cases cured exceeded by hundreds that of any preceding year, but during the same time we have made many valuable scientific discoveries regarding chronic and surgical treatment of cases of several hitherto supposed incurable diseases and deformities. With the New Year comes many encouraging reports from patients in all parts of the United States and Canada, and we feel certain that ere long we shall be obliged to enlarge our consulting and operating staff to meet the demands of our fast increasing business. We do not profess to cure diseases in every stage, nor even in a few cases presented, frequently refusing to treat those we would gladly engage our services would we be satisfied that hope which our past experience and honest judgment would not warrant.

The treatment of any case is undertaken only after a most careful and positive investigation of the entire facts regarding it, combined with a certainty of relieving and curing the sufferer and thereby adding to our reputation.

To all who honor us with their confidence and the care of their cases we promise honest and experienced treatment.

The extended reputation of our Dr. J. D. Kergan and the Surgeons composing his International Medical Council is sufficient guarantee that all seeking information or services will be entirely satisfied. No matter whether your disease be of the Head, Throat, Lungs, Nasal Passages, Heart, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Bowels, Bladder, Blood, Bones, Nerves, Skin, Joints, Glands, Spine, Muscles, Eye, Ear, Urinary Tract, Reproductive Organs, or any Diseases peculiar to your age or sex.

"Only a Sister to Him."

BY R. J. BURDETTE.

He lifted his face in the starlight dim,
And all that he saw was a round, dull sky;
And the stars that twinkled, looked to him
Like the phosphor plasms of the fire-fly.
The new moon hung in an awkward shape
And was crooked and bent like the horn of a ram;
The sombre maples seemed hung with crape
And the garden gate banged to with a slam.

The brook oozed over the slimy stones
From stagnant pools in the meadow marsh;
Or it crooned along with plaintive moans,
And the song of the whip-poor-will was harsh.
He jabbed his ribs on the clumsy stile,
For dark as pitch was the dusty lane;
And his thin lips curved in a bitter smile,
As he smote the weeds with a spiteful cane.

Rough and ugly and long was the way,
The skies were dull and the earth was cold;
He hated the night and he dreaded the day,
And his heart seemed a hundred centuries old;
With the dirge of his sighs he timed his tread,
As one who pondereth bitter things;
But he only whispered, with drooping head,
And a heart that wondered—"Kicked, by jings!"

—[Life.

Your Last Year's Dress.

Last year's dresses may be easily brought into style by arranging a panier-draped sash of satin surah on the edge of the basque. The plaits of last year's basques are taken out, and the seams are sewed up and bound to the edges. A surplice drapery of surah over the bosom is added, and the sleeves are trimmed to match, with a puff at the top, if the wearer is slender; a plaited scarf at the wrist if she be stout. The large buttons of last year are replaced by small round ones, the old button-holes being concealed either by making the dress lap the other way, or, if that can not well be done, by inserting a pointed vest, or a plastron. Fashion authorities say that a great many plastrons, or vests, are to be worn, some embroidered, some plain, some plaited.—These may be either of the dress material, or, with band of similar ribbon, which is more frequent, of the fabric used for trimming. A late French fashion plate shows a novel bodice with plaited plastron of the dress goods, framed in bands of two-inch satin ribbon, around the neck, and bands and bows on the sleeves. Ribbon sashes are fashionable, commencing from the side seam of the bodice and tied in front, and since the favorite arrangement of these is over a polonaise to simulate the point of a bodice, it will readily be seen that in clever hands they may easily be used to hide a seam when the basque has been lengthened. A very stylish Paris dress in two fabrics has the bodice cut like the familiar cuirass, now known as the jersey basque. In front, this has a narrow pointed vest of green and gold brocade, the vest of the bodice being of dark green gros grain. At the back, from the neck down, is laid a flat box-plait, with a double fold on each edge, in a sort of modified Watteau, held flat to the very edge of the basque, whence it opens out over the tournuré in a full Watteau plait, falling low on the skirt of the dress. The edge of the basque is finished by a deep fringe in the colors of the brocade. The skirt is short, with three plaitings of gros grain at the foot, and above this is brocade covering the whole skirt back and front in a sort of straight tunic, slashed and piped on the lower edge—the openings being ten inches deep, showing gros grain between. This new model may easily be applied to renovate a half-worn dress. An effective mode of trimming a skirt where the material is cut up into many pieces, is to put a single box or side-plaiting at the foot, and cover the skirt above that, for the depth of twelve inches or more, with alternate perpendicular box-plaits and puffings, the latter being shirred across in clusters at intervals of four inches.

"A friend of mine," says Olive Logan, "once asked Charles Reade why he did not come over to America, where he would receive a grand reception, at any rate from literary people. 'I'll you why,' answered Mr. Reade; 'they tell me there are lots of good things to eat out in America, and I should be tempted to eat them if I went. Now, I've got a bad liver complaint, and must diet.'"

The Whitehall Times observes: "At 20 man theorizes; at 40 he philosophizes, and at 60 he realizes." Also, at 20 he scrutinizes—the young ladies; at 22 he idolizes—the sister of some other fellow; at 21 he paralyzes—the old man by asking for her hand in marriage, and at 26 he jeopardizes—his neck by staying out with the boys until midnight. In fact, his life is full of "izes."—Norristown Herald.

An unmarried Episcopal clergyman proposed to recuperate his health, which has suffered from his Lenten austerities, by taking a trip into the country. This was what he proposed to tell a lady friend, also unmarried. He said: "Now that Lent is over I propose to take——" "Oh, don't you propose! Let me propose! You know this is leap year," and before the preacher could help himself he was an accepted suitor."—Texas Siftings.

A nurse in an insane asylum says: "We outlive quickly all fear of our patients. For we know by a peculiarity in the eye of each one when a dangerous outbreak is at hand; and finally we reach so callous a stage that the sane people outside seem for the nonce lunatics, while the maniacs seem sane."

Household Conveniences.

From experience of years as a builder, I find a great lack of system in planning among farmers. When it comes to the erection of a house, if we are to take the description of the thought as we see it embodied in the country houses that dot the landscape, it is not strange that the dwellers in villages and city houses of comfort and beauty should call them places to live in instead of homes. It is often remarked by those from country who visit friends in the village or city, or especially the wives, mothers, and sisters, "How handy and convenient you do have everything about your house to save work! I wish our house could be as handy." The farmer will say, perhaps, "It costs money to have all these things." Well, so it does; but on which side of the account does the profit or loss come in the end? Farmers buy improved implements to save time and money, but rarely think that the time of the wife and daughter in their daily journeys to the woodpile, well or cistern, is worth the saving. He rarely thinks of the extra steps to the cellar and pantry, in the preparation of a single meal. He does not take into account the saving that would be accomplished if all the necessary adjuncts of the household were in closer proximity to each other. I have often seen the woodpile at the farmer's house two or three rods from the kitchen door, and then not under roof; the well ten or twelve rods away, and sometimes down a steep hill, having been located there to save a few feet of digging (and this alone makes miles of extra traveling in the course of a year); the cistern with no other convenience for drawing water than a pail and rope. Is it any wonder that mother and daughter in such a farm house are tired out with extra labor and drudgery of household duties? The building of a good house by the thrifty farmer may perhaps have been long in contemplation; he may have considered how much money he intended to put into the structure, but the most important part, how to make it a home embodying comforts and conveniences, has been left entirely out of his calculations.

A mistake that the farmer often makes is that of imitating something that he has seen somewhere, that, so far as the exterior is concerned, he thinks just suits him. In his attempt to copy from it, he finds that the location as to frontage and all its surroundings is quite different in the two cases, and when too late he discovers that he has made a mistake. Frequently as much depends upon the location of a farm-house and its buildings for pleasing effect as the design of the building itself. We often see the dwellings on one side of the public highway, while on the opposite side are spread out barns and various other out-buildings, to reach which gates must be opened, and the dirty or muddy road crossed hundreds of times in the course of a year.

A Druggists' Love.

It was evening, when a youth with "penny-royal" step slowly meandered down a "serpentaria" walk, apparently communing with the "sweet spirits of nitre." "'Aconite' miss her," he whispered in stentorian tones; "I 'aloes' could depend upon her. O Cupid, how 'bitter sweet!' Hark! what was that?—Nothing but a belated 'colt's-foot' borne upon the 'squilly' breeze. Ten miles I 'camphor' to see her, to gaze into her 'glycerine' eyes. Ob, why should I 'sulphur' thus?" and with an agonized, prolonged, soul-stirring, "concentrated ginger" cry of "Bella Donna?" (he was an Italian") he recklessly threw himself into a "rustic" chair, and the clock boomed eight. An "ethereal," "chloroformic" step gently approached, a lissome figure with a face of "cold creamy" complexion, nearer, nearer, and the clock boomed nine. The distant barking of a dog mingles harmoniously with "wild cherry," "Peruvian" and "elm" bark, ravishing to the senses. He starts up with glad "hops," rushes forward and soon his lips are "ground glued" to hers. "My darling!" he mutters, "'Iodide of potash' had you failed me, but now hopes, doubts I no 'morphia.' I 'castor oil' to the winds." But she only gazed into his "blue mass" eyes, and the clock boomed ten.

The Pronunciation of American Names.

Without commencing upon the Taglianferos ('Tollivers') of Virginia, there are the Cecils (pronounced Sysls, or Syssls), the Champeneys (Chauncys), Rollestones (Rallstons), Leighs (Lees, Lays, and oftentimes Lyes), the Timberlakes (Timliks), the Ashuests (Ashetts), the Blounts (Blunts), the Eloarts (Allests), Auchtenbauches (Arbois), and the Kers (Kares). A family rejoiced in the name of Polly. The eldest son, an unkempt youth of 19, was called George Washington Polly. But the name was always written Pauline. Then the name Ralph was always Rafe, and the name Helena was accented on the first syllable—an English custom, but one not usual in the North.

In Kentucky, Tennessee, and Mississippi, many other names occur, often of French, Spanish or Indian derivation, which assume a peculiar dialectal form. Beauchamp (pronounced Beechum), Daughty (Doty), Dockery (sometimes spelt Dackery—a contraction, it was said, of the French Du Cherie), Des Moulin (Demlin), Dupuy (Dupee), Pevensy (Pinsey), and many others which assume more or less variety in expression and pronunciation. —The Critic.

Steno-Telegraphy.

Mr. Walter P. Phillips whose system of steno-telegraphy has just been adopted by the Mutual Union Telegraph Company, is rapidly perfecting an automatic system by which, in a test made recently over 500 miles of wire, important results were achieved. Messages were sent through a loop passing through Washington, Pa., and received at the office in Washington, D. C., as clearly and quickly as if sent from the one instrument to the other without the intervening distances. Mr. Phillips aims to avoid the perforation of the slips. He transmits from a matrix prepared upon paper slips by a Morse operator, with an ordinary key. This strip is then run through a clock-work arrangement at any desired rate of speed, the result being taken at any station with the same inking apparatus used in steno-telegraphing. A rate of 200 words per minute was easily attained.

"Why were you not at church last Sunday, Clara?" asked Amelia. "I couldn't go; didn't have anything to wear. I shall go next Sunday if my sack is done." O, you sack-religious thing!"

A grave and dignified D. D., after listening to the recitation of the catechism by a class of children, was asked to make a few remarks to them. Whereupon he rose and said: "I desire, my young friends, to express an unqualified approbation of this exercise. I regard the catechism as the most admirable epitome of religious belief extant." The superintendent pulled his sleeve and asked him to explain the word epitome, which he elucidated as follows: "By epitome, children, I mean—that is—it is synonymous with synonsis!"

Salt lagoons are met with in several places in Apacha county, Arizona, the principal one being near the line of New Mexico. About one million pounds are taken yearly from this lake, and with proper facilities it could be made to produce an almost unlimited supply. The salt is precipitated to the bottom of the lake, wagons are driven into shallow water, and the crystals, shoveled in. Thus the supply for cattle-raisers in Apache and portions of Yavapai is obtained, in addition to the large quantities required for the working of silver ores.

Old Fort Washington, on the Potomac River, is garrisoned by one soldier, Sergeant R. F. Joyce, of the ordnance department. The Sergeant has his family with him, and lives in the old ivy-covered house, surrounded with broad verandas, that was at one time occupied by the commanding officer of the fort. Fort Washington is one of the oldest defenses in the United States. The work of constructing it was commenced in 1808 from the plans prepared by one of General Lafayette's engineer staff officers, under the personal supervision of General Washington. The structure was not completed until after the war of 1812, and even after that date many improvements were made. After the completion of the fort it was regarded as one of the strongest and most impregnable defenses in the world. General Lafayette visited the spot during his second visit to this country. After a tour of inspection through the underground chambers and outside rifle pits, he turned to the commanding officer and remarked. "This is the Gibraltar of America." It is now to be demolished to make room for modern earthworks.

VALEDICTORY!

Good-bye! Good-bye, old year!

Another milestone has slipped behind us.

Another leaf in the Book of Life has closed forever.

The past is able to take care of itself. The future is in our own hands and may be what we chose to make of it.

We have again reached the Merchants' rock ending season, or stock-taking time, when we suppose balancing accounts and bringing all things into line for opening a new year.

Previous to our taking stock we will Clear Out all our winter goods at Cost, and will try to carry over as little as possible into another season.

During this month we will make an extra effort to close out the small balance of Winter Goods to make room for New Spring Goods, expected in early in February.

Your Influence Solicited.

JAMES ALEXANDER

The Rink.

Wednesday's breeze has had the result of getting the Peterborough Staking and Curling rink in good condition for patrons. The rink has attracted large numbers since, and no reason may be said to have commenced in earnest. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance at the rink to-night and to-morrow night, and as the ice is in excellent condition, skatists may look forward to a good time.

Full Line of the Celebrated Prange Cards in Stock. A. L. Davis & Co.

Member Appointed.

At the meeting of the Separate School Board last night, under section No. 7, of the amended High School act, passed last session of the Ontario Legislature, Mr. Jas. Henry, B. A., barrister, was appointed High School Trustee. According to the above section, a member appointed under it is not permitted to take any part in the proceedings of the Board in regard to any matter affecting the Public School. Mr. Henry, in every respect well qualified for the position to which he has been appointed, and his constituents may rest assured that their interests will be ably and faithfully guarded.

Lithograph Stone.

Mr. Harry Grundy, owns a property in Harvey, on which there is a deposit of lithograph stone of about fifteen acres in area. Mr. Grundy has received a request from the authorities at Ottawa, to have a specimen prepared for the Indian and Colonial Exhibition to be held in London this year. In compliance with the request, Mr. Grundy has had prepared a specimen according to the directions of the department, namely a cube of six inches dressed and polished on five sides, the remaining face or top to be "pinched off to show the rough fracture." The cube was dressed by Mr. Hugh Evans, Aylmer street, and a splendid job he made of it. The stone is of excellent quality, equal to the best German for lithographing purposes, and the exhibition of it in London will probably result in a demand for it, which will lead to the development of the quarry owned by Mr. Grundy, which is situated on Pigeon Lake, in Harvey township.

Installation of Officers.

On Thursday evening Bro. A. McFarlane, D.D.G.M., assisted by Bros. F. Foot, S. Jameson, F. McFadden, H. Long and L. McIntosh, acting Grand Lodge officers, installed the following officers of Peterborough Lodge, No. 111, I. O. O. F., for the current year:—

Bro J. Clarke, M.D.	J.P.G.
" John Fraser	N.G.
" W. Galley	V.G.
" R. W. Errett	R.S.
" John Sawers	P.S.
" Geo. McBurney	W.
" W. Cowie	C.
" R. J. Kidd	Chap.
" J. K. A. Hall	R.S.N.G.
" R. S. Hamilton	L.S.N.G.
" H. Milligan	R.S.S.
" S. Jameson	L.S.S.
" T. Richardson	R.S.V.G.
" L. McIntosh	L.S.V.G.
" W. Bacon	O. G.
" H. Long	Organist.

During the past term this lodge has met with much success, the retiring officers leaving it in an enviable position, both financially and numerically, and with every prospect of the coming term being the most prosperous in its history.

Skating on the Lake.

It is reported that there is excellent skating on the Little Lake, especially around the cemetery point.

"Cable."

The oldest and most reliable brand of cigars in the market. Free from all chemicals and artificial flavorings.

Prayer Meeting.

The concluding prayer meeting in connection with the week of prayer, will be held in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church this evening, at 8 p.m. Subject: "Nations and Government." Leader Rev. Mr. Wallace, speaker, Rev. Mr. Munro.

Another lot of those Low-Priced Photograph Frames just received. A. L. Davis & Co.

Taking The Veven.

On Tuesday Morning in the chapel of the House of Providence, Kingston, His Lordship Bishop Cleary, admitted to religious vows, Sister Keilty (in religion, Sister Mary,) who is sister of Rev. Father Keilty, Enniskillen. Rev. Father Keilty was present at the ceremony.

For the Holidays.

Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie have in stock for the Xmas trade, a very fine line of slippers of all kinds, specially suited for presents, and at prices much below the ordinary. Call in and see the stock, it is really handsome and cannot be surpassed in town. In every department they carry full lines, but make a specialty of fine hand-sewed work for ladies and gentlemen.

"The British Blondes."

There was a large attendance at the Opera House last night to witness the presentation of Maud Revell's British Blondes. The programme given contained nothing approaching the indecorous, and the ladies' costumes presented a greater abundance of material than is often to be found in the costume of a ball room belle. The attractions of the display of classical statuary and "Paris by Moonlight" were omitted from the programme.

A Blockade.

A farmer who had been trying for some time to drive his horses, attached to a load of wood, into the lane between the stores of G. Mitchell and John Erskine, this morning, had succeeded in getting the load as far as the sidewalk, when the reach of his waggon gave way, allowing the load to slide off to the sidewalk, completely blockading it. After considerable difficulty he succeeded in re-coupling the reach and removed the wood and waggon.

Long Distance Telegraphy.

Mr. Jas. Stephenson, Superintendent of the Grand Trunk Railway, was in Portland, Me., Wednesday night, and wishing to consult with his assistants at Peterborough and other important points, had the wires connected through, a distance of eight hundred miles, and Mr. Stephenson, a telegrapher himself, was able to converse freely with this town and other places. This is the first time such an experiment has been made with the railway wires, and it was a great success.

Sad Result of an Accident.

The late John McGregor, youngest son of Mr. Lewis McGregor, and well known around town, who died at Midland yesterday from the effects of injuries received while working in the woods near Midland, will be brought to Peterborough for interment. The funeral will take place from the G. T. R. station on the arrival of the 11.15 a. m. train, to-morrow, and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery. It is not known definitely how the unfortunate young man received the injuries which caused his death, but it is supposed he was struck by a falling tree. He was taken to his home in Midland where he died.

Police Court.

The case of Morgan vs. Roddy, enlarged from yesterday, was returned this morning before Police Magistrate Dumble. The case was held over to allow the parties to produce accounts. Mr. Roddy said he could produce none. The Magistrate gave judgment against Roddy for $10.50.

E. Norris, Eugene Torpy, A. Sullivan and Hugh McIlmoyle appeared before the Magistrate on a charge preferred against them by Wm. Johnston, Inspector of Weights and Measures, for Belleville district, of refusing to produce the machines used by them in weighing produce offered for sale.

Mr. Norris pleaded that he did not refuse to bring the scales used by him, but had forgotten. They were a borrowed pair. The Magistrate ruled that forgetting was refusing and imposed the smallest fine the law allows, $5.

Mr. A. Sullivan, on oath said he did not use the steelyards owned by him. Mr. Samuel Irwin, assistant of the Belleville district, who appeared as witness against all the parties, said that Mr. Sullivan had told him he did not use them. He was dismissed.

Mr. E. Torpy pleaded not guilty to the charge. Mr. Irwin give evidence to the effect that on the 21st November, on the Peterborough market, Mr. Torpy admitted that he had used a beam to weigh some meat offered for sale, and was notified to bring it to the Inland Revenue office for inspection, which he failed to do. He also sent a letter notifying Mr. Torpy to produce the beam he used. Mr. Torpy said he did not use the beam, and that they were a borrowed pair.

Mr. Hall, who owned them, testified that Mr. Torpy had borrowed the machine from him two years ago and returned it last Sunday, the day after the trouble at the market in town.

Michael Torpy and Roger Torpy were called but did not know whether the scales had been used or not.

Mr. John Doherty did not remember weighing Mr. Torpy's beef.

Mr. Torpy was fined $5 and costs.

Mr. Hugh McIlmoyl was dismissed as he was the wrong man. Wm. Armstrong was also the wrong man.

Mr. E. A. Peck appeared for the prosecution.

Personal

Mr. Fred. Armstrong, late of O'Flynn & O'Hara's, left the village on Monday, says the Madoc Review, to take a position in the store of T. Dolan & Co., Peterborough. Mr. Armstrong was a general favorite in Madoc, not only with the ladies, but with his gentlemen acquaintances as well, and his departure on this account is to be regretted. We dare not recommend him particularly to the ladies of Peterborough, but we do so cordially to the general public of that enterprising town.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable," or "El Padre" brand of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pay them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby.

"What say you to a Piece of Roast Beef and Mustard?"

Well, there is much to be said. The question being asked of the banqueter at the average boarding house, calls up reminiscences of close contiguity to the horns, and beefsteak three cuts south thereof. He, of course, will pass, unless it occurs to him that he needs a hinge for his trunk. Should there be any suffering, the effects of an indulgence in such sinuous fare, use McGregor's Speedy Cure, a sure and effectual remedy for Dyspepsia, Constipation and all affections of the stomach and liver. CARD OF THANKS.
PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 2d, 1886.
DEAR SIR,—Please accept my best thanks and convey the same to the officers of the Equitable Life Assurance Society for the satisfactory payment of the $2,000 for which my late husband's life was insured. I feel the more grateful because evil disposed persons, filled with envy and malice, did all in their power to prevent the payment of the claim. But the action of the Equitable illustrates the justice of the claim and proves to the world that the Society is not only equitable in name but in practice. I have therefore great pleasure in recommending both yourself and your Company to all who desire reliable insurance,
MRS. JOHN BOLAND,
Asphodel.

Town Council.

A Short Session—Applications for the Position of Chief of Police—Report of the Chairman of the Charity Committee—A By-law to assess Pastures, Parks and Pleasure Grounds as Other Property, Passed—Not the Last Meeting of the Old Council.

A meeting of the Council of the Town of Peterborough met in the Council Chamber, (late butter market) last evening.

Present: Mayor Cox, in the chair, and Councillors Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Greene, McClelland, Douglas, Rutherford, Menzies and Hartley.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The clerk read the following communications.

From Mrs. Plunckett asking for remission of taxes—Referred to Court of Revision.

From Patrick Hanlon, asking to have his taxes remitted.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

From Rev. G. H. Davis, asking for exemption from taxation.—Referred to the Court of Revision.

From Mary Maloy, asking for assistance.—Referred to Charity Committee.

From T. S. Dale, J. W. May, J.T. Wand, Geo. Cochrane and R. H. Adams, applying for the position of Chief of Police.—Referred the Committee on Appointments.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were presented for payment:—

H. C. Rogers	$ 6 24
Robert Rowe	3 00
Robert White	4 00
Metropolitan Grocery	7 00
Electric Light Company	3 00
Grand Trunk Railway	3 95
John Newhall	3 00
Fitzgerald & Stanger	13 50
A. Comstock	9 25
Wm. English	8 00

On motion the accounts were referred to the Finance Committee.

An account from the Protestant Home, for the keeping of a woman and family of children for some time, and for a ticket to Toronto for the same parties, caused some discussion, but was finally ordered to be paid. The amount was $9.

CHARITY REPORT.

Mr. Green, Chairman of the Charity Committee, submitted the report of charity orders given by him from the 1st of May, 1885, to January 7th, 1886, amounting in all to $103.75, $40 of which was for wood. The remainder was for goods and railway fares.—The report was referred to the Finance Committee.

BY-LAW.

On Motion of Mr. Davidson, seconded by Mr. Cahill, a by-law to empower the town of Peterborough to assess paddocks, parks, lawns and pleasure grounds as other property received its first reading, and the Council went into committee thereon.

Mr. Davidson explained that the by-law was intended to overcome the difficulties of assessing large tracts of land at their proper value. They are now assessed as farm property.

Mayor Cox thought it would be advisable to memorialize the Government in conjunction with other municipalities in regard to assessing these lands and also with a view of having merchants' stocks assessed at their value. A merchant should pay taxes on all the stocks he has in his store. The way they are taxed now it was easy to get out of paying taxes on stock. Some merchants sell their stock to their clerks and say they do not own them and are not assessed. If all the stocks in the town were properly assessed there would be an increase of a million dollars in the assessment.

Mr. Green thought they would be paying taxes twice, as the wholesale houses paid taxes on the stock.

Mr. Davidson suggested that they might be assessed as in Quebec, on the minimum value of their stocks.

Mr. Cahill thought the project was a good one. The stocks received fire and the police protection, and the owners should pay for it.

Mr. Kelly said the merchants could not pay taxes on all the stocks they carried.

Mr. Rutherford thought an addition might be made to the memorial with the object of compelling landlords to pay the taxes instead of tenants, thereby overcoming a continuous trouble. The landlord could include the taxes in the rent.

The by-law received its several readings and was finally passed without amendment, and signed and sealed.

MOTIONS.

Moved by Mr. Cahill, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, that T. H. Thornton be allowed $30.00 extra on the contract for the Smith street bridge, and that the Treasurer be authorised to pay the same.—Carried.

On motion, Mr. Jas. Stevenson was heard.

Mr. Stevenson said he wished the Council to take some action with regard to removing the ice from under the bridge at Simcoe street, and from under Mr. Snowden's premises. If the ice was not removed serious damage would be done. The ice had floated and been shoved down the creek, and had jammed under the bridge and if allowed to freeze there, it would be hard to say what might happen. He never remembered seeing the ice come down so rapidly and in such quantities.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Menzies, that the Chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee be authorized to take action in the matter.—Carried.

THE LIGHT QUESTION.

Mr. Rutherford, for the benefit of the Council, asked Mr. Stevenson how it was that the street lamps were not lighted at the proper time. Parties had been complaining to him and in the EXAMINER complaints were also made.

Mr. McNaughton also complained that the lamps down his way had not been lighted till as late as half-past 7.

Mr. Stevenson explained that last Monday night the man who lights the lamps cut his hand and could not continue his work. Another man had been put on and the lamps were lighted as soon as possible. He saw the lamps on Charlotte Street lit at 6.30. The lamps down Mr. McNaughton's way were the last lamps lit. The man whose duty it was to light the lamps was well paid, and he would see that they were lighted in time. He did not care if he had to start at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. Rutherford asked the clerk if he had sent the Manager of the Electric Light Co. a copy of the resolution passed by the Council with regard to the placing of lights on Hunter Street. The Manager claims that he had no instructions, although a light has been placed opposite St. Paul's church.

Mr. McDonald said he had notified the Manager verbally.

On motion the clerk was instructed to send the Company a copy of the resolution passed by the Council with regard to the placing of new lights.

The Council then adjourned to meet in one week.

High School Trustees.

To the Editor of THE DAILY EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR.—For both financial and family reasons, for in both ways am I interested in our educational matters, I congratulate you on the position taken in your article of yesterday on the above subject. I fully agree with your contentions. I am a considerable tax-payer, and with a considerable family to educate, I can well see the impropriety of members of the Town Council appointing themselves to positions on the High School Board, and who have as much voice as an elected member, who is responsible to us, in expending the large sum we pay in taxes. I trust that the prominence you have given the matter may lead to an agitation that will do away with what you very properly term the "farce of trustees, who are councillors, returning to themselves as councillors, in order to give an account of their stewardship as trustees."

Yours, etc.,
A PARENT AND A RATEPAYER.
Peterborough, Jan. 8th, 1886.

[Note.—The above letter was prevented from appearing in yesterday's issue for two reasons: It was handed in too late, and besides was closely written on both sides of a small sheet of paper. We must request correspondents again to hand in any contributions intended for the daily before one o'clock, and to write on only one side of the paper.—Ed. EXAMINER.

Dishonesty in Trade.

There is hardly an article of manufactured merchandise made or imported in the United States that has not its adulterations or imitations; and there are but few articles of raw material that are not in some manner adulterated. What is needed is a law that shall compel all men to do an honest business; a law that shall apply alike to the rich and the poor; a law that shall punish the man who sells with a false balance, the same as the man who steals a loaf of bread; a law that shall punish the man who makes and sells a counterfeit article of merchandise, the same as the man who makes and circulates a counterfeit coin.—T. W. Tyrer, in the November Century.

Goats and Dogs.

In some parts of the West goats are placed in sheep pens to drive away wolves, a service for which their superior butting powers peculiarly fit them. The experiment has been tried in Hunterdon and Somerset Counties, N. J., with complete success, as a protection for sheep against dogs. Two goats, it is said, can drive away a dozen dogs, and two are about all that it is necessary to keep with a moderate-sized flock. As soon as a dog enters the field at night the goats go at him, and send him rolling over and over in short order. A few doses of this heroic treatment prove quite enough for his dogship, and he is glad to limp howling away as best he can. Formerly, the farmers say, when a dog entered a sheepfield at night, the timid creatures would run wildly about and cry piteously. Since the goats have been used to guard them, they form in line behind their sturdy defenders, and seem to enjoy the fun.

In Summer-Time.

Flowers and fruits of the summer,
Can you hear us children shout,
When, over the fields and hill-sides,
We seek and find you out?

Do you blackberries know how you grow on?
You raspberries know how you grow?
Or you gooseberries know how you prick so?
If not—then you ought to know.

Do you hide from us, ever, on purpose,
And, deep in the green, keep still?
Or is it quite social and pleasant
When basket and pail we fill?

And the bumble-bees—how can you bear them?
Well, sometimes I think it is true
They have their sharp stings for us people
And only their velvet for you.

And how do you berries, I wonder,
Feel, spread on a beautiful dish,
All covered with sugar? That strikes me
As just what a berry would wish.

It's a sort of reward, I am thinking,
That every good berry should meet;
And yet, I'm not sure we should like it,
To be—so delicious to eat!

Zeb Vance's Denominational Experience.

I heard Zeb Vance telling how he captured he vote of a backwoods settlement in North Carolina when he first ran for Congress. He said he had never been in the settlement and did not know the boys. He rode over the mountains and found about sixty sovereigns at a cross-road grocery, and he got down and hitched his horse and began to make their acquaintance and crack his jokes around, and thought he was getting along pretty well with them, but he noticed an old man with shaggy eyebrows and big brass spectacles sitting on a chunk and marking in the sand with a stick. The old man didn't seem to pay any attention to Vance, and after a while Vance concluded that the old man was bell wether of the flock and that it was necessary to capture him, so he sidled close up to him and the old man got up and shook himself, and leaned forward on his stick and said solemnly:

"You are Mr. Vance, I believe."

"Yes, sir," said Vance.

"And you have come over here to see my boys about their votes, I believe?"

"Yes, sir," said Vance, "that is my business."

"Well, sir," said the old man, "afore you proceed with that business I would like to ax you a few questions."

"Certainly, sir; certainly," said Vance.

"What church mont you belong to?" said the old man.

That was a sockdolager—Vance did not belong to any church. He knew that religion and meeting was a big thing in the backwoods and controlled their politics, but he didn't know what their religion was for North Carolina was powerfully spotted. But he squared himself for the responsibility, and says he: "Well, now, my friend, I will tell you about that, for it is a fair question. Of course it is. Well, you see, my grandfather was born in Scotland, and you know that over in Scotland everybody is a Presbyterian." Here he paused to note the effect, but saw no sign of sympathy with his grandpa.

"But my grandmother came from England, and over there everybody belongs to the Episcopal church." He paused again, and the old man marked another mark in the sand and spit his tobacco way off.

"But my father was born in this country in a methodist settlement, and so he grew up a methodist." Still no sign of approval from the old man, and so Vance took his last shot and said: "But my good old mother was a Baptist, and it's my opinion that a man has got to go under water to go to heaven."

The old man walked up and taking him by the hand said: "Well, you are all right, Mr. Vance," and then turning to the crowd, said: "Boys, he'll do, and you may vote for him. I thought he looked like a Baptist." And the old man slowly drew a mask from his coat-tail and handed it to Vance to seal his faith.—Bill Arp in Atlanta Constitution.

Alpine Grapevines.

At Giornico, altitude 1,560 feet, the first grapevines on the Italian slopes of the Alps were seen. The village churchyards are adorned with little painted chapels, sometimes as many as four or five to a single cemetery. The river has swollen to about 8,000 inches. The mountains rise from 2,000 to 5,000 feet above its bed. There are no terraces as yet. The bed of the river is paved and walled in with cubes of stone. Each village has a stone church with a clang of bells and a panel painted on its front wall representing the crucifixion, the Madonna, or some other religious scene. The vines are trailed on arbors supported by posts of rough granite. No picturesque costumes; the peasants are all dressed in modern clothes and resemble French men and women, only their hair is more commonly brown than black. Many of the men wear white shirts, and altogether present a more thrifty appearance than I expected. At Biasco, altitude 1,160 feet, there is a public hydrant at the railroad station, the first instance of such a convenience since leaving Paris. Nowhere else throughout France, Germany, Switzerland, nor Italy, thus far, may the traveler wash his hands or obtain a drink of water without paying for it. The valley is about a mile wide, and signs of gold-mining appear near the river bars. The only damage it could have done to the country was to lessen the cultivable portion of the valley about one-fourth of a mile. Slabs of flagstones are employed to line and fence in the railway—probably schistose slate. The Ticino here looks like the Upper Kern. Notwithstanding the guide-books, which describe this valley as "richly cultivated, a succession of gardens," etc., the culture thus far is fragmentary and sparse, consisting chiefly of rye and hay patches on the flats and little grape gardens on terraces.

HIGH SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

In our impression of Thursday we dealt with certain anomolous conditions in respect of the mode of appointment of High School trustees, and we are pleased to know that the position then assumed is largely in consonance with public opinion on the subject. A great many influential citizens have cordially expressed their sympathy with the position taken by the EXAMINER on the question, and the letter of "A Parent and a Ratepayer" in another column is only a sample of the many privately expressed opinions that have come within our knowledge. It will be recollected by those who took the trouble to read our remarks on the subject, that we outlined the constitution of our School Board and pointed out what possibilities of injury to our educational interests inhered in the practice of the Town Council appointing its own members to positions on the School Board, or, to simplify the situation, how it is possible for a member of the Town Council to appoint himself a member of the School Board, and at the end of his term to come to himself to give an account to himself of how he had discharged his trust. The absurd impropriety of such a condition of things is at once apparent. But this evil is not the only one in connection with the creation of High School members of the School Board. The principle of appointment is radically wrong, and not at all in harmony with the spirit of representative institutions. It is a fundamental principle of responsible government, as well as a general practice, that all incumbents of positions, whose duties involve executive functions, and especially control of the expenditure of the people's money, should be directly responsible to the people, and that, therefore, they should be elected by the people. High School trustees appointed by the Council, are in practice, especially, so far removed for a direct responsibility to the people, whose money they spend and whose interests they are supposed to serve, that they are virtually irresponsible. These function aries, and the Dominion Senate are alike, anomolous excrescences on the body politic and civic. It is, of course, to be understood that there is no personal allusion made in thus speaking; the principle is simply denounced and, its possibilities for evil results, insisted on. As we have remarked, the mode of appointment of High School Trustees is sanctioned by the strict letter of the law, but the principles of equity forbids it. These trustees, as our correspondent points out, have as full a voice as any responsible and elected member of the Board, in the expenditure of the large amounts per year which are paid in taxes for the support of our High and Public Schools, while, at the same time, they have before their eyes no wholesome fear of the people to restrain them in any course that might be hostile to the well-being of the schools, or involve wasteful expenditure of the people's money. There is need for a radical change in the mode of constituting the High School section of the Board, and it is to be hoped that the legislature will take cognizance of the matter and enact such legislation as is necessary to make such members eligible directly by the people and, therefore, directly esponsible to the people.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The London World is authority for the statement that Lord Lansdowne intends to return to England from Canada at the end of May for two or three months, and will pass most of his leave at Bowood.

Notwithstanding the frantic denials of the paid government organs, there is little doubt that the Indians in the Northwest are in a very unsettled state, and that there is serious reason to fear an outbreak when favorable weather comes. The unjust treatment of the natives by the creatures of the government, is bearing its expected fruit. It is no wonder that Sir John shrinks from investigation into these things and postpones the meeting of Parliament as long as possible. And it is only a part of the white-washing game, that the Mail has despatched a special correspondent to the Northwest, to put the best face on the disaffection among the Indians, and to present a roseate picture of the unalloyed contentment of the Indians, so that public opinion and Parliament may be influenced thereby.

TALMAGE SERMONS.

TRUE HEROISM.

A Sermon Delivered at Detroit, Mich., on Sunday, Dec. 13th, 1885, by the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 13.—Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, D.D., the celebrated Brooklyn preacher, arrived here yesterday morning. The Jefferson avenue Presbyterian church was crowded this morning, when he delivered an eloquent sermon. The hymn sung was:

"Jesus lover of my soul,
Let me to Thy bosom fly!"

The subject of Dr. Talmage's discourse was: "A New Scroll of Martyrs," and the text, II. Timothy, 2, 3: "Thou, therefore, endure hard ness."

Dr. Talmage said: Historians are not slow to acknowledge the merits of great military chieftains. We have the full-length portraits of the Cromwells, the Washingtons, the Napoleons and the Wellingtons by many a glorious History is not written in black ink, but withered ink of human blood. The gods of human ambition do not drink from bowls made out of silver or gold or precious stones, but out of the bleached skulls of the fallen. But I am now to unroll before you a scroll of heroes that the world has never acknowledged; those who faced no guns, blew no bugle blasts, conquered no cities, chained no captors to their chariot-wheels, and yet in the great day of eternity will stand higher than those whose names startled the nations, and seraph and rapt spirit and archangel will tell their deeds to a listening universe. I mean the heroes of common, every-day life.

HEROES OF THE SICK ROOM.

In this role, in the first place, I find all the heroes of the sick room. When Satan had failed to overcome Job he said to God: "Put forth Thine hand now and touch his bone and his flesh, and he will curse Thee to Thy face." Satan had found out, what we have all found out, that sickness is the great test of one's character. A man that can stand that can stand anything—to be shut in a room as fast as though it were a Bastile; to be so nervous that you cannot endure the tap of a child's foot; to have luxuriant fruit, which tempts the appetite of the robust and healthy, excite our loathing and disgust when it appears on the platter; to have the rapier of pain strike through the side or across the temples like a razor; or to put the foot into a vice, or thaw the whole body into a blaze of fever. Yet there have been men and women, more women than men, who have cheerfully endured this hardiness. Through years of exhausting rheumatism, and excruciating neuralgias they have gone, and through bodily distress that rasped the nerves and tore the muscles, and paled the cheeks and stooped the shoulders. By the dim light of the sick-room taper they saw on their wall the picture of that land where the inhabitants are never sick. Through the dead silence of the night they heard the chorus of the angels.

The cancer ate away her life from week to week and from day to day, and she became weaker and weaker, and every "good night" was weaker than the "good night" before; yet never sad. The child looked up into her face and saw suffering transformed into a heavenly smile. Those who suffered on the battle field, amid shot and shell, were not so much heroes and heroines as those who in the field hospital and in the asylum had fevers which no ice could cool and no surgery could cure. No shout of comrade to cheer them, but numbness and aching and homesickness; yet willing to suffer, confident in God and hopeful of heaven. Heroes of rheumatism, heroes of neuralgia, heroes of spinal complaint, heroes of sick headache, heroes of lifelong invalidism—heroes and heroines, they shall reign forever and ever. Hark! I catch just one note of the eternal anthem, "There shall be no more pain." Bless God for that.

HEROES OF TOIL.

In this roll I also find the heroes of toil, who do their work uncomplainingly. It is comparatively easy to lead a regiment into battle when you know that the whole nation will applaud the victory; it is comparatively easy to doctor the sick when you know that you will be appreciated by the large company of friends and relatives; it is comparatively easy to address an audience when in the gleaming eyes and flushed cheeks you know that your sentiments are adopted; but to do sewing where you expect that the employer will come and thrust his thumb through the work to show how imperfect it is, or to have the whole garment thrown back on you to be done over again; to build a well and know there will be no one to say you did it well, but only a swearing employer bawling across the scaffold; to work until your eyes are dim, and your back aches, and your hearts faints, and to know that if you stop before night your children will starve. Ah, the sword has not slain so many as the needle. The great battlefields of our last war were not Gettysburg, and Shiloh and South Mountain. The great battlefield of the last war were in the arsenals, and in the shops, and in the attics, where women made army jackets for six-pence. They toiled on until they died They had no funeral eulogium, but in the name of my God this morning I enroll their names among those of whom the world was not worthy. Heroes of the needle, heroes of the sewing machine, heroes of the attic, heroes of the cellar, heroes and heroines, bless God for them.

HEROES OF INJUSTICE.

In this role I also find the heroes who have uncomplainingly endured domestic injustice. There are men who for their toil and anxiety have no sympathy in their own homes. Exhausting application to business gets them a livelihood, but an unfrugal wife scatters it. He is fretted at from the moment he enters the door until he goes out of it, the exasperations of business life augmented by the exasperations of domestic life. Such men are laughed at, but they have a heart-breaking trouble, and they would have long ago gone into appaling dissipations but for the grace of God. Society to-day is strewn with the wrecks of men who under the northeast storm of domestic infelicity have been driven on the rocks. There are tens of thousands of drunkards in this country to-day made such by their wives. That is not poetry; that is prose.

But the wrong is generally in the opposite direction. You would not have to go far to find a wife who is a perpetual martyr. Something heavier than the stroke of the fist, unkind words—staggerings home at midnight and constant maltreatment, which have left her only a wreck of what she was on that day when, in the midst of a brilliant assemblage, the vows were taken and full organ played the wedding march, and the carriage rolled away with the benediction of the people. What was the burning of Latimer and Ridley at the stake compared with this? Those men soon became unconscious in the fire; but here is a fifty years martyrdom, a fifty years' putting to death, yet uncomplaining. No bitter words when the rollicking companions at two o'clock in the morning pitch the husband dead drunk into the front entry. No bitter words when wiping from

An Extraordinary Offer.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every housekeeper, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $120 to $200 a month clear and this fact makes it easy for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through subagents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed; and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

TRUE HEROISM.

the swollen brow the blood struck out in a midnight carousal; bending over the bruised and battered form of him who, when he took her from her father's home, promised love and kindness, and protection, yet nothing but sympathy, and prayers, and forgiveness, before they were asked for. No bitter words when the family Bible goes for rum, and the pawnbroker's shop gets the last decent dress. Some day, desiring to evoke the story of her sorrow, you say:—"Well, how are you getting along now?" And rallying her trembling voice, and quieting her quivering lip, she says: "Pretty well, I thank you; pretty well." She never will tell. In the delirium of her last sickness she may tell all the secrets of her lifetime, but she will not tell that. Not until the books of eternity are opened on the throne of judgment will ever be known what she has suffered.

O ye who are twisting a garland for the victor, put it on that pale brow! When she is dead the neighbors will beg linen to make her a shroud, and she will be carried out in a plain box with no silver plate to tell her years, for she has lived a thousand years of trial and anguish. The gamblers, the swindlers who destroyed her husband, will not come to the funeral. One carriage will be enough for that funeral—one carriage to carry the orphans and the two Christian women who presided over the obsequies: but there is a flash, and the opening of a celestial door, and a shout: "Lift up your heads, ye everlasting gates, and let her come in!" And Christ will step forth and say: "Come in; ye suffered with me on earth, be glorified with me in heaven." What is the highest throne in heaven? The throne of the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb. No doubt about it. What is the next highest throne in heaven? While I speak it seems to me that it will be the throne of the drunkard's wife, if she with cheerful patience endure all her earthly torture. Heroes and Heroines!

HEROES OF CHRISTIAN CHARITY.

I find also in this roll the heroes of Christian charity. We all admire the Geo. Peabodys and the James Lennoxes of the earth, who gave tens and hundreds and thousands of dollars to good objects. But I am speaking this morning of those who out of their pinched poverty help others—of such men as those Christian missionaries at the west who are living on $250 a year that they may proclaim Christ to the people. One of them, writing to the Secretary in New York, says: "I thank you for that $25. Until yesterday we have had no meat in our house for three months. We have suffered terribly. My children have no shoes this winter." I am speaking of those people who have only a half loaf of bread, but give a piece of it to others who are hungry, and of those who have only a scuttle of coal, but help others to fuel; and of those who have only a dollar in their pocket, and give 25 cents to somebody else; and of that father who wears a shabby coat, and of that mother who wears a faded dress, that their children may be well appareled. You call them paupers, or ragamuffins, or immigrants. I call them heroes and heroines. You and I may not know where they live or what their name is; God knows, and they have more angels hovering over them than you and I have, and they will have a higher seat in heaven.

They may have had only a cup of cold water to give a poor traveller, or may have only picked a splinter from under the nail of a child's finger, or put only two mites into the treasury: but the Lord knows them. Considering what they had, they did more than we have ever done, and their faded dress will become a white robe, and the small room will be an eternal mansion, and the old hat will be a cornet of victory, and all the applause of earth and all the shouting of heaven will be drowned out when God rises up to give his reward to those humble workers in His kingdom, and to say to them, "Well done, good and faithful servants!" You have all seen or heard of the ruin of Melrose Abbey. I suppose in some respects it is the most exquisite ruin on earth, and yet looking at it I was not so impressed—you may set it down to bad taste, but I was not so deeply stirred—as I was at the tombstone at the foot of that Abbey, the tombstone placed by Walter Scott over the grave of an old man who had served for a good many years in his house—the inscription most significant, and I defy any man to stand there and read it without tears coming into his eyes; the epitaph: "Well done, good and faithful servant!" O, when our work is over, will it be found that, because of anything we have done for God, or the church, or suffering humanity, such an inscription is appropriate for use! God grant it!

A SCOTTISH HEROINE.

Who are those who were bravest and deserved the greatest monument—Lord Claverhouse and his burly soldiers, or John Brown, the Edinburgh carrier, and his wife? Mr. Atkins, the persecuted minister of Jesus Christ in Scotland, was secreted by John Brown and his wife, and Claverhouse rode up one day with his armed men and shouted in front of the house. John Brown's little girl came out. He said to her: "Well, miss, is Mr. Atkins here?" She made no answer, for she could not betray the minister of the Gospel. "Ha?" Claverhouse said, "then you are a chip of the old block, are you? I have something in my pocket for you. It is a nosegay. Some people call it a thumbscrew, but I call it a nosegay." And he got off his horse, and he put it on the little girl's hand and began to turn it until the bones cracked and she cried. He said: "Don't cry! don't cry! This is not a thumbscrew; this is a nosegay." And they heard the child's cry, and the father and mother came out, and Claverhouse said: "Ha! It seems that you three have laid your holy heads together, determined to die, like all the rest of your hypocritical, canting, snivelling crew. Rather than give up good Mr. Atkins, pious Mr. Atkins, you would die. I have a telescope with me that will improve your vision," and he pulled out a pistol. "Now," he said, "you old pragmatical, lest you should catch cold in this cold morning of Scotland, and for the honor and safety of the king, to my nothing of the glory of God and the good of our souls, I will proceed simply, and in the neatest and most expeditious manner, to blow your brains out." John Brown fell upon his knees

AND BEGAN TO PRAY.

"Ah," said Claverhouse, "look out! If you are going to pray, steer clear of the King, the Council and Richard Cameron." "O Lord," said John Brown, "since it seems to be Thy will that I should leave this world for a world where I can love Thee better and serve Thee more, I put this poor widow and these helpless, fatherless children into Thy hands. We have been together in peace and good will, but now we must look forth to a better meeting in heaven; and as for these poor creatures, blindfolded and infatuated, that stand before me, convert them before it is too late, and may they who have sat in judgment in this little place on this blessed morning upon me, a poor, defenceless fellow-creature, may they in the Last Judgment find that mercy which they have refused to me, Thy most unworthy but faithful servant, Amen!" He rose up and said: "Isabel, the hour is come of which I spoke to you on the morning when I proposed hand and heart to you, and are you willing now for the love of God to let me die?" She cast her arms around him and said: "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord!" "Stop that snivelling," said Claverhouse; "I have had enough of it. Soldiers, do your work. Take aim! Fire!" and the head of John Brown was scattered on the ground. While the wife was gathering up in her apron the fragments of her husband's head, gathering them up for burial, Claverhouse looked up into her face and said: "Now, my good woman, how do you feel now about your bonnie man?" "Oh," said she, "I always thought well of him; he has been very good to me. I had no reason for thinking anything but well of him, and I think better of him now!"

O, what a grand thing it will be in the last day to see God pick out His heroes and heroines! Who are those paupers of eternity trudging off from the gates of heaven? Who are they? The Lord Claverhouses and the Herods, and those who had sceptres, and crowns, and thrones, but they lived for their own aggrandizement, and they broke the heart of nations. Heroes of earth, but paupers in eternity! I beat the drums of their eternal despair. Woe! woe! woe!

CORONATION DAY.

But there is great excitement in heaven. Why those long processions? Why the booming of that great bell in the tower? It is Coronation Day in heaven. Who are those rising on the thrones with crowns of eternal royalty? They must have been great people on earth, world-renowned people? No, they taught in a ragged school. Taught in a ragged school? Taught in a ragged school! Is that all? That is all. Who are those souls waving sceptres of eternal dominion? Why, they were little children who waited on invalid mothers. That all? That's all. She was called "Little Mary" on earth; she is an empress now. Who are that great multitude on the highest throne of heaven? Who are they? Why, they fed the hungry, they clothed the naked, they healed the sick, they comforted the heart broken. They never found any rest until they put their head down on the sepulchre. God watched them. God laughed defiance at the enemies who put their heels down on these, His dear children; and one day the Lord struck His hand so hard on His thigh that the omnipotent sword rattled in the scabbard as He said: "I am their God, and no weapon formed against them shall prosper." What harm can the world do you when the Lord Almighty, with unsheathed sword, fights for you?

I preach this sermon this morning in comfort. Go home to the place where God has put you to play the hero or the heroine. Do not envy any man his money, or his applause, or his social position. Do not envy any woman her wardrobe or her exquisite appearance. Be the hero or the heroine. If there be no flour in the house, and you don't know where your children are to get bread, listen and you will hear something tapping against the window pane. Go to the window and you will find it is the beak of a raven, and open the window and there will fly in the messenger that fed Elijah. Do you think that the God who grows the cotton of the south will let you freeze for lack of clothes? Do you think that the God who allowed the disciples on Sunday morning to go into the grain field and then take the grain and rub it in their hands and eat—do you think God will let you starve? Did you ever hear the experience of that old man? "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread." Get up out of your discouragement, O troubled soul! O sewing women! O men kicked and cuffed by unjust employers! O ye who are hard beset in the battle of life, and know not which way to turn! O you bereft one! O you sick one with complaints you have told to no one! Come and get the comfort of this sermon. Listen to our Great Captain's cheer: "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God!"

Lights Vitiating Air.

The air of a room lighted by gas is heated twenty times as much as if it were lighted to an equal extent by incandescent electric lamps. When arc-lamps are used the comparison is still more in favor of electricity. You will be surprised to know that our old friend the tallow candle, and even the wax candle, is far worse than gas in the proportion of air vitiated and the heat produced; and you will be disposed to disbelieve it. But the fact is, that so long as the candles were used light was so expensive that we were obliged to be content with little bits of it; in fact, we lived in a state of semi-darkness; and in this way we evaded the trouble. It is only since the general introduction of gas and petroleum that we have found what an evil it is. —Sanitary Engineer.

One Soul Made Happy.

"Yes, I always make a practice of sending some poor family a New Year's turkey," he was saying to the grocer, "and shall want an extra one this week. Yes, I must make at least one soul happy."

"Ah! Heaven bless you," called out a man who had been asking the price of onions—"you are the man who sent me that turkey last year?"

"Is that so? Were you living on—— street?"

"I was; and I was laid up with a lame foot, and my wife was nearly dead with the chills."

"Well, I am glad to meet you. I told the coachman to give the bird to some deserving person, and I'm glad you were made happy."

"And I shall never forget you, sir. I put that turkey up at a raffle, raked in three dollars on him, and outside of a pint of whiskey for my wife I laid in enough tobacco to last me six weeks! May you never know what it is to be poor."

The Strongest Man in the World.

This claim is made for Stern Carpenter, who lives in the village of Granville Corners, Washington County, N.Y. He is now a man over eighty, and a member of the Society of Friends. He is still able to out-distance all competitors in feats of physical strength. He once lifted a box filled with iron weighing 1,900 pounds. This was done by hoisting the box with his hands, and was a feat equal to raising 3,800 pounds in harness. At another time he lifted a cannon which weighed 1,400 pounds, and shouldered it. He has frequently raised a barrel of white lead with ease. To guess the weight of a huge hog he would lift it by the bristles with the fingers of his one hand, and many a porker has he raised in this way weighing 500 pounds. Being a man of peace he rarely got into trouble with other men, but one day he was mischievously tripped up by one of his workmen. He caught the man by the shoulder and by the seat of his pantaloons and hurled him into the air over a seven-foot fence. The man came down in a marsh a rod or more from the fence. It is believed living. He is not a large man, though very massive in his build. He would not be picked out in a crowd as of more than average strength. Great power of muscle runs in families, and so does weight. There is a family named Hickey, in Mason County, Ill., who average 277 pounds. The father weighs 480 pounds, the mother 286, and the eldest daughter 307. Were marriages not contracted by people themselves, but entered into by the advice of scientific physicians, it would be possible to perpetuate families that would be noted for weight, muscular development, size and personal beauty, according as the physician might select. But love is blind, and pays no heed to heredity.—From Demorest's Monthly for April.

Mr. Philip K. Clark, a Jersey City druggist, has on exhibition a mammoth oyster shell. It weighs 145 pounds, is from 2 to 6 inches thick, measures 18 inches across, 31½ inches the long way, is 7 feet 4 inches around the edge, and is perfect in shape and color, having four perfect scallops. It was brought up on an anchor by a sea captain some years ago, near the Sandwich Islands.

VALEDICTORY!

Good-bye! Good-bye, old year!

Another milestone has slipped behind us.

Another leaf in the Book of Life has closed forever.

The past is able to take care of itself. The future is in our own hands and may be what we chose to make of it.

We have again reached the Merchants' rock ending season, or stock-taking time, when we purpose balancing accounts and bringing all things into line for opening a new year.

Previous to our taking stock we will Clear Out all our winter goods at Cost, and will try to carry over as little as possible into another season.

During this month we will make an extra effort to close out the small balance of Winter Goods to make room for New Spring Goods, expected in early in February.

Your Influence Solicited.

Lost, Strayed or Stolen.

A boy about 12 years of age named Brown arrived in town yesterday from Toronto in search of his sister, Harriet. He does not know where she resides or if she is married or not. He was sent from New York City to Toronto, where he met an uncle, who, he says, sent him to his sister, somewhere along the Midland Division of the G. T. R. The conductor of the train on which he travelled took his ticket from him before reaching town, and the lad, thinking this was his destination, left the train. He is also looking for Alf. Brown, whom he does not know. Mr. Geo. A. Cox took charge of the boy. An attempt will be made to find his friends.

Late John McGregor's Funeral.

The funeral of the late John McGregor took place from the G. T. R. station this morning, shortly after the arrival of the 11.15 train from Midland, and proceeded to the Little Lake Cemetery. A large number of the friends of the deceased met the remains at the station. The coffin was opened and they were allowed to take a last look at the unfortunate young man. The particulars of the accident are given af follows:—He had finished chopping a tree, which when falling, jumped off the stump and striking another tree bounded back, striking him in the abdomen with fatal force. He was not killed instantly, but lingered for several hours. He was taken to his father's home in Midland where every effort was made to save his life without avail.

Call and see the immense stock of new and fashionable Bangs, Waves, Wigs, etc., of Prof. Dorenwend's, at Phelan's hotel, on January 18th and 19th.

Reminiscences.

Previous to the meeting of the Council held last night, in the Council Chamber, late butter market, alias Music Hall, a conversation was held by the older members of the Council, in which the praises of the room were spoken and incidents in old-time meetings were brought to memory. Mr. Menzies stated that it was 25 years ago since the Council had met in the same room—in the year '61. His statement was accepted as correct. Mr. Beavis, remarked as he wiped a tear from his eye, "It was fine chamber in those days." Several members thought it was yet a better room for the purpose than the one in the new town buildings.

Board Protection.

The front of the new Cox Block has been boarded up, to protect it from the wind and weather.

Another lot of those Low-Priced Photograph Frames just received. A. L. Davis & Co.

The First Carnival of the Season.

The first masquerade fancy dress carnival of the season will be held on Friday evening, 22nd January, in the Charlotte Street Rink, under the auspices of the Fire Brigade Band. Prof. Dorenwend's new styles of Bangs, Waves, Wigs, etc., at Phelan's hotel, on January 18th and 19th.

Week of Prayer Sunday.

To-morrow morning there will be an interchange of pulpits in the undermentioned churches. The several pulpits will be occupied as follows:—St. Paul's, by the Rev. Mr. McAmmond; Murray Street Church, by the Rev. Mr. Wallace; George Street Church, by the Rev. Mr. Bell; Charlotte Street Church, by the Rev. Mr. Munro; St. Andrew's Church, by the Rev. Mr. Tovell; Ashburnham Methodist Church, by the Rev. Mr. Torrance.

A Wise Expedient.

It may be assumed that the Presbyterians of Lindsay contemplate building a new church. To-day a deputation consisting of D. J. McIntyre, M. P. P., S. A. McMurty, Manager of Ontario Bank, J. W. Needler, J. McSweyn, W. McBurney and J. Matthie, from that town is in Peterborough to inspect the Presbyterian churches here. They will find two of the finest rural churches in Ontario—St. Paul's, a fine specimen of early English architecture, and St. Andrew's, one of the best built, neatest and most complete of churches. Lindsay will get on all right if it follows the example of Peterborough, especially in the matter of Presbyterian churches.

Our Satin Mounted Xmas Cards are Exquisite. A. L. Davis & Co.

Smoker's!

Beware of cigars artificially flavored for the purpose of hiding the poor quality of tobacco used in flavored cigars. Insist upon having the old reliable brands—"CABLE" and "EL PADRE."

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable," or "El Padre" brand of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pay them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby.

"What may you to a Piece of Roast Beef and Mustard?"

Well, there is much to be said. He, of course, will pass, unless it occurs to him that he needs a hinge for his trunk. Shoud there be any suffering, the effects of an indulgence in such sinuous fare, use McGregor's Speedy Cure, a sure and effectual remedy for Dyspepsia, Constipation and all affections of the stomach and liver. CARD OF THANKS.
PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 2d, 1886.
DEAR SIR,—Please accept my best thanks and convey the same to the officers of the Equitable Life Assurance Society for the satisfactory payment of the $2,000 for which my late husband's life was insured. I feel the more grateful because evil disposed persons, filled with envy and malice, did all in their power to prevent the payment of the claim. But the action of the Equitable illustrates the justice of the claim and proves to the world that the Society is not only equitable in name but in practice. I have therefore great pleasure in recommending both yourself and your Company to all who desire reliable insurance,

Eastern Dairymen.

The following portion of the proceedings at the second session of the Eastern Dairymen's Association, held in Belleville, January 7th, is submitted of interest to a large class in this county:—

"How to improve the quality and price of Canadian cheese," was a paper read by Mr. D. M. McPherson, of Lancaster, Ont., the cheese king of Eastern Ontario. He is interested in over six hundred different factories. The making of cheese in Canada, he said, dated from 1863, at which time the experience and reputation of our makers were all borrowed from the neighboring Republic, and for several years afterwards any person who desired to enter into the cheesemaking business relied entirely upon getting his skilled cheesemaker from the United States. Since that period things have changed, and Canadian cheesemakers have put so much thought into practical use as now gives them the reputation and proud position of being the best manufacturers in the world, they being sought for far and near, even in England and in Scotland—countries supposed to be the most advanced in the Cheddar cheesemaking.

He suggested some means whereby Canada can still make advances toward a better article, and obtain an increase in price in proportion to the value of other cheese-producing sections. The general good reputation of our cheese cannot be improved by only a few factories improving and advancing to perfection of make. It is the quantity of perfect make that gives a leading value to our make; the greater the proportion of perfect make the greater the reputation.

No single cheese can get a good name by one-third or two-thirds of its make being perfect. The nearer it turns out all perfect cheese the higher the reputation will stand; high not only with cheese buyers, but also with consumers, and the make should be perfect from one season to the other continuously. The better the whole cheese of a country, the higher will its reputation be in foreign markets. He suggested with the aim of reducing the science of cheesemaking to a rule, discarding as far as possible the dependence on judgment at important critical stages; also the appointment of expert superintendents by counties or groups of factories and the careful inspection of cheese in factories before boxing; improving the curing room of factories, and, lastly, the system of selling.

SOME IMPROVEMENTS IN MAKING CHEESE

Mr. Howard Bissell, of Algonquin, Inspector of the Association, reported that during the season he had visited 88 factories twice. In these since 1884 was noticeable. All the factories used rennet extract, also curd mills, thus making a general improvement. Seventy five per cent. of the cheese made in the Brockville section this year, he said, it would be impossible to cull. The factorymen of the Brockville section are taking a great interest in endeavoring to improve the quality of cheese. It was now a pleasure to visit these factories. They are trying to produce a fine article in cheese. A great many poor cheeses are made by receiving at the factory bad flavored and tainted milk. Good cheesemakers should be hired; all patrons should send good milk. No matter whether the patrons threaten to leave the factory the maker should

A GREAT IMPROVEMENT

INSIST ON RECEIVING

good milk. He said he came across several factories that had made cheese with the first milking. The cheese-makers should not allow that. They are not always to blame for turning out poor cheese. If the factorymen would combine to furnish good milk, a far superior article in cheese would be the result. He was sure the success of cheesemaking in factories was largely dependent on the care of the work done before the milk is taken to the factory. Care should be taken in the food and water which cows receive, and the milk cans clean and pure. He said when they went into a factory and found everything cleaned up by 12 or 1 o'clock the cheese was poor. On the other hand, if the maker is hard at work at four or five in the afternoon they would likely find the cheese of that factory uniformly good. The best quality of cheese is made from milk produced from cows kept on

LIMESTONE SOIL.

Cows fed on grasses of low, marshy lands and drinking stagnant pools will not produce as good a cheese as those kept on high rolling lands and drinking good spring water.

The Latest Michigan Tragedy.

A Canadian Doctor and His Family's Horrible Fate.

DETROIT, Jan. 9.—A Battle Creek, Mich., despatch says: Dr. Martin White his wife and two daughters, aged 4 and 12, have been living on Lydia street, in a comfortable home which the doctor owned. He was a man about 40, and came with his wife from Canada about twelve years ago, and was in comfortable circumstances and appeared to live happily with his family. It has been a matter of current rumor for some time that the doctor knew a great deal about in Jackson County of two years ago, in which his cousin, Henry White and his wife Eunice with their unborn babe, were among the victims, and it is said several times he has been visited by Captain Crouch and [illegible] assumed names. Whether this will account in any manner for the terrible butchery which has exterminated the Doctor's family or not cannot be told. But whether it is a wholesale murder or murder and suicide combined, the tragedy is the most appalling that ever startled this community. Since Sunday night the neighbors do not remember to have seen anyone moving about the White's house, and this fact has been the subject of remark in the immediate vicinity. At one o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Sharkey went over to Dr. White's to pay him rent for the house which Mr. Sharkey rents from him. She found the door locked, but on looking in the window discovered spots of blood on the carpet, and hastened to inform her husband and neighbors of the fact. Several of them immediately went to the house and entered by the windows. They found the their throats having been cut with a razor. The bodies of the two children were in a room upstairs, one lying on the bed and the other on the floor and both dressed and no sign of a struggle apparent. The bodies of Dr. and Mrs. White lay upon the kitchen floor, the former lying partially upon that of the latter. White was in his shirt sleeves, while Mrs. White had on her outdoor wraps even to the gloves. Her hat was lying on the floor near by and a hymn-book was found under her body. An axe lay near by upon the floor with blood and a quantity of hair upon the blade. A large butcher's knife also lay near by and a razor broken in the blade lay upon the body of Mrs. White. A quantity of blood was found in front of a mirror in the adjoining room and a mop standing in the woodshed also had considerable blood upon it.

THE TERRIBLE CROUCH MURDER

ENTIRE FAMILY KILLED,

The accepted theory seems to be that early on Sunday evening, while Mrs. White, who was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and a very devout woman, was attending service, the doctor killed the two children. An apron lay across the throat of the eldest, which was taken to indicate she was killed first, and that the blood upon her was concealed while her younger sister was called in to be slaughtered. The doctor, it is supposed, then used a mop to clean the blood from his boots and lay in wait for his wife to return. As she entered the kitchen door he struck her down with the axe, knocking the hat from her head and inflicting a gash upon her cheek. The wounded woman despite the terrible blow,

MADE A STRUGGLE TO SAVE HERSELF,

and when the attempt was made to cut her throat held her chin close upon her breast, so that it took several sweeps of the deadly razor to finish the foul work. Having murdered the entire family the doctor then seized the bread knife and stood in front of the mirror to end his own existence. The knife failed, and rushing back to the kitchen he seized the broken razor, made a last fatal gash and fell upon the dead body of his wife.

Ghouls at Work at Kingston.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 9.—A number of bodies have been recently stolen from cemeteries here and sent to eastern medical institutions. Owing to the smallpox plague it is unsafe to have anything to do with corpses at Montreal. The country consequently is scoured for subjects.

The Queen to Open the Imperial Parliament in Person.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Gen. Sir Henry Frederick Ponsonby, private secretary to the Queen, telegraphed to London this afternoon that Her Majesty desired him to say that she would open the forthcoming session of Parliament in person.

Lindsay.

The new bell in St. Paul's bears the inscription "Glory to God in the highest." A friend in the old country has given Mr. Jones enough to purchase another bell; and it is quite likely that a chime of five bells may ere long be placed in the tower. A somewhat jocular challenge that the Reformers in the congregation would put in a Reform bell providing the Conservatives put in a good old Tory bell—not one of the uncertain Lord Randy school—may be taken up in earnest. One difficulty is that the Conservatives very largely outnumber the Reformers; but the latter are plucky and zealous, as minorities nearly always are. If this idea should be carried out due care would be taken to have the bells perfectly harmonious.—Post.

Land Reform Versus Home Rule.

The Liberals Willing to Give the Irish "Even Greater Things."

LONDON, January 9.—Mr. John Morley's speech last night tends to confirm the impression that Mr. Gladstone, through his confidants, is endeavouring so push the land question to the front and make it a more important element in the Irish discussion than home rule. Karl Cowper's letter to the Times was the first vindication of this policy. He declared his belief that the mass of the Irish people cared more for concessions in rents than for Home Rule honors. Mr. Morley's speech goes further and hints at even greater things from the Liberals in the coming session of Parliament in the way of land reforms than were accomplished when they were last in power. Mr. Morley is now regarded as a sort of mutual friend between Mr. Gladstone and the Radical Chamberlain, and his speech is believed to indicate unity of purpose.

Boycotting in Ireland.

The National League Almost Running the Country.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Boycotting continues to increase throughout Ireland. The national league is now dictating to county banks, and threatens to boycott them if they do not obey its commands. A farmer of the county Kerry some time ago borrowed a sum of money from a bank. He delayed refunding it, and when he was pressed by the bank for payment he complained to the local branch of the league. The bank demanded immediate payment in full, but a deputation of the league, headed by a priest, waited on the manager and offered one half the borrowed money as settlement in full for the farmer's account. So great is the terrorism by the league, that the bank decided to accept the proposal.

WHERE IS THE TRUTH?

The Mail is asserting, as was noted in these columns a day or two since, that "neither Mr. Bunting nor the Mail received one dollar's worth of printing from the Dominion or any other Government." The Mail's example in making such a denial will be followed no doubt by the fifteen or twenty other subsidized journals. Its denial is entitled to some attention, if for no other reason, because it is a moral curiosity. Whether that journal is correct or not, the lie lies between it and the Government Department. During the late session of Parliament there was no exception taken, as to the matter of clerical correctness, of the following list, which comprises newspapers which received the "accounts placed opposite their respective names," much of which was the work done at double prices and much of which was for work not done at all, except in the way of political support:

Name of paper—	Print'g	Advertis'g
Toronto Mail	$9 856	$1,270
Montreal Gazette	5,744	737
Hamilton Spectator	6 593	301
London Free Press	6,095	333
Quebec Chronicle	3,984	808
Winnipeg Times	*	1,619
Prescott Messenger	6,141	84
Courier de St. Hyacinthe	7,698	175
Regina Leader	118	1,710
Ottawa Citizen	1,706	515
Montreal Herald	5,267	216
Quebec Canadien	2,126	723
St. John Sun	207	809
Montreal Minerve	213	700
Quebec Courier	507	418
Brandon Mail	*	519

*Not given.

There it is in black and white, copied from government returns, official documents that are assumed to be correct. If the Mail's disclaimer of its participation in the loot is justified by the facts, why is it charged in the government returns that the Mail was paid $9,856, which it asserts it never received. There is something crooked in this matter. Why, if the expenditure noted, was straightforward and legitimate, why was it necessary to make the Mail responsible for receiving what is asserts it did not get. Who got the money for there is no doubt that it was paid to some body? What was the nature of the deal, that it was found necessary to substitute the name of the chief organ of the Conservative party, for that of the actual receiver of the money? If the organ did not get the money it knows who did, and its denial will be treated with more respect when it publishes the name of the person signing the receipts for the money paid on the warrant issued in its name. Enough is known to indicate without doubt, that there is a crooked transaction—for if not crooked what necessity for concealment?—involving some ten thousand dollars of the people's money. And if there is an ethiopian in the enclosure in the case of the Mail, why may there not be also in the case of the other Tory newspapers to which it is alleged in the public accounts, thousands of dollars were paid at fancy prices for printing?

EDITORIAL NOTES

There is not a doubt now that the banquet to Mr. Blake on Thursday evening next will be the biggest political event London, if not the west, has ever seen.

To make glory to Sir John and to account in part for his visit to England, the organs started the rumor that his astute advice had enabled the C.P.R. to dispose of 25 millions of bonds at par. This rumor is denied by the Montreal Gazette, generally well informed.

Liberals should note says the Ottawa Free Press, that Ottawa Conservative association are now meeting almost nighly, to arrange for the preparation of the voters' list for Dominion elections. The revising barristers begin their work in three or four weeks. The Liberals must not be caught napping; as every name placed on the primary list saves time and money. This advice applies to other places besides Ottawa.

An Ottawa correspondent telegraphs that it has been discovered that large quantities of frozen wheat worth 25 or 30 cents per bushel were sold to the Government as good oats, and charged for at the rate of eighty cents and a dollar a bushel. Sir John Macdonald has good grounds for fearing an investigation of these frauds. He knows too well into whose pockets the profits of these swindles went.

Those who claimed that the estimated increase of the electorate in the United Kingdom by two millions, through the new franchise bill, would be excessive, were mistaken. The number of registered electors was increased from 3,038,726 to 5,711,920, or by nearly three millions. The electorate was almost doubled. The percentage of electors to population only exceeds that of Great Britain in three European countries, viz., France, Switzerland and Germany.

Next Tuesday evening Hon. Thomas White will speak in Lindsay in defence of the Government's Northwest policy and maladministration. To promote peace in the family, some good Conservative should ask him if he agrees with the Mail's assertion that "the negligence of the Government was gross and inexcusable and contributed to bring about insurrection."

To Mend Stockings.

A lady, who finds in the practice of the homely art that she brings comfort to her family, gives these suggestions as to stocking mending.

Given a dozen pair of woollen ribbed hose. Select from them the two or three pairs most worn: cut away the heels and toes, and lay by the better parts for use in mending—well, yes, for patches. From the best hose retained to be repaired, cut out the worn heel, and from the patches cut a new heel precisely like the old one. First sew the bottom of the heel, then sew it to the place made vacant. Use soft cotton, or else the fine soft mending yarn which comes, of all colors, on spools. Sew the raw edges "over and over," about as close as a nice overcast, so that when this new heel is worn out, you have only to pull the thread and insert another.

The thread must not be so tight but that the seam will flatten and become imperceptible to the foot. To sew in such a heel will require about one minute. If the toe is worn so that the new darn seems to take from the old, and the rent is made worse, cut it off so far towards the instep as it is thin. From the top of one of the socks put aside, cut a new toe like the old. Sew across the end, and then around the foot, observing to make the seam, as before, flat and soft. When again worn out, repeat the process, till the entire dozen of socks, like the fabled ducks, have eaten one another up.

Another Champion Mean Man.

A Montreal physician takes the palm for sheer, clear, unadulterated meanness. He took into his employ last fall a young man named Ezra Tilton, a hard-working, deserving young man, who went into service in the hopes of being able to save up enough during the winter to purchase a horse and cab, it being his ambition to become a cabman. Several times during the winter the doctor said to Ezra: "You are sick." "No," he would reply, "I'm very well," but the doctor would insist that he was sick, and induce him to take some medicine It also happened, in the natural course of events, that Ezra occasionally broke a household implement of some sort. When spring came Ezra went to his employer and said: "I have not drawn any money during the winter, sir, because I thought it was just as safe in your hands as it would be anywhere. I'll take it now, sir, if you please." "Well," said the doctor, producing a memorandum book, "I find that you owe me —— dollars for attendance, —— for medicine, and —— for breakage. There is $1.50 coming to me, but I'll make you a present of it."

"If I can find my gun I bet I'll settle them cats," said Mulberry the other night at a late hour as he slid out of bed and went groping around the room in the dark. "Come back to bed, you old fool," pleaded the gentle voice of Mrs. Mulberry. "That isn't cats, it's Emeline's new beau down in the parlor singing 'Sweet Violets.'" Emeline's new beau will not warble any more when he visits Emeline. Emeline has told him that "Papa is very easily disturbed after he retires."

He was haggling with a retailer in the Bowery about a coat, and finally inquired, "What's the difference between this long-tailed coat and that bob-tailed one?" "Shust der same price, my frent." "But there's a yard more cloth in the long-tailed one." "Oxactly." "And isn't cloth any object?" "Not in der least, my frent. Der sharge vhas all made for selling der goods and counting oop der profits!" (In buying railroad stocks don't inquire if the road is doing any business.

Merged into One.

Amalgamation of the Two Existing Herdbooks Under a New Name.

Over 60 representative breeders from all parts of the Province were present at a special meeting of the British American Shorthorn Association, held on Tuesday afternoon at Toronto. John Dryden, M. P. P., Brooklin, presided, and in opening explained that the business of the meeting was to discuss certain proposals as to the propriety of merging the two existing Herdbooks into one book for the future, and, if necessary, altering their constitution accordingly.

The President submitted the report of the Executive Committee, agreed upon by the joint committees of the B. A. S. and Agricultural and Arts Association at a meeting held in Woodstock recently. The report set forth the terms upon which the British American and Canada Herd-books should amalgamate and recommended their adoption by the Association, having been approved of by the Agricultural and Arts Association It was decided to take up the report seriatim. The clause providing that the standard symbols and numbers of the British-American Herd-hook should be retained in the new book was unanimously adopted.

THE BASIS

The clause providing for the establishment of a Board of Directors composed of fifteen members of the British-American Association, and six appointed by the Council of the Agricultural and Arts Association was adopted.

The Association, by resolution, approved of the proposed office arrangements and the employment of Messrs. Wade and Denison in the respective capacities of Financial and Corresponding Secretary, and of Recording Secretary mentioned in the resolution of the Agricultural and Arts Association, the salary of Mr. Wade not to exceed $200 per annum. It was decided to recommend the joint Executive Committee to make such appointments. After a good deal of discussion "The Dominion Herd-book" was adopted as the new name by which the amalgamated books will in future be known.

The following fifteen members of the Association were appointed to take charge of the affairs of the Joint Herd-book Association, in addition to the six appointed by the Agricultural and Arts Association, and form an

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

of the Association with instructions to revise the constitution and lay the amendment before the annual meeting: Messrs. Snell, Edmonton; Gerow, Isaerkin; Goff, Bondhead; Hunter, Aylmer; Gibson, Ilderton; Cowan, Galt; Linton, Aurora; Russel, Richmond Hill; Patterson, Eastwood; Porter, Humber; Shaw, Hamilton; Davidson, Balsam; Pettit, Paris; Johnston, Greenwood; and Gordon, Cookville. Following are the six appointed by the Agricultural and Arts Association:—Messrs. Drury, Barrie; Parker, Woodstock; Moore, Waterloo; White, Chatham; McKinnon, South Finch; and Shipley, Greystead. As there was no time for the Association to consider the amendments to the constitution, it was decided to temporarily suspend the present constitution until it is revised by the Committee and laid before the annual meeting in February.

Poor Tired Mother.

They were talking of the glory of the land beyond the skies.
Of the light and of the gladness to be found in paradise,
Of the flowers ever blooming, of the never-ceasing song,
Of the wand'rings through the golden streets of happy white-robed throngs;
And said father, leaning coolly back in his easy-chair
(Father always was a master-hand for comfort everywhere);
"What a joyful thing 'twould be to know that when this life is o'er
One would straightway hear a welcome from the blessed shining shore!"
And Isabel, our eldest girl, glanced upward from the reed
She was painting on a water-jug, and murmured, "Yes, indeed."
And Marian, the next in age, a moment dropped her book,
And "Yes, indeed!" repeated, with a most ecstatic look.
But mother, gray-haired mother, who had come to sweep the room,
With a patient smile on her thin face, leaned lightly on her broom—
Poor mother! no one ever thought how much she had to do—
And said, "I hope it is not wrong not to agree with you,
But seems to me that when I die, before I join the blest,
I'd like just for a little while to lie in my grave and rest."
—Editor's Drawer, in Harper's Magazine for September.

When Boarding-House Forbearance Ceases to be a Virtue.

"Mr. Whittle," said an up-town landlady, "you must get out of my house. You owe me for three weeks' board, and it is plain to see that you don't intend to pay me."

"Madam," replied Mr. Whittle, "do not say that I don't intend to pay you. You may say that I have not paid you, or that I am slow about paying you, but do not, I repeat, say that I do not intend to pay. Philosophers have failed when they have attempted to explore the grand organization of the human mind. After days of earnest thought Socrates failed to discover one muttered thought of the man who made his sandals. Knowing Sock to be a philosopher, some of the boys bet him a pair of brass knucks against a bullfinch that he couldn't tell us what the sandal-maker intended to do. Sock took the bet. He looked himself in a room with the sandal-maker, and for three days he didn't take his eyes off the man. At the end of the third day Sock said: 'You intend to make me the best pair of Sunday sandals in the country.' 'Missed it,' exclaimed the man; 'I intend not to make you any more until you have paid me for the last pair.' So you see, madam, that when such a philosopher as Socrates failed to discover a man's intentions, it is presumptuous in you to set yourself up as a mind-explorer."

"Mr. Whittle, I don't care nothing about your Socks or your stockings, but I want my money."

"I will withdraw from your homestead.

"Well, clear out then."

"First let me say a few words. Dr. Tanner used to live in New York, didn't he?"

"Yes, he did."

"And he once boarded at this house, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"And while boarding here he learned to fast I can fast all around him, for I've boarded here for several months. The longer a man boards here the more capable he is for fasting. He gets into the habit you know—"

But he had gone too far. Boarding-house forbearance had ceased to be a virtue. If Mr. Whittle is able to appear, the case will be tried to-day.—Saratoga Sun.

An Expensive Autograph.

I asked one of Lincoln's officials, now a leading patent lawyer of New York, if he remembered Tom Corwin. He replied, "Very well indeed. I knew him intimately and I have in my pocket now an autograph of his which cost me $500."

"How did you happen to get that?" I asked.

"It was through Corwin's generosity He was the most free-handed fellow of his time. If a friend asked him for money he would gratify him if he had it, and if he had it not, he would indorse a note for him to get it. This habit of indorsing kept him poor and he died with more debts than assets. The October before he died I loaned him this money. He had come to Washington, and had entered my office, telling me he wanted my check for $500. I told him I had no bank account in the city, and my check was not good for a nickel. He then said he needed the money badly, and that he must have it in three days. If he could do this he could save himself a couple of thousand. He had indorsed notes held in Cincinnati to the amount of $4,000. They had not been paid and the creditors had told him if he would send on $2,000 by such a day they would cancel the notes. He still lacked $500 and the time was within three days of completion. If he could not raise it he would be liable for the extra $2,000. As he finished his story I said, "Senator Corwin, it is true I have no bank account, but if you will promise me not to present my check before noon to-morrow I will give it for the amount," Mr. Corwin promised, and I wrote out a "Pay the bearer $500" and gave it to him. After he left I borrowed the money and placed it to my credit in the bank. It was duly drawn and a few days later Tom Corwin went back to Ohio. This was in October, 1865. In December he died, and that was the last I saw of my money."—Cleveland Leader.

Shipped.

On a very dark June evening I listened to an awful story of the incorrigible badness of a young man who was dragging an honored name through the mire. I said: "But what will they do with him?" The answer was: "Oh, he'll have to be shipped." Though the phrase was new, the imagery was expressive, and one was aware what was meant. Ah get the black sheep out of sight, somewhere beyond the great sea! My friend went on to say, speaking of a certain great city: "When you get there you will hear people saying, 'Mr. Smith has two sons shipped,' and the like, just as a matter of course." Too much pocket-money, and lads getting their own way, result in this. And the poor father and mother sometimes though not by any means always go about broken-hearted to their life's end. Some take it quite easily, out of sight being with them out of mind. Or, as the schoolmen said: "De non apparentibus et non existentious eadem est ratio." Some folk merely think of getting the trouble away from here. They are able to forget that the shipped one lives on still though far away. Out of sight with them is tantamount to having ceased to be. I suppose we have all some vague feeling that when a human being goes out of your door, or turns the corner of the street and passes out of sight, he disappears wholly; in any case that there is a marked break in his life. Ah, to the man that lives, life is continuous whatever it may be to those that look at him or think of him. Your brother is your brother still, though starving on the streets of 'Frisco. And to say that it serves him exactly right is not much comfort. All that can be said is that the shipped black sheep goes to destruction where it does not so conspicuously disgrace those at home. Likewise, that when there is a dinner party at home it is not quite so real that he is cold and hungry in Colorado as if he were so in the street below your windows and in hearing of your hospitalities. All the same, I used to wonder how some fathers and sisters manage to live at all knowing the facts I know. I wonder yet. Has it come to this, that the best you can desire is quite to forget the bright little boy whose childish ways bring tears to your eyes when you remember them; who is dead, dead utterly, in the sodden, bulking scamp, liar, and cheat whom you do not hope to see again in this world or any other? It is a bitter world to many; but one might find heart to bear nearly anything rather than that.—Fraser's Mayazine.

A Wonderful Canyon.

"Did you ever notice what a great whispering gallery the Grand Canon of the Colorado is?" asked Judge Harrison this morning.

"Wonderful," said Judge Kennedy, as he placed his feet gently upon the table, and transferred a quid from his left to his right cheek.

"I was through there some weeks ago," resumed the Justice, "and we made some experiments. One of the party fired off a gun near the needles, and when we got to Cottonwood, more than 84 miles away, we found the Town Marshal still on the lookout for the fellow who had been shooting in the city limits."

"It's got a fine echo, too," said Kennedy. "I was down at Fort Mojave along in February, and just before I left I got into a little row with a fellow and said he was no part of a gentleman. I said it rather loudly and noticed that the remark hung around the neighborhood pretty well; but when we stopped for dinner twenty miles away. I'll own up I was surprised to find the rocks still calling out 'part of a gentleman' in the same tone of voice that I had used, except possibly it sounded a little more husky."

"It's a queer country," said the genial justice, "and, as you say, it's echo is wonderful. I was down there along in the fall, and when I went back last month half of the conversation we indulged in was still floating around promiscuously. I had made a verbal contract for a mining-claim that the other party had tried to go back on, but I clinched him by getting a stenographer to take down the echo word for word which had been said six months before, and then I got affidavits from those who knew him that the voice was Jim's, and had him where he couldn't squeal. Wonderful thing that canon!"—Leadville Democrat.

The Beauty of Jennie Cramer.

When the body of Jennie Cramer was discovered by Uncle Asa Curtiss, the clam digger, early on the morning of August 6 last, in the waters of Long Island Sound that skirt Savin Rock, it was attired in clothes quite characteristic of the girl. The dress was of pure white, tastefully trimmed and cut low at the neck. Her hat was of the Gainsborough style, turned back from the forehead, and embellished with feathers and flowers to add to its attractiveness. Her stockings were of fashionable hue, and her shoes new and of the best make. Around her neck was a double row of silver beads, and on her fingers were several rings, one of them having a gold dollar pendant, on which were engraved her initials. As seen a few days before her death in this costume Jennie looked very attractive, but did not give one the impression that she was possessed of an over-abundance of modesty. It could be seen at a glance that she was fond of admiration and an acquaintance could easily be formed. The girl was of a striking type of beauty. Her eyes were black, large and lustrous, with drooping, dark eyelashes. Her features were regular, the mouth particularly pretty, with bright red lips and just a trifling inclination to pout. Her teeth were regular and white, and her skin of a remarkable whiteness and purity. This gave credence to the report that she was an habitual arsenic eater, but those who knew her in early childhood say that her skin was always white and clear.—Her form was well rounded and her carriage graceful.

Last year there were 1,617 murders in the United States, 93 legal executions, and 118 men were lynched.

The Dakota newspapers say that Dakota will raise about 40,000,000 bushels wheat this year, against 18,000,000 last year.

An Extraordinary Offer.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, of its MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every homeowner, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its saleability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $300 a month clear and this fact makes it easy for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed; and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

Lindsay Curlers Victorious.

The Peterborough curlers were defeated on Saturday by the Lindsay team by 31 shots. The game was keenly contested throughout, and when half played they were where they started, the united scores being equal. From that time forward the Lindsay men took the lead and steadily increased it. The ice was prime and excellent shots and brilliant play was common. The rinks of skips Attrill and Flavelle each scored a five-bender, and numerous fours were made, Lindsay having the majority. The contest was keenest on the ice occupied by skips Dunsford and Needler, Mr. Dunsford's rink winning by one shot after a hard battle. The following are the rinks and the scores made:—

The third monthly meeting of the Sunday School Association will be held to-night in the basement of the Baptist Church. Mr. A. T. Emmerson will read a paper on "How to prepare the lesson at home." A discussion on the paper will follow.

Police News.

The police court was a blank this morning. The headquarters of the force were not open to the public, and if a person had wished to lay an information against his neighbor for not shoveling the snow from off the sidewalk or for sawing wood on Sunday, he would have been obliged to have given it up, and moved off without even warming his feet.

For the Holidays.

Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie have in stock for the Xmas trade, a very fine line of slippers of all kinds, specially suited for presents, and at prices much below the ordinary. Call in and see the stock, it is really handsome and cannot be surpassed in town. In every department they carry full lines, but make a specialty of fine hand-sewed work for ladies and gentlemen.

Peterborough in Luck.

It seems that Peterborough and vicinity received the lion's share of the recent snow fall. Reports from east, west and south confirm the belief. Some parties from town attempted to drive to Port Hope yesterday, and were compelled to return as there was no sleighing farther than Springville. Omemee and points east are in the same box. Trains are all on time.

Yesterday's Exchange of Pulpits.

The exchange of pulpits announced for yesterday, occurred in the evening, with the exception of the exchange by Mr. Torrance, of St. Paul's, and Mr. McAmmond, of the Mark street church, Ashburnham, which did not take place. Yesterday was observed as Sacrament Sunday in St. Paul's Church, and Rev. Messrs. Torrance and McAmmond agreed each to occupy his own pulpit. It is understood they will exchange next Sunday.

Fire.

An alarm of fire was sounded on Saturday afternoon about four o'clock. A double house near the Smith street bridge, the property of Mr. O'Connell of Ashburnham, was reported to be in flames. The Brigade proceeded to the spot with all possible speed, arriving in time to be too late, the fire having been previously extinguished by the neighbors. The house, of which a part of the rear was burnt, was vacant. It is supposed to have been caused by, spontaneous combustion, a spark from an adjacent chimney or to be the work of an incendiary.

"Daniel."

It has been decided to repeat the cantata, "Daniel" in Peterborough some time near the end of January or the beginning of February. A meeting of those who took part in its first presentation will be held for rehearsal on Tuesday evening next. All who love good music will be glad to know this. The coming presentation will afford an opportunity to those who were not at the Opera House on December 18th, to listen to one of the best musical entertainments ever presented in Peterborough.

Best on the Road.

The Day International Theatre Company will open a season of fourteen nights in Bradburn's Opera House to-night. This company comes with fresh laurels from recent fields it has won. The company played a season in Napanee and the Napanee Express says:—

"The International Theatre Company have held the boards this week at the Opera House, with a good run, the hall having been well filled every evening. The company has fully sustained the reputation made on their former visit, and the universal verdict is that it is the best low-priced organization on the road. In fact, we have seldom had a better company here at any price. Each member is a true dramatic artist, and above this they have that refinement which bespeaks the lady and the gentleman. Not only is there an absence of vulgarity, but there is that high moral tone which invariably wins success in the end. Mr. Wilson Day, the head and front of the organization, is an artist who increases in popularity, as the season progresses. Miss Lindeman is an actress of unusual talent, and it is difficult to say in which role she excels she was so popular in all. Mr. Woodward, as comedian, is simply invaluable to the company. He is one of the few who have successfully combined comedy with dramatic art. Little Annie Bird is truly a wonder. She is evidently born to the stage, her acting for one so young being simply perfection, but it is in her singing that she captivates the audience, her every appearance being greeted with an encore. The other members of the company do well, some of them excellently, though we cannot particularize. We hope the Internationals may often visit Napanee."

To-night "Queen's Evidence" will be presented. Popular prices, 10 and 25 cents. Reserved seats at Menzies' bookstore.

Classes Discontinued.

The tonic sol-fa singing class hitherto held at the Murray Street school room, will be discontinued for the present.

The Coming Carnival.

The first of a series of grand masquerade carnivals, under the auspices of the Fire Brigade Band will be held in the Charlotte street rink, on Friday, January 22nd. The carnival is sure to be a success, as the committee of management are leaving nothing undone to make it such. Valuable prizes will be given for the best costumes.

The Collegiate Institute.

Miss Robertson, of Oshawa, lady teacher in the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, arrived in town on the mid-day train and will at once enter upon her duties. The Institute appears to be in a flourishing condition. There is a much larger number of pupils in attendance this year than last, both from the town and country.

What They are Saying.

Encore, encore.—Fine picture.

All right; encore it is.—Professor Miller, et al.

Get your costumes ready for our grand carnival.—Fire Brigade Band.

We captured the confectionery.—The Lindsay curlers.

You must have had good besoms to make such a sweep.—The home players.

What We May Expect.

The thermometer to continue despondent.

The rush of the toboggan at Riverside Park.

A good company to open up a good season of theatrical entertainment at the Opera House to-night.

And the low prices and good play to fill the house.

Coal and wood merchants to think of declaring dividends.

Frost bitten noses and congealed ears.

The select Terpsichoreans to keep in motion to-night.

An influx of Presbyterian ministers.

And the meeting of the Presbytery of Peterborough to-morrow.

Fresh west and north winds, generally fair, continued cold weather, with light local falls of snow.

Another Waif.

Peterborough seems to be attractive as an orphans' home. Another waif, 7 years old, who hailed from Toronto, sent from that city to his father at Uxbridge, on Saturday was put on the main line by mistake and sent to Port Hope. From that burgh he was shipped on the return route for his destination via Peterborough. By some means he was crushed off the train here. He did not recognize Uxbridge and commenced to cry. A young lady of the town, who was going to Omemee by the evening train, approached him and won his confidence. She took him back to the car and by caressing him drew the attention of the occupants of the car to the boy, and a number of young men volunteered to see him safely through to his destination. Before the young lady reached Omemee the little man's pockets were filled with apples, oranges, etc., and he was as happy as a clam, and was the centre of attraction—with probably one exception. At Omemee the lady dismissed him with a kiss that startled the natives, and he went on his way, smacking his lips and rejoicing at his good fortune. Some of the young men who were present vowed they would play foot the next time they travelled.

Personal.

Mr. Wm. Caldwell, of the firm of Caldwell & Son, lumber merchants, Lanark, registered at the Oriental to-day.

Day's International Theatre Company is registered at the Grand Central. There are thirteen members of the company.

The Oakwood correspondent of the Lindsay Warder, in reporting an entertainment at that place, says of the performance of Mr. W. A. Dixon, of this town, who took part in the programme: "The ventriloquism of Mr. W. A. Dixon brought down the house." Mr. Dixon will also appear at a forthcoming entertainment at the same place for the benefit of the High School, which is raising funds to procure chemical apparatus.

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable," or "El Padre" brand of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pay them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby.

I had for years been a miserable sufferer from Dyspepsia, and tried all known remedies and the best medical skill of my acquaintances, but still grew worse, until unable to eat anything without great suffering, or do any kind of work. I began to think there was no hope for me, and that I must surely die; when, like a drowning man catching at a straw, I determined to give McGregor's Speedy Cure a trial. I at once began to improve so rapidly that in two months I was as well as I had ever been in my life.—WM. EVERS, LEAMINGTON. Sold by John McKee, Druggist. Free trial bottles. dleodwl

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my best thanks and convey the same to the officers of the Equitable Life Assurance Society for the satisfactory payment of the $2,000 for which my late husband's life was insured. I feel the more grateful because evil disposed persons, filled with envy and malice, did all in their power to prevent the payment of the claim. But the action of the Equitable illustrates the justice of the claim and proves to the world that the Society is not only equitable in name but in practice. I have therefore great pleasure in recommending both yourself and your Company to all who desire reliable insurance, Ireland's Government.

A Statistician Attempts to Solve the Problem.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—A somewhat remarkable letter on home rule in Ireland appeared in to-day's Statist. The writer is supposed to be Robt. Griffin, LL.D., statistician to the Board of Trade. His plan is for the Imperial Government first to giving him consols at par equal in nominal amount to twenty year's purchase of the present judicial rents; secondly, to give the land free to the present occupiers, subject only to a rent charge of one-half or two-thirds of the present judicial rent, payable to the new local authorities in Ireland, and, thirdly, to relieve the Imperial Exchequer of all payments now made out of it in connection with the local Government of Ireland. The plan is in fact to throw the cost of the local Government in Ireland upon Irish resources exclusively and to give the Irish people the rent of the country for the purpose of conducting it. The conflict between landlords and people would thus come to an end, and there would no longer be a fear that if England gives Ireland home rule, the property of the landlords would be confiscated.

BUY OUT EVERY LANDLORD IN IRELAND,

COST OF THE PROPOSAL.

Taking the rent of Ireland as settled judicially at about £8,000,000, the consols at par to be given in exchange at twenty years' purchase would be one hundred and sixty million pounds, involving an annual charge of £4,800,000 upon the Imperial exchequer. At present the Government expends annually upon Ireland for local government close upon four million pounds, exclusive altogether of the outlay for the army of occupation, for the collection of revenue and other important matters which would be still Imperial. The position as regards the Irish tenants would be that where they now pay £8,000,000 they would have to pay only from £4,000,000 to £5,000,000. The emergency is one, the writer thinks, for which Imperial credit should be used. Much of is due to the fact that events have been fatal to the judicial rents fixed a few years ago. A subsequent fall of prices has upset the whole theory of judicial rents. Under the new scheme it would be possible and necessary to let the new local authorities in Ireland have control of the police. The collectors of the Imperial government would retain a small police force of their own to enforce the collection of the Imperial taxes required for Imperial purposes, Imperial laws relating to the freedom of commerce, transit and other matters which would remain Imperial as long as there was no separation. This proposition will doubtless lead to much important discussion.

THE PRESENT IRISH DIFFICULTY

Irish Conservative members of parliament meet next Tuesday to decide on some concerted action at the opening of parliament. They propose to raise the question of the condition of Ireland at once in the debates on the address claiming the necessity of a renewal of the crimes act. Mr. Labouchere, who will lead a small group of home rule radicals, threatens to test the opinion of the house of commons on this matter by bringing about a division on an amendment to the address in favor of home rule.

It is stated that Mr. Parnell has effected an understanding with the English independent radicals in anticipation of Mr. Gladstone's possible failure to settle the Irish question satisfactorily to the Irish people. The north country radicals look for a liberal-conservative coalition, and will oppose it in an alliance with the nationalists. Messrs. Chamberlain and Morley have utterly failed to command the confidence of the advanced radical members outside of the caucus.

Home Rulers in Conference.

DUBLIN, Jan. 11.—Sixty out of the eighty-six Parnellites, members of Parliament, attended a meeting here to-day, called for the purpose of holding a conference on the political situation and to draft a line of action to be adopted at the forthcoming session of Parliament. The discussion was devoted mainly to the subject of Home Rule. Reporters were excluded, and, therefore, no details of the meeting can be given. Parnell was not present. He left London last evening for the purpose of attending the conference, but quit the train at Crewe to partake of refreshments, and when he returned to the platform he found the train had left. He again started for Dublin this morning and arrived at Chester at the same time as did Gladstone, who was on his way to London. Gladstone and Parnell were on the same platform for a few minutes before the starting of their respective trains, but neither of the leaders spoke to the other.

Smallpox in Pontypool.

Thought to be Under Control—Two Cases—A Girl in a Tailor Shop the First Victim—Sheriff Bell Good the Cause.

The community of Pontypool, recently excited and alarmed by an outbreak of smallpox in the village, now breathes more freely. Dr. Brereton, Medical Health Officer of Missouri, reports that all the cases, of which there are ten, have been isolated. A rough hospital has been erected in a grove outside the village, where the victims receive proper treatment and care. A vigorous effort has been made to prevent the spread of the disease, and the authorities are confident that the epidemic is now under control, although the cases are said to be of a severe [illegible]. The village school has been closed to prevent the spread of the disease among the pupils. Schools in the neighborhood have also been closed to permit of vaccination. It is generally accepted that the disease was brought to the village in dry goods, imported from Montreal by the village tailor. A young lady employed who opened the goods was the first victim of the disease. A false report was circulated to the effect that the roads were closed up. The roads are open, and traffic may be carried on with perfect safety.

It is worse than madness to neglect a cough or cold which is easily subdued if taken in time, becomes, when left to itself, the fore-runner of consumption and premature death. Inflammation, when it attacks the delicate tissues of the lungs and bronchial tubes, travels with perilous rapidity; then do not delay, get a bottle of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the medicine that grasps this formidable foe of the human body, and drives it from the system. This medicine promotes a free and easy expectoration, subdues the cough, heals the diseased parts, and exerts a most wonderful influence in curing consumption, and other diseases of the throat and lungs. If parents wish to save the lives of their children, and themselves from much anxiety, trouble and expense, let them procure a bottle of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, and whenever a child has taken cold, has a cough or hoarseness, give the Syrup according to direction.

HONEST FARMER CARLING.

It may be argued that the fitness of Hon. John Carling to look after the agricultural interests of the county, is demonstrated by his sharpness in looking out for himself. The particulars of the manner in which he managed to dispose of a handsome property in the city of London, so greatly in his own interests, show that, as far as looking out for number one is concerned, Mr Carling is a very creditable colleague of the Dominion Cabinet Ministers as at present constituted. A few months since the Government intimated that London was a desirable site for a new Military School. The city was given to understand that the "Carling Farm" was a desirable site for the proposed institution, and that, unless the city procured this site for the required purpose, the school would not be placed in London. Accordingly a scheme for the purchase of this farm by the city was submitted to the people, but, as the latter did not see the matter in the same light as Mr. Carling's wirepullers, the proposal was voted down. No doubt their decision was influenced by the fact that the advantages to the city from the establishment of the proposed school would not be an equivalent to the cost of the Carling property, the price of which was placed at an absurdly high figure. The people of London pronounced against the scheme, although the most energetic measures were employed by Mr. Carling and his friends to secure the adoption of the proposition. But the worst feature of the affair follows. In spite of the decisive rejection of the proposal by the people, the old council at its last meeting passed a by-law providing for the purchase of 55 acres of the Carling farm at $727 per acre, saddling the unwilling citizens with an obligation of $40,000, as much as three times the market value of the property. Thus we see a Minister of the Crown, in his official capacity, virtually purchasing from himself, at three times its value, a property which the citizens of London had decided was not to be bought.

Hon. Mr. Carling's share in the transaction is a flagrant outrage upon the independence of Parliament, as well as a doubtful piece of morality. Thus it is that Ministers of the Crown use their positions for their own personal advantage; thus it is that Mr. Carling, as representative of the city of London, instead of watching over the interests of his constituents, is a party to contemptuously ignoring the decision they had arrived at, and abetting an expiring city Council, in overriding the will of the people.

There is one feature of this affair that forcibly demonstrates the evil of importing partizan feelings into municipal matters. The City Council of London, or at least a considerable majority of it, must have been moved by the most unworthy partizan principles or they would not have consented to outrage their constituents by legislating in the interests of Mr. Carling in opposition to the expressed wishes of the former. For reasons entirely apart from general politics, the course of the old Council was to the last degree reprehensible. They were practically defunct as a representative body; their successors had been elected, and it seems that it was entirely beyond their province to introduce important new legislation, which they well knew was against the wishes of the people, for the people had so declared at the polls. The old Council were by strict, legal interpretation, still representing the city, but it is certain that the law establishing municipal institutions did not contemplate that the functions of a moribund Council, should go beyond its attending to the routine of civic legislation or at most, dealing with unfinished results of their legislative action during their term of office. If the course of the City Council of London, in passing, in its expiring moments, a by-law to saddle $40,000 upon the city, is established as a precedent, then a serious blow will have been struck at the spirit of municipal institutions With that as a precedent, any council in its last moments, has it in its power to defy the will of the people and to take a course detrimental to the public interests and hostile to the popular will. The evil above referred to will not be without a redeeming feature if the enormity of the outrage involved in the matter shall draw the attention of the legislature to the necessity of enacting such legislative restrictions, as will place it beyond the power of an expiring Council to over ride the will of the people, whose representatives they have virtually ceased to be.

The total revenue on account of the Dominion consolidated fund for December was $2,302,630.24, and the expenditure $2,846,092.12. The total revenue and expenditure for the six months ending December 31 were, respectively, $14,755,704.97 and $17,570,854.27, the latter including extra expenditure on account of the Northwest rebellion. This only means that there is an excess of only some three millions of expenditure over receipts. Three millions, in six months, of a deficit points to a shortage of about six millions at the end of the present fiscal year. True, some of this deficit is accounted for by the cost of suppressing the rebellion, but as the "gross and inexcusable neglect of the Government," as the Mail puts it, caused the rebellion, the excuse is not a very satisfactory one. By a similarity of reasoning, a robber might explain his presence in a house where he had been detected, on the grounds that he had come to steal something. The rebellion may account for an excess of expenditure but, the rebellion itself is yet to be accounted for. The settlement will take place on the opening of Parliament.

The latest returns of the British army show that the regular forces number about 201,000 effectives of all ranks, for an empire which, in the four quarters of the globe, comprises very nearly nine million square miles of territory, and about 305 million souls.

Lindsay.

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—A deputation of prominent citizens of Lindsay, composed of Mayor Deacon, D. J. McIntyre, M.P.P., J. R. McNeillie, A. Hudspeth, Q. C., C. D. Barr, and Wm. Grace, had an interview with the Minister of Education yesterday afternoon with reference to having the high school of that town graded as a collegiate institute. The deputation used very strong arguments in favor of the change, and the Minister said he would lay the matter before his colleagues.

The Warlike Greek Warned.

VIENNA, Jan 11.—A Constantinople despatch says:—The popular animosity against the Greeks is becoming strong, on account of their continued preparations for war. There is a general desire in Turkish military circles for operations against Greece. The popular clamor at Athens is aided by the Government, which continues to furnish arms to the people. It is even said in the Government press that the western powers are backing Greece. It is whispered in diplomatic circles that King George has been warned of his folly by his father, the King of Denmark, and by the Prince of Wales, and advised strongly to curb the popular feeling but that his brother-in-law, the Czar, is urging him on. It is said a note will be sent to Athens, demanding explanations, although peace is considered assured between Servia and Bulgaria. Turkish naval preparations continue actively.

The Way the Money Goes.

The wife of Sir John Macdonald has gone on a junket to the Northwest in the Dominion official car. She has taken with her a number of her personal friends. The Canadian Pacific Railway officials carry the travellers free of charge, and pay deference to their every wish. They know what their instructions are. By and by the millionaires will be knocking at Macdonald's door for more perquisites—for greater powers to make their monopoly more binding on the people of Canada. They may be depended on to use every influence possible to secure the friendship of Sir John Macdonald and his friends. These junketing trips and free passes to members of Parliament whose votes can be influenced are not given for nothing. An honest ruler would decline to place himself under an obligation to a company which periodically comes before Parliament as a mendicant; but Macdonald takes all he can get and looks for more. Our Ottawa correspondent hints that the cost of these family trips is paid by the Dominion taxpayers, being mysteriously charged for under one of the numerous headings by which the Government continues to hide illegal expenditure of public money. There are precedents in the history of Sir John Macdonald which give strong support to this belief.—Hamilton Times.

Eastern Dairymen.

In continuation of the report of the Eastern Dairyman's Association at Belleville:

Mr. James Whitten, of Millman's Corners, Inspector for the Belleville district, made cheese in fifty-five factories, and visited and gave advice in 66, making 121 in all. The following is a statement of quality. In 45 the cheese was first-class (faultless), fifty making good useful cheese; the remaining thirteen middling; eighteen very poor; rennet seventy-five in good condition; twenty-two using extract; six rennetine; and seventeen unfit for use. You will see by this marked improvement, more especially in the preparation of rennet, cheesemakers are getting more apt in their understanding. In my trip through the county of Peterborough I was much pleased to see the operatives of factories working in unison together, having a sort of union. They would meet every two weeks and have

A GENERAL DISCUSSION,

all using the same quantity and quality of colouring, rennet, salt, etc. In this section I found a very great improvement. They having passed a resolution to have me go through the section, it lessened my labor in that locality very much. If other sections would do likewise we would in a very short time defy competition. I want to impress upon the patrons the importance of sending their milk as early in the morning as possible to the factories, also to see that their cans and other utensils are kept clean. I have seen in some localities milk sent to be manufactured into cheese in cans, by all appearances that had not seen hot water for all the season. From this cause the operator to turn out anything like a fine cheese. I would also strongly advise cheesemakers to keep the curing room nicely warm spring and fall, as there are a great number of faulty cheeses by inattention at those seasons. Cheese allowed to cure in too cold a room becomes both sour and salvy. Having had occasion to see the bad effect this has on cheese personally, I would say that my opinion is cheese-buyers deal honorably with factorymen throughout. I do not think there was a cheese culled in our section in the last season that there was a chance for a doubt as to quality, and a great many cheeses were taken in the latter part of the season that could have been refused for want of being properly cured.

FOUND IT IMPOSSIBLE

Mr. Mapherson in answer to a question stated that on the market at present was not known exactly, but the report from Liverpool put it for that market at 54,000, and New York had about 24,000 cheese, or had less than last year, but as regards the others nothing definite was known.

Mr. Derbyshire said that he understood by reports, that by the first of June the old stocks would be worked off the market, and then the Liverpool market would be ready in time to receive the new stock of cheese. The reports were very misleading, as the buyers would report 30,000 boxes on a day when business was good, and on a bad day they would only have some 10,000 boxes.

Melville Millar

Astronomy out of Season.

He discourses on astronomy with very best intention.
And discloses many matters I've not previously known;
But for some special reasons I am not inclined to mention,
I should much prefer the garden with Matilda all alone.

It is well, of course, to know about these subjects; the propriety
Of telling which is Saturn and the distance to the moon
Is obvious; it gives a certain standing in society;
But somehow, on this evening, I've a great desire to spoon.

The balmy air is odorous with perfume of the flowers;
And the moonlight on the terrace is most beautiful to see;
But Professor is excited and I know he'll talk for hours,
While Matilda's in the garden, I suppose expecting me.

O moon! O stars! O milky-way! I care not for your density;
Your perigee and apogee possess no charms for me.
Look down, look down in pity from your silent, vast immensity,
And I'll study you more fully when I've grandsons on my knee.

How a Westerner Died From Opium.

I have always had a horror of opiates of all kinds. They are so seductive and so still in their operations. They steal through the blood like a wolf on the trail, and they seize upon the heart at last with their white fangs till it is still forever.

Up the Laramie there is a cluster of ranches at the base of the Medicine Bow, near the north end of Sheep Mountain and in sight of the glittering, eternal frost of the snowy range. These ranches are the homes of young men from Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Ohio, and now there are several "younger sons" of Old England with herds of horses, steers and sheep, worth millions of dollars. These young men are not the kind of whom the metropolitan ass writes as saying "youbetcher-life" and calling everybody "pardner." They are many of them college graduates, and can brand a wild Maverick or furnish the easy gestures for a Strauss waltz.

They wear human clothes, talk in the United States language and have a bank account. This spring they may be wearing chaparajos and swinging a quirt through the thin air, and in July they may be at Long Branch or coloring a meerschaum pipe among the Alps.

Well, a young man whom we will call Curtis lived at one of these ranches years ago, and though a quiet, mind-your-own-business fellow, who had absolutely no enemies among his companions, he had the misfortune to incur the wrath of a tramp sheep-herder, who waylaid Curtis one afternoon and shot him dead as he sat in his buggy. Curtis wasn't armed. He didn't dream of trouble till he drove home from town, and as he passed through the gate of a corral saw the hairy face of the herder, and at the same moment the flash of a Winchester rifle. That was all.

A rancher came into town and telegraphed to Curtis' father, and then half a dozen citizens went out to help capture the herder, who had fled to the sage brush of the foot-hills.

They didn't get back till toward daybreak, but they brought the herder with them. I saw him in the gray of the morning lying in a coarse gray blanket on the floor of the engine house. He was dead.

I asked, as a reporter, how he came to his death and they told me—opium! I said, did I understand you to say "ropium?" They said no, it was opium. The murderer had taken poison when he found that escape was impossible.

I was present at the inquest so that I could report the case. There was but very little testimony, but all the evidence seemed to point to the fact that life was extinct and a verdict of death by his own hand was rendered.

It was the first opium work I had ever seen, and it aroused my curiosity. Death by opium, it seems, leaves a dark purple ring around the neck. I did not know this before. People who die by opium also tie their hands together before they die. This is one of the eccentricities of opium poisoning that I have never seen laid down in the books. I bequeath it to medical science. Whenever I run up against a new scientific discovery I just hand it right over to the public without cost.

Ever since the above incident I have been very apprehensive about people who seem to be likely to form the opium habit. It is one of the most deadly of narcotics, especially in a new country. High up in the pure mountain atmosphere this man could not secure enough air to prolong life and he expired. In a land where clear, crisp air and delightful scenery are abundant, he turned his back upon them both and passed away. Is it not sad to contemplate?—Bill Nye in Detroit Free Press.

The new imperial palace at Strasburg is to be completed in three years, at a cost of $1,250,000. It seems a preposterous piece of extravagance, as the Emperor has a dozen palaces already.

George Mayo, the champion orator of Lawrence University, Kansas, stole half his piece from Colonel A. K. McClure's oration at Dickinson College, Pennsylvania, in 1873. Mayo was expelled.

Nothing to Do.

Boarding-house life is responsible for a great deal of idleness among women. I was recently brought in contact with a young couple whom I will call Smith. The wife spends her time doing fancy work, reading novels, and making calls. The husband is a clerk, on a salary of $1,200 a year. They live up to every cent, with, apparently, no thought of the future. Mrs. Smith said once that she supposed she spent over a hundred dollars a year in worsteds, patterns, fancy braids, gimps, and the like. And she buys all her underclothes ready-made, while a dressmaker is employed to make her dresses. She has a sewing-machine, which was a wedding present from a sensible uncle, but she never uses it.—She has a piano, but can play only the most simple tunes; and she has a box of oil-paints, and a dozen or more brushes, but she has painted only a few shells and a small panel.

She is irretrievably lazy, and calls herself delicate. She never gets up out of bed until half-past eight in the morning, and lies on the sofa certainly half of every day. If a visitor comes in, she [illegible] variably manages to lead it to the subject of physical ills. Her personal ailments is a subject of which she never tires. I believe that in the few weeks I spent at that hotel with her, I heard the history of every pain and ache which had ever visited her body or her imagination since childhood. Not an ache could be mentioned by any one, that she had not had, only in a more aggravated form.

When her husband comes home, her method of entertaining him is to describe at length every particular pain she imagines she has felt during the day. He loves her now, and is very attentive and kind; but how much longer will his patience endure? How much longer will he submit quietly to hearing the tedious details of her headaches, backaches, neuralgia, sideaches, rheumatism, etc.? Even now he sometimes looks a little bored and weary, as she begins the same old plaint as soon as he enters the room. He knows quite well—for he is a man of good common sense—that, for the most part, it is only in her imagination that she suffers. She forgets all her aches and pains very quickly, if there is any project for amusement on foot.

As it is, she is a burden to herself and a bore to her acquaintances. Of real friends she has none. How can such a woman gain affection and esteem?—Pittsburg Sunday Traveler.

Custom-House Night Inspectors.

The night inspectors are appointed to prevent smuggling, are uniformed and armed, and are authorized to stop and search reasonably suspected persons who may go on board or come from the vessel. Their office is by no means a sinecure. It involves watching, exposure, and fatigue. The Cuban steamers have been wont to bring men who inclosed cigars in rubber-bags and threw them into the waters of the lower bay. Confederates in boats then picked them up, placed them in express wagons waiting on the shore, and then drove rapidly away. There is something contagious in the glee of wide-awake officials as they relate how they had watched unseen the whole operation until the wagon was ready to start, when they seized the reins and landed the spoils at the seizure-room. One French steamer, notorious for smuggling by driblets, when searched by this force was found to contain 1,300 bottles of spirits, which it was intended to send ashore bottle by bottle. Tins about an inch deep, and fitted to the body under the armpits, have been taken from the bodies of men who were thus stealthily bringing in valuable bay oil. One dealer in human hair, who died in possession of about $200,000, was detected in illicit importations under the shirts of his agents. Another vivacious fellow, belonging to a French steamer, rejoiced in a profitable trade in kid gloves, secreted by the dozen in his immense boots. Sailing vessels are watched by special agents, whose duties are irksome enough to render special supervision by supervisors a matter of positive necessity. Dealers in contraband goods, scamps who live by their wits, and unscrupulous trades of many kinds tax the resources of human ingenuity and craft to the uttermost. Logs of foreign woods, cunningly excavated and packed with cigars or spirits; cases of boots and shoes, in the heels of which watches and jewelry are hidden; miraculous trunks, false as Machiavelli, being thinly hollowed on side and end, top and bottom, concealing laces, hair, trinkets, etc., are among the common devices of ingenious freebooters. Keen, honest, true men—such as may be seen on any tour of night inspection, like mastiffs at their posts, and especially if visitors be expected—are needed to baffle the plots of the rascals. Political affiliation constitutes no guarantee of efficiency. The best attainable is through rigid adherance to the rules of the civil-service reform.—R. Wheatley in Harper's Magazine for June.

Newspaper Circulation.

The Paris Figaro, which published Prince Jerome Napoleon's manifesto, issued 300,000 copies containing it. A circulation of 100,000 and 150,000 is not uncommon in a London or Paris paper, but it is very rare, if ever, that these figures are reached by our metropolitan journals. Our population is not homogeneous. New York, for instance, contains more Germans than any second class German city. Then it has more Irish than any city in Ireland except Dublin. And so, all our large cities have a numerous foreign-speaking population. Hence the smaller circulation of our daily journals is somewhat due to the impediments of language. Some of our weekly papers have had a very large circulation; but the populations of Great Britain and France being more compact, there is a greater field in those countries for either daily or weekly journals than in the United States. By the next century, however, when this country contains over 100,000,000 of inhabitants, the circulation of our journals will far exceed those published on the other side of the ocean, for our native population will not only be relatively but absolutely larger. This is destined to be a great country for journalists, who will become more powerful eventually than any other class in the country.—From Demorest's Monthly.

J. Wilkes Booth's Body.

"In reply to an inquirer last Sunday concerning the disposition that was made of J. Wilkes Booth's body, the Courier-Journal was in error," said General Dan Macaulay to a reporter yesterday.

"On what point was the answer wrong?"

"In the statement that the body was taken out on the ocean and thrown overboard. I know that a great many stories have been told on that subject, and I also know that all of them are groundless."

"How did you obtain your information?"

"From his immediate family. Immediately after his death his remains were buried in the navy yard at Washington, where they remained a year or two, during all of which time a sentinel stood guard over them. After the excitement passed away, and his death was in a measure forgotten, the family was permitted to remove the body, and it was taken to the family burying ground, on the old Junius Brutus Booth farm, a few miles from Baltimore. One [illegible] reinterment to me, and told me that the coffin was opened in order that there might be no uncertainty about the matter, and the features were identified."—Interview with General Dan Macauley.

Wasted Wealth in Nevada.

During the bonanza days, when nearly a dozen big mills (on Six-mile and Seven-mile canyons) were rushing through the rich ores of the Comstock, the tailings that left the mouth of Six-mile canyon were allowed to run to waste, and spread abroad on the desert to the northward of the town of Sutro. Six-mile canyon was then filled from end to end with blanket sluices and all kinds of sulphuret catching traps. It was thought that when the tailings left the mouth of the canyon they contained so little valuable material that it would not pay to catch them up in a reservoir, but the blanket sluices caught only the sulphurets and other heavy matter. They did not get the chloride; that went out with the slums. For some years past men have been delving for this wealth lying scattered upon the deserts sands, and they are still gathering it in. In the places where there are now "mining" for this material, it does not show on the surface. The shifting sands of the desert have hidden it, and it is overgrown with sagebrush and greasewood. The deposit must be prospected for, but when found pay well for the work of collecting.—Virginia City Enterprise.

"Hello, old man," said a gentleman to a friend, "what's that you've got under your coat?" "That," was the sad reply, as he brought it forth, "is my wife's little pug dog." "What are you going to do with him? take him somewhere and drown him?" "I wish I might," earnestly responded the gentleman, fetching a sigh. "No, I am not going to drown him. My wife is having a new spring suit made to harmonize with Beauty, as she is pleased to call this disgusted little brute, and I am on my way to a dry-goods store to match him for a half yard more of material."—Savannah News.

An Extraordinary Offer.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every housewife, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its saleability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $600 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return a goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guarantee; and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $75 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to everyone out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

VALEDICTORY!

Good-bye! Good-bye, old year!

Another milestone has slipped behind us.

Another leaf in the Book of Life has closed forever.

The past is able to take care of itself. The future is in our own hands and may be what we chose to make of it.

We have again reached the Merchants' rock ening season, or stock-taking time, when we dispose balancing accounts and bringing all things into line for opening a new year.

Previous to our taking stock we will Clear Out all our winter goods at Cost, and will try to carry over as little as possible into another season.

During this month we will make an extra effort to close out the small balance of Winter Goods to make room for New Spring Goods, expected in early in February.

The Literary Class, conducted by Mr. B. Earle, in the Y. M. C. A. rooms was well attended last night, and a profitable hour was spent in studying Shakespeare's "King Lear." More interest is being manifested in this class and prospects for the future are brightening.

The Ice Jam.

The ice jam at the C. P. R. bridge still holds and the water still continues to almost run up stream, and unless the jam is broken it is feared that considerable damage will ensue. The floating ice coming down the river gives great trouble at the dams, and large numbers of men have to be kept busy breaking the jams that take place.

Oddfellowship.

"The Queen's Evidence."

Day's International Theatre Company opened their engagement of two weeks in Bradburn's Opera House last night, by placing on the boards "The Queen's Evidence." There was a full house. The play is an excellent one and was presented in a superior manner. Mr. Wilson Day's ability is too well known to require comment. He is ably supported by a powerful company. Miss Eugenia Lindeman, who takes the place of Ida Van Cortland in the company, made a very favorable impression, as did also Miss Marie Newman. Little Annie Bird took the part of "Arthur," a small boy, exceedingly well. Her songs, especially "The News Boy," brought down the house. Mr. George Woodward, as Solomon Isaacs, a grasping Jew, was very amusing. He looked like Sir John A. The scenery, especially the lock gates, used by the company is very superior, helping materially to produce the play in a realistic manner. The performance was first-class and deserved the patronage given it. The hall might be heated a little better, and if better order were maintained, the place would be more attractive to all.

Addition to Skating Rink.

A large number of the youth and beauty of the town assembled in their Floor Roller Rink last night, where a social hop was held. Dancing was kept up until an early hour this morning.

"El Padre" Cigars.

Universally acknowledged to be the finest 10c cigar manufactured. Don't be persuaded to take other brands. No chemicals or artificial flavoring used.

The carnival is sure to be a success, as the committee of management are leaving nothing undone to make it such. Valuable prizes will be given for the best costumes.

For the Holidays.

Messrs. Foot & McWhinnie have in stock for the Xmas trade, a very fine line of slippers of all kinds, specially suited for presents, and at prices much below the ordinary. Call in and see the stock, it is really handsome and cannot be surpassed in town. In every department they carry full lines, but make a specialty of fine hand-sewed work for ladies and gentlemen.

Prof. Dorenwend at Phelan's hotel, on Monday and Tuesday, January 18th and 19th.

The weather.

Thermometers around town quietly took a tumble to themselves last night and beat all their former efforts at low registering. Mr. E. J. Hartley's registered 34° below zero, and several others registered from 25° to 32° below zero. Spirit thermometers register higher than mercury. Although intensely cold, there seems to be a dampness in the atmosphere that chills to the marrow. The nose is eagerly sought and often found. Frost bitten noses and ears are fashionable; many cases are reported this morning. A red nose does not always indicate anti-Scott Act principles during these days.

What They are Saying.

I came and poured oil on the troubled post-office waters.—H. H. Smith.

Yes, it was the "grease" that did it.—The rival syndicates.

But we're as much in the dark as ever.—The people.

We "love darkness rather than light, because, etc."—Dominion Ministers.

They all tell me I know how to run a play.—Wilson Day.

And they all tell you the truth, my boy.—The big house last night.

The "Trade Bulletin."

The second numbber of this admirable commercial journal is received. It fulfils the promise of its initial number both, in its typographical make up, which is exceedingly creditable, and in the matter of contents, it meets the anticipations of what may be expected from a first-class journal dealing with merchantile matters. The interest of our readers will be enhanced when they are informed that the superior typegraphy and printing are the work of Messrs. D. English & Co. During the past year the Montreal Produce Bulletin has been extensively quoted by both the Canadian and American press, and the Trade Bulletin supersedes that journal as a representative of commercial interests.

What We May Expect.

More cold weather.

The "Danites" at the Opera House.

A tea and talk to-night in St. Paul's school room.

Demoralized water pipes.

And the plumber to plumb for all he is worth.

"Lots of fun" at the Riverside toboggan slide.

Betting on postoffice sites to be quiet with a downward tendency.

The rival syndicates to bury the hatchet.

The kind-hearted house wife to throw a few crumbs to the sparrows this cold weather.

No flirtation across the front gate to-night.

Moderate winds, continued fair, cold weather, with a little light snow in some localities.

Peterborough Presbytery.

The Peterborough Presbytery met in St. Andrew's Church school room this morning, at half-past ten, a.m. The following ministers and church officials were present:—Revs. J. W. Mitchell, M. A., Port Hope, Moderator; Wm. Bennett, Bethany and Springville, Clerk; P. Duncan, Colborne; D. Sutherland, Warkworth; J. Cameron, M.A., B.D., Millbrook; E. F. Torrance, M. A., Alex. Bell and W. White, town; James Ross, B.A., Bethesda; J. Carmichael, M.A., Norwood; J. R. Craigie, M.A., Bobcaygeon; D. A. Thompson, Hastings, John Hay B. D., Campbellford; John McEwen, Lakefield; W. A. McKenzie, Grafton; and Elders John Aitken, A. McIntosh, Colborne; Robert Tully, town; W. E. Johnston, Grafton; W. E. Roxburgh, Norwood; and John Clark, Campbellford. The members of the Presbytery were entertained at dinner, and will also be entertained at tea by George Edmison, Esq.

Curious Exhibit.

Mr. G. W. Shiles has on exhibition in the store of Mr. Geo. A. Schofield, a very fine crayon portrait of Master John Hammond, son of Mr. Herbert Hammond. The artistic business is booming and crayon portraits are becoming more fashionable.

Young Men's Bible Study.

The class for Bible study in the Y.M.C.A. rooms will meet this evening as usual. It will be conducted to-night by the Rev. A. H. Munro, in the absence of the Rev. Mr. Wallace. Former members of the class and all young men will be cordially welcome.

Riverside Toboggan Slide Opened.

Brilliant flags were gaily flaunting over the Riverside Park to-day, indicating that the Riverside Toboggan Slide was "at home." The rush of toboggans down the slide was continued with little interruption all afternoon.

Free Slide.

Mr. Calcutt, proprietor of the Riverside will be open for the public to-morrow afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock, free of charge. A first-rate opportunity for enjoyment is thus afforded, as the slide is in excellent condition, and on the principle that the more you get the more you want.

"The Indian."

This is the title of a new member of the journalistic fraternity, published at Hagersville, Haldimand County, by the Indian Publishing Company. Head Chief Kah-ke-wa-quo-na-by (Dr. E. P. Jones) is the managing editor. The journal is "devoted to the aborigines of North America and especially the Indians of Canada." It is a well-printed, twelve-page paper and contains a large amount of information of interest to the class expected to form its constituency of readers. One object of the paper is to instruct the Indians of Canada as to their interest in the Franchise Act (and, thereby hangs a tale). To show the literary style of The Indian, the following paragraph from an editorial in the Ojibway language is submitted:—

Ingoo-ding uh-ne-gah-ke-zhee-guk. Kegah-bee o-de-see-go-wah eneneh. Ka-me-de-buh-uh-mo-naig-ke-spin un-duh-wain-duh-mun. Go-mah go-nah-me-nik.

"The Post Office Site."

Where is it to Be?

We learn on good authority that the late visit of Mr. H. H. Smith to Peterborough, had more political significance than we at first surmised. It is rumoured that his primal object was to effect an amicable arrangement between the Sawers Syndicate and the Phalen Faction, on the basis of "taking the toy from both the combatants," and placing the Post Office on a third site in such a manner that the "amour propre" of neither of the parties will be seriously impaired. The pregnant financial arrangements of both parties in relation to the government, to remain in "statu quo," as both lots have been purchased and paid for by the government. This, it is believed, will allow both parties to quietly withdraw their bets, and will not further compromise a high judicial officer in the town.

We give the rumor for what it is worth, at the same time believing that the government is making every effort to assuage the party bitterness and to repair the party loss and injury, its disgraceful double dealing has already caused. An election is now imminent and every means must be utilized to bring the stragglers within the fold. Every unprejudiced elector, who has followed the question through its many intricacies cannot but believe that Sir John Macdonald has acted in a dangerous and corrupt manner throughout the whole transaction, injurious alike to all morality and to all the material interests of the country. The matter is not yet ended. Men will not calmly overlook the treachery and duplicity of high crown dignitaries, and if the immediate parties to that transaction are ever seen publicly raising either their influence or their voice, in support of the men who have so miserably and falsely repaid their former labor, the electors of this county will known that something more than party fidelity has bound them so closely to their wretched party superiors.

Fluid Lightning is simply a marvellous Rheumatic Remedy. I was for two months a cripple, unable to get out of the house from Sciatica. One bottle gave me instant relief, and placed me on my feet again. Years of experience and successful trial have proven McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate the most complete and satisfactory compound for healing Old Sores, Festerings, Ulcers, Cuts, Wounds, Burns, Frost Bites or Felons, and for keeping out the cold and to cleanse or prevent proud flesh, sloughing or decay. Insist on having McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate, sold at 25c. by J. McKee, Druggist. dleodwl

Smoker's?

Beware of cigars artificially flavored for the purpose of hiding the poor quality of tobacco used in flavored cigars. Insist upon having the old reliable brands—"CABLE" and "EL PADRE."

The boss truckman and forwarding agent in New York is Albert H. Tryson, 216 Fulton street; owned a mare and for eighteen months stiff and sore, threw her weight on hind legs when turning; after working half an hour was wringing wet from chest to hoof, trouble caused by hard driving over cobble stones. Applied Giles' Liniment Iodide Ammonia, which remedy cured her. Sold by John McKee. dleodwl

Don't be Duped.

Smokers will further their own interest by insisting upon having the "Cable," or "El Padre" brand of cigars, which have stood the test for a quarter of a century, and not allow greedy and unscrupulous dealers to persuade them to take other brands which pay them a larger profit, the consumer being a loser thereby.

I had for years been a miserable sufferer from Dyspepsia, and tried all known remedies and the best medical skill of my acquaintances, but still grew worse, until unable to eat anything without great suffering, or do any kind of work. I began to think there was no hope for me, and that I must surely die; when, like a drowning man catching at a straw, I determined to give McGregor's Speedy Cure a trial. I at once began to improve so rapidly that in two months I was as well as I had ever been in my life.—WM. EVERS, LEAMINGTON. Sold by John McKee, Druggist. Free trial bottles. dleodwl

I desire to return my hearty thanks for the patronage received since commencing business, and would respectfully direct attention to our intended method of conducting the same for the future.

Cash, or Short Credit, is a system rapidly gaining favor in our country. Merchants of our cities and towns have almost universally adopted it, and in a progressive town like this there can be no reason why we should not follow the same rule.

After the First Day of January next my terms will be Cash, unless otherwise specially agreed.
